SCORES ILL AFTER BANQUET

ISIONS WORLD ELD TOGETHER BY LEAGUE TIES

eneva Leader Begs for Disarming.

GENEVA, Sept. 25.—(AP)—"The league of nations will one day be universal." These were the last and prophetic words uttered by President Ninchitch as he adjourned without date the seventh assembly of the league, which opened its sessions on Sept. 6.

Germany's entry into the league, he declared, has forever silenced those adversaries of international understanding who have complained that the league embraced only a portion of the nations of the world and especially those nations which are not torn by difficulties of vital importance.

"We have witnessed great events," President Ninchitch said. "We have seen nations who have been divided in hideous strife sit side by side and labor together under a common ideal of voluntary obedience to the league covenant."

Urges Disarmament Work.

The president urged all the members to apply themselves vigorously to the outstanding task of the league—namely: to assure the success of the projected international disarmament conference and of the economic conference. "General and loyal disarmament will gain for the league of nations the whole-hearted support of all peoples," he asserted.

The assembly in a resolution declared every civilized nation should adopt the fundamental ideas of the Locarno treaties of conciliation and arbitration. The league council was requested to tender its good offices to all states desiring to conclude conventions of that character.

The most urgent need of the present epoch, the resolution said, was the reestablishment of mutual confidence among nations. The world is finding this need voiced in the constantly increasing number of treaties of conciliation and arbitration, including those of Locarno, which were calculated to insure peace "in the most sensitive regions of Europe," by bringing into play arbitration and guarantees against unprovoked aggression, the resolution said.

Move to Ban Slavery.

One of the last acts of the assembly was the adoption of a slavery convention, which was signed immediately by the plenipotentiaries of twenty governments, including Portugal and Abyssinia, which are most affected. The representatives of twenty-six other nations agreed to sign by Monday.

The convention calls for the prevention and suppression of the slave trade and the complete abolition of slavery in all its forms. It also declares that compulsory or forced labor should not be resorted to unless it becomes impossible to obtain voluntary labor.

Another of the final acts was the unanimous approval of a project to found an Armenian national home in the republic of Erivan. An appropriation was made to permit Dr. Fridtjof Nansen and other leaders of the project to lay the matter before the people of the United States and Europe, who will be asked to contribute toward its fulfillment. The council of the league has appointed a committee to promote the scheme.

Urges Rights for China.

Unless the powers immediately make new treaties with China based on reciprocity and equality, anti-foreign feeling there will increase and it will be dangerous for foreigners to trade there peacefully, Chu Chao Hsin, Chinese delegate to the league of nations, asserted tonight.

In an interview with the Associated Press he said he had no apologies to offer anybody for his action in bringing the recent British bombardment of Wanhsien before the assembly.

"I was educated in the United States," he said. "I love America and American ideals, but I do not understand why the United States is still allowing the other powers in enjoying extraordinary political and economic privileges and immunities in China."

Argentina May Re-Enter League.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 25.—(AP)—The foreign affairs commission of the chamber of deputies has approved the proposal of President de Alvear that Argentina re-enter the league of nations. Argentina's delegation was withdrawn from Geneva during the first assembly in 1920.

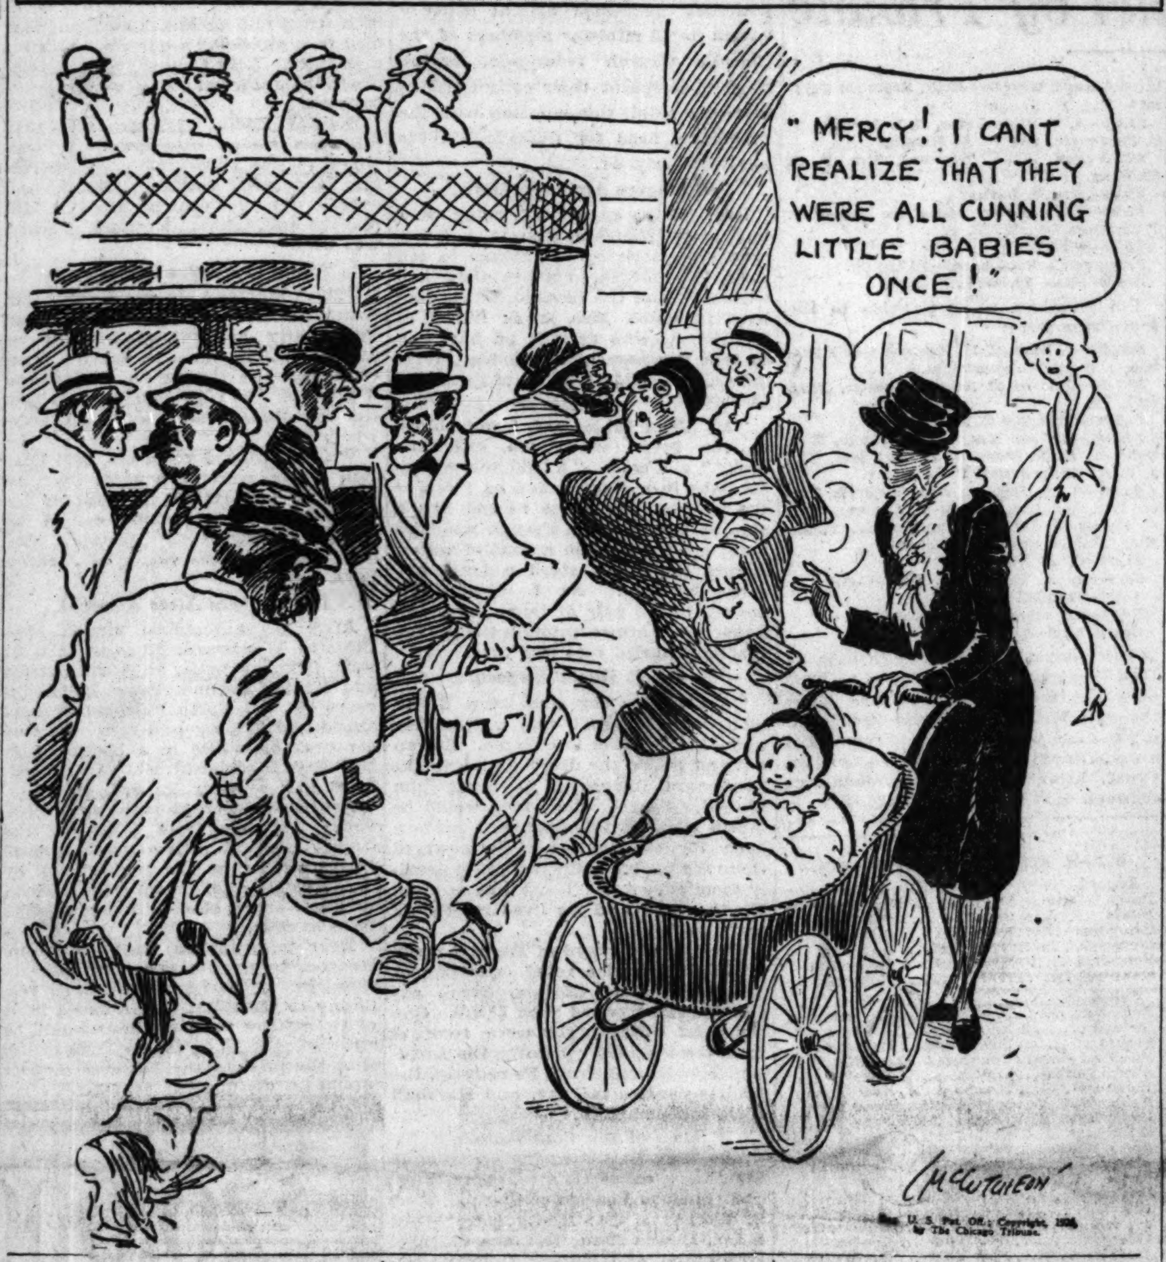
WHAT THEIR LIVES HAVE DONE TO THEM



"MERCY! I CANT REALIZE THAT THEY WERE ALL CUNNING LITTLE BABIES ONCE!"

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.; Copyright, 1926, by The Chicago Tribune.

IS YOUR WATCH RIGHT? DAYLIGHT SAVING IS OVER

Good morning! Did you set your clock back an hour last night? If not you are just sixty minutes ahead of the rest of the city, which officially ended daylight saving time at 2 a. m. today.

At that hour, Chicago and all of its suburbs reverted to central standard time which has not been in effect since April 27. Transportation lines, schools, business houses, and all other institutions are back on the old schedule today.

Some 3,000,000 hours of sleep were lost by Chicagoans last spring when the timepieces were advanced, it is estimated. Last night was the night of retribution and many took advantage of it by extending dances and parties or staying up the extra hour.

A popular referendum will be held at the next general election, Nov. 2, to determine whether daylight saving shall be put into effect again next April. At the first referendum in 1920 the fast time was endorsed by a majority of 61,000 votes.

MEANEST BANDIT ROBS GIRLS AT BIRTHDAY PARTY

It hasn't been determined yet who is Chicago's most desperate stickup man, but the Town Hall police assert they know who is the meanest one.

He is the man masked with a blue handkerchief, who has been terrorizing women in the district for several weeks. Last night he invaded a birthday party for 10 year old Kathryn Schoonmaker in her home at 4423 North Paulina street, lined up eleven little girls of her age, and took rings from two of them.

Then the uninvited guest, waving his pistol, compelled the little girls to play a phonograph while he searched the apartment for jewelry and money.

"I'll kill you all if you yell," he threatened. After he had found the purse of Mrs. Elting Schoonmaker, Kathryn's mother, and taken the $15 it contained, he slipped away, leaving the youngsters to continue the interrupted festivities.

EXPEL 2 ILLINI FOR VIOLATING BAN ON AUTOS

Urbana, Ill., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Two students were expelled from the University of Illinois for violation of the rule prohibiting the use of automobiles by students. Kenneth Schnapp, Springfield senior, and Fred Tinthoff, Peoria junior, are the two men expelled by the university council of administration.

"Both men were given permission to drive their cars under special dispensation for business purposes and abused their privilege by using their cars without limitation," Dean Thomas Arkle Clark, secretary of the council, explained when the men were expelled.

Aimee Laughs as New Miss X Muddles Case

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Too many "Miss X's" tonight embarrassed District Attorney Asa Keyes' preparations to prosecute the Rev. Mrs. Aimee McPherson on Monday, and Mrs. McPherson, with thousands of her Angelus temple followers, made merry over the fact.

According to Mrs. McPherson's count, there are three "Miss X's," two "Kidnaper Steves" and five alleged pay-off go-betweens, to add a dash of levity to the serious accusations of perjury, obstruction of justice, and subornation of perjury which have been filed against her.

Aimee Laughs at Prosecutor.

"There are so many 'Miss X's' now," Mrs. McPherson said, "that a certain party doesn't know whether to drive them in tandem or abreast. They say I bought these 'Miss X's.' Well, if I did, the least they can say is that I bought wholesale and did a good job.

"So far I have heard of about seven different 'Miss X's.' Mrs. Babe Daniels is one. Mrs. Wiseman says she brought forward another. A third was the one the late Dr. Waters brought to the door of Angelus temple, he said, but she backed down. In addition four other 'Miss X's' have telephoned to me or written to me."

Mr. Keyes' immediate embarrassment hinged on the "Miss X" confession of Mrs. Babe Daniels, self-styled 20 year old Chicago girl, and the corroborative story told by Mrs. Daniels' companion, Harry Melosh. The two were brought here from San Francisco this evening and questioned by Keyes.

Both Are Released.

Keyes stated that he doubted parts of their confessions and thought that public interest would be served by refusing to arraign or prosecute the couple with Mrs. McPherson on Monday.

Both Melosh and Mrs. Daniels later were released.

"Neither will be used as a witness by the prosecution," he said. "On examination day their stories developed as so unworthy of credence and devoid of the elements of truth that, as a fair prosecutor, I must denounce them. The major portion of Melosh's published statement was repudiated by him today."

Too Many Steves, Too.

According to Mrs. McPherson's story, she was kidnaped by a "Steve" and "Rose," other names unknown. Yesterday, Melosh nominated Thomas Young of Oakland as a "Steve" who had been promised $5,000 on Mrs. McPherson's behalf if he would plead guilty to kidnaping her. Previously Miss Bernice Morris, another prosecution witness, swore that she had been paid to produce Joe Watt, a Long Beach oil man, as "Steve," and that Mrs. McPherson recognized both the picture and the voice of Mr. Watt as that of her abductor.

SHOOTS HIMSELF TO DEATH IN NEW MASONIC TEMPLE

Isadore Gordon, 35 years old, was found dead last night in a lavatory on the tenth floor of the new Masonic temple. He had shot himself in the head after scribbling on an envelope: "Refer to my brothers at 1571 Milwaukee avenue."

At that address police found Sam Gordon, who said his brother had been mentally unbalanced and had often threatened to kill himself. He said Isadore was unmarried and had no permanent place of abode.

Any man who can drink four gallons of wine in 24 hours and consume forty-eight whisky highballs at a sitting should be divorced, Mrs. William F. Mrs. McLane said her husband boasted that he could drink more than any other man in Chicago.

CAN'T RESCUE ENTOMBED MEN FOR THREE DAYS

Three Killed as Shaft Caves In.

Ironwood, Mich., Sept. 25.—(AP)—It will take three more days and nights of constant toil to reach the forty-three miners who have been entombed since Friday afternoon 727 feet beneath the earth's surface in the G. Pabst iron mine, at the present rate of progress.

Between the prisoners and rescue workers are 402 feet of twisted steel and rock choking the shaft that leads down to their eighth level at an angle of 75 degrees.

Confident of Rescuing Them.

Ten men are constantly in the shaft, relieved at frequent intervals, taking out the débris and passing it up to the surface. One foot at a time they bore down, pausing at every foot to reënforce the shaft against another collapse.

"They will be alive when we get there."

This grimly optimistic forecast was made by Gus Erickson, captain of the rescue workers.

He told why. They have a plentiful supply of good water. The air is good. There is no danger of flood. With these advantages, mine experts believe the men may live four days, excepting those who may have suffered injuries.

All Experienced Miners.

The trapped men are experienced miners and know what to do in their predicament. In charge of them is Thomas Trewartha, shift boss, whom officials are confident would prove resourceful in prolonging the possibilities of rescuing the men alive. They believed he would conserve the air and keep up the morale of the men.

It is regarded possible that the men also may still have food, as each man had a full dinner pail. Each man has a carbide lamp, charged to burn for eight hours.

WORK IN SHIFTS

Ironwood, Mich., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Working in shifts of ten men each, rescuers tonight were tunneling the rock choked shaft of the Pabst iron mine in an effort to reach forty-three entombed miners.

Their fate is in doubt. Efforts to signal them through tubes have failed.

If they are still alive mine officials believe they will be rescued. There is no danger of gas in the mine and it is believed they can be reached before they are overcome by thirst or suffocation.

Three Bodies Recovered.

Three bodies already have been recovered from the shaft which was closed by a cavein late yesterday.

They are Thomas Rowell, mine electrician, and his two assistants, Evar Gustafson and Gust Sell, who were crushed to death in the mine cage, which was catapulted hundreds of feet down the 60 degree incline of the shaft by the first bowlder slide.

The other 43 men were trapped while at work on the eighth level of the mine when the cavein blocked the passage for 250 feet.

Work Progresses Slowly.

Rescue work is progressing slowly. Last night workers were hampered by a new cave in which precipitated additional earth into the opening.

Slightly more than 100 feet of passageway was cleared in the first 24 hours.

Some of the shaft is filled with loose earth and débris while in other places it is necessary to use acetylene torches to cut through the bowlders.

Abandon Early Attempt.

Early today an effort was made to reach the men by tunneling from a nearby mine through 1,000 feet of earth, but this effort was abandoned because it was possible to work only two or three men at a time.

The bodies recovered this morning were taken out through a nearby working. The other shaft is located about a quarter of a mile from the Pabst mine. The men went into this shaft, dropped down about 150 feet from the mine level and tunneled through to the wrecked cage.

Rowell was the father of Joseph Rowell of Chicago. His daughter, Emily, is a student at Northwestern university.

Bandits Kill Thousands, China Report

LONDON, Sept. 26—(AP)—A Reuter News agency dispatch from Shanghai quotes the newspaper China Press as saying that bandits slaughtered thousands of defenseless inhabitants of Shekichen, Honan. They sacked and burned the city and carried off hundreds of captives including two women missionaries believed to be a Miss Eponine and Mrs. E. J. Davies. The island mission compound was destroyed, adds the China Press.

Warmer Here Today; Frost Nips Midwest

Crisp, sunshiny weather prevailed yesterday in Chicago, with the thermometer sinking to an official 42 degrees late last night. Farmers and fruit growers with crops still unharvested spent an anxious night wondering how much danger would be done by anticipated heavy frost.

Today, according to the weather forecast, will be fair, with slowly rising temperature. Tomorrow is to be cloudy, according to prediction, but the rise in the mercury will continue.

At midnight several nurserymen reported that there was no damage by frost up to that time and that they hoped to escape.

Warm Weather in East.

Abnormally cold weather prevailed yesterday in all parts of the United States except the Pacific coast, the extreme south and the extreme east. Washington and New York were in the grip of torrid weather. The thermometer stood at 90 degrees in Washington and at 85 in New York. A heat prostration case was reported in Brooklyn.

There was a break toward higher temperatures late yesterday in the northwest and this is expected to move steadily eastward.

The coldest spot in the country was Stewart, Idaho, where the minimum was 4 degrees above zero. Several other Idaho cities had temperatures of less than 20 degrees. Even Texas felt the force of the cold wave, Amarillo having a minimum of 33 degrees.

Conservative estimates of damage to the Iowa corn crop by the frosts was estimated at from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 yesterday. As a result of early warnings many farmers saved portions of their crops. It was feared last night that the cold night predicted would cause still more damage. Reports from Sioux City said northwest Iowa had a real winter freeze.

Fruit Crops Are Killed.

Such vegetation as melons, tomatoes, and some species of apples were killed, county agricultural agents said.

At Oklahoma City the minimum temperature was 41 degrees. Kansas City's low was 38, a record for Sept. 25. Killing frosts in the lowlands were predicted there for last night. At Dresden, Kas., the mercury fell to 19, and at Goodland to 20.

In Kansas the hot suns of August had brought the corn crop beyond the destroying power of cold, and those fields that escaped the heavy Kansas floods were expected to produce almost full crops.

All of the central west hoped for a full week of bright warm weather. This would be sufficient, it was said, to make the crops a success.

While Chicago was enjoying a bright sun during all of yesterday, there were many points, it was reported, where thunderstorms continued to bring distress to farmers. Central Illinois particularly was expecting further rains.

Officials of the health department began receiving complaints early yesterday morning because many landlords were running their furnaces on a calendar rather than a temperature schedule.

Landlords were urged to heat their apartments, although the legal deadline for heat is not until Oct. 1.

FOOD SERVED TO 3,000 FLORISTS IS SUSPECTED

Guests at Big Hotel Dinner Stricken.

Following a banquet on Thursday evening in the Edgewater Beach hotel at which sat some 3,000 persons, consisting of members of the Florists' Telegraph and Delivery association and their wives and other relatives, reports of illness became prevalent.

Yesterday reports were received from several scores of those who dined that they had been victims of severe intestinal convulsions. Doctors in various parts of Chicago were kept going hot-foot in answer to calls for first aid.

Patients Recover Quickly.

Late last night there had been no reports of dangerous illness and in most instances the patients were said to have recovered.

Investigation at the Edgewater Beach hotel met with complete denials that anything extraordinary had followed the banquet. Officials of the hotel said they had heard of no ill effects upon guests at the banquet. The house physician, Dr. J. J. McCarthy, who was reported by some of the banquet guests to have made many sick calls, declared he knew of no food poisoning cases and had answered no summonses from patients of that character.

Mr. B. B. Wilson, assistant manager of the Edgewater Beach hotel, who was in charge last night, said he had heard not one report of this nature. He said he had no intimation that there were any ill-effects of the banquet.

Dr. McCarthy said he had treated not one person for any ailment resembling ptomaine or other food poisoning. He said he was the only physician who would have been called had the hotel received any complaint.

No Notice to Officials.

Dr. John A. Greiger, acting health commissioner, said he had not been notified.

"Food poisoning is my specialty," he said. "If any report had reached the health department I'd have had a corps of men there to find out the cause."

Mrs. Norman Stewart, 545 Addison street, chairman of the women's committee for the entertainment of the florists, insisted she had called on several women who attended the banquet and she was sure there had been several hundred persons ill Friday as the result of something they had eaten.

C. H. Bookedis, florist at 944 Michigan avenue, whose home is at 1020 Central street, Evanston, said:

"At least 80 per cent of those at the banquet became sick, and there were 3,000 people there.

"I have been in bed ever since, and I know of scores who had the same experience."

Notified Hotel Man, He Says.

Laurent Clody, a director of the florists' organization, made it known that he had informed "a Mr. Sullivan," an assistant manager of the Edgewater Beach hotel, of the widespread sickness among the banquet guests, but that Sullivan contended that it was an impossibility that food served at the dinner could have been to blame.

"Must have been something you drank, or perhaps it was something you folks ate elsewhere before you came over here," is the way Mr. Clody quotes Sullivan.

In Convention Four Days.

The florists had been in convention at the Edgewater Beach hotel from Sept. 20 to Sept. 24 and the banquet was the farewell. It was held in many rooms all over the hotel, the marine dining room, the upper ballroom, and the lower ballroom. Local florists said they had set aside a fund of $50,000 to entertain the out of town florists who came for the convention.

The menu included crabmeat, tuna fish, soup, and mushrooms, any of which might have been responsible for the cramps of the diners, attending physicians said.

Most of those who complained said they felt no ill effects until two or three o'clock next morning.

One of the local florists said a resolution had been adopted weeks before the beginning of the convention absolutely banning intoxicating liquors. He said it had been faithfully kept and that the hotel officials complimented them for it.

Patient Suspects Tuna Fish.

Mrs. Alfred Fischer, 550 Surf street, who accompanied her husband to the dinner, was reported seriously ill last night. Mr. Fischer, who is proprietor of a florist shop at 2737 North Clark street, also was affected.

"Both Mrs. Fischer and I developed the familiar symptoms of ptomaine poisoning," Mr. Fischer said last night. "Of course, I could not say positively what item of the banquet menu was responsible, but I suspect it was a pattie of tuna fish which was served first of all."

Mr. Fischer said he had suffered severely from cramps all day and that in addition his voice appeared to be affected. He said his wife probably would not be able to leave her bed for several days. Mrs. Fischer is under the care of Dr. Walter A. Stuhr, 2244 Lincoln Park west.

Dr. Stuhr said he would not take the responsibility of diagnosing the Fischers' illness as ptomaine poisoning, as he was consulted only by telephone. "I believe their illness was caused by something they had eaten," he added.

Families Tell of Illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Eisen, 7209 Yates avenue, were both ill after the banquet. Mrs. Eisen said her sister, Mrs. William McHugh, 6702 Chappel avenue, was another sufferer.

M. Redden and his wife, 5501 South Halsted street, were also sick Friday for several hours. Arthur Weatherwax, 5349 Maryland avenue, said he and his wife were both affected and that W. J. Smyth, 3101 South Michigan boulevard, who was elected president of the national association, was another who was quite ill at his home.

Peter and Louis Duris, who have a floral business at 132 North State street, were among those whose illness was reported. Their cashier, Miss Klaus, was with them, and she, too, became sick.

Herman Young of Indianapolis, Ind., and his wife were sent home feeling ill effects. Erwin Berterman and his brother, Walter, both of Indianapolis, also went home after the effects of the illness had passed.

Visitor Reports Seizure.

Charles Eble of New Orleans, La., a guest at the Morrison hotel, said he was seized with a terrific pain in the stomach Friday morning which lasted for an hour or more. Mr. Eble said that every one he knew at the banquet had become sick. Charles Eichling of New Orleans and his son, Philip, who lives in Evanston, were others reported sick.

H. B. Kennicott, wholesale florist in Wabash avenue, was present at the banquet with his wife, Mrs. Olive Kennicott. They were at the Morrison hotel for the night and at 3 a. m. Mrs. Kennicott became ill and the house physician was called to attend her. She had recovered the next day.

A. Schofield, 815 Bate street, Detroit, Mich., went home after one and a half day's illness. William Rock of Kansas City was ill at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. Salfort, East Orange, N. J., was attended at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Rouleau, employed by Laurent Clody, 6719 East End avenue, who, with his wife, were also sick, required the services of a physician. Mrs. Clody was kept to her bed all Friday, and yesterday she called at the home of H. D. Schiller, 4455 Magnolia avenue, and found Mrs. Schiller in bed, ill.

Otto Kastle and his wife, Ollie, 6416 South Halsted street, were attended by Dr. W. R. Abbott, 7501 Cottage Grove avenue. Mrs. Kastle was in bed for two days, and last night said she had not entirely recovered.

Physician Is Summoned.

Fred Berry and his wife, Loretta, 850 West 79th street, were affected. Dr. E. J. Meyer, 7858 South Halsted street, was called for Mrs. Berry, who was violently ill.

W. J. Smyth, 6618 Kimbark avenue, was still confined to his bed last night, and his wife, Ada, was recovering after a day and a half of illness. Harry Smyth, 6536 North Campbell, brother of W. J. Smyth, and his wife, were also ill.

John A. Michael and his wife, 7045 Stony Island avenue, were still affected yesterday. Mrs. Harry Muir, 3313 South Wood street, cashier in Michael's store, was in bed two days, and she attributed her illness to tuna fish.

Miss Margaret Gorman and James Preston, also employed at Michael's, were also reported ill.

Four employees of Earnest Weinhoeber, 22 East Elm street, were others on the sick list yesterday.

With Philip Eichling and his wife, Elva, was a Miss Wilson of Minneapolis, Minn., who became ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Bitterman, owners of the Shady Lane Flower Shop at Columbus, O., were affected. Mr. and Mrs. Farley of the Gentilly Nurseries, New Orleans, were also ill.

Other Stricken Visitors.

Among other out of town guests reported affected were:

Miss Maude McGovern, Winnipeg, at the Palmer house.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Barbour of Cleveland, Edgewater Beach hotel.

Miss Kate Harris, Memphis, Edgewater Beach hotel.

Robert Shock of Philadelphia, Edgewater Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, Memphis; George Spence, Chattanooga, and Mrs. Gray and Miss Gray, Detroit.

Among others reported to have become ill were:

Jean Eberlean, 2523 Leland avenue; Otto Sieloff, 815 Bates avenue, Detroit; Henry Hornecker, 75 Central street, East Orange, N. J.; Otto Lang, 1214 Main street, Dallas, Tex.

John Poehlmann, 846 Eastwood, was slightly ill, he said. He believed the drinking water affected most of the visitors.

Housewives/ tomorrow in this paper OSCAR MAYER will reveal a precious discovery. Too thrilling to miss!

FLORIDA WITH 17 MILLION CASH BALKS AT RELIEF

Politics Halts Calling of Legislature.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—While about $100,000 has been contributed locally to the hurricane relief fund, many of the big real estate firms of Florida, the builders of dream cities that drove America mad last winter, are finding themselves facing a cash shortage that makes outside help necessary in the work of caring for the poor and homeless.

Florida should care for its own, at least up to the limit of its capacity, is the talk heard here, and there has been much criticism of the local authorities for what is termed begging from the rest of the nation.

The Miami News, a paper owned by former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio, is calling on Gov. John W. Martin to dip into the $17,000,000 in the state treasury to rebuild the stricken area. He is being scolded for not calling a special session of the legislature to make an emergency appropriation.

Talk on the street favors this, but the governor has made no move beyond visiting the hurricane district, sending troops in, and issuing a call for outside help. He is in Tallahassee and is reported to be considering the matter of a special session in the light of the wishes of the whole state.

In the past there has been some jealousy between the east and west coasts and it is a question whether it would be politically profitable in other sections to send great sums into Miami.

Will Rewrite Contracts.

Several big real estate development firms are about to rewrite contracts with investors, cutting or suspending payments.

"The hurricane will be a blessing in disguise," said the representative of several big land projects backed by New York capital. "Here we have been sitting around for months talking about our troubles and fostering squabbles and wondering when the slump would end. Now we have been given a big jolt, all personal, and unimportant things have been swept aside.

"The real estate developers have been the greatest victims of the Florida boom. As fast as they got in money they reinvested it, obligated themselves for immense new projects. They bought land, for instance, at $5 an acre years ago, sold it for $50 last year, and immediately took the first money and made a payment on more land.

Obligations Fall Due.

Their own profits do not come in until the last twenty per cent payment is made. Now they are caught with no money coming in, or less than they expected, and their own obligations are falling heavily upon them.

"But facing it all together in a spirit of helpfulness they will be able to pull out."

There are no tears in Miami. The people are taking their losses heroically.

Inspection of the building losses shows that from 5 to 10 per cent of the property value is gone instead of the 50 per cent which was feared at first.

Bundesen to Remain.

Mayor S. C. Romfh and other city officials tonight persuaded Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen of Chicago not to withdraw his 100 doctors and nurses from the surrounding hurricane swept territory and depart for home. The Chicago contingent will remain for another forty-eight hours in the fight they have been making since Wednesday to prevent typhoid and other diseases which, it was feared, might follow in the wake of the storm. The Chicago unit was to have departed tonight. Dr. Bundesen now has consented to remain until Monday night. The Miami officials praised the work the unit has done.

The health commissioner agreed to remain after officials sent a telegram to Mayor William E. Dever of Chicago requesting it and thanking Chicago for sending them.

It was made clear today that none of the Fisher hotels on Miami Beach was seriously damaged. The Boulevard hotel remained open throughout the storm and is today caring for 300 people. The Flamingo, Nautilus, Lincoln, and King Cole will be in readiness for winter tourists as usual. Golf courses and winter attractions are assured in good condition, both in Miami and Miami Beach. Reconstruction is in progress.

$2,212,800 for Relief.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Contributions to the Florida disaster relief fund now total $2,212,800, it was announced at the headquarters of the American Red Cross today. The organization has asked a minimum of $5,000,000 for the assistance of the injured and homeless in the hurricane district and John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross, expressed an earnest hope that collections by local chapters over the week-end would bring the fund to at least $3,000,000.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Sept. 25.—(AP)—There is a great feeling of relief here over the cessation of hostilities. The delegates of various factions are being selected now for the peace conference which will be held aboard a United States warship at Corinto, the first week in October.

SEEKS MISSING HUSBAND.

Mrs. George Hines, formerly of 301 West 11th street, Milwaukee, accompanied by three children, appealed to the South Chicago police last night for assistance in finding her husband, who has been in Chicago for several weeks.

FLORIDA RELIEF DRIVE SPEEDED TO FILL QUOTA

More Refugees Arrive in City; Tell Hardships.

Chicago's fund for the relief of Florida's storm stricken cities was only a trifle more than half the quota of $300,000 at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the lists were closed for the day, with a cash total of $160,089.64 on hand. Contributions received during the day amounted to $41,779.49.

In an effort to speed up collections for the fund, which it was at first predicted would be filled by this time, Frederick H. Scott, vice president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, yesterday addressed special delivery letters to all minister members of the Chicago Church federation, urging them to acquaint their congregations from the pulpit this morning with the immediate need for financing in the hurricane district.

Refugees Arrive in City.

Even as the appeal was being written, more refugees from the storm area were arriving in Chicago to tell their tales of the horrors they had witnessed and the hardships they had lived through. Mrs. R. B. Wilder of Hollywood, who arrived on her way to visit her parents at Spooner, Wis., gave a graphic description of the storm there.

"My three babies and I were alone in the house when the hurricane broke," she said. "I held the youngest baby in my arms, and as I ran to the window, the house rocked like a ship at sea, and the French windows burst open, letting in a flood of water. Across the street stood a long, one story building. As I watched, it opened like a pair of huge jaws, and a man was thrown through the broken roof and hurled into our yard.

Suffer 12 Hours' Exposure.

"A neighbor boy who knew I was alone—my husband was at the factory—hurried over to help me. He ran out and pulled the dazed man into the house and managed to bring him around. Fearing the house would be blown from its foundations, I made a dash for the garage. We cowered there for twelve hours, suffering greatly from exposure. There was no milk for the baby and we lived mostly on crackers."

The Chicago Board of Trade contributed $2,641 to the relief collection of yesterday. The Chicago Stock exchange was credited with $1,979. One thousand dollar gifts were received from the Pullman company, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway, the Illinois Central railway, and Marshall Field and company.

Some of the Contributors.

The Link Belt company contributed $891; the Quaker Oats company, $750, and the Iron League of Chicago, $505. S. Karpen & Co., Montgomery Ward & Co., Dawes Bros., Inc., the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Crane, and the Illinois Brick company gave $500 each.

The Chicago Real Estate board donated $487; the Building Construction Employers' association, $302; the Chicago Tanners' association, $300; Wilson Brothers and the John F. Jelke company, $250 each; and Edward N. Hurley and the A. D. Shoup company, $200 each.

AUTOS END FOUR MORE LIVES; 613 NOW YEAR'S TOLL

Fire Truck Speeding on False Call Kills 1.

The sounding of a false alarm of fire was indirectly responsible last night for the death of an unidentified man about 50 years old. A truck of Engine company No. 17, speeding to the box from which the message was received, struck him at Halsted and Madison streets. William Murphy, driver of the fire truck, was not held. The man killed was about 5 feet 7 inches tall, gray haired, with a gray mustache and gray eyes. He was fairly well dressed.

This death and three others raised the automobile fatality toll in Cook county since Jan. 1 to 613.

Phone Girl Fatally Injured.

Miss Elizabeth Connelly, 18 years old, 2912 East 91st street, was fatally injured last last night when she was struck by an automobile driven by Adolph Novic, 52 West 103d place, at 89th street and Escanaba avenue. She died in a physician's office a few minutes later. Miss Connelly was a telephone operator and was on her way to work.

Bolislav Zadlo, 11 years old, 1365 Bauwans street, was fatally injured when he was struck by a car driven by Rheingold Vergen, 2161 Leland avenue. The accident occurred at Milwaukee and Ashland avenues. Vergen was held.

Dies of Plunge Injuries.

Gilbert Mulligan, 44 years old, 10208 South Union avenue, died at Roseland Community hospital of injuries received Monday, when he drove a rented automobile through a railing and it plunged down an embankment into the Des Plaines river north of Maywood.

Wallace Kipp, 8 years old, 1624 East 70th street, suffered a skull fracture when he was struck in front of his home by an automobile driven by George Cramer, 7000 Constance avenue. The boy was taken to Jackson Park hospital.

Driver Flees After Accident.

After his automobile struck Miss Ganatta Woodward, 22 years old, 22 East Grand avenue, at Adams street and Racine avenue, Peter Miller, 18 years old, 208 North Fairfield avenue, abandoned the car and ran. He was captured by police in a basement at 1235 West Madison street. Miss Woodward was severely injured.

Arnold Walliser, 31 years old, an elevated trainman, was taken to the county hospital with a possible skull fracture after he had been struck by an automobile driven by Donald Hess, 19 years old, a student living at 4742 Race avenue.

Evanston's police have been instructed to wage a relentless war on speeders. A warning was issued yesterday to the effect that a speed limit of twenty-five miles an hour would be strictly enforced on the boulevards and that the limit in the business district would be fifteen miles an hour.

SOVIET ENVOY ILL; POISONING PLOT IS HINTED

LONDON, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Leonid Krassin, who is expected to return to London on Monday to resume his post as soviet chargé d'affaires, is stricken with pernicious anemia in a most unusual form, says the Sunday Express. The newspaper adds there is a widespread feeling among M. Krassin's friends that he has been poisoned in some subtle way by bitter enemies among the Moscow extremists. He was stricken with what was first reported to be pneumonia in Paris early this year. Several times he has been revived by blood transfusions. The Express says that many of those who volunteer their blood for these operations were impoverished Russian exiles. The paper comments on the peculiar irony that czarists have been driven by poverty to offer their blood to save the life of one of the soviet leaders.

NEARBY BLAZE WAKES PATIENTS IN ST. LUKE

The routine of hospital life among patients in St. Luke's hospital was broken last night by a bit of excitement when fire broke out in the basement of a three story brick building across the street at 1436-38 South Michigan boulevard and spread to the rest of the structure, causing a loss estimated at $250,000.

Patients when awakened from slumber by the clang of the gongs and rumble of fire apparatus lined up at windows and watched the firemen. The flames are supposed to have originated in the basement, where denatured alcohol was stored for use in automobile radiators.

Two horses were burned to death and hay and lumber valued at $25,000 were destroyed by fire late last night in the yards of the Joseph Brothers Lumber company, 1729-35 North Western avenue.

BUTTER AND EGG MAN TURNS KING'S EYE ON U.S. GIRLS

Boris May Seek Queen Here; Aid Finances.

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

VARNA, Bulgaria, Sept. 25.—The young bachelor king of Bulgaria wants to visit America. He is looking for a wife and his people want a queen; hence there has arisen in his country the question of whether an American girl will sit on the throne at Sofia.

Since his return after an unsuccessful courtship of an Italian princess, King Boris informally has expressed his desire to visit the United States. He has told a number of Americans whom he received here this summer at his palace on the coast of the Black Sea, of his wishes.

Behind the young sovereign's growing interest in the American trip is the story of the prince and peasant—the prince who stayed home and studied to be king and the peasant who emigrated to America and took his degree of B. E.—Butter and Eggs.

Peasant Playmate Grows Rich.

King Boris has been receiving glowing accounts of the land of opportunity from a Bulgarian immigrant recently returned from America. The emigrant's father was a peasant employed as a gardener in the palace of Boris' father, King Ferdinand. Boris, as a young prince, and the peasant's son were childhood playmates.

Twenty years ago the gardener and his son emigrated to America and last month the son, now grown to manhood and the same age as King Boris, returned to Bulgaria with an American wife, both of whom were received by the king. King Boris found his former peasant playmate now well educated, college bred, a successful business man with an accumulated fortune making him more than independent for life in Bulgaria.

"How did you do it?" King Boris asked.

"America," replied the butter and egg man, proudly launching into a detailed account stretching from the stormy steerage voyage of twenty years ago to date.

"Sells" King on America.

The king's admiration for his former playmate's successful rise from ignorance and poverty to education and affluence by means of American institutions and opportunities has resulted in the resumption of their close friendship of twenty years ago. As a result of the almost daily talks and walks together in the last three weeks, the butter and egg man is reported to have completely sold King Boris on America.

Two weeks ago the trim, white American yacht Scorpion tied up at the quayside here in Varna harbor. In the evening the American sailors gave a jazz concert on the forward deck for the benefit of the crowds of Bulgarian peasants on the dock. Out in the darkness on the harbor side of the ship, a small rowboat floated in the silence of the water.

30 Years Old and Handsome.

The American sailors dancing on the deck were unaware of the identity of the occupants of the rowboat and the Bulgarian peasants ashore were ignorant of the fact that their pleasure in the jazz strains was being shared by King Boris and his boyhood friend, who were equally enjoying the music incognito from the darkness of the harbor.

King Boris is thirty years old and considered handsome. He is taller than the prince of Wales and has the latter's craze for modern dancing, but is reported to be more attached to horses than the heir to the British throne.

Eye America's Gold.

Reasons of state might prevent the king from visiting America, but few objections will be found in Bulgarian economic and financial circles who realize that $30,000,000 of an American tinplate fortune went to the deposed Greek royal family through the marriage of Prince Christopher to the late Mrs. Leeds.

Bulgaria's need of capital for its reparations bill and the persistent opposition of its neighbors, Jugo-Slavia, Roumania, and Greece to the league of nations' loan to Sofia makes the possibility of an American alliance along matrimonial and financial lines most fascinating.

King Boris never has displayed an economical line of thought and is reported to be more interested in sport and material affairs, but the Bulgarian financiers and peasants are thrifty souls and the king has a wonderful example in his new found playmate, the returned butter and egg man.

DISABLED VETS' 'FORGET-ME-NOT' DAY ON NOV. 11

Because of the proximity of the federated charities' tag day in Chicago, permission has been granted by the city council to the Disabled American Veterans of the World War to postpone their local observance of "Forget-Me-Not" day until Armistice day, Nov. 11. Yesterday, Sept. 25, was the date observed nationally for the sale of the tiny blue flowers, proceeds of which are used for the training and rehabilitation of wounded ex-service men.

Chicagoans yesterday sought the warmth of winter wraps, fur coats especially, when the cold snap sent the mercury down to near the 40 degree mark in the morning. TAFT, 50 POUNDS LIGHTER, IS BACK FROM VACATION

Ascribes Illness to Stomach Ailment.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—William Howard Taft, chief justice of the Supreme court, returned to Washington today after spending the summer vacation at Murray Bay in Canada.

His health, which was the subject of much concern when the former President left the capital last June, was pronounced greatly improved at the Taft home this evening. The chief justice will begin active work again within the next few days.

Passes Through New York.

New York, Sept 25.—[Special.]—A cluster of reporters stood under the window of a drawing room on the Washingtonian as it lay in Pennsylvania station this morning and looked up at a large and smiling man who effectively filled the small window.

"May we see you for a few moments?" they asked.

"Well, how's the view you have now?" he replied.

That was the way the interview with William Howard Taft, chief justice of the Supreme court of the United States and former President, began. It was an opening characteristic of Mr. Taft, for his recent illness has had no effect at all upon his famous good humor and his approachableness.

Taft Loses 50 Pounds.

It has had, however, some effect upon his weight, for Mr. Taft, while he is still a large man, is nearly fifty pounds lighter than he was a year and a half ago.

Mr. Taft invited the reporters into his drawing room and gave them fifteen minutes of the twenty minute interval between the arrival of the train and its departure for Washington.

He was returning from his summer home at Murray Bay, Quebec, where he had been since June 26 with his wife, his children, and six grandchildren. In Washington on Monday he will preside at the conference of senior federal Circuit court judges.

Mr. Taft was burned by wind and sun. His face was not quite so full as it had been and he walked a little unsteadily because of his recent illness.

The first questions were about his health. He said his illness was not from overwork, but definitely from stomach trouble.

"We understand, Mr. Taft, that you took a three weeks' rest cure and it was reported you were very ill."

"I can't help what was reported," he answered.

METROPOLITAN OPERA TO LAUNCH MORE U. S. SINGERS OVER CRITICS

New York, Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The Metropolitan Opera company will continue to launch young American singers upon operatic careers as often as it can find adequate talent. This was made plain today by Edward Ziegler, assistant general manager of the Metropolitan, following his return from Europe. The only regret of the Metropolitan is that there are not more young American singers who are ready to make their debut. Adverse criticism will not affect the policy of giving opportunities to Americans. Mr. Ziegler said that on his European tour he had found no new operas or singers to add to the répertoire or artists of the Metropolitan.

SEIZE TWO AS SPENDING SPARE TIME AS THIEVES

Accused of being the week end robbers, preferring Saturdays and Sundays for the collection of loot, George Smith, 1467 East Sixty-second street, and Arthur McKwane, 6127 Aberdeen street, both under 30 years old, were arrested yesterday.

Seized at McKwane's home, they later were identified by fifteen south side storekeepers and chauffeurs. At the detective bureau, Mrs. Reta Atkins identified Smith as one of two men who robbed her of $70 in a butter and egg store at 4439 South Ashland avenue. She fainted just after she made the identification.

Taxi drivers and chain stors are said to have been the targets of the two suspects in the territory from Hyde Park boulevard to Ninety-third street.

POISON IN BODY CAUSES ASTHMA, DOCTOR ASSERTS

Asthma is caused by internally manufactured poisons rather than by inhalation of pollen, Dr. P. L. Clark, Chicago, told the convention of the American Association of Medico-Physical Research at the Congress hotel yesterday. Treatment, he declared, should be directed toward cleaning these poisons from the body.

Poor combinations of food and overeating are the principal causes of the disease, he said. Poor foods form an excess of acid which irritates the mucous membrane of the lungs when the body attempts to throw it off.

Change of diet to broth and fruit juices and physical and mental rest, he said, comprise effective treatment.

TINY GIRL LEADS U. S. EXPLORERS TO PYGMY LAND

Find Dwarfs in Heart of New Guinea.

WELTEVREDEN, Java., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Smiling and playing with bright beads, which they had given her, a tiny pigmy girl recently led American and Dutch scientists of the Sterling expedition into a village of pigmies in the jungles of Dutch New Guinea's mountains. She was the first of a newly discovered race of pigmies to be seen by white men.

For four months the expedition had negotiated the dangerous rapids of the Mamberamo river, had climbed the towering Van Rees mountains, and had braved deadly tropical fever in their quest of the pigmies for ethnological study. Their success in finding the dwarf people after expeditions had been turned back with heavy loss due to disease was largely achieved by use of an airplane, which flew over swamps and dense equatorial growth.

Pigmy land was found after five days of climbing of steep mountains, which rose to a height of 15,000 feet. First the party came upon the Rouffear river, which plunged down a deep gorge, with high cliffs on both sides. Across the gorge was a rattan suspension bridge.

Explorers Fear Trap.

The party crossed gingerly, half suspecting treachery, and prepared for a hostile reception they had been told to expect. Instead they met the smiling little black girl.

Following her they entered a village and soon were surrounded by the people of pigmy land. But they were friendly. Smiling and making signs of good will, they brought presents of their primitive bows and arrows, ornaments, and other crude implements of the stone age developments to which they belong. In return they expressed their delight with the gifts of trifling value which the men of the expedition gave them.

Of True Pigmy Type.

The pigmies spoke in low tones, were unobtrusive, but not timid. Ages of immunity among the mountain heights from the fierce Papuans of the plains had made them calm and cool, unafraid.

The scientists were able to make careful measurements and determined that they were of the true pigmy type. They studied them to fix their relationship to other Negrito tribes and to collect ethnology data for the National museum in Washington, D. C.

HOUSE PAINTER TAKES SEAT AS DIRECTOR OF PROCTER & GAMBLE

New York, Sept. 25.—(AP)—A house painter from Staten island is to take a seat among the directors of the Procter & Gamble company of Cincinnati.

The company announced here today that William Derosa, a painter in the Port Ivory (Staten island) plant, had been elected to represent his fellow workers on the board. Similar elections were held in Cincinnati and Kansas City.

GUNS FOR HER BROTHER-IN-LAW OVER $500 NOTE

Mrs. Sovya Voyonovich of 3506 Deodor street, Indiana Harbor, took decisive measures yesterday to collect a note for $500, which she asserts her brother-in-law, Daniel Voyonovich, declined to pay.

Armed with a revolver, she stepped into Daniel's grocery at 3219 West 92d street. The weapon was concealed. She asked the grocer for money. He laughed and said he didn't think he owed it, that it was all in the family anyhow.

Out came the revolver. The grocer was standing with his hands aloft, while the irate sister-in-law was threatening to kill him, when a policeman stepped in and disarmed her. She was charged with assault with a deadly weapon. At the South Chicago station she declared that her husband had deserted her and taken $1,200 of her money also.

FIVE DAY WEEK IN FORD PLANT PROVES SUCCESS

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 25.—(AP)—The Ford Motor company announced today that after two months' experiment the five day week has been made a permanent policy in the company's plants here. There has been no daily wage increase, except on merit.

On the merit basis, it was said at the company's Dearborn offices, some workers are now receiving for five days' work as much as they formerly received for six.

It is hoped, the company spokesman said, that the new system will stimulate workers so that eventually all will receive for five days' work as much as they formerly received for six days, if not more.

EXHUME BOYS' BODIES SOON IN RONGETTI QUIZ

Coroner Oscar Wolff yesterday set the date for the exhumation of the bodies of the two boys—Joseph Prestianni and Raymond Pfeiffer—who died at Dr. Amante Rongetti's hospital after alleged operations by Rongetti's chief of staff, Joseph J. Rein, an unlicensed practitioner, for Wednesday afternoon.

S. L. Antonow, assistant director of the department of registration and education, requested the post-mortem examination because of conflicting statements by the Prestianni parents and by Rongetti as to the boy's condition before the operation. Prestianni testified that his son did not have the symptoms of mastoiditis for which the operation is alleged to have been performed.

Rongetti has claimed that it was he and not Rein who did the operating, but Prestianni told the state that Rein came out of the operating room covered with blood, while Rongetti was immaculate. Mr. Antonow said that if the examination shows that mastoiditis did not exist and Rongetti persists in his version of who did the operating that the hospital proprietor would be charged with something more serious than manslaughter.

The Film On Teeth

To Which Science Now Ascribes Many Common Tooth and Gum Disorders—To Gain Clearer Teeth and Healthy Gums Many Authorities Advise That Film be Combated Daily in a New Way

MODERN dental science now charges many tooth and gum disorders to a viscous film that forms on teeth — to a stubborn film one can feel by running one's tongue across the teeth and which ordinary brushing has not successfully combated.

For that reason, largely on dental advice, many are turning to a new way in tooth and gum care — a way different in formula, action and effect from any previously known—a way embodied in the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent.

Now an effective film combatant

For years dental science sought ways to fight film. Clear teeth and healthy gums come only when film is constantly combated—removed every day from the teeth.

Film was found to cling to teeth; to get into crevices and stay; to hold in contact with teeth food substances which fermented and fostered the acids of decay. Film was found to be the basis of tartar. Germs by the millions breed in it. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea and most gum disorders.

Thus there was a universal call for an effective film-removing method. Ordinary brushing was found ineffective. Now two effective combatants have been found, approved by high dental authority and embodied in a tooth paste called Pepsodent.

Curdles and removes film
Firms the Gums

Pepsodent acts first to curdle the film. Then it thoroughly removes the film in gentle safety to enamel.

At the same time, it acts to firm the gums—Pepsodent provides, for this purpose, the most recent dental findings in gum protection science knows today. Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. And thus aids in neutralizing mouth acids as they form.

It multiplies the starch digestant of the saliva. Thus combats starch deposits which might otherwise ferment and form acids.

No other method known to present-day science embodies protective agents like those in Pepsodent.

Please accept Pepsodent test

Send the coupon for a 10-day tube. Brush teeth this way for 10 days. Note how thoroughly film is removed. The teeth gradually lighten as film coats go. Then for 10 nights massage the gums with Pepsodent, using your finger tips; the gums then should start to firm and harden.

At the end of that time, we believe you will agree, that next to regular dental care, Pepsodent, the quality dentifrice, provides the utmost science has discovered for better tooth and gum protection.

BOARD IS READY FOR LUCY FLOWER HIGH SCHOOL BIDS

$17,250,000 Program Is Under Way.

Announcement was made yesterday that bids for the construction of the Lucy Flower Girls' Technical High school, Central Park avenue and Walnut street, would be solicited next week. At the same time the architect's report to the board of education showed that with this building, the construction program for 1926 would be entirely under way and that the total cost of the buildings erected under this year's allowance would be $17,250,000. John C. Christensen, architect for the board, appended to the report his recommendation that the standard elementary school building should hereafter be of the three instead of the two story type.

Mr. Christensen stated that the Lucy Flower school had been delayed because he had gone over the specifications carefully to eliminate any superfluous equipment in accordance with the board's retrenchment policy. After all the trimmings have been made the cost stands at $1,000,000, and the building will accommodate 1,500 pupils, the report says.

Nineteen Schools to Be Built.

Nineteen new school buildings will be under construction when work is started on the Flower school. The first of these, the Roger Sullivan Junior High school, North Shore and Bosworth avenue, will be ready on Oct. 4. The others will be completed at intervals until September, 1927, when, it is expected, the Flower school will be completed.

Although the budget for building purposes during 1926 is only $12,000,000, the remainder of the $17,250,000, Mr. Christensen explained, may be paid for from the 1927 budget for buildings completed next year.

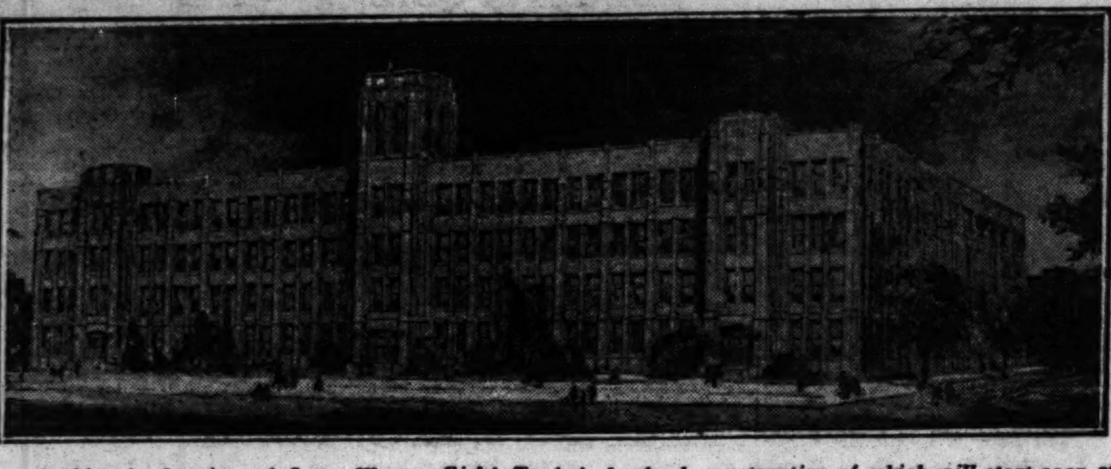
The architect stated that he was now preparing his specifications for the 1927 program. The superintendent's recommendations call for the erection of twenty-one new buildings at an estimated cost of $21,000,000. Mr. Christensen said that he will reduce the estimate to the basis of funds actually available. The superintendent's report and the architect's statement will enable the board to adjust its allowance of funds. Col. Edward B. Ellicot, president of the board, said that the figure would probably be reduced to $10,000,000.

Saving in 3-Story Building.

Three story elementary buildings, with thirty-five rooms each, were recommended by the architect as a valuable economic measure. He said the three story construction would reduce the per capita cost from $565 to $316.

The objection advanced by Supt. William McAndrew that the additional stair climbing is injurious to the child's heart was denied in the report.

WORK ON $1,000,000 SCHOOL TO START SOON



Architect's drawing of Lucy Flower Girls' Technical school, construction of which will start soon at Walnut street and Central Park avenue. The building, which will accommodate 1,500 students, is to cost $1,000,000 and is only one of the large projects included in the school board's 1927 building program.

TEACHERS PLAN MASSMEETING TO VENT PROTESTS

Slash of Schedule to Bring Action.

Efforts of school officials to quell the rebellion of students and teachers against the board's slash of nonessentials did not stop a committee of teachers yesterday at the Atlantic hotel from planning a massmeeting of citizens and teachers to protest economy in the schools. The meeting will be held at the Studebaker theater next Saturday.

D. E. Hager, instructor at Lindblom high school, presided at the indigation gathering and heard the recital of grievances. Teachers, who because the room attendance in high schools was on the opening day of school raised from thirty-three to thirty-five, were placed on the supernumerary list, resented their position.

Resent "Extra" List.

The value of the technical subjects which have been banned from academic high schools was brought out. The teachers who went out along with the equipment aired their resentment at being put on the "extra" list. They declared that although they were receiving their salaries that they were uncertain as to their position. They said that they might be called upon to teach some subject with which they were not acquainted. The departments in the high school which they spent years in building up were snatched away from them at a minute's notice, they said.

Bulletin from Teachers.

The following bulletin was framed: "We are facing a crisis! Efficiency of our service to the youth of Chicago has already been impaired. Its further effectiveness has been seriously endangered. We must stand together to protect ourselves and to safeguard invaluable assets of our profession. A big massmeeting set for Saturday, Oct. 2, at the Studebaker theater at 10:30 a. m. has been arranged for. Individuals of influence and authority in the city will discuss the following: 1. The present case in the city high schools. 2. The endangered efficiency of technical education. 3. The menace of mass production and the tenure of office act."

WANTS COOPER, THE 'MAYBE MILLIONAIRE' TO PAY FOR 7 AUTOS

Kewanee, Ill., Sept. 25.—(AP)—John Cooper, Kewanee's "maybe millionaire," who bought seven automobiles on the strength of his claims that he has inherited $9,000,000 in the east, was being sought today by a Granite City, Ill., automobile dealer.

J. M. Cummings, the dealer, wants to know when Cooper is going to pay for and accept the automobiles. Only one of them was shipped to Kewanee, but it was shipped back to Cummings after a day and a half. It had presumably been a gift for Cooper's brother-in-law. Cummings has gone to Cincinnati in an effort to find Cooper, who suposedly is returning there from New York after consultations about the estate.

Several Kewanee citizens are said to have advanced Cooper sums of $200 and $300, but they are reticent about it. In the meantime the Christian church congregation, which Cooper has promised a new $250,000 edifice, is preparing a reception in his honor on Oct. 3.

TINNEY SAYS HE'S PAID HIS ALIMONY; HOLDS UP ARREST

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 25.—(AP)—The warrant for the arrest of Frank Tinney, comedian in the Earl Carroll "Vanities," reached Sheriff Louis Scriber of Onondaga county today. The actor, however, was not placed under arrest. Attorney William Rubin of Syracuse notified the sheriff that the $1,400 back alimony owed by Tinney had been sent to New York last night. Sheriff Scriber said that he would not serve the warrant until he checked the New York authorities.

CHICAGO WARNED OF PERIL FROM LAKE POLLUTION

Sanitary Congress Ends; Sewage Law Asked.

Warning by the United States public health service that Chicagoans living south of the Chicago river are endangered by pollution of Lake Michigan from the Calumet district was heard yesterday at the closing session of the Lake Michigan Sanitation congress in Racine, Wis.

Pollution of the water that is used for drinking is so great that unless intakes get better protection there may be serious consequences, said the report, read by Dr. F. W. Mohlman, chief chemist of the Chicago sanitary district.

Proposes Remedial Law.

Adolph Kanneberg of the Wisconsin railroad commission presented the draft of a bill which he will seek to have enacted by the legislatures of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Wisconsin. The bill would transfer jurisdiction over surface waters from public health authorities to state commissions and would regulate disposal and treatment of sewage.

In Chicago officials of the sanitary district promised coöperation with the congress in its fight to purify Lake Michigan and to obtain legislative action.

Will Continue Campaign.

Plans were discussed for continuing the campaign for purification, especially in thickly populated industrial districts.

Election of officers resulted in renaming all officials, headed by Henry W. Lee of South Chicago.

Following the closing session delegates went to Milwaukee to inspect the new $3,000,000 sewage disposal plant there.

The complaint alleged cruelty.

LIBERALS TAKE REINS IN CANADA AS TORIES QUIT

Premier King Says He'll Go to Imperial Parley.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 25.—(AP)—The liberal government of W. L. MacKenzie King, which went out of office on June 29, today stepped back into power as a result of the recent general elections, in which the liberals gained several seats, while the conservatives suffered corresponding losses.

Arthur Meighen, who had held the premiership since the resignation of the liberal ministry, appeared before Governor General Baron Byng this morning and tendered his resignation. Mr. King, accompanied by his ministers, took the oath of office at Rideau hall a short time later. The change of government was effected smoothly and within a few hours.

Shortly after taking the premiership, Prime Minister King announced definitely that he would attend the imperial conference in London in October. Ernest La Pointe, minister of justice, and possibly other ministers, will accompany him.

The New Cabinet.

Mr. King's cabinet is as follows:

Prime minister and minister of external affairs—W. L. MacKenzie King.
Finance—J. A. Robb.
Justice—Ernest La Pointe.
Railways—C. A. Dunning.
Interior—Charles Stewart.
Public works—J. C. Elliott.
Agriculture—W. R. Motherwell.
Trade and commerce—James Malcolm.
Customs and excises—W. D. Euler.
Health—Dr. J. H. King.
Immigration—Robert Forke.
Postmaster general—P. J. Veniot.
Marine and fisheries—P. J. A. Cardin.
Solicitor general—Lucien Cannon.
Secretary of state—Fernand Rinfret.
Labor—Peter Heenan.
Without portfolio—Senator Dandurand.

The portfolio of defense is still in doubt. Col. J. L. Ralston originally was slated for it.

Quits Party Leadership.

The resignation of Mr. Meighen was accompanied by a statement from the former premier that he does not propose to contest a seat for the house of commons. A conference of senators, members and defeated candidates of the conservative party will be held in Ottawa on Oct. 11, when Mr. Meighen proposes to retire from the leadership of the party.

The swearing in of the new government was followed by a brief meeting of the ministers in the privy council chamber. There was no announcement at its conclusion.

First Envoy to U. S.

Prime Minister King said tonight that Vincent Massey of Toronto is his choice for Canada's first minister plenipotentiary at Washington.

Definite appointment, however, will not be made until after the prime minister has discussed the matter with the British government, which he intends to do when he goes to London next month for the imperial conference. Mr. Massey probably will be asked to visit London at the same time.

Mr. Massey, who was born in Toronto, in 1887, was educated at St. Andrew's college and the University of Toronto. He was a lecturer in modern history in the University of Toronto from 1913 until 1915. In 1919 he entered the Massey-Harris firm as secretary and director and later became its president.

During the war Mr. Massey was in command of a school of musketry. He was promoted to temporary lieutenant colonel and later became associate secretary of the war committee at Ottawa. He married a daughter of the late Sir George Parkin and has two sons.

Call Parliament in December.

Parliament probably will be called the first week in December. At the first session another portfolio will be created to make possible a minister from Prince Edward island. The session of parliament will be a regular one, with adjournment over Christmas.

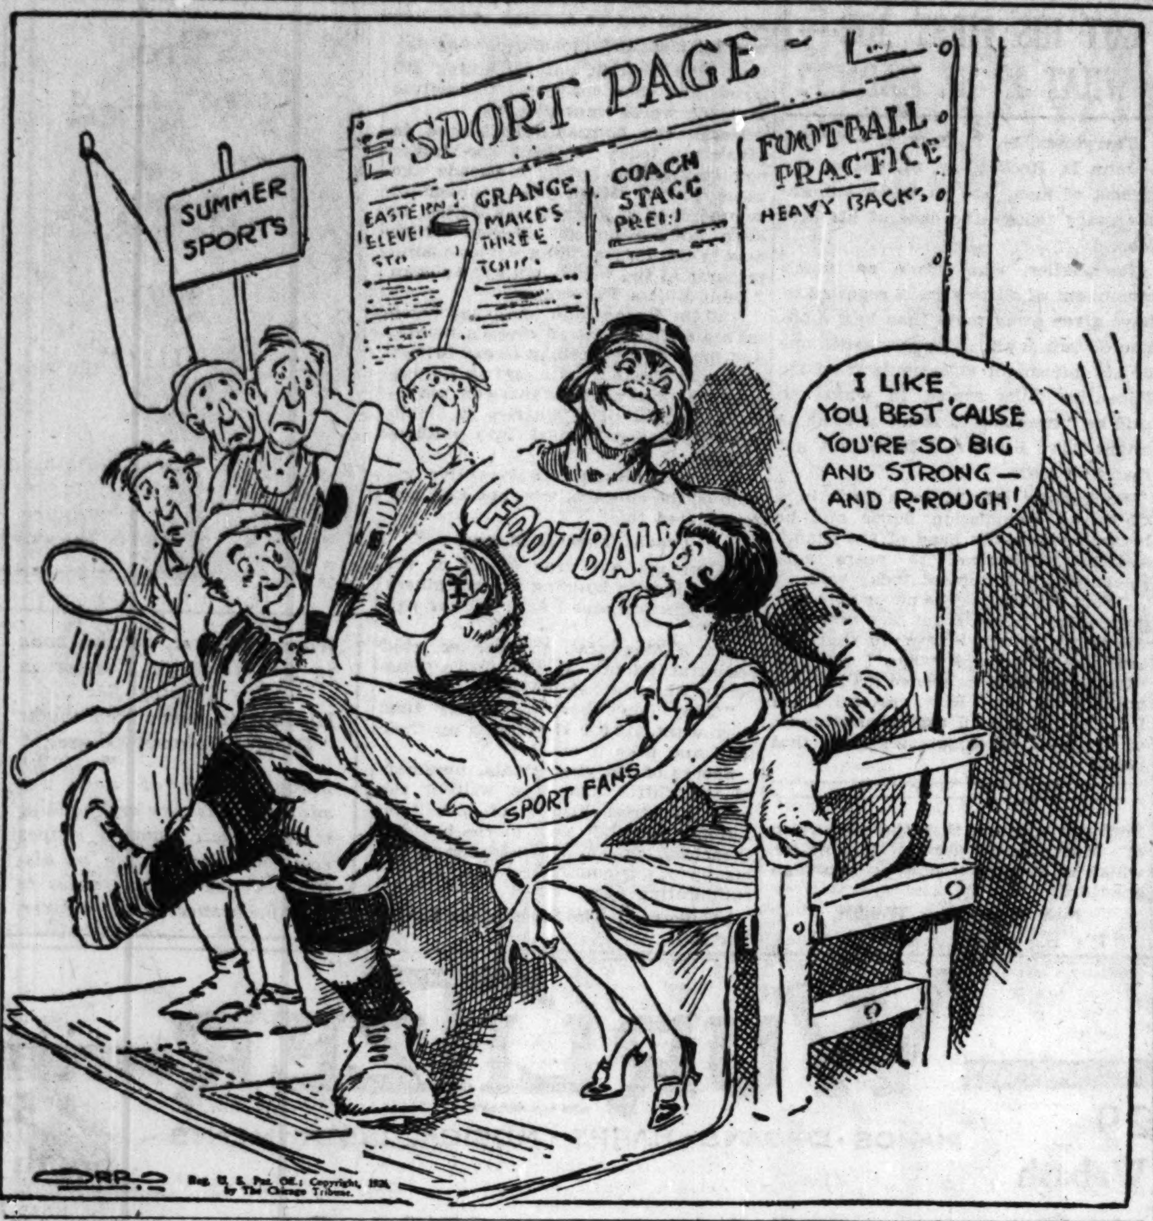
The customs commission will be enlarged to three and will proceed immediately with the investigation in the customs department.

Premier King announced that all the members of the new government came in as Liberals, the Liberal-Progressives of Manitoba having consented to the entry of Robert Forke, minister of immigration, on this basis. The Liberal Progressive group in Manitoba will support the government.

New Governor General Sails.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Viscount Willingdon, who succeeds Baron Byng of Vimy as governor general of Canada, left for Southampton today, accompanied by Viscountess Willingdon, to board the Empress of Scotland for Canada. Secretary for Dominions L. C. M. S. Amery, and other prominent persons were at the railway station to bid them farewell.

THE FAVORITE OF ALL



WIFE FREED, BUT POLICE RENEW SLAYING INQUIRY

Kensington police continued last night to gather evidence in the slaying of John Delveaux by his wife, Margueritha, last Thursday. Mrs. Delveaux was freed when a coroner's jury called the killing justifiable. The verdict, reached in twelve minutes, failed to satisfy police, and First Assistant State's Attorney George E. Gorman ordered that all evidence be turned over to his office, where it may be referred to the gand jury.

Mrs. Delveaux shot her husband in their home, 130 West 114th street, during a quarrel when, she said, he started toward her with upraised fists. He often had threatened to kill her, the woman testified.

BOY SHOT CLEANING REVOLVER.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 25.—[U. P.]—Just as William Marconi, 9, shouted a warning to his brother, Pete, 16, that a revolver the latter was cleaning was loaded, the gun discharged. The younger boy was shot through both legs.

YAQUIS REVOLT AGAINST CHIEF; SUE FOR PEACE

NOGALES, Sept. 25.—(AP)—The Herald is advised by its Guayamas correspondent that eight governors of the warring Yaqui tribe which recently took the warpath against the central government, have made peace overturns to Gen. Francisco Manzo of the federal army in southern Sonora.

Dissension within the tribe apparently is responsible for the desire to end the war, the Herald's corspondent writes. He adds that the eight governors have issued edicts against Chief Luis Matu and their proposal of peace carries a guarantee of unconditional surrender, disarmament and concessions to the government's demands.

Meanwhile, troop movements continue throughout the region. Three airplanes arrived today from Manzanillo, as well as many pieces of field artillery.

HUNT FOR SHEARS IN HALL-MILLS SLAYING CASE

New York, Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The Hall-Mills prosecution today renewed efforts to trace a pair of broken garden shears, with which it is believed the throat of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills was cut after she and the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall of News Brunswick, had been shot to death on the Phillips farm four years ago.

An autopsy performed upon Mrs. Mills showed that although her head had been nearly severed from her body the wounds probably were inflicted with such an instrument as dull shears.

Peter Tumulty, gardener at the Hall home at the time of the murders and at present chauffeur to Henry Carpender, one of the defendants accused of the double slaying, already has been questioned at length concerning them and is scheduled for further examination Monday.

LUMBER QUEEN, OLD RICHES GONE, FINDS NEW ONES

Muskegon Is Nurse for Young Industries.

Story 39 in The Tribune's record of pilgrimages to cities, shrines, and scenic glories of Chicagoland relates how "the Lumber Queen of the World," once ravished and ruined by her lumber barons, has come back, how she has reasserted her supremacy, and how she is again the economic leader of the West Michigan coast area that is known as "Chicago's Riviera."

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

If, reader, you would learn in three looks what ruin vicious economics and ruthless business methods can inflict, and what restoration fortitude and sagacity can effect, then give the next three paragraphs the favor of your glance:

In 1890 the population of Muskegon, Mich., now commercial capital of Chicago's Riviera, was 25,000—and it was waning.

By 1900 it had sunk to 15,000—and the worst was yet to come.

Today, including suburbs, it is 60,000—and it is steadily growing.

Meet Changing Conditions.

There is only one reason why Muskegon today is not a deserted lumber camp. That reason is fortitude made operant by shrewdness.

Forty-seven saw mills that annually had been cutting 800,000,000 feet of lumber disappeared from Muskegon in the 15 years from 1890 to 1905.

Timber cutting in the city's mighty hinterland had begun in an extremely small way in 1837. By 1850 the annual cut had risen to only 60,000 feet. In 1873 it was 330,000,000 feet; in 1883 the cut by mills on the borders of Muskegon Lake—solely those—was 687,000,000 feet. That was the year the city won its title of "The Lumber Queen of the World."

Mania and mills were going full tilt. There was no reforestration, although there had been a period of nearly 15 years in which visioned and patriotic men could have felt out the fact that reforestration was advisable.

"More Where That Came From."

On the contrary, so Justus Stearns of Ludington told me a few days ago, such experts as the Blanchards and the Knoxes of Chicago were prophesying in the mid-seventies that there was more timber in Michigan than ever would be cut.

Thirty years after that prophecy, the timber, so far as profitable operations on the west coast were concerned, was all cut, and ruin stared the Lumber Queen in the face. Her kingdom was despoiled. She was dethroned. The timber was gone.

DIVORCED

Katherine McDonald, who won a national contest as "the most beautiful woman in motion pictures," gets divorce from her husband, C. S. Johnson, on grounds of nonsupport.

In 1905—still called in the Muskegon valley "the Black Year"—came the days of deepest gloom.

The mills were silent.

Every fourth store on Western avenue, street once swarming with "the Mackinaw men" and resounding with their profanity, was vacant and its windows were whited.

Then Nothing but Hard Times.

"And we were all," said one old resident to me last week, "scratching gravel to live. The bottom had dropped out of everything. There was nothing left."

In those days you could have lived, rent free, in a certain commodious house occupying a choice site in Muskegon. All you had to promise was to "keep the property up"—and nobody would much care whether you kept your promise or not.

Not many months ago that site—66x132 feet—sold for $40,000, and it will be embellished with the new home of the Young Men's Christian association.

"The Black Year" of 1905 was followed by five years of doldrums.

In 1909 there was languid, although solicitous, discussion in the Muskegon city council as to whether the town should go in for concrete paving.

Feared Collapse of Town.

"No, not concrete," said many, "but crushed stone with a little oil over it so that we won't have burdened the people with unnecessary taxes if we don't have a town ten years hence."

That was the whipped spirit of place and people then.

But not now.

Last year Muskegon raised for civic and charitable purposes over a million dollars—this in addition to the regular taxes.

In 1910 the comeback of the Queen began. Somehow a new birth of confidence came to pass.

New men, young men, began to assert themselves.

The incubus of the false ideal of get-rich-quick began to lift.

The long and short of the annals of Muskegon for the last fifteen years is that the Chicagoland city which suffered worst from the end of timber has come back the strongest. Today that city has more than a future. It has a destiny.

Another Triumph of Work.

The rehabilitation has been almost miraculous. But no miracle brought it about.

Close thinking and ceaseless work brought it about.

"Diversified industries."

Ponder those two words. They represent the big fact in the economic history of the republic today, so far as its small cities are concerned. And the republic's small cities are its vitals.

Muskegon sent its go-getters afield to lure to Muskegon the small, struggling industry that was being badgered by labor troubles in a big city—the small, struggling industry in which the great banking houses declined to take an interest.

Muskegon's missionaries talked friendly to those strugglers in an hour when they needed friends.

They talked with notable effect to the founders of a business which today is the industrial giant known the world over as "Continental Motors." It was then an industrial pigmy.

Its plant in Chicago in 1907 had 4,000 square feet of floor space.

Chicago Overlooks a Bet.

Today its plant in Muskegon covers 15 acres.

Chicago might have kept that pigmy under its wing and nursed it into gianthood. But Chicago, swollen with money and self-importance, was just then afflicted with poor eyesight. The same affliction bids fair to lose it the aviation industry of America. "See a pin and pick it up," is no contemptible motto even for cities which account themselves—and which are—the commercial capitals of valleys of empire.

For more than fifteen years Muskegon has been intently picking up pins. No concern is too small, no inventor too obscure, to get a respectful and sympathetic hearing from the Muskegon chamber of commerce, which has an annual budget of $56,000 and twelve secretaries, and which administers the interest on a community fund of $450,000 for "the nursing of industrial babies."

The Muskegon chamber of commerce came over to Chicago almost as a body to talk friendly with the strugglers who were fighting to build up Continental Motors—and it won them.

Ludington, another Michigan west coast lumber town which the end of lumber nearly extinguished for a time, did the same with the Star Watch Case company of Elgin. In Elgin the Star people had been bedeviled by labor troubles. They were delighted by both the labor and the climatic conditions which they found in Ludington. They moved there. Today their business is one of the seven largest watch case making plants in this country, and O. A. Stark—I think it was Mr. Stark—one of the company's officials, was quoted to me as having said recently:

"In the cooler and more wholesome air here on the shore of Lake Michigan we find that our workmen produce more and better results."

Lessen Freight Delays.

Such removals to Chicago's Riviera are no longer unusual.

Of one of the reasons for them Chicago ought to take prayerful heed.

It is this—in the words I heard a dozen times in a week:

"Some Chicago companies are seeking out the Riviera towns of Ludington, Manistee, Muskegon, Holland, and so on along the coast, for branch plants in order to lessen their freight delays in the Chicago terminal area, which have become almost intolerable."

It is a curious fact—nay, perhaps in the long view of mankind's blunderings and achievements it is the most natural of facts—that not the descendants of the terrific old lumber barons are building up the new era on the west coast of Michigan. That grand work is being done by a new race of young American industrialists who came in from the outside. John Beukema told me that the proportion of Muskegon's present population which is Muskegon born is less than one-third.

New Men Bring Wealth.

"It's the young men," he added, "that weren't worth a dollar in 1910 who today are making our town. The town is made up of young men whose sole capital ten or a dozen years ago was an idea and tenacity—young fellows who thought out something different and then convinced themselves that the world wanted it."

Hence the flourishing presence in Muskegon today of the Shaw-Walker company which hardly a decade ago came to the Muskegon chamber of commerce and begged for $3,500 to keep going—and got it—and which now is the largest filing device manufacturer in the world—with the slogan "Built Like a Skyscraper."

And the Piston Ring company, which makes 4,000,000 piston rings a month, and more in a year than Great Britain makes in Great Britain and all its possessions. The heads of that company—Paul Beardsly and Charles E. Johnson—Muskegon nursed into millionaireage.

It was Johnson, the inventive genius of the concern, who not long ago formulated this:

Proves Time Is Money.

"Give me one year ahead of the other fellow in building my machinery for production and I care not for patents."

And Billinghurst, the banker, paid resentful tribute to the firm's prosperity when he said this:

"They don't borrow. Every time they want $10,000 they open up their mail and take it out!"

Scores of thriving plants, hundreds of thoughtful men, are writing the new industrial history of—not "the Lumber Queen" any more—but the Comeback Queen. No chapter in the history of our country contains a more exhilarating page.

71 YEARS AGO JOHN D. GOT HIS FIRST JOB—WHAT IF HE HADN'T?

Tarrytown, N. Y., Sept. 25.—[U. P.]—John D. Rockefeller, 87, one of the richest of men, had an important anniversary today—the date of his first job.

Rockefeller, who made so much money out of oil that he is reported to have given away more than half a billion dollars in philanthropy, issued one of his infrequent statements from his Pocantico Hills estate, in which he said he "trembled to think of what he might have become if he hadn't got that first job."

Rockefeller started as a clerk in a Cleveland commission house and he became eventually head of the Standard Oil. He retired 15 years ago. Rockefeller's statement today said:

"Sept. 25, 1857, is the never-to-be-forgotten day when I got my first job. All of my future hinged on that day and I often tremble when I think of what might have happened if I had not gotten that job. How grateful I am I did get it, for all the circumstances of my busy career started from that point."

LISMAN DRAFTS DETAILED PLAN FOR CAR UNION

Engineer Comes to Confer on Consolidation.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The Lisman-Harlan transportation plan for Chicago is scheduled to be presented in detail this week to the council subcommittee of which Ald. Byrne is chairman. Attorney Harlan said yesterday he hopes to have the proposal "in skeleton ordinance form" by Wednesday.

Henry M. Brinckerhoff of the engineering firm of Parsons, Klapp, Brinckerhoff & Douglas has been brought on from New York to confer with Messrs. Lisman and Harlan. Mr. Brinckerhoff was chief engineer of the commissions of Parsons, Ridgway & Arnold which compiled the 1916 transit report for Chicago. That report strongly urged consolidation of the surface lines, elevated roads, busses and proposed subways under one control and management as the most advisable way to deal with local transportation in this city.

Will Urge Union Also.

It is reported that the Harlan-Lisman detailed proposal will also advise consolidation. That was suggested in their first proposal but its importance was not emphasized as in the Parsons-Ridgway-Arnold report.

Mr. Harlan said yesterday that Mr. Lisman and associates are "attempting to meet, as far as possible, all criticisms which have been made" of his proposal. The principal criticism advanced is that the Harlan-Lisman proposal deals chiefly with the surface lines and does not take into consideration the whole subject of transportation for the city. Mr. Harlan's statement, therefore, promises a more definite and detailed proposal than heretofore submitted on the whole transportation question.

That necessarily involves the raising of more money than the $50,000,000 specifically mentioned in the first Lisman-Harlan proposal, and it is rumored that Mr. Lisman will definitely promise to raise considerably more than $50,000,000. He has publicly said that he would, but has not yet named the amount.

Surface Lines Subway.

Mr. Harlan takes the position that the "skeleton ordinance" will be "just spelling out" the proposal heretofore presented, but in addition to the rumored provision for consolidation and the raising of more money it is said that there will be a detailed plan for the construction of a surface lines subway to care for west side street cars. According to the report, this will extend eastward from the Washington street tunnel under the river, looping southward in Michigan avenue, turning westward in Jackson boulevard and hooking up with the Van Buren street tunnel under the river.

On the other hand it is certain that Mr. Lisman will be ready to discuss the request of Ald. Jacob M. Arvey. In his original proposal Mr. Lisman said that if he were given a twenty year grant and it was extended later to fifty years and the outstanding indebtedness was then paid off, the property would be turned over to the city gratis. This original proposal stipulated a sinking fund which would cancel all funded debts in fifty years. Ald. Arvey asked why that could not be done in thirty years.

Mr. Lisman has compiled figures to show how much money must be collected yearly to pay off all the bonded debt in thirty years and what the fare would have to be to produce that sum. It is reported that Mr. Lisman will not recommend that such a program be adopted, but is prepared to go some distance in meeting the Avery request.

Pay Up in 50 Years.

On the surface lines alone Mr. Lisman originally proposed to issue new securities for the present securities and also raise $50,000,000 in new money for extensions and improvements. His plan provided that the $50,000,000 should be paid off in twenty years. He also proposed a sinking fund for the present capital account of the surface lines, totaling about $164,000,000, which would amortize it in fifty years. Under that program, at the end of thirty years there would be $54,250,000 in the sinking fund, so that it would be possible to reduce the $164,000,000 to $109,750,000.

This amortization proposal was on the basis of one-half of one per cent. It is understood that Mr. Lisman has prepared figures showing what part of the $164,000,000 could be amortized in thirty years at a rate of three-quarters of one per cent.

Work for Low Fares.

On the basis of one-half of one per cent, $820,000 is set aside annually and interest compounded semi-annually to produce $54,250,000 in thirty years. Three-quarters of one per cent means the setting aside of $1,230,000 each year instead of $820,000.

Mr. Lisman is said to have made other calculations on the Arvey request and is understood to be ready to suggest a plan which will amortize a larger part of the $164,000,000 than his original plan proposed. All such calculations are believed to oppose a higher fare.

Subways is Chicago's most pressing need, in the opinion of John G. Shedd, chairman of the board of Marshall Field & Co. In an interview in the current issue of the Economist, Mr. Shedd says:

"Now is the opportunity for Mayor Dever and his associates in the council, under whose jurisdiction the traction situation lies, to make very definite progress in preparing to build a comprehensive subway system which will enable Chicago to grow normally and allay the present congestion of traffic. For them to accomplish this would mean their retention in office for an indefinite period, as providing this city with subways would be a tremendous step forward which would bring them political support irrespective of party lines."

Mr. Shedd said he saw little of promise in the Lisman-Harlan proposal.

Librarian Carl Roden Is Honored

Carl Roden, librarian of the Chicago Public library, yesterday celebrated his fortieth anniversary in connection with the institution. He is shown receiving flowers from employes of the library at Washington street and Michigan avenue.

ONE MOTOR CODE FOR ALL CHICAGO AREA IS URGED

Survey Reveals Maze of Traffic Rules.

A simple, uniform set of traffic rules covering the entire metropolitan area will be one of the recommendations of the Association of Commerce traffic survey, just being completed, it was indicated yesterday.

Owing to its multiplicity of park districts and suburbs, no city in the country has such a chaos of traffic regulations as Chicago, Miller McClintock, technical director of the survey, declared in discussing the general bases of his report.

"Each of these areas on the checkerboard map of the metropolitan region has different restrictions and ordinances," he said. "They vary in many important details. A duty in one place is often a crime in another.

Motorist in Maze of Laws.

"As a result the long suffering motorist is lost in a maze of conflicting laws. He finds himself operating under a different system of control every time he crosses a political boundary, with traffic police waiting to pounce on him at any corner."

In Lincoln park, for instance, a minor who has reached the age of 15 may operate any motor vehicle, Mr. McClintock pointed out. But in the county he may not do so unless accompanied by a licensed chauffeur or the owner of the car. In other places he could not drive at all.

In driving from Lincoln park boulevard to a county highway the 15 year old driver would violate one or more of four local codes: city, section 4013; south park, section 4950; west park, section 93, or north shore, section 1619, all of which forbid driving by a person under 16.

Headlight Dimming Cited.

Another example cited by Mr. Clintock concerns the dimming of headlights. The state law requires the dimming of lights within 250 feet of an approaching vehicle, but a driver complying with this law would be arrested in the south parks, where the manipulating of a device changing the intensity of lights is prohibited.

"These examples can be multiplied many times," said the survey director. "Although many splendid regulations for safety have been established by the various bodies, one rule would be better than four or five. Simplicity is the basic factor in good traffic control.

The McClintock report is now in the hands of the street traffic committee of the Association of Commerce, where it will be put into final form. Its recommendations will be sent to the city council in two or three weeks.

RADIO PROGRESS ENDANGERED.

The department of commerce reports that the United States has three-fifths of all the radio broadcasting stations in the world and five times as many receiving sets as are to be found in any other land. The leadership of the United States is the more striking in view of the popularity of the radio as a means of education and entertainment the world over.

Americans have more money than the people of other lands and spend more freely. We delight in scientific and mechanical novelties. These facts will account in part for the growth in popularity of the radio in this country but do not tell the whole story. Our government has refrained from exacting a license fee from radio listeners. The fee might have discouraged prospective purchasers because of the nuisance no less than because of the money outlay. In addition there are virtually no police restrictions on the use of the radio here. Any one may have a set and bring in anything he can find. In Germany Slavs are forbidden to operate sets and in Greece only citizens of the country are privileged to own receiving apparatus. Other countries have other annoying restrictions. Many governments have gone into the broadcasting business with the blighting effect that might have been anticipated. Our government has wisely refrained from all these forms of interference with private initiative.

Unfortunately our government has carried its policy of non-interference too far. There is one point upon which the need of government regulation is clear. The number of stations in a given locality must be limited. Otherwise there will be interference between broadcasters amounting to anarchy. The task of preventing anarchy in the air falls upon the government because there is no other agency able to undertake it. The department of commerce undertook the job of regulation under the terms of a law passed before program broadcasting was known, but Judge Wilkerson's decision in the Zenith case led to the sharp limitation of the department's activity. Meanwhile congress has failed to enact a new radio law and matters have been allowed to drift.

Interference resulting from the pirating of the wave lengths of the established stations is steadily growing more annoying. If it is allowed to continue American supremacy in radio development will be threatened. Another session of congress should not be allowed to adjourn without the enactment of a law establishing radio broadcasting rights.

THE CHINESE CONUNDRUM.

The conference for the revision of the Chinese customs has passed away. It was held in accordance with the promise to China given at the Washington conference on naval limitation and the Pacific, and it is given up, as Mr. Silas Strawn, American delegate and chairman, explains with characteristic candor, "because the Chinese have run out on us."

Indeed, the Chinese began to run out before the conference began. Mr. Strawn left for China about a year ago, but before he reached Peking three members of the Chinese delegation had "run out"—that is, the mutations of political fortune in China had made it seem desirable to three delegates to seek asylum in one of those deplorable institutions of imperialism, the foreign concessions. They were followed later by other delegates, including no less a personage than Mr. C. T. Wang, cabinet officer and spokesman for the Christian general and his faction. We have not been able to keep track of the changes in the Chinese delegation, but the chief difficulty the representatives of the foreign oppressors of China have met has been to find a delegation that would last long enough to be introduced to them. The main trouble has not been agreeing with the Chinese government, but finding a government that lasted long enough to agree with. The process recalls William James' description of metaphysics: a blind man hunting in a dark room for a black cat that isn't there.

The Washington treaty powers were criticized for not calling the conference more promptly. If it had taken place before the Chinese republic had got into such rough water, it might have worked out some customs arrangement instead of failing completely. That this would have sufficed to stabilize the situation we doubt. The causes of disturbance run to deep. It would have provided more revenue for whatever faction held the government for the time being, but the clash of forces would have gone on.

In any case, the postponement of the conference was not the fault of the United States. The French government would not consent because it was arguing with Peking whether or not Chinese indemnity payments should be made in depreciated francs. So far as we are concerned, we have kept faith with China. Mr. Strawn and his colleague of the American delegation, our minister at Peking, Mr. MacMurray, have done everything that very able and patient men could do to fulfill the pledge of the Washington conference. Of course, we shall have the usual amount of twaddle about greedy and oppressive imperialism, but the trouble with China is the Chinese. If every demand made by the Chinese press and politicians for customs revision and the abolition of extraterritorial rights were granted, the Chinese ferment would continue. In our opinion, it would grow worse. If there were a responsible Chinese government, an increase of revenue would be beneficial, provided it spent the money on honest administration and urgently needed public improvements. There is no responsible Chinese government, and there is grave doubt that if any existing faction or combination waxed powerful enough to create one it would expend its revenue in honest administration or needed public improvements. Our professional friends of China and arm chair internationalists write glibly of China and her rights, but in the sense of a political entity there is no China. China is a geographical division and a racial or cultural entity. But the conception of political nationality is confined to a small fraction of China's three or four hundred million people, and among these political ideas are generally naive and impractical and patriotic devotion too often sadly lacking.

The condition of China is deplorable and its problems are staggering. There are no short cuts to stabilization that can be seen by practical men, and we share the pessimism of Mr. Strawn and other informed observers. Certainly the foreigner can do little to help, however willing he may be, and it will be difficult in the extreme to chart any safe course. We have in China substantial interests in commerce and investment and an imperative duty to protect our nationals lawfully in China. Our chief danger of serious blundering lies in a failure to look facts in the face and in our tendency to rely upon generalities which do not apply. Our government will always be under a certain pressure from sentimental and impractical opinion, notably that of a certain body of missionary and church opinion, but it should be firmly put aside. To yield to it would not be beneficial, either to our own interests or, in the long run, to the Chinese.

A SOUND COMMERCIAL AVIATION.

Mr. MacCracken, assistant secretary of commerce for aviation, announces a survey of his department of the country's air transportation situation. With the air commerce act of last May as a basis, the department is examining into the condition of existing carriers with a view to determining what factors enter into the profitable operation of such enterprises.

One significant point Mr. MacCracken touches upon. That is, that before commercial aviation can enter into true economic use airplanes must be able to fly at night and in all weathers. Mr. MacCracken's insistence that commercial aviation must be reliable and sound from a profit and loss viewpoint strikes the key note of American commercial flying.

It is within the province of the federal government, acting through the department of commerce, to go far toward helping commercial aviation through its present period of transition. The air commerce act supplied the means and power formerly lacking.

Comparison is often made between commercial flying in Europe and in the United States, and the latter suffers by the parallel. It is true that in Europe commercial flying—except in mail transport, in which America excels—has been developed beyond a point attained in this country. It does not follow, however, that European commercial flying, because of its extent, is in as healthy an economic state as the more backward commercial aviation of the United States.

Virtually all European commercial flying is governmentally subsidized. In the United States what there is of it is standing on its own feet. Flying in Europe is no more profitable than it is in America; it has merely been pushed beyond its normal rate of development. When American flying grows, as it will, it will be a sound growth, paying interest on the investment.

American commercial aviation does not ask a government subsidy. It has, nevertheless, the right to expect from the government just such aid as is contemplated in the air commerce act and which Mr. MacCracken, now surveying the situation, is preparing to give it.

American aviation needs a uniform code of air regulations. It needs supervision of equipment and operators. It needs the sort of aid the government supplies to shipping, the charting of routes, the creation of ports, the dissemination of weather reports, etc. It needs the same specialized advice and counsel the government supplies to other special branches of business.

This sort of service the department of commerce is preparing to supply. With it, American commercial aviation—without subsidy—faces an assured future.

MR. HOOVER TAKES THE STUMP.

Two members of the cabinet, it is announced, are to take a particularly active part in the fall campaign; these two are Harry New, the postmaster general, and Herbert Hoover, the secretary of commerce. Of the two, Mr. Hoover is the headliner. It is no disparagement of Mr. New to place him after Mr. Hoover, who has won the confidence of the public as few men have in the nation's history.

The Coolidge cabinet is not an aggregation of stump speakers. There is not a first rate Fourth of July orator in the lot. Mr. New was speaking from the heart when he said he looked forward with no pleasure to a speechmaking tour. If Mr. Hoover gets any satisfaction from the platform it is derived from imparting information. He has few of the tricks of the orator and nothing of the prima donna's temperament. He has no province which accepts his political dictation; he is from California, but his influence there is no greater than it is in New York. His strength as a campaigner derives solely from the fact that he is a man of outstanding ability who is absorbed by the jobs he has in hand and knows how to tell about the work he is doing. When Mr. Hoover discusses the nation's prosperity he will be listened to respectfully by bankers and shopgirls. The best talk in the world is shop talk if it is well done.

RELIGION IN DOWNTOWN CHICAGO

BY THE REV. JOHN THOMPSON, D. D.

[Pastor First Methodist Episcopal Church in the Chicago Temple.]

Religion is graven on the mind of Chicago. The city founders had a genius for religion. The building of the city and founding of the churches run parallel. The first church in Chicago was organized by the Methodists in 1831, two years before the village was incorporated. The congregation assembled in the log cabin of William See, the village blacksmith. Other churches followed in rapid succession.

All denominations are still well represented by active down town churches. There are scores of them. To enumerate them would take all the space allotted for this article. There has been no such hegira of the churches from the downtown sections as some melancholy whiners affirm.

These churches are reaching the people more successfully than the theaters when all the facts are taken into account. The theaters utilize new actors, new plays and flamboyant advertisements, while the church has the same voice in the pulpit with the two thousand year old gospel to preach. Yet the church is more than holding her own in her grip on human life.

The erection of the Chicago Temple at Clark and Washington streets, has projected a new idea into the thinking of hundreds of leaders in downtown churches all over the world. It looks as if the composite building idea was to find expression in scores of cities in the next few years. As pastor of the church I have had communications and inquiries from practically all lands beyond the seas, and have been invited to speak and interpret the plan in a score of major cities in our own land. Several such composite buildings are now under contemplation while others are in process of erection.

The idea is appealing because it helps to support church activities in a section from which the supporting families have moved to suburbs and left the churches in the midst of dense populations and in commercial centers without local support. It should be understood in this connection that the First Methodist Episcopal church in Chicago is a self-supporting institution. The net income from the composite building is devoted to missionary causes in various areas of the city.

Support, however, is not its most powerful appeal. Many see in it a beautiful conception, the wedding of religion and business and a recognition of the sacredness of all life. John saw no temple in the new Jerusalem because the entire life of the city was one vast temple. This idea has already been woven into noble verse. The pastor has many poems in his possession which have been furnished him not only by admiring Chicagoans but by visitors to the city and the temple. It is the same idea as found expression in the stone crosses above the central market places of old England. The artist also embodied it in his picture of the dying Christ with the tools of human toil round the foot of His cross all stained by the sacred stream.

So the idea of this composite building has fired the vision and imagination of a great many of the church leaders in the cities of this and other lands.

I may be pardoned for using the First Methodist Episcopal church, "the only church in the loop," as typical of the ministry downtown churches are exercising in the midst of the city's ever changing life. Today our congregation will celebrate the ninety-fifth anniversary of its organization and the ninety-second anniversary of its church building. It is a long stride from that first meeting in the village blacksmith's log cabin to the great temple on the corner. For ninety-two years this church has provided two services every Sabbath all the year round.

A downtown church is an interpreter of the patriotism of humanity, for its congregation comes from the ends of the earth. It is a sanctuary for hundreds of strangers in the city on the Sabbath day and extends a hospitality to thousands of such through the year. It provides a hearth stone for the soul. The fires of cordiality are ever burning on its altars. The gospel of handshaking is practiced and bouquets of good cheer scattered round to the solitary and homesick.

It is ever ministering to human need. The needy and unfortunate and floaters from the back wash of city life, and those who have been worsted in life's battle ever drift, as in the New Testament days to "the gate of the Temple." Suburbanites, worshipping in their beautiful churches far from the madding crowd, know little of the countless appeals made to church workers in the city's center. I have often asked mendicants why they find their way to the churches in the hour of emergency, and their answer indicatesc they find a kindlier human sympathy in the House of God than anywhere else. A downtown church makes human brotherhood incandescent.

It is also a great moral antiseptic. All the blood in the human body runs through the heart. So all the blood in the life of the ciyt runs through its heart. If the heart of the city is not kept clean, the poison will spread to its uttermost circumference and out into the suburbs. It is a social atomizer. It helps to keep pure the atmosphere in which thousands of unprivileged boys and girls live and move and have their being. It furnishes social recreations which neutralize the influence of unwholesome resorts. It is ever reaching out a helping hand and protecting and preventing youth from falling into such gaping moral fissures as are in every great city. The lines of its influence extend to the ends of the earth, because it is touching denizens from every corner of the globe.

Such a church is above all a central shrine of worship. Worship is instinctive. To get rid of religion you would need to get rid of human nature. A whilom resident of the city on returning after twenty-five years said, "The greatest miracle I saw was the worshipping multitudes in the heart of Chicago on Sunday."

The church, located in the city's commercial life, challenges men to think of life's upper and eternal meanings. At the triple entrance to the cathedral at Milan there are three inscriptions: one which says, "All that pleases is but for a moment;" another, "All that troubles is but for a moment," and a third, "That only is important which is eternal."

It is pardonable for me to say a final word about the religion of the lighted cross which crowns the temple. There are numerous testimonies to its salutary effect on some who were torn in temptation's fierce thicket and were fighting their moral Verdun. Its chief message is the consecration of our total daily activities. All classes have recognized this.

Recently a monsignor and a bishop in the Roman Catholic church expressed their satisfaction at the exaltation of the cross in the heart of the city. A Jew who stands high in commercial leadership, on passing, said: "That means religion."

The cross symbolizes not merely the spirit of religion, but the spirit of Chicago. It signifies the enthronement of religion in our civic life.

The down town ministry of the Chicago temple would never have been possible had it not been for the patience, persistence, courage and far sighted wisdom of the godly laymen such as Judge Grant Goodrich, his son, Horace A. Goodrich; Arthur Dixon and his sons, one of whom, George W. Dixon, is now president of the temple board of trustees.

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, in matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. FOOD AND GROWTH OF CHILDREN.

According to Dr. Mann, who investigated for the British research council, the quality and quantity of food eaten influences the rate of growth of children. The study was made on 600 boys, ranging from 7 to 11 years of age and in weight from 45 to 65 pounds. The probability is that the conclusions would apply to any group of healthy boys or girls. The children selected were healthy, rather stocky, English lads and average free from diseases and defects. The experiment ran for four years.

All of the boys were given a basic diet which was thought by Dr. Mann to be ample for growth. This diet contained 37.3 calories for each pound of weight, of the 45 pound boys. The basic diet of the 60 pound boys contained 35.9 calories for each pound. The diets ranged from 1,679 to 2,154 calories daily.

The British Medical Journal, in commenting on these diets, thought they contained too little fat and proteins, and too much carbohydrates. The boys were housed in fifteen to twenty houses, each holding 30 to 35 boys. One group was fed the basic diet only. The average gain in weight for this group was 3.85 pounds and in height, 1.84 inches.

Another group had the basic diet plus one pint of fresh pasteurized milk daily. The average gain of these boys was: Weight, 6.95 pounds; height, 3.85 inches.

A third group was given the basic diet plus one and three-quarters ounces of butter. They averaged a gain of 6.3 pounds in weight, and 2.22 inches in height.

These boys who got either milk or butter, in addition to the basic diet, not only grew faster in weight and height, but they were peppier, more vigorous generally, and withstood infections better than any of the others.

Another group got an amount of vegetable margarin about equal to the amount of butter given another group. They averaged a gain of 5.21 pounds in weight, and 1.84 inches in height.

Another group was given ½ to ¾ ounce of watercress in addition to the basic diet. They gained 5.42 pounds in weight and 1.7 inches in height.

Another group was given 3 ounces of sugar in addition to the basic diet. They gained 4.93 pounds, and grew 1.94 inches. Another was given ¾ ounce casein, in addition to the basic diet. They gained 4.01 pounds, and grew 1.76 inches.

The normal gain in weight of boys this age and size is 5.5 pounds a year. That is for children who are being well fed, and who are in good health. Measured by this standard the children on the basic diet were somewhat underfed. Likewise the children who, in addition to the basic diet, got either sugar, casein, watercress or margarin. However, the growth of those in the last two groups was practically up to standard.

Incidentally, it was found that the rate of growth was faster in summer than in winter. This applied to both weight and height.

SCARLET FEVER CONTAGIOUS.

H. F. writes:

1. Is scarlet fever contagious or is it not?

2. Why are some people allowed to remain in their homes, supposedly under quarantine, but going in and out at their pleasure, while others are snatched up by the health department and imprisoned in the contagious hospital for not only weeks but months? Why should not all people be treated alike? There is certainly no fairness in keeping some in confinement for an indefinite period while others are left to their own discretion as to whether they scatter these germs or not.

3. Why does the municipal hospital hold patients there for so long a time, claiming they are not yet cured? If they cannot cure the patient within a reasonable time, why should not the patient's own family physician be allowed to try his skill? Or is it like everything federal or municipal—so much graft to somebody? A little light on this subject would be appreciated by several of us.

4. A little 3½ year old girl of some good friends of mine was taken out of their suite of rooms where she was under the care of their family physician, almost six weeks ago, by the health department, and taken to the municipal contagious hospital. While they claim she is getting better, they still hold her.

5. We hear of others in our neighborhood, living in flats, supposedly under quarantine, but going in and out at their pleasure.

REPLY.

1. It is.

2. The law provides that a person with scarlet fever can be quarantined at home. The sickroom must not be visited by any one who has no business there. Convalescents under quarantine must not leave the room. Other detail regulations must be met. If you know of violations, report them to the health department, police department, or both.

3. Presumably, because there are suppurations which make the patient still infective.

4. Probably there are complications which cause her to be infective still.

5. Report such cases.

WOMAN'S WORK DAY.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Please publish how many hours a woman can be required to work. Is the company allowed to work a woman ten hours in one day?
B. A. M.

Yes; even the ten hour limit applies only in certain designated industries.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TARGET PRACTICE.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I have a .22-caliber rifle, but no place to make use of it. It is against the law to shoot it in the city or to hunt with it. Is there a place where I could do some target practicing without violating the law? G. F.

If you can get the permission of the owner of the land outside the city limits and not in a jurisdiction which is subject to a similar restriction you would be safe. If you live in your own home, why could you not practice in your basement? It is not likely that any objection would be raised.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PETITION THE CITY.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—[Friend of the People.]—Will you kindly advise why the paving of Indiana avenue will not extend south of 104th street? Also what can be done to have this street paved beyond 104th street, as property owners north of that point are extremely interested in pushing pavement through?
A. K.

The paving on Indiana avenue has been held up because of a proposed intercepting sewer. Our present proceeding extends from 99th street to 104th street, and if property owners south of 104th street desire the street paved the board of local improvements will be glad to start such a proceeding upon receipt of a petition and carry it forward when the question of sewerage has been taken care of.
JOHN J. SLOAN,
President Board of Local Improvements.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 26, 1861.

JEFFERSON CITY.—The utmost activity prevails here in the movement of troops up the river. Ammunition, artillery, stores, and supplies are moving rapidly toward Lexington, which was captured from Col. Mulligan by Gen. Price's rebel army. A decisive blow is to be struck within a week. Price is bagged unless he uses the legs instead of the arms of his army.

NEW YORK.—A special dispatch from Washington to the Evening Post says that it is understood the administration will take no immediate action in the case of Gen. Fremont. He will be allowed full opportunity of carrying out his plan to attack Gen. Price and McCulloch before there is any interference with his command.

WASHINGTON.—Gen. Fremont this week made a requisition for half a million dollars for defensive purposes in St. Louis. Col. Ripley, head of the ordnance bureau, to whom it was referred, reported that the vouchers show exorbitant prices for many articles—for instance, Colt's pistols, $35 (contract price $25); Enfield rifles, $26.50 (contract price $20); condemned Hall's carbines, $22.50 (sold at auction for $6 and when new at $17.50).

EDITORIAL.—Gen. Fremont has not yet left St. Louis, but the movement westward to meet Price and McCulloch is going on, and the column will for the present be under command of Gen. Hunter. There is nothing definite or reliable concerning the whereabouts of Price or McCulloch. Some serious charges are made against Gen. Fremont by Col. Ripley of the ordnance bureau, involving either extravagance, negligence, or corruption. We are not disposed to believe anything at present.

CHICAGO. — President Lincoln's proclamation setting aside today (Thursday) as a "day of fasting, humiliation, and prayer by all the people of the nation" will be generally observed in Chicago. Mayor Julian S. Rumsey issued a proclamation recommending that all places of amusement and business be closed and that all citizens observe the day by attending church. In soldiers' camps near the city religious services will be held. Nearly all pastors announced services in their churches.

NEW YORK.—The first race between Shamrock II., owned by Sir Thomas Lipton and representing the Royal Ulster Yacht club, and Columbia, owned by J. Pierpont Morgan and representing the New York Yacht club, for the international trophy known as the America cup, will be sailed tomorrow off Sandy Hook. The two yachts are to sail over a thirty mile course.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In the Schley court of inquiry today Capt. W. C. Wise, who commanded the scout Yale during the Spanish war, admitted under oath that, notwithstanding positive orders from the secretary of the navy directing him to inform the "flying squadron" that the Spanish fleet was in Santiago harbor, he did not do so. Capt. Wise merely notified Capt. Phillip of the Texas just as the flying squadron was starting for Key West to coal and, so far as was developed today, Admiral Schley was not advised of this important information. Slowly but surely it is being brought out that important papers have been suppressed and that official charts and reports have been altered.

SEPTEMBER 26, 1916.

CHICAGO.—THE TRIBUNE is enabled to give the concrete facts in connection with the most sensational feat charged against the blackmail syndicate by the government officials. E. R. West, an importer, vice president of the C. D. Gregg Tea and Coffee company of Chicago and New York, and whose home is Highland Park, is the man who says he was blackmailed out of $15,000 by the syndicate. Buda Godman, a handsome young adventuress, who has been living at the Warner hotel, and was the companion of Luella Myler and Helen Evers, alleged to be two other members of the syndicate, is named by the government as the "lure" in the case. West is a widower and when at a party in a downtown café was introduced to Buda Godman. Later he says they went to the Ansonia hotel in New York together. Then "government agents" got them and they were hustled to Chicago, where they were taken before a man posing as United States Commissioner Foote. It cost West $15,000. West for a long time was loath to believe that Buda Godman was in on the plot. When he was convinced of it he came forward with his story.

CHICAGO.—Word was received at Democratic headquarters that President Woodrow Wilson will speak in Chicago on Oct. 19.

WASHINGTON.—Brig. Gen. John J. Pershing, commanding the American expeditionary forces in Mexico, was promoted to major general to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Maj. Gen. Albert L. Mills.

DEBTS.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—There is no reason to doubt Harper Leech's statement that the private corporate debt in our U. S. A. plus federal bonds reaches the astounding total of 130 billions. Add to this the unestimated private debts, state, municipal, town and county bonds, and the total might startle even the complaining foreigner who wants Uncle Shylock to assume his staggering debts also.

In truth the average American (were it possible to cipher him to an average) is much in the position of the nondescript who was suddenly enabled to borrow $50,000. He had a hell of a time while the 50 thousand lasted. But debts have a habit of coming due. Creditors, lenient up to a point, have a habit of finally rounding up the debtor when he is least qualified to pay. All bubbles burst. And a great part of the debts of the United States and its citizens still are owing to foreigners of one sort or another, whether they now live in New York or still in London and Paris.

The complaining English and French might take note of this; also that the great difficulty of honest government is to get liquidating funds out of both active and hidden wealth. And Leech might better try to jeer his own government into going after the wealth where it is. He might suggest some coöperative governmental movement to shake the pants of all profiteers.
JAMES MACGRATH.

SUBWAYS.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—To equip the Chicago loop district amply with subway facilities for the present city and for the city of ten million population to come would require the excavation of every foot of space beneath the surface of the entire loop, with several levels in places.

But there are already so many underground systems operating, or which need that space now and hereafter as the city grows, that every available space would be otherwise used without trying to get subways in there. To adjust them all for present and future requirements would be either an utter impossibility or tremendously intricate, complicated, and expensive to a prohibitive degree.

Second, to sink such things below water level involves the tremendously expensive solution of waterproofing, or flood protection, and recurrent damages to equipment for any great system for human use below the drainage level. True enough, other cities do that. But Chicago does not need to.

The solution I offer will cost less money; make a more modern, healthier city; will distribute the greatest cost where it logically ought to rest; will not move top real estate values away from present locations; will solve the questions of street safety, speed in the loop, congestion, all of which are, in reality, but a single problem if rightly considered and one with the subway job.

Instead of digging down, let us dig upwards; instead of lowering the city level let us bring it up a story or two over the entire congested area.

Close in the entire central district at an agreed height, establishing a totally new street level without vehicular traffic of any kind, abandoning the former level to subways and kindred transportation uses. The moment floors are laid at the new level we already possess a completed subway tube system, ready made.

It is not claimed that there will be no readjustments required. They will, however, be comparatively inexpensive, quickly attained, and adaptable to gradual alterations as may be necessary or required.

The only radical accompanying change would be the necessity for present property owners opening new display shop fronts on their present second and third floors, with entrances, etc. The present shop windows would doubtless be retained, since in all subways in other cities it is found profitable to have display windows.

Subways in other cities have required wonderful engineering feats to excavate while the city work proceeded; to build without interrupting traffic, without mud, dirt, and ugly street openings for years; all of which takes untold money. Then when a hole has been made, to build in that hole a transportation system. No wonder that costs a lot of money.

Chicago need build only the roof and put its streets on top of that roof, a far less expensive job and one which will result in a subway with better light, air, and drainage. We do not need to be afraid of doing things differently. It would be funny if we did not know better ways of making subways after a generation of experience with them in the world. The money now in the treasury of this city for subways would probably go very far toward total payment for immediate creation of such a subway system over the entire central district.
F. E. LATTA.

THE LISMAN PLAN.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—This plan will not furnish an adequate transportation system for Chicago. An adequate transportation system will be composed of surface, elevated, and subway lines, supplemented by motor bus service. So far as rapid transit development is concerned, the Lisman plan is a "when, as, and if" proposition.

According to the terms outlined in the plan, the $50,000,000 of first mortgage bonds which Mr. Lisman proposes to underwrite would net perhaps about $35,000,000 for surface lines and motor bus development. The surface lines system will require nothing like this amount for development, so that the Lisman plan presumably contemplates large expenditures for motor bus development, but neither agency will afford rapid transit unless coördinated and consolidated with a system composed of elevated lines and subways.

Chicago wants the benefits of rapid transit for every section, and this can be brought about only by a unified system consisting of subways, elevated, and surface lines, supplemented by motor bus service. To develop such a system will require for present and future needs within the next fifteen or twenty years not less than $250,000,000.

If the city were to adopt the Lisman plan, it could not safely count on more than $35,000,000 to $40,000,000 of new capital available for extensions and betterments, plus the amounts which from time to time might be accumulated in the sinking fund for first mortgage bonds; with the further provision that each time this limited additional amount of capital would be furnished, a 20 year extension of the ordinance would have to follow.

In other words, the Lisman plan falls far short of dealing with a comprehensive, unified system; will not furnish anything like the amount of new capital required; and, if adopted, would impose upon the city for a generation to come a positive limitation as to the amounts of new capital which could be secured from investment sources for transportation development.
M. A. TRAYLOR.

NOISE AT A HOSPITAL.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—If the brains back of the Brennan campaign for senator is of the same quality as those who saw fit to take the "gang" by St. Luke's hospital Sunday blowing horns and yelling like Indians, I am afraid they will not get very far, at least they will get few votes from the friends of the sick inmates of St. Luke's, which is supposed to be located in a quiet zone.

DEADLOCK IN NEXT SENATE IS POSSIBILITY

Primaries Hit Rule of Republicans.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—A deadlocked senate, which will delay organization and complicate the legislative situation throughout the life of the next congress, has become a possibility.

WILLIAM S. VARE.

Developments in the primaries, making it already a virtual certainty that the Republican regulars will not have complete control, together with complications growing out of the attack which will be made against the seating of Frank L. Smith of Illinois and William S. Vare of Pennsylvania, Republican senatorial nominees who figured in the investigation of large campaign expenditures, point to a likely deadlock.

Eight in La Follette Group

Nomination of Gov. John Blaine, insurgent Republican, over Senator Lenroot [Rep., Wis.], administration supporter, and the earlier nomination of former Senator S. W. Brookhart for the Cummins seat in Iowa have increased the probable strength of the La Follette group to a minimum of eight.

The votes of these eight, added to the present forty Democrats, would divide the senate 48 to 48. An increase of nine Democratic votes would give the present minority party control, but any smaller increase would merely place the La Follette group firmly in a position to hold the balance of power.

With all outgoing Democrats coming from southern states where the Republicans have no possibility of success, the total of 48 is just about the maximum possible for the regular Republicans. Actually they can rarely count on that great a total, inasmuch as there are half a dozen independent Republicans who do not class themselves with the La Follette group but more often than not vote against the administration.

Insurgents Made Terms.

Three years ago, when the La Follette group held the balance of power and delayed organization in both houses, the insurgents were able to make terms with the regulars. Republicans were elected as officers and committee chairmen in the two houses and they retained majorities on all the committees. The only exception was in the case of the chairman of the senate committee on interstate commerce, which went to Senator Smith [Dem., S. C.], through combination of Democrats and insurgent Republicans, the latter refusing to support the late Senator Cummins [Rep., Iowa], who had the place previously.

The insurgents, after joining with the regular Republicans in organizing both houses, soon revolted on matters of legislation. Most of them later were identified with the progressive third party movement which put the late Senator La Follette in the field as a presidential candidate against Coolidge in 1924. The regular Republicans, upon regaining control of both houses in the 1924 election, proceeded at the earliest opportunity to read the insurgent group out of the party. The insurgents were thrown off all important committees and given inconsequential assignments as minority party members.

With the insurgents again the balance of power in either house the regulars must either take them back into the party in effecting an organization or else allow the Democrats and insurgent Republicans to name the committee chairmanships and assume control through a bi-partisan combination.

Will Demand Patronage.

Inasmuch as the insurgents insist upon their right to the name Republican it is assumed that they will prefer to vote as Republicans in organizing the senate, though reserving the right to vote as they please on matters of legislation. Presumably, however, they will insist upon adequate representation on committees and a fair share of the spoils in the form of patronage.

At present there is not a single insurgent Republican on the finance committee. It is a certainty that the insurgents will demand the naming of one of their number, possibly the present Senator La Follette, as a member of this committee.

In the case of the committee on interstate commerce, Senator Howell [Rep., Neb.], who usually votes with the La Follette group, is now a member, as is Senator Couzens [Rep., Mich.], who is also somewhat irregular in his voting. Both of these senators maintained their party regularity in 1924 and consequently retained their choice committee assignments. It is expected that former Senator Brookhart, if elected, will demand membership on the interstate commerce committee.

Outlook in the House.

At least one of the insurgents, Senator Norris [Rep., Neb.], is slated for an important chairmanship. He is in line for the chairmanship of the judiciary committee, which has been vacant since the death of Senator Cummins. Senator Norris, like Senator Howell, remained regular in 1924, though voting consistently with the La Follette group in the senate.

There is not the same likelihood that the insurgents will hold the balance of power in the house as in the case of the senate. The regular Republicans now have a majority over combined opposition of Democrats, insurgent Republicans, Farmer-Labor members, and Socialists of about thirty-five. Election of about eighteen additional Democrats, however, would wipe out this majority. An increase of eighteen to the Democrats would place the insurgents in the balance of power, their present strength totaling about fifteen, including Farmer-Laborites and Socialists.

DROWNED

Maila Gutke, 2 years old, fell into a pool on the estate of W. A. Wright at Highland Park yesterday and was drowned in two and a half feet of water. The child was the daughter of Carl Gutke, a gardener on the Wright place. Her mother left her alone for a few minutes in the yard near the pool and the little girl wandered over to the water while she was unwatched.

MOONSHINE HARD TO STAMP OUT, YELLOWLEY SAYS

Little Beer in Chicago, He Tells Andrews.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Moonshine, not industrial alcohol or real beer, furnishes the hardest problem for prohibition authorities in Chicago and the surrounding territory, E. C. Yellowley, Chicago administrator, told Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews today.

Mr. Yellowley told the assistant secretary that there is no such thing as real beer in that district and that 80 per cent of the samples of liquor seized in prohibition raids are moonshine concoctions. A year ago, according to Mr. Yellowley's report, 80 per cent of the samples contained industrial alcohol and a certain amount of real beer reached Chicago.

From Malt Compounds.

All the beer now sold in Chicago is manufactured either with a needle or from malt compounds, Mr. Yellowley said.

Following his conference with the dry chief, Mr. Yellowley said that renewed efforts will be made this fall and winter to line up as many county officials as possible in the fight against moonshine booze.

"The coöperation from the local authorities and federal authorities in Chicago is as good as can be asked for," the Chicago administrator said. We are eager, however, to win local county officials wherever possible to work for better enforcement of the state laws."

Sees Large Decrease.

Should the plans of Mr. Yellowly work successfully, a large decrease in the amount of moonshine liquor manufactured and distributed in his district is expected.

Andrews completed conferences with his administrators today and virtually all of his divisional aids have now returned to their fields. Mr. Yellowley will not leave Washington until next week.

Appointment of a zone supervisor for the middle western district will be announced the middle of next week.

HOLD FUNERAL SERVICES TODAY FOR A. E. KEITH

Funeral services for Alexander E. Keith, consulting engineer for Automatic Electric, Inc., and a pioneer in the development of automatic telephone instruments, will be held at 1 p. m. tomorrow at the family residence, 5455 Hyde Park boulevard. Burial at Bronswood cemetery will be private.

A. E. KEITH.

Mr. Keith, who was 66 years old, died at his home Friday after a short illness. He is survived by a widow, two daughters and three sons.

In 1893 Mr. Keith came to Chicago from Baltimore and started to work with the Strowger Automatic Exchange. He brought the automatic telephone to a stage where it was used in a number of small towns. He was the inventor of the Keith line switch, which brought the cost of automatic equipment so low that large companies were enabled to install such systems.

BOGOSLOWSKI IS AGAIN SENTENCED TO PRISON TERM

CRIMINAL COURT.
Louis Boland, embezzlement, sentenced to the penitentiary from 1 to 10 years by Judge Worth E. Caylor.
Morris Bogoslowski, murder, sentenced to the penitentiary for 14 years by Judge Emanuel Eller.

Morris Bogoslowski, who has escaped the penitentiary for four years despite a charge of murder, was again sentenced to serve 14 years yesterday by Judge Emanuel Eller. Bogoslowski was accused of being the lookout in the murder in 1922 of Joseph Lanus, West Madison street automobile dealer, who was killed when he resisted a robbery.

Shortly after his arrest Bogoslowski turned state's evidence against Larry Hefferman and William Kramer, who were sentenced to death. They later were granted a new trial by the Supreme court. At this trial Bogoslowski refused to testify and the pair were given life penalties. Bogoslowski claimed he was promised immunity for his testimony, but the state refused to concede this and he was sentenced to 14 years.

His case was carried to the Supreme court and the sentence reversed. At a second trial he was given 14 years by a jury. Yesterday Judge Eller refused to interfere and ordered him sentenced. Bogoslowski announced he will appeal again to the Supreme court.

REVISED PRAYER BOOK INCLUDES ONE FOR SCHOOLS

The revised Episcopal prayer book includes an invocation for educational institutions, which it is expected will be used extensively during the next few weeks at the opening of colleges and universities. It is worded:

"Almighty God, we beseech Thee, with Thy gracious favor, to behold our universities, colleges and schools, that knowledge may be increased among us, and all good learning flourish and abound; bless all who teach and all who learn; and grant that in humility of heart they may ever look unto Thee, who art the fountain of all wisdom, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

NOTED STAGE FIGURE OF GENERATION AGO DEAD AT AGE OF 66

New York, Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Joseph Jefferson Holland, one of the outstanding figures of the American stage a generation ago, died this morning at the Murray Hill sanitarium after a serious illness of five weeks. He was a godson of Joseph Jefferson, the great actor, and the last of the three famous Holland brothers, the other two, E. M. and George Holland, having died some years ago.

Mr. Holland, who was in his sixty-sixth year, had been a semi-invalid for almost twenty-four years, and in recent years made his home in Falmouth, Mass., although he came to New York once a year to see his old friends, including John Drew, Otis Skinner, and many other prominent actors of the older generation.

GRECO-TURKISH AMITY TREATY IS INITIALED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Sept. 25.—The Greco-Turkish convention has been initialed by both parties and the hope is expressed that it will be signed by both governments within a fortnight. The convention marks the beginning of friendly relations between the two countries for the first time since the war.

It is expected that a common pact relating to the Balkans will be arranged soon. The recent convention signed by former Dictator Theodore Pangalos with Jugo-Slavia soon will be modified slightly.

The Greeks now are prepared to permit the Jugo-Slavs to pass international commerce through their territory and give them certain rights to coastwise trade in Greece.

3,000,000 People Know It—

A few years ago Hursen startled the community by doing many things which had never before been done in the business of funeral direction. There had been many abuses. Hursen let daylight into existing conditions. He used the newspapers as a weapon. These stories created a furore. It was then "revolutionary" to advertise at all. He told the truth. He backed it up with proofs. The public responded and applauded.

Wherever Hursen attacked he was ready with the remedy. He applied the remedy unstintingly. The public realized that his promises were kept. So, truth in advertising was then, and is now, the Gibraltar upon which "Hursen" has been built.

Every neighborhood in Chicago, and every suburb for many miles around has given its support to Hursen. It is a wonderful record. It has made "Hursen's" the greatest establishment of its kind in America.

On every "Hursen" funeral, large or small, are lavished a service, attention, quality, elegance, equipment and environment never before seen. Yet, the cost of "Hursen" funerals is invariably less than the charges made elsewhere. The new fleet of Hursen-Lincoln passenger cars, and the Hursen-Lincoln Limousine-hearses make up the most beautiful equipment ever seen at funerals. The charges for their use are no greater than the charges made elsewhere for less desirable equipment. So, call Hursen of course!

The Home Is The Thing

OLD BOGGY, one of the few historic old homes to be seen in Oklahoma; today occupied by the daughter of Governor Wright, the great Choctaw Indian who built it. Practically every inch of timber in the entire place was hand dressed.

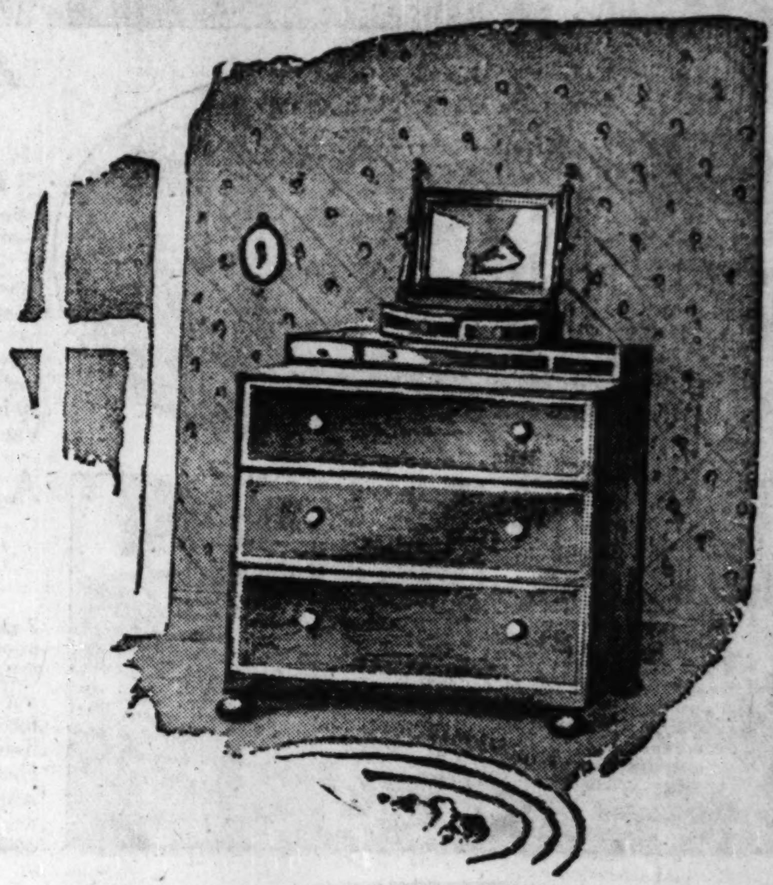
Granddaughter Describes Old Boggy's Furniture

Grandfather's Shaving Case

"Grandfather's shaving case was of rosewood with an inlay of maple. It was always kept on the top of a chest of drawers which was really a high bureau, perfectly plain with three deep, wide drawers with round wooden knobs, and three small drawers above."

Their First Furniture

"When my grandparents were married in 1857, they purchased their first furniture from an army officer who was leaving old Fort Towson at that time. They added to this from time to time, especially when they erected their permanent home at Boggy Depot. My father says he is almost certain the chest of drawers belonged to that first outfit."



OLD BOGGY

One of the First and Finest Homes Built by a Choctaw Indian After the Manner of the White Man

THE HOME OF GOVERNOR ALLEN WRIGHT,
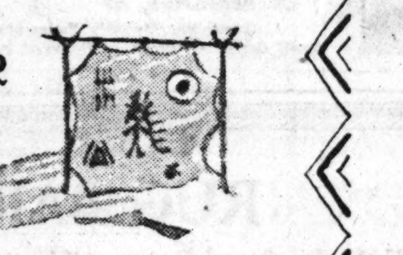
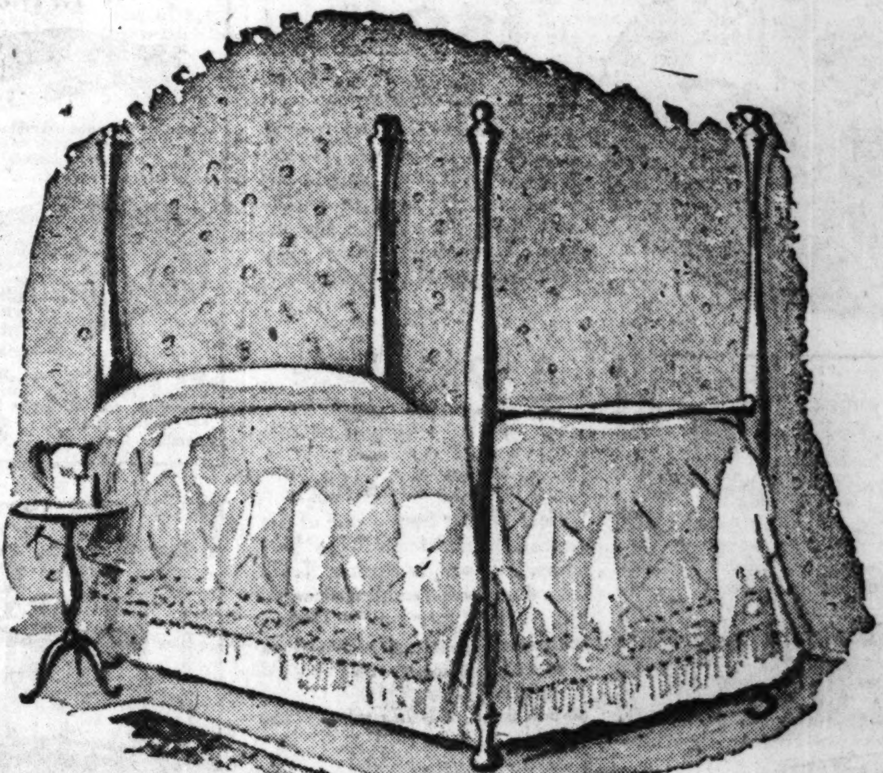
FULL-BLOOD CHOCTAW,
BUILT JUST BEFORE THE CIVIL WAR IN 1862
AT BOGGY DEPOT, OKLAHOMA



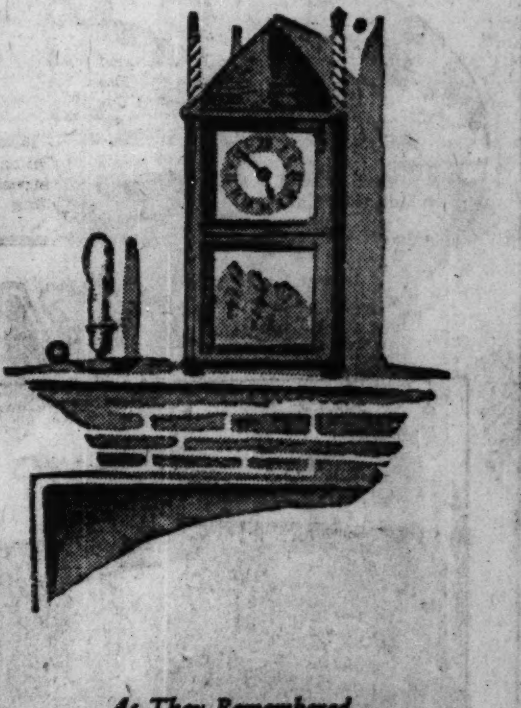


High Off the Floor

"There was a four-poster bed, high off the floor, with its walnut posts taller than a man's head. Instead of springs rope was woven back and forth. Underneath was kept a trundle bed. My grandmother always had a little rocker of her own, made of walnut with cane back and seat—a very comfortable little chair which she loved."

In the Sitting Room

"There was an eight-day clock on the mantel, with a scene of pine trees painted on the lower part of the door. There was also a grandfather clock showing the moon's phases, that stood in the hall down stairs. . . . The dining room in the earliest days, had a long narrow oak table—(refectory style)."



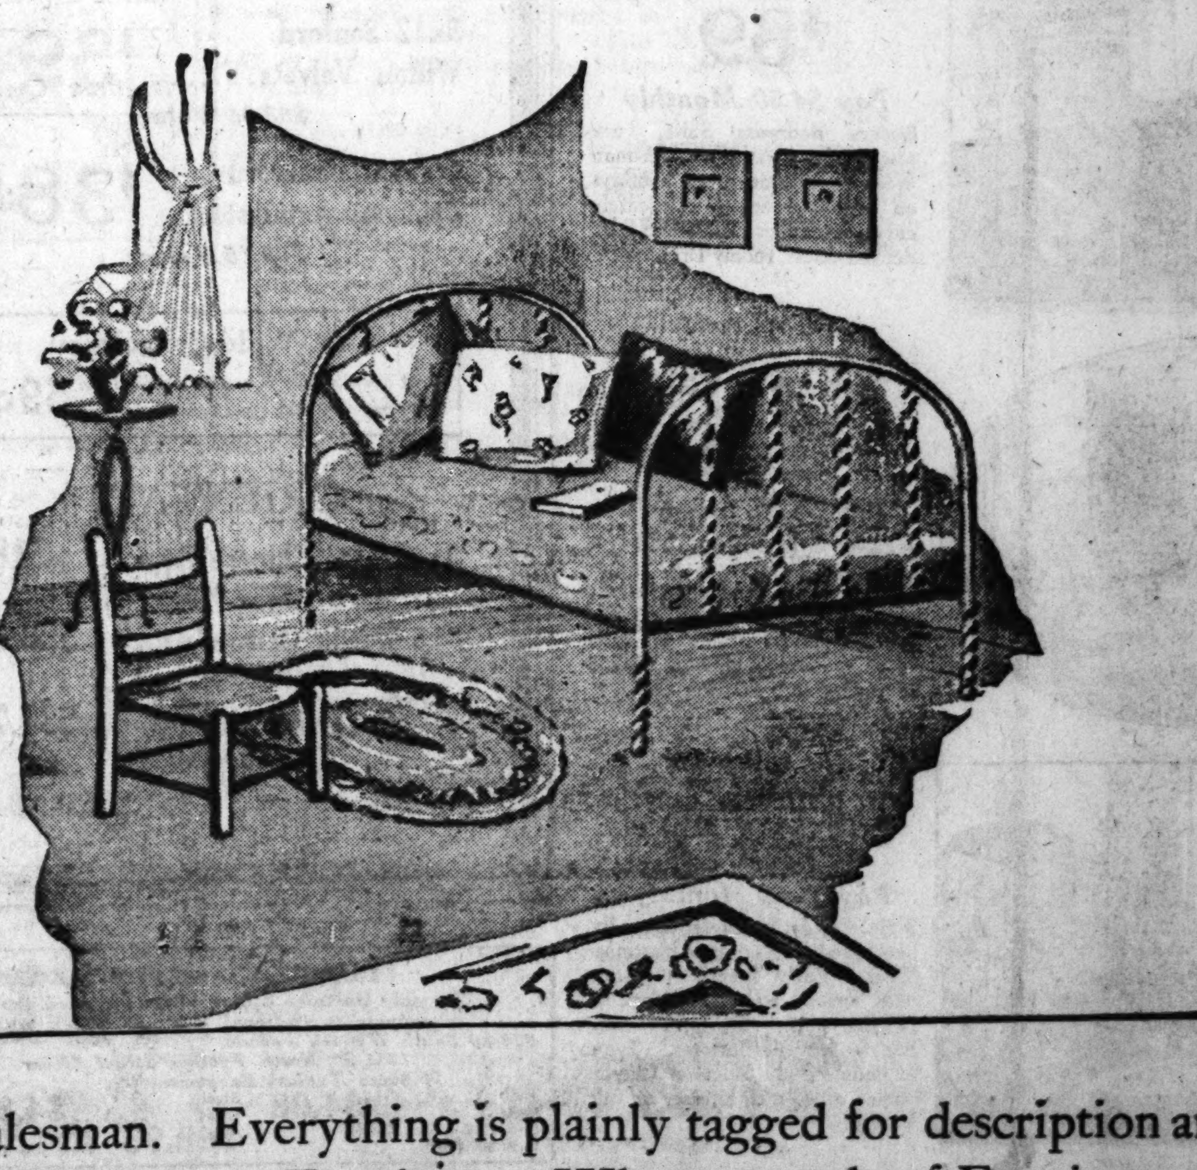
FOLLOW this series on the Furniture belonging to the Interesting and Historic Homes of America. People tell us this is one of the most inspiring series on Home Furniture that they have come upon. . . . Home Furniture is the specialization of this Store, gleanings from 59 years' study of which is being told in this series.

He Taught the Happiness and the Comfort of a Home

ALL the quotations on this page, telling about the furniture of Old Boggy are the words of Miss Muriel A. Wright of Olney, Oklahoma, whose full-blood Choctaw grandfather, Governor Allen Wright, named this state, and after his education in the east built his home, Old Boggy, there amid his people. Throughout his life of service to the Indians, Governor Wright taught reverence for the white man's kind of home, and Old Boggy was his graphic message of the comfort and happiness a well ordered and attractively furnished home can bring.

No. 34 of Our Series of Interesting and Historic American Homes—Emphasizing

THE HOME IS THE THING



As They Remembered

"Some of the pieces of furniture remembered by my father and aunt, used in early days at old Boggy was a small bed of walnut (called a day bed today) and little hickory chair."

When the Girls Grew Up

"After the days of the Civil War and times were more prosperous, a new square piano of rosewood and some parlour furniture were purchased for Old Boggy for the girls who were growing up." Thus, again, the chapters of human existence are alike in every home—as the girls grow up new parlour furniture appears as regularly and as inevitably almost as if it were regulated by an unknown force.

BRENNAN ISSUES APPEAL FROM HOSPITAL BED

Tells Voters His Election Will Hit Dry Law.

From his room at St. Joseph's hospital where he is recuperating from the recent operation on the knee injured while campaigning three weeks ago George E. Brennan, Democratic nominee for United States senator, issued a statement yesterday declaring that he intends to keep his anti-Volstead issue before the people of Illinois right up to election day, Nov. 2, even if he has to remain flat on his back during the remainder of his campaign.

Mrs. Brennan takes the stump for her disabled husband Tuesday, when she speaks at Quincy. During the hours when she is not witn Mr. Brennan at the hospital she is one of the most energetic workers in his organization. She emphasized yesterday that she does not intend to make a sob sister campaign for her husband.

An Appeal to Voters.

"While my physicians are at this time unable to say at what time I shall be able to resume normal activities, I feel that it is my duty to say a word to the voters who are interested in the cause which is represented by my candidacy—that of temperance against prohibition," Mr. Brennan said.

"I consider that cause more important than anything else in this campaign. I hope that it will not be long before I am again able to take the platform, but if necessary, I shall do my campaigning from this hospital, utilizing the radio and other means which will enable me to get before the peope what I have to say. If I did not have the determination and the feeling that I can carry it out, I would consider it my duty to withdraw as a candidate and allow some man who is better qualified physically at this moment to carry the banner which I have raised.

No Pussyfooting on Issue.

"I am not asking for sympathy. I want only those to vote for me who believe that I would make a better United States senator than my opponents, and who believe that the people of Illinois are entitled to know where their candidate for senator stands.

"I insist that the dominant issue is the modification or repeal of the Volstead act and the substitution of genuine temperance for sham prohibition. The only way Illinois voters can aid in bringing this about is by electing me United States senator. It will mean nothing if the voters, as they are certain to do, declare for modification by a referendum vote, unless they at the same time elect a candidate who is pledged to bring about modification.

"I feel assured that my election in a state normally Republican by a large majority will assure the passage of legislation which will modify or repeal the Volstead act. I know the United States senators and the members of congress, and I know that they are personally opposed to present conditions brought about by the Volstead act. If the third state in the Union declares emphatically for modification they will no longer hesitate to vote their convictions.

Promises Farm Relief.

"I want also to assure the voters of Illinois that I have not forgotten my pledge to support the cause of farm relief and that I shall not neglect it. It is idle to talk of prosperity for the nation unless the farmer is prosperous.

"Since I have been in the hospital floods have swept through the middle western states, making the need for farm relief more urgent. This is no time to quibble about economic theories. What is needed is action, and speedy action.

"I am pledged to obtain it for the farmers, and, while I will not take my seat in the senate immediately, the fact that I have been elected senator will be a spur to congress.

"I want to thank my friends and supporters for carrying on while I have been unable to do so, and to assure them that I have just begun to fight."

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Gov. Gen. Leonard Wood, who was operated on Wednesday for hernia, continued today to make satisfactory progress. All symptoms are favorable, said his physicians.

COUNTY G. O. P. IS PRAISED FOR RAP AT VOLSTEAD ACT

Make Nominees Stand by Plank, League Demands

Through its secretary, former State Representative John P. Hart, a Republican, the Liberal Temperance league yesterday sent its cougratulations to the Republican party for its declaration against prohibition in the county G. O. P. platform adopted by Friday's convention.

The letter was addressed to County Reviewer Charles V. Barrett, author of the wet plank. The Republican leaders were called on to ask all Republican candidates for congress to state their stand on the question of modifying prohibition. Unless they do, Republican success in Cook county is endangered, Hart said.

Blow at Smith, Hart Says.

The wet plank in the county platform practically repudiates Frank L. Smith, Republican candidate for United States senator, who has a dry record, Hart said. He also cited the dry records of Congressmen Yates, Hull, Sproul, and Chindblom, all Republican nominees for reëlection.

Approval of the Republican platform and ticket was expressed in resolutions adopted by the 49th ward organization headed by Harry A. Newby.

Letter Congratulates Barrett.

Mr. Hart's letter to Mr. Barrett said:

"Permit me to congratulate you on the authorship of that ringing declaration of the Republican county platform declaring for modification of the Volstead act. It is a pleasure to know that there are some men in the Republican party who are willing to come courageously to the front and prevent this party, founded on the basis of individual liberty, from being made a cat's paw of that unholy alliance of the Anti-Saloon league, the booze bandits, and the gun gangsters.

"You have taken the first step toward salvation of the Republican party in this great community.

"The liberal Republicans of Illinois are facing a serious situation, and it is such leaders as yourself and your associates, Mr. Galpin, Mr. Crowe, and Mr. Thompson, that we must look to for relief. You men have the power to demand that every Republican senatorial and congressional candidate seeking the votes of Cook county citizens subscribe to the plank declaring for modification of the Volstead act and make an immediate public statement to the people on the question. Unless you make such demand at once the future of the Republican party in Cook county is endangered and the success of your county ticket will be jeopardized in the election.

"If the candidates for senatorial and congressional office refuse to subscribe to your platform it is your duty to the traditions of the Republican party and to the people of Cook county immediately to repudiate such candidates and urge the election of their opponents.

"I respectfully call your attention to the following facts: First, Frank L. Smith, Republican candidate for senator, received the indorsement of the Anti-Saloon league in the Republican primary. As congressman of the 17th congressional district he voted for enactment of the Volstead law, which your platform now so sincerely indicts. Mr. Smith has refused to make a statement to the people on Volstead modification and it is generally understood downstate that he has made a secret pledge to the Anti-Saloon league to vote against modification of the Volstead law."

JAIL MATTEOTTI ASSAILANT FOR INSULTING DUCE

Fascist District Groups Row with Government.

BY LORIMER HAMMOND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Sept. 25.—Amerigo Dumini, formerly of St. Louis, Mo., who was one of those convicted for the killing of the Socialist deputy, Giacomo Matteotti, and who was released from prison three months ago, was arrested here last night by political police, charged with offensive utterances against Premier Mussolini.

Dumini was taken into custody in front of Chigi palace and removed to prison pending an examination. The exact offense with which he is charged remains secret, but THE TRIBUNE understands Dumini has recently turned against the Fascist government and has been watched constantly by police.

Dumini is one of four men tried and convicted of responsibility for the death of Deputy Matteotti. Though the burden of suspicion rested upon Dumini, it was impossible to fix the actual slayer and he was therefore released under an amnesty order after serving three months of his term.

At Outs with Government.

Dumini is one of the super-Fascists now in conflict with the government, because of disagreement with the minister of the interior. This discord was really behind the recent disorders at Trieste, Naples, Taranto, and Ancona, where several fatalities occurred.

The controversy is as to whether the Fascist district organizations are still to retain individual power in the future. Tonight's issue of the official Fascist party organ declares the question of district control will be one of the principal issues at the party convention on Oct. 7.

The government is demanding the right to appoint all district chiefs, while the district organizations want to elect their own leaders.

Repudiates Charges.

The official organ says Renoto Ricci, deputy from Carrara, has repudiated implications he previously brought against a number of officials of the ministry of the interior concerning the pursuit of justice after the most recent attempt to assassinate Premier Mussolini.

L'Impero today attacks Titta Ruffo, opera singer, brother-in-law of the slain Matteotti, for his anti-Fascist sentiments, and virtually urges violent treatment of the singer by Italians in America.

FORGES WOOD TO BE DEDICATED BY VETERANS TODAY

In celebration of the battle of Bois de Forges, Sept. 26, 1918, when Chicago soldiers, commanded by Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, captured the wood 5,000 people, including veterans of the 132d infantry, A. E. F., and their friends and members of the American Legion of Cook county, today will dedicate a portion of the forest preserve at Palos park as Forges Wood.

Anton Cermak, president of the county board, will make the presentation speech of Forges Wood and Memorial cabin, and Brig. Gen. John J. Garrity will make the speech of acceptance in behalf of Forges post of the American Legion. Other speakers will be Col. Fred E. Rand of the 132d infantry; Ferre C. Watkins, Illinois commander of the American Legion, and Gen. Davis.

At the close of the program 1,000 men from the 132d infantry will stage a reproduction of the battle

Polish Cabinet Quits Over Quarrel with Parliament

WARSAW, Sept. 25.—[U. P.]—The Polish cabinet resigned today after a conflict with parliament over money. Premier Barthel won the money struggle when he threatened to dissolve the parliament unless it adopted the government's budget draft, which had been reduced approximately $4,000,000 by the budget committee. A vote of misconfidence in the minister of education and the minister of the interior later in the day, however, precipitated the cabinet's fall.

BUILD 2,000 H. P. PLANE FOR HOP OVER ATLANTIC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 23.—The Caproni Airplane works now are constructing an airplane of 2,000 horsepower for a trans-Atlantic flight, according to Clifford Harmon, wealthy sportsman and president of the International Aviation league.

Mr. Harmon, with the Italian ace, Col. Falchi, flew to Paris from Milan on a tour of the posts of the aviation league. Speaking at a luncheon the league gave for Col. Falchi today, Mr Harmon said that he would back the colonel to make a trans-Atlantic flight. Mr. Harmon then told of having seen the giant Caproni being built.

"The Italian flyer who will pilot this plane has not been selected as yet," said Mr. Harmon. "But if Col. Falchi could, I will back him to win and I will shoulder all the expenses of this attempt personally."

Steal Van with $400,000 Gems in London Traffic

LONDON, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Diamonds valued at $400,000 were stolen from a mail van in one of the busiest centers of London traffic yesterday. The gems were being transferred to the central postoffice in a hired van under supervision of postoffice officials. The van vanished mysteriously in traffic and was found some hours later empty. The guards were at a loss as to how they were hoodwinked.

U. S. MAY ASK INQUIRY INTO ARCTIC SLAYING

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The state department may instruct H. Percival Dodge, American minister at Copenhagen, Denmark, to investigate the circumstances of the killing of Prof. Ross G. Marvin, a member of Peary's expedition to the north pole in 1909, it was indicated tonight. Marvin was shot by Kudlooktoo, an Eskimo, who recently confessed the killing.

The story of the slaying in the icy wastes north of Melville bay came as a surprise here, as no report of the incident has ever reached either the state department, the Danish legation here or the National Geographical society. The greatest interest was evinced in the revelation of the tragedy.

John Oliver La Gorce, president of the National Geographic society, declared tonight that the story of the crime had been a revelation to him. "We knew nothing about it until today," he said. "We only had Peary's account to go by."

Mr. La Gorce said he could not remember any similar case ever having arisen in the past. He expressed the opinion, however, that as there was no territorial jurisdiction north of Melville bay at the time of the crime, there could be no violation of law, and the Eskimo could not be held accountable.

New York, Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Arctic exporers were greatly interested today in the publication of the confession of Kudlooktoo, the Greenland Eskimo who, on becoming a Christian, relieved his conscience of the secret that he had shot and killed Prof. Ross G. Marvin of Cornell, on arctice ice in 1909 when Marvin was the first assistant of Peary on the expedition which conquered the north pole.

At that time Kudlooktoo and his companion, an Eskimo called Harrigan, said that the explorer had fallen into open water and been drowned. that story was accepted for 17 years until the confession of the slayer.

Many other white explorers have been assassinated by Eskimos on previous expeditions but these affairs have usually been hushed up, according to Vilhjalmur Stefansson.

"I believe in telling the whole truth about arctic exploration, as about other things," said Mr. Stefansson. "On that ground, I justify the publication of the story of the killing of Marvin, although it is a very painful thing to me personally to see it broadcast 17 years later. I am a friend of Marvin's mother and sister and brother, and have a great regard for his memory.

"It has been a sort of tradition of arctic exploration to suppress the truth in cases of this kind. There have been many similar tragedies. Those who know the truth of them have usually kept it to themselves."

Mr. Stefansson said that while it was hard on Kudlooktoo that a confession, made on religious impulse should receive world-wide publicity it was, in all probability, not the fault of the missionary who received the confession.

"It was certain to be talked about," said Mr. Stefansson.

Of the few cars which may fairly be described as superb there is none more so than the ELCAR 8-in-Line 7-passenger Sedan here pictured.

Fifty-three years of coachcraft have gone into its design and body construction (ELCAR bodies are ELCAR-made—an advantage, of course).

Chassis and motor form a unit worthy of the body. . . . There is no finer American car than this, and none so fine at comparable cost. . . . These claims are strong, and so, deserving of investigation. We urge and welcome such investigation. Make it immediately—through a demonstration at your convenience.

CONTINUOUS

An establishment that is here to stay must have an honest procedure. It knows that prices must be as low or lower than the lowest quoted elsewhere, and its service as good as the best. No other plan can achieve a permanent and satisfactory success, as this is only attained in proportion to the benefits an establishment gives.

If such an enterprise has had continuous existence, and is in its second half century, it is obvious there must be genuine merit behind it. It could not be otherwise.

BIRDS AREN'T SO DUMB, SAYS ONE WHO KNOWS 'EM

Field Museum Scientist Tells Their Traits.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Birds aren't so dumb.

Not when you ponder on these bits of bird ingenuity described yesterday by Dr. Lucius C. Pardee, in the first of a series of Saturday afternoon lectures, open to the public, at the James Simpson theater of the Field museum.

There's the female of the thermometer bird, really a bush turkey, who knows how to ventilate her nest.

There's the male of the satin bower bird, something of an esthete, who will toss a scarlet flower out of his nest because he believes it doesn't harmonize with his blue coloring.

Crows Hold Criminal Court.

There are the crows who hold court and sentence a guilty culprit to death, with no stay of execution.

And that shrewd feathered psychologist, the name doesn't make so much difference, who makes faces at her fiancé up to just the right moment, when she smiles and presents him with a nice green weed from the bottom of the sea.

Dr. Pardee, speaking on "Bird Mannerisms" to an audience of more than 1,000, including a lot of little boys who listened to every word, declared that a bird's life is not all mating and nesting and feeding and migrating.

A Bird Honey Hunter.

"Birds," the lecturer pointed out, "are big brained. They learn quickly, and by experience. They have definite play methods. They plan a little, and they are possessed of individualities of which more and more will be known in the future."

One of the smartest birds Dr. Pardee told about was the honey guide, a dull and drab enough stocky gentlman found in central Africa. He is fond of honey, but is unable to get it from the hives. So he makes a terrible to-do in front of some man, usually one of the porters in the travelers' caravan. The bird hops up and down until presently the porter grabs a pail and, guided by the honey bird, walks to the hive, and there is honey for supper.

When a human being fails him, the honey bird attracts the attention of the ratel, a little animal with a skin so thick that it is impervious to the bee's sting. The ratel attacks the hive, the bees fly out and in the general confusion the honey guide gets his quota of sweets.

Then there's the ziczak plover, or, to be more scientific, the black necked corser, a creature of infinite impudence and the ability to get away with it.

This bird, in search of a meal, drops in between the wide open jaws of an alligator, tarries there, weaves in and out about the mouth, picking here a morsel and there a bit, until he has dined sufficiently. Nor does the alligator object.

Some Dance; Some Sing.

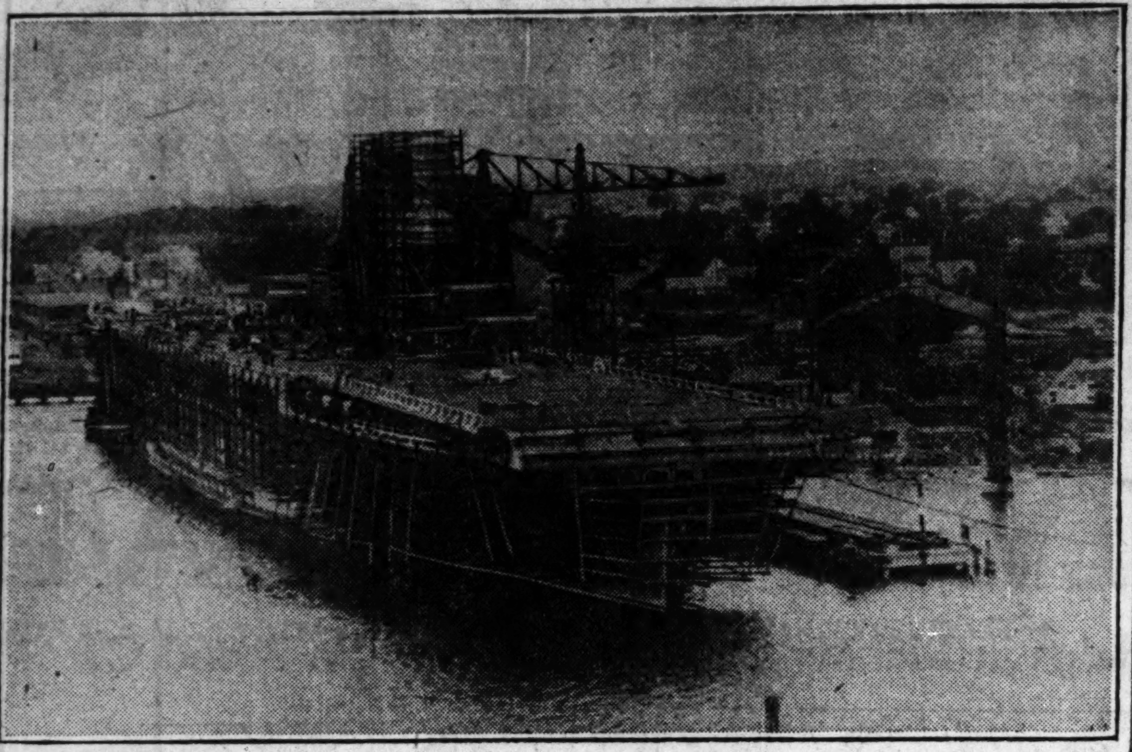
Other birds dance, others sing; many of them have elaborate courting ceremonies; not a few indulge in war dances. One group punishes theft, another produces artistic interior decorators who dress up the bowers they build. Altogether, the birds aren't so dumb, Dr. Pardee pointed out.

The second lecture in the series, "Exploration in Borneo and Nias," will be given next Saturday at 3 p. m. by Dr. Fay-Cooper Cole, leader of the Arthur B. Jones Malayan expedition in 1923.

STORE OWNER AND CUSTOMERS ROBBED.

Jacob Rothschild, proprietor of a cigar store at 436 Rush street, and three customers were held up and robbed by three bandits yesterday, who escaped with $900.

GIANT AIRPLANE CARRIER CAUGHT IN TRAP



The U. S. S. Lexington, upon which millions have been spent, nearing completion at the Fore River shipyards at Quincy, Mass. After its launching the navy department discovered that while the Lexington draws 28 feet there is only 22.3 feet of water in the Fore river at low tide and 31 feet at high tide, making the task of getting the ship to the ocean almost an impossibility. Newspaper Men Guests on President's Yacht Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Taking advantage of the good weather over the week-end, President and Mrs. Coolidge sailed on the Mayflower this afternoon for a voyage down the Potomac river. Guests of the President were Secretary Mellon, Mrs. Morris Sheppard, wife of the senator from Texas, and three Washington newspaper correspondents and their wives, Richard Oulahan, William Hard, and James P. Hornaday.

U. S. NEAR CLOSE OF PROSECUTION OF DAUGHERTY

New York, Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The prosecution's last trump in the Daugherty trial will be played Monday. On that day, the case against Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, having already been completed, United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner will endeavor to forge final links in the circumstantial chain by which he hopes to convict Harry M. Daugherty of conspiracy.

Barring unforeseen delays, the government will rest before the close of Monday's session and the case will be turned over to the defense. Just what arguments will be put forward on behalf of the former attorney general and the former alien property custodian have not been disclosed.

What U. S. Charges.

The defendants are accused of having conspired to deprive the United States of their "honest, impartial, and unbiased services." The inducement, the prosecution contends, was a share in the $441,000 which Richard Merton, German metal magnate, paid to the late John T. King.

A record of the numbers of Liberty bonds given King was kept in the office of the brokerage firm which turned them over to Merton, and this record has served as the means by which, after months of investigation, the government prosecutor was able to trace a large portion of them.

Through witnesses and documents Mr. Buckner has succeeded in tracing $49,000 to Miller.

He also has shown that the proceeds from the sale of $24,000 in bonds by King went in the form of a check, to the Midland National bank, Washington Courthouse, O., of which Mal S. Daugherty, brother of H. M. Daugherty, is president. To whose account the check was credited does not appear, due to the destruction of records. Mal. Daugherty has testified that his brother destroyed the records.

Trace Check to Daugherty.

It also has been shown that coupons representing six months' interest at 4½ per cent on $100,000 of the bonds—a total of $2,125—were deposited in the Guaranty Trust company in New York by King and that the next day a check drawn by King in the same amount was deposited at the Midland bank and credited to Harry Daugherty.

But one step now remains in the case against Daugherty—the tracing of an additional block of $50,000 of the bonds handed by Merton to King, and it is with this block that the prosecution will concern itself. Efforts will be made to show that one bond for $10,000 actually turned up in the Midland bank. The state will try to trace the remaining $40,000 through Mal Daugherty to his brother, Harry.

THIS world announcement is appearing simultaneously in all the principal cities of every civilized country on the face of the globe. It is the announcement for which millions of English-speaking people all over the world have been watching and waiting.

NOW the huge Britannica presses are fast turning out the final pages of the new 13th Edition of this incomparable Encyclopaedia, which for more than a century and a half has recorded and interpreted the knowledge of each age—always progressing—always in advance of its time.

This Thirteenth Edition sets a new high standard of interest and timeliness, of utility and value, never before approached or even attempted. It carries you right up to the very forefront of human progress. It reflects as in a mirror the amazing triumphs and achievements of today. It contains the essence of a thousand books not yet written. So closely has the record followed the event that many facts not hitherto revealed, or even rumored, are now presented for the first time by their original discoverers.

A Brilliant Achievement

To bring this panorama of all nations and all peoples fully up-to-date—to give a true, authentic picture of the world today—to revive and enhance that intellectual co-operation which the war interrupted—this has been a task demanding extraordinary enthusiasm, ability and resource.

Dedicated by Permission to President Coolidge and King George V

Under the splendid direction of the new Editor-in-Chief, JAMES LOUIS GARVIN [who, as editor of the London Observer, has amply demonstrated the power of his pen in world affairs], this great enterprise has been most brilliantly accomplished. It is dedicated by permission to the two heads of the English-Speaking Peoples, President Coolidge and King George V.

Without the vast resources of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, without its prestige, its unswerving adherence to an ideal, its tradition of excellence—the international co-operation vital to the success of such a work could never have been gained.

More than 2,500 authorities, from every civilized country in the world, have contributed the 45,000 separate articles which combine to make this work the finished utterance of the human race. No less than 22 Nobel Prize Winners—including practically all the living recipients of that coveted honor—are numbered among these contributors.

To the 28 volumes of the latest standard edition, have been added three new volumes and a new, enlarged Index volume. These 32 volumes comprise the complete Thirteenth Edition, which brings you right up to the threshold of tomorrow.

To further this momentous enterprise, the archives of Governments were freely opened. Presidents and Prime Ministers, Soldiers and Philosophers of many nations have willingly aided in furnishing material. For knowledge knows no narrow partisan spirit, no border lines of race, or creed or nationality. Its diffusion serves the cause of all humanity.

The Threshold of Tomorrow

This age of speed and sweeping change marks a new era in human progress—a time of opportunity such as the world has never known before.

In sixteen years the world has gained a century!

These transforming years have brought about a complete revolution in human thought and action. A new generation has grown up and come forward—a generation that differs radically from the pre-war anticipations of its elders. Our old conceptions of time and space, of matter and energy, have been dissolved or modified. Even the axioms of Euclid, which we were taught to accept as self-evident, have been challenged. And thinking men and women are examining anew the mysteries of human life and purpose.

Man is creating a better, finer world. New discoveries and inventions are daily placing new appliances and new facts at his disposal. Science has entered the market place; has formed with Industry and Commerce a partnership that vitally affects the lives of all.

The Automobile has brought the country to the city—the city to the farm. The Aeroplane is now almost a commonplace in rapid transportation. The Movies are a potent and far-reaching influence in the lives of millions. And Radio is making scientists of school boys!

Every branch, every territory, of human knowledge has opened out into new channels. For every ten opportunities our fathers had, we have a hundred and the promise of a thousand for our children. By weighing present developments and anticipating the future, you may assure yourself of your full share of the advantages of this marvellous age.

A 2,500 Brain-Power Ally

The new Britannica is a 2,500-brain-power ally for the man or woman intent on getting everything possible out of life. It is an endless source of stimulation and interest. It solves problems, dispels doubts, settles discussions, without loss of time and energy. It gives you a wealth of facts, information, ideas and suggestions—all so accurate, so timely, so closely observed and expertly written as to make the most trustworthy and secure foundation for any activity.

You could search endlessly through all the world's great libraries and never find, outside of the Britannica, the vital knowledge that is instantly accessible here. Only in these pages can you find the verdict of the leaders in every important development—financial, commercial, industrial, scientific, professional and social. Be among the first to know, and apply, this timely information.

CATHOLICS OPEN NEW BATTLE ON MEXICO'S LAWS

Beaten in Congress; Try to Revive Boycott.

BY JOHN CORNYN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mexico City, Sept. 25. — With all hopes of the Catholics obtaining a modification in the religious laws dashed when congress by a vote of 170 against 1 turned down the bill presented by the Catholic episcopate for a reform in the law and constitution, the Catholics today are greatly excited. Women are going about the city stirring up members of the church to continue the economic boycott. They are threatening reprisals against the members of congress who voted to snow under the Catholic bill.

The government apparently has the situation well in hand, and the opinion here is openly expressed that the episcopate fell into the trap by accepting the invitation to present a bill before a hostile congress.

The Catholics now are laying the blame for the failure on their leaders, who insisted on going before congress instead of keeping up the struggle along the lines originally laid down—constant agitation against the government to stir up the people throughout the interior. The trained politicians, it is claimed, outmaneuvered the Catholic leaders.

Boycott Losing Ground.

The economic boycott has been losing ground for the last three weeks, or since the episcopate announced it was presenting a bill to congress asking for a reform of the religious laws. Catholic women began appearing at picture shows and theaters a week ago and private carriages belonging to Catholics began appearing freely on the streets, contrary to the order of the boycott, which asked all Catholics to use carriages and autos as little as possible.

A government leader expressed the opinion that the Catholic leaders will find it impossible to whip the Catholics again into line. A prominent Catholic leader when asked what would the Catholic leaders do since all hopes of redress in congress had disappeared, replied:

"Our cause is in the hands of the people, under God. They will know what to do."

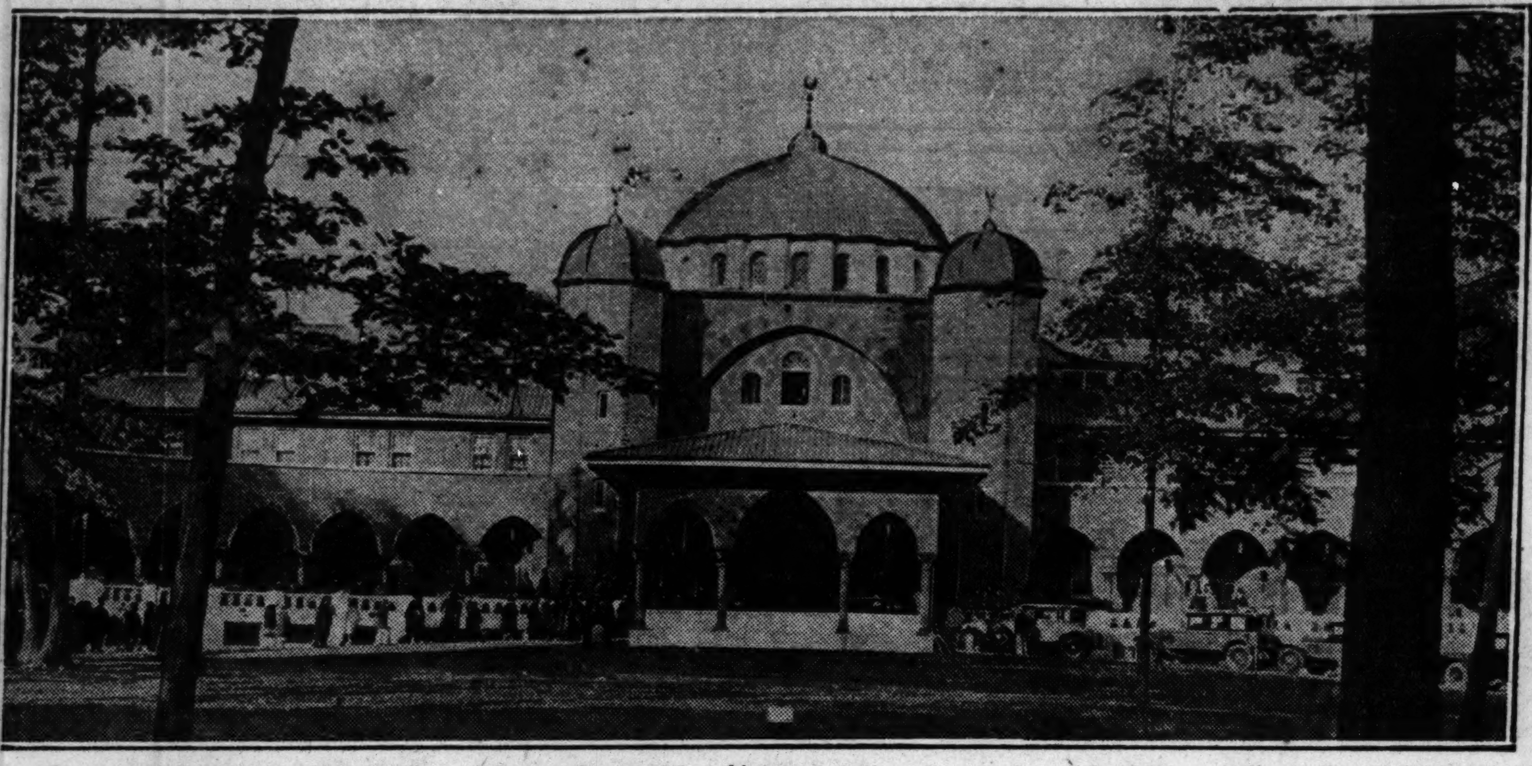
Explains Views of Congress.

A prominent member of congress said to THE TRIBUNE today:

"The Catholics have closed the churches without looking ahead. They called for a showdown, implying they had behind them some means of forcing the government to concede what the Catholic priests demanded. Their leaders appealed to congress, apparently believing the show of strength of the Catholics would force a consideration of the Catholic bill.

"Congress in throwing out the bill left the priests to explain to the congregations whether they were going to leave the churches closed indefinitely and the congregations abandoned or start an insurrection against congress and the government, now apparently the only way of promoting the Catholic point of view. In the days intervening between the presentation of the Catholic bill to congress and today the government has made preparations to meet any opposition the Catholics may present in the way of trouble, and the Catholic leaders, knowing the attitude of the government, preferred to appeal to congress.'

$1,000,000 MEDINAH CLUBHOUSE IS DEDICATED



The new $1,000,000 Medinah Country club near Itasca, Ill., which was dedicated yesterday with 15,000 attending. The building is of Moorish design and is surrounded by three 18 hole golf courses and an artificial lake. David W. Crosland, imperial potentate of the Shrine in North America, presided over the ceremonies.

15,000 ATTEND DEDICATION OF SHRINERS' CLUB

Nobles of the Mystic Shrine from Medinah temple at dusk yesterday dedicated their new Moorish clubhouse near Itasca, Ill. Presiding over the ceremony was David W. Crosland, imperial potentate of the shrine in North America. Around him at the open air rites were gathered 15,000 spectators, including Chicago nobles in gala uniforms with their women folk and many dignitaries of the order from the imperial council and from a hundred temples throughout the country.

Charles Canode, president of the club, delivered the address of welcome and introduced Edwin Mills, potentate of Medinah temple, and the imperial potentate, who came from Montgomery, Ala., to make the dedication address. The Rev. Rufus White of the Roosevelt Legion post presented an American flag to the club and the spectators rose in salute.

Afterward every one inspected the $1,000,000 clubhouse with its Moorish ballrooms, banquet halls, parlors and kitchen [the feeding capacity is said to be 5,200], the grounds with their three 18 hole golf courses, artificial lake, bridle path and polo field.

Today at 2 o'clock the nobles will dedicate their new $750,000 free hospital for crippled children at Oak Park and Belden avenues. Imperial Potentate Crosland will present the institution to Chicago and Mayor Dever will accept the gift in the name of the city.

Alleged Moron Flees Police; Falls and Fractures Knee

Fleeing from police squads seeking to arrest him as the attacker of a 6 year old girl, Thomas Manning, 36 years old, 5859 Laflin street, fell at 47th street and Ashland avenue yesterday, and fractured his right kneecap. He was taken to the Bridewell hospital. Lieut. James Loughran of the detective bureau said that Manning was identified by the child. The alleged attack occurred near 42d street and Emerald avenue.

Japan Launches Cruiser; Press Urges Bigger Navy

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Sept. 25.—The first class cruiser Aoba was christened at Nagasaki by imperial Prince Takamatsu today. A large section of the press is demanding that the government give preference to the naval replacement program of 300,000,000 yen (about $150,000,000) over the expansion of education, some declaring that the minister of marine will resign unless the program is adopted. The subject probably will be an acute issue with the diet, although the premier declares it is impossible to grant the naval demands, "unless we find some new source of revenue."

ORDERS JUROR IN SEVERINGHAUS CASE ARRESTED

Judge Reopens Inquiry on Gorman Bribery Charge.

Congressman John J. Gorman yesterday caused much excitement in Superior Judge Joseph B. David's court when he told how he had learned of the bribing of a member of the jury which awarded Milton G. Severinghaus, head of the printing company bearing his name, $151,000 from William H. "Doc" Reid, a member of former Mayor William H. Thompson's cabinet, for printing done in a mayoralty campaign.

After hearing the story, Judge David issued warrants for the arrest of Ralph F. Ritter, a member of the jury which awarded the Severinghaus verdict, and set his bonds at $10,000.

Raps Prosecutor's Inquiry.

The judge also characterized an investigation of the bribery charges by the state's attorney some time ago as "a whitewash, not an investigation." He added this comment when told that the investigation had been dropped by the state when Ritter denied he had been birbed.

Congressman Gorman's story was not told at the time the state's attorney was investigating the case. It was revealed when a motion for a new trial was heard by Judge David yesterday.

Severinghaus Wins $151,000.

Severinghause brought suit before Judge David last spring for the printing bill after members of the Thompson cabinet, including the mayor, had refused to pay for campaign literature. There was a lengthy trial and the jury finally awarded Severinghaus $151,000.

Some days after the verdict was returned, Congressman Gorman was approached, he said, by a friend, Robert White, cigar manufacturer, who introduced him to a man named R. D. Lewis. Lewis brought along a man who said he was a juror in the Severinghaus case. Congressman Gorman didn't catch the juror's name, he said.

"This juror told me he had been promised $2,000 for helping to bring in a large verdict," Gorman told the judge. "He had been given only $200 and he wanted me to help him get the remaining $1,800. I told him I would have nothing to do with such a case."

Quiz Dropped on Denial.

A few months later, Reid made the charge that Ritter was the juror who had been bribed. Ritter was called in and after he denied the charges, the investigation was dropped. Congressman Gorman was not mentioned at the time.

Gorman said he understood that the money had been promised the juror by an attaché of Judge David's court. When told the names of Judge David's bailiff and clerk, he said he did not think they were the men in question. The juror told him that the bribe had been offered by a man much seen around the court, he declared.

Gorman will face Ritter in court Monday morning to identify him, if possible, as the juror who approached him.

WINS TAX CUTS BECAUSE OF OLD THOMPSON DEBT

MacDonald Printing Co. Exempt $14,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Deduction from gross income of amounts due from political lieutenants of William Hale Thompson, but which could not be collected, was approved by the board of tax appeals today in a decision involving an appeal of the MacDonald-Kaitchuch Printing company of Chicago from additional income taxes assessed by the internal revenue bureau.

The extra taxes assessed against the company were more than $22,000, including $2,128.68 for 1918, $4,449.28 for 1919, $1,009.32 for 1920, and $15,056.18 for 1921. The company won on virtually all points involved, including alowances for exhaustion, wear and tear of machinery and equipment, the amount deductible for compensation of officers, and the deductibility of Cook county personal property taxes.

Had Refused Deductions.

The board approved the deduction of "worthless accounts" during the year 1921, amounting to $12,323.12. The commisioner of internal revenue had refused to permit this deduction, but attorneys for the company convinced the board that every possible effort had been made to collect the various items, but without success.

Included in this list of "worthless accounts" were $8,512.01 due from the Woman's Betterment association, $819.45 from the William Hale Thompson Republican club, $765.91 from Fisher & Hightower, $663.50 from "mayor's office," $154.75 from the Chicago Training school, $138 from Dr. E. V. Hill, $75 from William H. Wesbey, $40 from Charles R. Francis, and $40 from Harry B. Miller.

The board held that the company was entitled to deduct state, county, and city personal property taxes amounting to $727.65 for 1920 and $1,771.20 for 1921.

In Value of Residence.

In another case decided today the board of tax appeals refused to permit Fred L. Mandel of Chicago to make a large deduction for deterioration in the value of a residence at 3308 South Michigan avenue, resulting from invasion of the vicinity by Negroes. The residence, which cost $25,000 in 1902 and was presented to Mandel by his father as a wedding present, was sold in 1919 for $7,750.

The board determined the fair market value of the property in 1913 to be $17,000 and allowed $2,000 for exhaustion, wear, and tear between 1913 and the date of sale. A deficiency tax of $2,432.67 was approved.

The board upheld the commissioner of internal revenue in his refusal to permit a deduction by T. F. Driscoll of Chicago for an alleged loss of $900 in 1922. This amount was expended by Mrs. Driscoll for music lessons in New York City and Brookfield, Conn., in anticipation of a professional career.

Mr. Driscoll contended that the amount was a deductible loss because of the fact that his wife had not been able to carry out her plans for a professional career on account of her health. A deficiency tax of $70.60 was approved.

SCENIC NOVELTY PLAN OF OPERA STAGE MANAGER

Charles Moor, new stage manager for the Chicago Civic opera company, will arrive in Chicago next Thursday [Sept. 30] with sketches obtained abroad to be used in the ultra modern scenic effects to be attempted at the Auditorium for the first time this winter. Rather than the usual sets and profile scenery, lighting and suggestion will be depended on in the scenic presentations of several operas, particularly Mozart's Don Giovanni.

In addition to the entirely new staging for Don Giovanni, Mr. Moor will arrange for staging three important revivals: Tristan and Isolde, Gianni Schicchi and Il Tabarro. Atmospheric scenery will also be designed for the impressionistic drama, "Tiefland," and the fantastic "La Cena delle Boffe." Donizetti's "Daughter of the Regiment" is another novelty scheduled for early presentation.

Police at Show; Bombers in Berlin Get $40,000.

BY GEORGE SELDES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 25.—While the orators were opening the international police exhibition here today, telling how modern police are checking crime, Berlin experienced one of the most sensational robberies in its history.

Believing, apparently, that the police force in the city would be light, owing to the number attending the exhibition, two robbers invaded the busiest commercial district. By throwing detonating bombs they caused a panic which cleared the streets for several blocks. Then they leisurely smashed jewelry shop windows and took $40,000 worth of jewelry.

The bandits, however, found escape difficult because the panic had routed everybody, making it impossible to hide in crowds. Thereupon they shot their way into a department store, terrorizing 1,000 persons by dropping more bombs, and disappeared.

Trace Cop's Evolution.

[Copyright: 1926: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Sept. 25.—The history of the police, both as guardians of public safety and detectors of criminals, from the days when an ax and a bundle of staffs composed their entire equipment, to the present officials with airplanes, radios, and latest scientific inventions and chemical discoveries, is shown by tableaux, pictures, and demonstrations in the German police exhibition which officially opened today.

Its object is to show what measures police take to protect the public and thus "win the support and friendship of those whose antiquated ideas lead them to believe the police are the enemies of the people."

To demonstrate the progress made in police work the exhibition managers ransacked the archives of the museums of the entire world and brought together what is considered the most complete collection of its kind.

Reproduce Famous Crime Scenes.

Scenes of famous crimes have been reproduced in small booths showing the various steps taken by the criminal to carry out the deed, and those taken by the police to intercept the wrongdoers. There is a virtual chamber of horrors depicting cases of criminal dementia. This section is not considered suitable for the public eye and only members of the police departments are allowed to enter.

Another section displays thousands of instruments of torture in use during the dark ages as a means of obtaining information, compared to which the present day third degree methods are mild and indulgent.

Traffic control methods take up a generous share of the 25,000 square yards of the exhibition hall. Among the newest additions are the radio police, with strange looking instruments whose duty it is to run down the owners of receiving sets who evade the government radio tax, and unauthorized sending stations. There is also an air cop with his speedy plane.

PONY JUMP AT HINSDALE HORSE SHOW

PLAIN JANE IS AWARDED TITLE AT HORSE SHOW

The championship of the Flag Creek Hunt club's horse show, which took place yesterday afternoon at the Robert W. Hamill estate at Hinsdale, went to Plain Jane, owned by Frances Hamill and ridden by William Kaufman, one of Hinsdale's young equestrians. Second place honors went to Peter, owned by the Flag Creek Hunt club. In the saddle ponies class, Miss Ruth Brown, riding Elizabeth, received first prize, and Brooks McCormick on Eagle was awarded second place. George Strom Jr. put Miss Muffet through her paces for a blue ribbon in the large saddle ponies class, and Stuyvesant Peabody Jr., on Nailor, won first prize in the ponies jumping class.

The three Hamill girls, Katherine, Emily, and Frances, who have sponsored the junior hunt club, were in their element, managing affairs and generally proving their reputation among the young fry as "good scouts."

A horse show will be held this afternoon for the Junior Hunt club of Wheaton at Polo farm, the country estate of W. J. Sutherland, under the direction of Mrs. William M. Murray. The exhibitors will include Harry G. Goelitz Jr., George Strom Jr., Jean Dunbar, George Dunbar, Anne Bryant, Nancy Underwood, Ruth Clifford, Betty Pietsch, Eleanor and Peaches Willis, Katherine Hurd, Master Dustin Collins, Lois McCabe, Mrs. Walter Underwood, and Mrs. W. B. Olson.

THEATER STRIKE ARBITER GIVES FIRST DECISION

Dr. Karl A. Meyer, who was selected to act as umpire in the recent strike of musicians in motion picture theaters and vaudeville houses, yesterday gave his first decision regarding the employment of orchestras in class 6 movie houses, of which there are approximately thirty in Chicago.

The dispute over this point led to the calling of the musicians' strike. The Chicago Federation of Musicians, through its president, James C. Petrillo, demanded that regular orchestras be employed in class 6 theaters on a 44 week basis. The theater owners demanded the privilege of reducing the number in each orchestra, in some instances to an organ player.

In his award, which pertains specifically to the dispute at the Commodore theater, Dr. Meyer reduced the 44 week schedule to one of 32 weeks. Other controversies will be considered individually.

Anderson, Ind., Sept. 25.—[Special.] Farman Parker, 14, youngest licensed aviator in the United States, with his brother, Bobby Parker, 10, and his sister, Cozette Parker, 12, flew to Dayton, O., to participate today and Sunday in an air circus which will be given for the Florida relief fund. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Parker, their parents, motored to Dayton.

SHOOTS GARMENT INDUSTRY "CZAR" IN WAGE DISPUTE

New York, Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Louis Cooper, so-called "czar" of the garment industry in the New York-New Jersey area, was shot down today in front of his home in Passaic and taken to Passaic General hospital in a critical condition.

Seven bullets were fired into his body by a "two-gun man" with whom he had argued over wages. When Cooper wrested the first revolver from his assailant, after he had been hit five times, the man drew the second weapon, fired twice, and walked away.

1,000 EXPECTED AT METHODIST PARLEY TUESDAY

Rock River Conference to Open at Freeport.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

Nearly 400 ministers and as many laymen will attend the 87th session of Rock River conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, which meets in Embury church, Freeport, Ill., beginning Tuesday evening. The Rev. W. L. Collin is pastor of the entertaining church. The First Methodist Episcopal church, churches of other denominations and civic bodies will assist in the program and in the entertainment.

Including ministers' wives, visiting ministers, and official delegates to the laymen's association meeting, there will be a total of 1,000 visitors.

100,000 Members in Conference.

The conference has 100,000 church members and 372 churches. Some of the large churches are expecting to change pastors. Among them are Woodlawn Park, Cuyler Avenue, Oak Park, Wilmette, and Court Street, Rockford. It is a persistent rumor that Dr. Horace G. Smith, district superintendent of the Chicago Western district, will asked to be relieved from his work and will become pastor at Wilmette. No one is authorized to speak with certainty of the changes as the matter rests with Bishop W. O. Shepherd, who will preside, and the district superintendents who compose the cabinet.

The wet and dry issue is certain to bring a lively debate because of the complicated condition of politics in Chicago. It is safe to say that every minister in the conference is bone dry and a large majority are Republican in politics.

Oppose Smith and Brennan.

The Northwestern Christian Advocate, the church organ of the midwest, has taken a positive stand against Frank L. Smith for senator as well as against the out and out wet, Mr. Brennan. Dr. A. M. Pennywell, chairman of the public policy committee, stands with the Advocate in opposing both candidates. Other ministers believe in choosing the less of two evils and will champion the cause of Candidate Smith.

There is a similar division regarding the question of whether to vote or to refrain from voting on the wet referendum. Some favor and some oppose voting. This debate will probably be started Thursday morning.

says a guest of Hotel Sovereign

"I told you how much I appreciate the unusual service you render at Hotel Sovereign, and you asked me for a word to describe it. For Industrial Plants

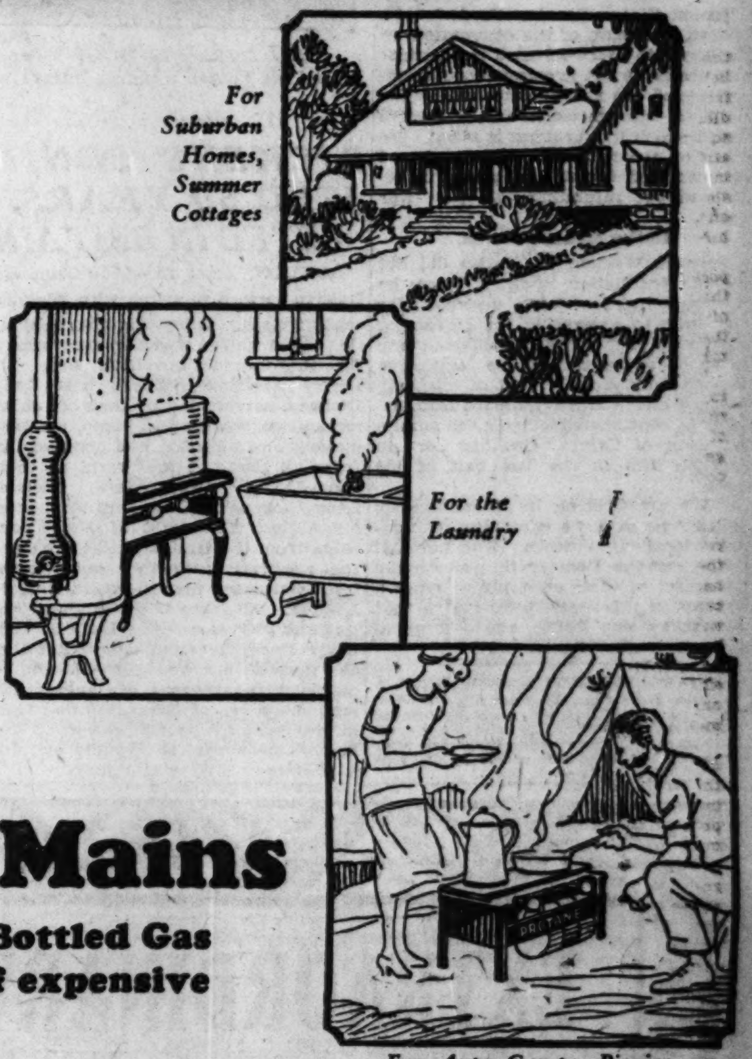
For Dining Cars and all Marine Use



For Suburban Homes, Summer Cottages

For the Laundry

For Auto Camps, Picnics

Now Available Outside of Gas Mains

A discovery that ranks with the Electric Light, Radio, Telephone, etc. Bottled Gas in steel drums, requires no digging or laying of pipe lines, no burying of expensive tanks, no oil, kerosene, gasoline or installation of gas-making plants.

PROTANE BOTTLED GAS is as safe and easy to use as city gas. It lights instantly—just like city gas—no generating. Burns the hottest blue flame known to modern science. Does not smoke—has no odor—does not soot or carbon. Its cost is low, about 1½ cents per burner hour. For home use it is BOTTLED under low pressure in ten gallon steel drums. For industrial use it is BOTTLED in large steel tanks or shipped in tank cars.

PROTANE BOTTLED GAS has been in use for over seven years. Today it is in use in every state in the Union. It is not an experiment—it has been PROVEN by the test of time and usage. The supply is unlimited—cannot be exhausted as long as oil is produced.

For Summer Homes, Cottages

If you have a summer home in the country where gas is not available, or a cottage at a lake, or a cabin in the mountains, you can have GAS just like you have in the city. Connect it with a Protane Gas Stove, Water Heater, Laundry Plate and you can cook, bake, wash, iron, etc., and do it BETTER, CHEAPER, CLEANER than with wood, coal, kerosene, gasoline or electricity.

For Suburban Homes, Sub-Divisions, Country Clubs

Gas is the last convenience obtainable in suburban homes, and new sub-divisions. Protane Bottled Gas and Protane Stoves, Water Heaters, etc., solve this perplexing problem. This is one of the largest uses for Bottled Gas and its equipment. It has enabled thousands to move out from the congested cities into suburban towns and beautiful, new sub-divisions, where the air is pure, free from smoke, soot and filth, and still have gas for all home needs. Country Clubs find it ideal for kitchens and showers.

For Small Towns and Farm Homes

Here is where Protane Bottled Gas and Equipment was first introduced and now thousands of farm and small town homes are using it, even towns in which gas is available, because Protane is cheaper, cleaner and better. No greater convenience has ever been offered to the farm woman for her kitchen, laundry, bathroom, etc. It does away with wood, coal and oil stoves—ashes, dirt, soot, grime, odors, and over-heated kitchens. Saves time, labor and makes her work a pleasure—not a drudgery. It is also used in dairy houses, hog houses, poultry houses, tank heaters—anywhere that heat is desired.

For Heating Garages, Small Shops, Stores

Whenever heat is required Protane Bottled Gas can be used with real satisfaction. Our line of Protane Appliances such as Garage Heaters, Radiators, Radiant Heaters for homes, small work shops, stores, etc., are particularly efficient and economical.

For Roadside Refreshment Stands, Auto Camps

It is a money-maker for these and camp cottages, summer resorts, stores, barbecues, etc. The old wood fires and wick stoves are too slow, inefficient, and out-of-date. They are like the old one-horse shay compared to the automobile. A Protane Bottled Gas Equipment will pay its cost in a short time, not counting the saving of time and drudgery.

For Coffee Shops and Restaurants

Protane Bottled Gas for Coffee Urns, Broilers, Griddle Plates, anything where heat is needed. It is hotter and cleaner—often much cheaper than city gas.

For Industrial Plants

Protane Bottled Gas is being used in many industrial plants because being BOTTLED it can be used in many ways and places where natural gas is not available. Being composed of the richest parts of natural gas, it is more efficient.

For House Boats and Cruisers

Protane Bottled Gas and Protane Stoves and Heaters make the most satisfactory and efficient equipment for house boats, cruisers, etc. Those who have installed them say they are the greatest convenience and comfort ever devised for use on lake, river or sea-going craft.

Used on Dining Cars, Club Cars, Produce Cars

For these uses Protane Bottled Gas is unsurpassed. The small space required for both the System and fuel supply is of decided advantage. Also the efficiency of heat without excessive heating of the kitchen. There is not a use for fuel gas where Protane Bottled Gas cannot be used advantageously. Its portability, practicability, efficiency and economy is being recognized everywhere—proving conclusively that it is the most remarkable thing ever done with gas.

BAY STATE G. O. P. IGNORES ISSUE OF PROHIBITION

Stand by the President, Butler's Appeal.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 25.—(AP)—The 65th Republican state convention held here today was exhorted by the state leaders "to send to the whole country a message of overwhelming Republican victory in Massachusetts," in support of the national and state administrations in their policies of economy and law enforcement.

Beyond the brief statement "enforcement of all laws," the terse platform adopted did not accept the challenge of William A. Gaston, Democratic candidate for governor who recently proclaimed prohibition the issue and himself for modification.

Announce Party Policies.

Among the party policies enumerated were support of President Coolidge, Senator Butler and Gov. Fuller; adherance to the Republican policy of a protective tariff; sound legislation for the relief of agriculture; opposition to large expenditures in political campaigns, and biennial sessions of the state legislature.

United States Senator Frederick H. Gillett, chairman of the convention, in the keynote address hailed the present prosperity as the greatest since Adam and urged the maintenance of the Republican administration and protective tariff, which had brought it about. He dwelt on the reduction of the national debt and of taxes, and spoke favorably of the refunding of the war debts.

Butler Makes Address.

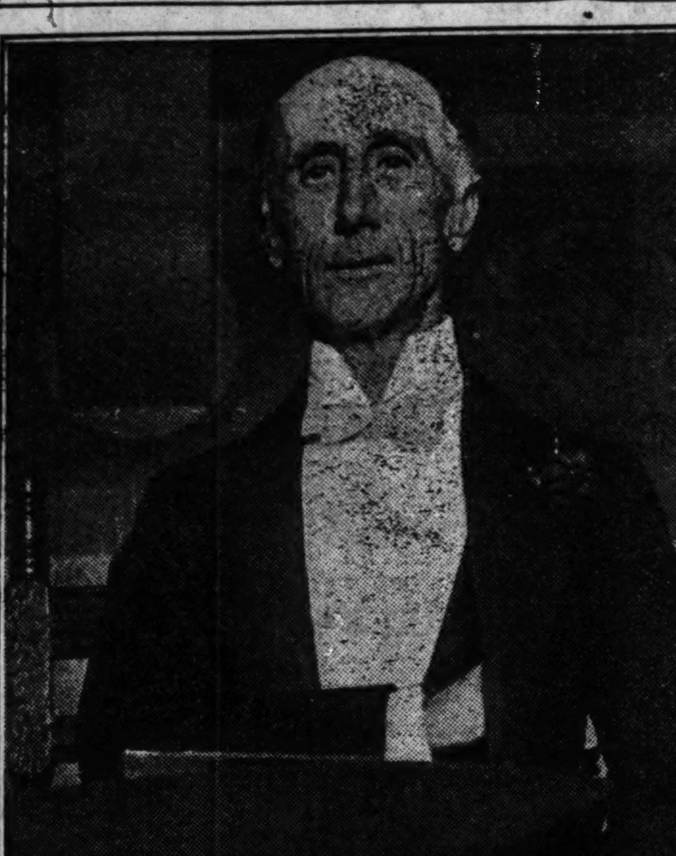
Senator William M. Butler did not include prohibition in the subjects he discussed but found two questions for the state to answer in the November election: Whether the Republican party is to be supported in the legislative branch for the fulfillment of its party pledges and whether Massachusets desires to continue effectively the administration of Calvin Coolidge or to weaken him in the last half of his term.

"We art fighting in Massachusetts today," he said, "a campaign of more than local significance. The national leaders of the Democratic party make no secret of their attempts to score a victory in this state, believing in that way they can bring about humiliation of the President."

BOY WANDERER PICKED UP HERE.

Charles J. Raschka, 11 years old, 637 West Tenth avenue, Milwaukee, yesterday boarded a train without parental knowledge and came to Chicago. After wandering the streets most of the night the boy was picked up and sent to the juvenile detention home.

DAVID COPPERFIELD JR.



Sir Henry Fielding Dickens, son of the great novelist, who celebrated his golden wedding anniversary in London yesterday.

DICKENS' SON, WED 50 YEARS, FETED IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Grim old London seemed to soften with Dickens sentimentality today for the celebration of the golden wedding anniversary for the famous novelist's son. Sir Henry Fielding Dickens and Lady Dickens, surrounded by their six children and sixteen grandchildren, received messages of affection and good wishes from all parts of the world at their home in Mulberry Walk, Chelsea. Lady Dickens' three sisters were present. Mrs. Fitzgerald of New York came from the United States to attend the celebration; another sister came from Germany, and the third lives in London. All were bridesmaids at the wedding fifty years ago. Lady Dickens today wore the orange blossoms that she wore on her wedding veil. She received great masses of flowers and read messages of congratulation from all parts of the world to herself and her husband, who is 77 years old, and a prominent lawyer and judge.

HOLDS NEW ASKS POSTMASTERS TO ENTER POLITICS

Civil Service Body Calls It "Brazen Invitation."

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—A definition of the "rights and privileges" of postal employés as made in a recent circular issued by Postmaster General New was construed by the National Civil Service Reform league today as "a brazen invitation" to more than 15,000 postmasters to "get busy politically" in the congressional campaign.

H. W. Marsh, secretary of the league, in a statement asserted that while the postmaster general accurately stated political prohibition applying to employés and officials of the postal department he so interprets these restrictions and emphasizes their politicals rights and privileges as to nullify the plain intent of the law.

From Public Activity.

The circular issued by the postmaster general stated that civil service employés enjoyed a reasonable exercise of rights as citizens but were barred from public activity and management of political campaigns but that presidential postmasters "are not restricted in the the degree that those in the classified service are and are allowed to take such a part in the political campaigns as is taken by any private citizen."

"The postmaser general would like to have the 300,000 employés of his great department know that they may all of them take part in the fall campaign for congressional elections, but those who are holding positions subject to the provisions of the civil service law will have to be quiet about it, and observe certain provisions of the law restricting their activities," said Mr. Marsh.

Free of Restrictions.

"But he carefully points out to the 15,113 postmasters of the first, second, and third classes that they are free of those restrictions as to political activity imposed upon the persons in the classified service. They are as free as any private citizen, says the postmaster general.

"A bolder or more brazen invitation to these important employés of the United States government to get busy politically in their respective communities could hardly have been devised by this cabinet official."

Line Up Five Cars in Your Mind—How Can You Mistake the Chrysler "50"?

The Chrysler plan of Quality Standardization differs from, and is superior to, ordinary manufacturing practice and methods, because it demands fixed and inflexible quality standards which enforce the same scrupulously close limits—the same rigid rule of engineering exactness—the same absolute accuracy and precision of alignment and assemblage—in the measurement, the machining and the manufacturing of every part, practice and process in four lines of Chrysler cars—"50", "60", "70" and Imperial "80"—so that each individual car shall be the Supreme Value in its own class.

With only four other cars of large production in the four-cylinder field, it is exceedingly easy to recognize the outstanding values of the Chrysler "50" and decide which car to buy.

Lining up the five cars side by side in your own mind, you will be startled by the contrast between them—and especially by the contrast between the Chrysler "50" and all the others.

In point of size, seating room, beauty of design, beauty of finish and power, the Chrysler "50" stands out so unmistakably that you recognize the price at once as far and away the greatest offering ever made in four-cylinder cars.

It will continue to yield a sustained speed of 50 miles and more per hour, 5 to 25 miles in 8 seconds, and 25 miles to the gallon—for months and for years, as the result of Chrysler's plan of Quality Standardization.

At last it is possible for you to make a convincing and conclusive comparison of values—studying the comfort, appearance and performance factors of the Chrysler "50" in comparison with everything else offered—and satisfy yourself almost at a glance in which car you should invest your money.

Examine and ride in the new Chrysler "50" and you will not consider any other car in its price class.

PLAN FIFTY MILE SAFETY ZONE TO HALT CORN BORER

Correlate Efforts of U.S. and Canada.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—A fifty mile wide safety zone along the front of the European corn borer invasion was decided on today at the international congress called to draft plans to fight the pest.

Steps were taken to correlate all the forces of the United States and Canada engaged in the fight. A public relations committee was appointed to secure coöperation among business men, farmers, bankers, and governmental forces.

Will Ask Federal Aid.

The committee is authorized to appear before the federal budget committee's hearings at Washington, D. C., in October, with evidence showing the need of new government appropriations to carry on the corn borer campaign. This committee will also draft uniform laws and regulations to be presented before the state legislatures this winter, leading to more effective quarantine work and coöperation of state and federal governments.

The congress recommended strict quarantine of the infested area in New York, northern Pennsylvania and Ohio, northern Indiana and western Michigan to save the Illino's and Iowa corn belts from the borer invasion. Various methods for fighting the pest in the sections already invaded were discussed by the farmers, farm experts and government officials who inspected the borders of the infested area in this country and in Canada. Recommendations included early plowing, close cutting and forage pulverizing.

Demands Drastic Measures.

Bluffing quarantine measures, weak laws, and inadequate control methods will never stop the advance of the corn borer now marching westward, G. I. Christie of Purdue university disclosed.

"We are now facing one of the greatest menaces of American agriculture and the situation calls for action," Christie said. "Pass laws that will prevent borers from being carried out of the infested territory in ears of corn or stalks. We do not have the power to stop vehicles and confiscate corn. State laws are needed. Get a law that will prevent a man from carrying infested corn into noninfested regions. Get the forces that will arouse public sentiment.

"Too many men have already said we never can stop the spreading of the European corn borer. I do not hire men for jobs who tell me that the work can't be done. The man I want is the man who says the work can be done. What the campaign needs is a few more men to say the corn borer can be stopped and we are going to do it."

Outline Cleanup Campaigns.

Cleanup campaign plans were outlined at the conference which call for an enormous expenditure of money to keep the border under control. If the proposed plan is adopted, Christie estimated that it would cost Indiana $500,000 to clean 165,000 acres of corn land.

With all the guards stationed on the quarantine lines and the cleaning of fields in infested areas, the borers still move into new territory at the rate of 60 to 75 miles a year, spreading this summer to 435 new townships in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, and Indiana, according to L. H. Worthley, federal entomologist.

The public relations committee members appointed today are: G. I. Christie, Purdue university; C. A. Truax, Ohio department of agriculture; Dean L. E. Call, Kansas State Agriculture college; C. G. Woodbury, secretary of the American Canning association; Arthur Gibson, dominion entomologist of Ottawa; S. H. Thompson, American Farm Bureau federation; L. J. Tabor, master National Grange, and Dean C. F. Curtiss, Iowa State college, chairman. The committee will meet at the Congress hotel, Chicago, Oct. 8.

The body of the airship will be completed by Dec. 31. The trip will take four and a half days each way. The Spanish government has granted $5,000,000 to subsidize the airship line. BULLETIN.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Thomas Lowry, sought as the man who killed a policeman and wounded another, was captured late tonight at Pine Lawn, St. Louis county. He was crouched behind a phonograph in the home of a friend and submitted meekly to arrest.

Jones in the ankle, for he abandoned his gun and top coat with cartridges in the pockets. Bullet holes in the blood stained coat sleeve indicatel he had been wounded in the right arm.

Prefer Bandit Taken Dead.

Louis Fagin, 38, of St. Louis, captured in the car from which the slayer fled, later revealed his companion was Thomas Lowry, 21, also of St. Louis. Police say Lowry had served time in the Missouri state prison for burglary. A warrant was issued for Lowry and Police Chief Gerk offered a $1,000 reward for his arrest, "dead or alive, preferably dead." Fagin said he had been engaged with Lowry in liquor running between Chicago and St. Louis.

TRACE CAR IN CHICAGO.

The license number on the car from which the St. Louis policeman was shot was issued to a Charles Hagin, who resided with a man named Dow in the Pershing hotel in Chicago until a week ago. Lieut. Michael Lahart investigated them shortly after a train robbery in Evergreen Park, but they fled before a raid was made on their room. They are said to have had a large sum in five, ten, and twenty dollar bills.

KILLED BY FALL FROM SCAFFOLD.

Announcing the New 1904 Model

Do you remember away back when the twin-cylinder model with the rear-door entrance was the last word in automobiles? It rattled like a concrete mixer, wasn't much on speed, and you usually needed a horse to get it back to the garage—but, in 1904, this car was decidedly the "cat's whiskers."

The rear-door automobile has gone and, with it, a lot of old-fashioned merchandising ideas.

A few years ago your coal merchant was interested only in selling you all the coal you would burn. Today, he is more interested in selling you heat, comfort and satisfaction.

There are hundreds of kinds and grades of coal. Each furnace installation is adapted to a particular type and to burn the wrong grade or size means a direct loss of money and heating efficiency.

Consumers Company provides a real combustion service for its patrons. Its Service Department and heating experts are at your call to insure your getting the kind of fuel best suited to your needs, or to give you valuable advice on the construction and care of your heating equipment.

There is no cost or obligation connected with this. It is just one of the many modern features of Consumers Service.

Now is the time to get your heating equipment ready for the winter season. Let Consumers Company help you. It may mean a substantial saving on your fuel bill.

NASH

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

Come Try 7-Bearing Motor Performance

It Offers Amazing Power-Smoothness

Here's a NEW Nash Advanced Six model that's scoring a tremendous success.

Richly furnished, luxuriously appointed, and with a wealth of new engineering features, this 4-Door Sedan is easily the most notable car ever offered at the price.

AND—it's powered with the newly-refined 7-bearing crankshaft motor Nash has developed—the world's smoothest type.

Never have you known such rare power-smoothness—soft, silken, utterly vibrationless power-flow that has no equal in this field.

A ride will PROVE that—CONVINCINGLY.

Phenomenal quietness is another outstanding characteristic of this car—for it's Nash standard practice to insulate the motor from the frame with heavy rubber insulators at the motor supports.

And Nash now provides a new-type motor muffler that deepens still further the silence of motor operation.

And a long list of added new attractions that rank this 4-Door Sedan right along with cars selling far above it in price. COME IN TODAY and see this NEW model.

YANKS WIN FLAG; FACE CARDS IN SERIES

HAGEN'S MASHIE AND PUTTER BEAT DIEGEL, 4 AND 3

ICTORY GIVES ALTER TRIPLE DECKED CROWN

hampion Deadly on Approach Shots.

BY HARLAND ROHM.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on page 3.)

Garden City, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Leo Diegel picked up his golf ball and hurled it toward the cup on the fifteenth green of Salisbury's No. 4 course this afternoon and thereby gave Walter Hagen's head a triple decked golf crown, the like of which never has been worn by a golfer. Beating Diegel 4 and 3 on the thirty-third hole, which was by no means certain, Hagen won his third consecutive United States professional golfing championship by a score of 4 and 3.

LEO DIEGEL.

There was little question of Hagen's eventual victory from the first hole. Diegel was never up and never even came after the eleventh hole.

Diegel Shoots 71 in Morning.

But that Hagen didn't shoot fine golf, Diegel scored 36—35—71 in the morning round, but was 2 down. But Diegel, rushing after each shot as if he would help it along with his own momentum, fagged himself out.

Hagen's mashie and putter gave him all of the eight holes he won. On the second hole his approach was five feet from the pin, on the eleventh his mashie stopped the ball three feet from the cup; his second was two feet from the cup on the twenty-fourth; in the twenty-eighth his approach was four feet over the cup and his second two inches short on the thirty-first. He sank all those putts for birdies and dropped a forty foot putt on the sixteenth for another birdie.

Meanwhile Diegel, with his peculiar putting stance, which makes a spectator think he's about to flap his wings and crow, was lipping the cup and going wide with putts for wins and halves.

Finish Match in Rain.

The day was sweltering, but a gallery of 1,000 followed the match to the finish. Golfers and fans alike were soaked with perspiration. The sun disappeared in the afternoon, but the murky heat was almost more oppressive than the sun and the sprinkle, which began as they were playing the tenth hole and continued to the finish, was welcome.

Hagen was 2 up as they started the afternoon round.

Diegel lost the first hole of the afternoon, putting him 3 down. Diegel won the second with a par 4, when Hagen's second was over the green and he chipped back 30 feet short, taking three putts. They halved the 21st in 5s and the 22d in 4s, Hagen chipping over a stymie with mashie and sinking the ball for a half. Walter returned the compliment on the next hole, laying Diegel a stymie, but Leo curled his ball past Walter's, sinking for a half, in 3s.

Hagen Wins 24th.

Hagen again went 3 up through his mashie shot to two feet from the pin on the 24th, Leo being 30 feet past the pin with his second and taking two putts. But again Diegel cut it to two on the 25th when Hagen's putter failed him for the first time in this tournament. They halved the last two of the nine in 4's, both missing long putts by inches on the 27th. Hagen was out in 36, even par, while Diegel took 37.

Walter made it 3 up once more when his pitch was four feet over the pin on the 28th. Hagen's 20 foot putt ran into the cup and out, stopping on the rim on the next and they halved it in 4's. Hagen again missed a 5 foot putt by an inch on the 30th and they halved that in 4's.

Hagen went 4 up on the 310 yard 31st by two brilliant shots. His iron shot was 40 yards from the pin. His second landed on the green and rolled gently toward the cup. It hit the pin and bounced back, stopping two inches from the lip. Diegel, in trouble on his second and short with his third, pointed to Walter's two inch putt as he came on the green remarking, "even I could sink that one." Then he was short with his 20 footer.

They halved the thirty-second in par 4s, Hagen reaching the green from the rough with his second, leaving Diegel a dormie 4. They halved the thirty-third in 6's.

Hagen's victory marked his third consecutive victory in the professional championship.

Pitt Defeats Allegheny by One Safety

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 25.—[United Press.]—The green eleven of the University of Pittsburgh encountered a plucky team from Allegheny college with a consistent forward passing attack here this afternoon and came out with victory by the small margin of one safety, 9 to 7. The game was played under a steady downpour of rain.

Pitt opened with a steady march down the field and Hagan carried the ball over for its only touchdown. The Methodist eleven fought them to a standstill in the second quarter and unleashed an aerial attack in the third period which brought about their score. An 11 yard pass from Waleski to Davis gave him a clear field and he ran the remaining 16 yards to a touchdown.

Davis' fumble when receiving the snapback from center in the last quarter gave Pitt the victory by the lone margin of one safety. Fisher for Pitt failed for a field goal in the last few minutes of play.

NEW YORK, 34; NIAGARA, 0

New York, Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Figuratively and literally the New York university football eleven took its place in the sun today when Coach Meehan's charges overwhelmed the Niagara university gridders, 34 to 0, at Ohio field. Everything but the New York university attack wilted in the heat. They used variety in their scoring. In the first period Archie Roberts intercepted a forward pass and stepped 90 yards for the first touchdown. In the second period a line attack by Strong brought the second touchdown. A plunging attack by Roberts, Strong, and Riordan resulted in the third touchdown early in its third quarter.

A neat aerial, Connors to Roberts, put the ball in scoring position again. Strong obliged. Roberts dodged 35 yards for New York's fourth touchdown late in the final period.

COLUMBIA, 14; VERMONT, 0

New York, Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Columbia university eleven, playing its first game against the comparatively weak University of Vermont team, gave little promise of having more than a mediocre outfit. Only in the last quarter did the Blue and White seem to snap out of it. When Madden and Sesit went over for two touchdowns Madden kicked both goals for a total score of 14 to 0.

Wherein Aunt Delight determines the course of events . . . . .

AUNT DELIGHT was a hale and hearty woman of 58 when she realized that her niece ought to leave the small town and "get something out of life" in New York. At 68, with a mind still keenly young, she decided it was time for her niece to return—and she took unusual means to bring it about.

GOTHAM ROARS HERO WELCOME TO CHAMPION

Clergy Joins Chorus in Tunney's Praise.

$1,723,394 at Gate

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 25. — [Special.] — Telegraphic reports from Supervisor of Accounts and Collections E. B. Gerry at Philadelphia today were that paid admissions to the Tunney-Dempsey contest numbered 126,081 and the amount paid for admissions was $1,723,394. The admission tax of 10 per cent was $172,339.40. Income tax from principals, promoters, and others who profited will swell the government's total.

New York, Sept. 25.—[Special.]—New York greeted Gene Tunney today with a welcome which New York reserves distinctly for its favorite sons. The new world's heavyweight champion, coming back to the city as the first native born to wear the prize ring's greatest title, returned from Philadelphia at noon.

From the time he arrived at the Pennsylvania terminal this smiling, boyish, modest young product of Greenwich Village, was paraded and acclaimed, dined and feted, cheered and praised; his character and fighting ability were eulogized in a demonstration which lacked much in the crowds it attracted, but which transcended any similar demonstration on the spontaneity and sincerity of its enthusiasm.

Demonstration Is Impromptu.

It was a demonstration which was appropriate in every sense of the word but which was of necessity impromptu and informal and, as a consequence did not approch, in point of participants, that which greeted Trudy Ederle on her triumphal return. This was because there was no organization back of the welcome; it lacked that completion of elaborate planning which attended the return here of the channel conqueror, because Tunney, originally scheduled to delay his return here until Tuesday, suddenly decided over night to get back today and arrived, after a fashion, unexpectedly.

But it was a remarkable demonstration nevertheless; one in which Tunney seemed cowed more by the excitement his arrival created than he ever could have been by the threatened ferocity of Jack Dempsey. It was such a demonstration as will live long in the memory of Tunney and those who participated in it.

Welcomed by Mayor.

Tunney was greeted at the Pennsylvania terminal by his manager, Billy Gibson, and by his friend, Tim Mara, the man who arranged the welcome for the champion overnight. Whisked to the city hall, Tunney was welcomed by Mayor James J. Walker, then at the head of a motor procession he was driven to the Biltmore hotel, where he was the guest of honor at a luncheon arranged by Mara and attended by prominent figures in the city's political, industrial, commercial, professional and religious life.

A note of religious pride in the success of Tunney made today's demonstration unique. At the luncheon among the speakers were Father Francis P. Duffy, former chaplain of the old 69th regiment; Msgr. Joseph A. Smith, and Father Patrick H. Drain, pastor of St. Veronica's parish in the Village, where Tunney was christened and reared in the Catholic faith.

Praised by Prelate.

Tunney heard Msgr. Smith praise him as "the type of man the church depends on; an athlete of Christ"; heard Father Duffy declare that "Tunney as world's heavyweight champion will do more to form the morals of the rising generation than all the efforts of all the clergy of the country, since every youngster will want to fashion his life after his idol," and he heard Father Drain praise him as a clean living young man of highest character; a man "Greenwich Village is proud to have produced."

Tunney paid his modest tribute to the man from whom he won the title. And, too, Tunney took occasion to issue a mild rebuke to Manager Gibson who, in his speech, had emitted a caustic criticism of the boxing writers and former fighters who acted as "experts" and who almost solidly picked Dempsey to win the title bout.

"Tunney is the greatest champion ever crowned," Gibson said, "and he proved the experts all wrong. For this I am glad. None of them, save three or four, gave Gene a chance with Dempsey. Yet, now that the fight is over, they are not big enough to admit they were wrong. They are making excuses for their selection. They have not even given Tunney an even break. Dempsey, the best day he ever saw, could never lick Gene Tunney."

Always Made Short Ender.

"I don't quite agree with my manager," Tunney said, "in his remarks about the boxing writers and newspaper men. I think he was a little bit too rough on them.

"As a matter of fact, I have always baffled the newspaper men; they have always made me a short ender and for

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

In the first game of a double header yesterday at the White Sox park Whispering Bill Barrett made a $250 base hit and then in the second game Joe Judge made a $250 base hit that offset it. The result of the doings at Comiskey park was an even break in a double header between a couple of teams who were battling for a place in the first division which will bring a saucer full of money for the winner.

The White Sox, because of a home run by Barrett, won the first game, 2 to 1; and the Senators, because of the homer by Judge, won the second, 3 to 2.

The reason for all the money value attached to these homers is the closeness of the race for a first division berth between the Sox and the Senators.

Barrett the Hero.

Whispering Bill established himself as a hero yesterday when he came up in the ninth inning of the first game with no one out and no one on and socked a ball into the right field bleacher for four bases that won the game. In the same way Joe Judge scribbled him name in the hall of fame in the ninth inning of the second game, socking the ball over the fence in right for a homer. The general opinion was that Mr. Judge had hit a $250 homer because that made it possible for the Sox to pass the Senators in the race for a first division berth. However the Senators have to go back east and play the Athletics three games and the result of those three games have a bearing on where the Sox finish.

In the first game Tommy Thomas was on the slab opposed by none other than Walter Johnson. No matter whom Tommy was opposed to, he would have been a great pitcher because he was just about perfect and Old Walter was in form. The battle went clear to the ninth inning when the Sox came to bat with Mr. Barrett the first man up. He took a strike and he took a ball, and then he took a swing for all of New England and the result was a long drive into the right field bleacher.

Marberry Wins Second.

In the second game, with Ted Blankenship on the rubber against Old Stan Coveleskie, it was another battle. Old Stan gave way to a pinch hitter in the seventh and the strong armed man, Mr. Marberry, came forth. Mr. Marberry has a right arm that would make Gene Tunney tremble. His right arm stopped the Sox, who had two swell chances to go out and break up the ball game.

And then, in the ninth, Joe Judge came up and took a swing from his heels and hit one of Blankenship's shoots over the fence at the end of the right field bleacher for a home run and that run won the game. It sure was a $250 hit for every man on the Washington team.

The season will end at the south side today with one game between the Sox and Senators. Seats for the city series between the Sox and Cubs will be on sale all day at the south side park.

Pirate Boss Gives McInnis His Release

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 25.—[Special.] —John J. "Stuffy" McInnis, veteran first baseman, was today given his unconditional release by the Pittsburgh baseball club, according to an announcement made tonight by President Barney Dreyfuss.

STUFFY McINNIS.

The release was handed to McInnis in Boston and he was permitted to go tonight to his home in Gloucester, Mass.

The action of the club occasioned little surprise in Pittsburgh. For several weeks it has been rumored that he was to go.

Tipped Off Newspapers.

McInnis is generally credited with having been the member of the Pittsburgh team who revealed to newspaper men the fact that a vote had been taken on whether Vice President Fred Clarke should be asked to quit the bench.

This vote, it will be recalled, was followed by the unconditional release of Babe Adams and Carson Bigbee and the asking of waivers on Capt. Max Carey, who was turned over to the Brooklyn Robins via the waiver route.

Warned in Advance.

According to inside dope on the Pirate flareup, the Pirates were warned before the vote was taken that any member of the team who revealed what had gone on would be given his release.

It has been said McInnis was the man who first told about the meeting and what transpired thereat, and since then the fans had been looking for his release.

GLEASON WINS RACE AT LAUREL; AL ASPEN IS HURT

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Al Aspen, race driver injured at the Baltimore-Washington speedway, Laurel, Md., this afternoon and believed dying in an ambulance which rushed him to University hospital here, was not fatally hurt, hospital surgeons said.

Aspen was cut about the head and legs when he was thrown 30 feet as his car skidded through an iron railing during a trial spin.

Jimmy Gleason, driving a Miller special, won the 100 mile feature race in the National Motor Racing association card. His time was 57:03 4-5, an average of 133 miles per hour. Russell Miller was second and Frank Farmer third.

GRANGE SUED BY CLEVELAND FOOTBALL CLUB

Cleveland, O., Sept. 25.—A damage suit against Harold [Red] Grange for $6,600 was filed in Common Pleas court this afternoon alleging failure to fulfill terms of a contract to play here last December.

Grange is here for a game against the Cleveland Panthers tomorrow.

The suit was filed by the Cleveland Football company, and Pierre White, its secretary. White claimed tickets were sold for the game and a large loss sustained by Grange's failure to appear.

RUTH CLOUTS 3 HOMERS TO BEAT BROWNS TWICE

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 25.—(AP)—The New York Yankees clinched the American league pennant and earned the right to meet the St. Louis Cardinals in the 1926 world series by defeating the St. Louis Browns in both games of a double header today, 10 to 2 and 10 to 4.

Babe Ruth increased his home run string to 47 by hitting for the circuit three times. His first homer was in the fifth inning of the first game with the bases loaded. His second was in the sixth inning of the second game and also scored Combs. His third was in the ninth when he was the first batter. Ruth's double in the fifth accounted for another Yankee run. MASTER VS. PUPIL

New York against St. Louis. The Yankees and the Cardinals and master against pupil will be the setting of the 1926 world's series, the annual classic of major league baseball, which opens at the Yankee stadium, New York, next Saturday.

The Yankees yesterday clinched the pennant in the American league by defeating the Browns of St. Louis in both games of a double header at St. Louis. Friday the Cardinals took the title in the National league when they won from New York Giants while Philadelphia downed the Cincinnati Reds in the first game of a double header.

A championship is no novelty for the Yankees. The team, managed by the diminutive Miller Huggins and headlined by the mighty Babe Ruth, won its first American league flag in 1921 and repeated in 1922, only to lose the world series championship to the Giants. In 1923 the Yankees repeated and then downed the Giants for the world's title.

Yanks Miss Flag in 1904.

The American league was formed in 1900, but the Yankees didn't enter until 1903. In 1904 the Yanks came within one game of winning the league title, losing the flag in the final game of the regular schedule to Boston when Jack Chesbro committed a wild pitch. Then followed years of little success and it was 1921 before New York owned another American league championship.

On the National league side of the fence, the 1926 championship is the first league title to come to St. Louis in the history of modern baseball. Thirty-eight years ago, when Charles Comiskey had the St. Louis club, his squad brought home a league title.

Master vs. Pupil.

The master vs. pupil angle of the impending series engages the rival managers, Huggins of the Yanks and Hornsby of the Cards. Huggins played with the St. Louis National league club in 1911 and 1912 and then in 1913 he was named manager. Hug was directing the play of the Cards from 1913 to 1917 when he was released by the Cards and made manager of the Yankees. In 1915 Hornsby came to the Cardinals from the Denison club and Huggins took the now manager of the St. Louis outfit in hand and taught him the fine points of second basing and major league play. Hornsby was made manager of the Cards in the spring of 1925 to suceed Branch Rickey.

Series Opens Saturday.

The series between the Yanks and Cards will see two games played in New York, the opener on Saturday and the second game on Sunday. Monday the teams will be on the trains en route to St. Louis, where the war will reopen on Tuesday and continue for three days. The sixth and seventh games, if necessary, will be played in New York.

All games of the series will start at 1:30 p. m. standard time.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Owing to the fact that the umpires did not wish to pay another pressing bill with the season's end almost at hand, the Cubs and Robins were forced to labor only for seven innings today. At that stage the arbiters decided sufficient rain was falling to warrant canceling proceedings, so the athletes quit the field and after the customary wait the few thousand customers were informed there would be no more. This left the Cubs in possession of a 3 to 1 victory that could do them no good in the percentage column.

The welcome shower and the still more welcome verdict of the umpires to cut short the unnecessary suffering was slightly disturbing to Gen. McCarthy's strategy. He started Sheriff Blake on the knob with the intention of letting Charley Root work the last part so as to prime himself for the opener of the city series. Root was able to throw only one inning, so it is possible he may have to loosen up again tomorrow to make sure his cannonlike arm doesn't grow rusty before he can try his luck against the Pale Hose.

Some Hitting by Cliff.

About the only high light of this affair was the fashion in which Cliff Heathcote upset Doug McWeeny, who did most of the flinging for the local contemptibles. In the first inning Cliff clouted a clean drive to right field, but in his subsequent appearances he resorted to bunting. He laid three balls almost at McWeeny's feet, but the latter had to appeal to the lost and found department of the police department before locating the missiles. Naturally Heathcote beat out all of them, giving him four hits for the day, which was half of what the Cubs collected.

The Cubs got a start in the run column with two tallies in the third. Adams led off with a hit and Heathcote beat out the first of his three bunts. Stephenson sacrificed and when McWeeny fumbled the sacks were filled with none out. The next two gentlemen popped out, which wasn't so good, but Freigau slapped a clean hit into center and both Adams and Heathcote ran home on it.

Marriott's Boot Helps Cubs.

Chicago's third and last tally was promoted in the fifth with the help of some gymnastics by Bill Marriott. Heathcote started the inning with one of his bunts and Stephenson forced him. Marriott then booted Kelly's grounder all over the premises and a single by Grimm filled the sacks. Freigau's long fly let Stephenson tally.

The Robins made only three hits all day and two of these were linked with a pass in the sixth to register their only tally.

Missions Suspend Cole for Indifferent Playing

San Francisco, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Bert Cole, star pitcher of the Mission baseball club and Pacific Coast league leader, was suspended for the rest of the season yesterday, William M. McCarthy, club president, announced last night. William Leard, club manager, charged Cole with indifferent playing.

CARDS TO BUY DANVILLE CLUB FOR TEAM FARM

Danville, Ill., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Danville's franchise in the Three Eye league will be taken over by the St. Louis Cardinals, if the stockholders here, members of a fans' association owning and controlling the local club, accept a proposition that has been put to them.

Tht St. Louis club management, through Vice President Branch Rickey and Scout Charlie Barrett, has made an offer for the club that will assure the local stockholders receiving par value for the shares they bought in the association when it was formed four years ago.

The St. Louis club would keep the franchise here and use the club as a farm.

Jack Nurses His Bruises in Seclusion

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, deposed heavyweight champion, with his wife Estelle Taylor of movie fame, and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Fitzsimmons, arrived here yesterday. They came as unostentatiously as possible and had given orders at the Ambassador hotel that their identity be kept secret.

They were recognized, however, and crowds have besieged the hotel. The hotel management is keeping all strangers away from the floor on which the former champion's suite is situated.

Fitzsimmons, in a formal statement, declared that "Jack was in no mental condition to go into the fight Thursday night. He had been worrying about the injunctions hanging over him and did not know, until he entered the arena, whether the law would finally halt the battle.

"Of course, Jack is willing to fight Tunney again. He is not in care of a physician, he is resting and his nose is not broken."

the New FRANKLIN

WHAT the physician has to say about motor cars may well command attention. No other owner knows more about cars—no other needs to know more. To him the choice of the best car he can afford is all-important.

And what the doctor has to say about motor cars is best expressed in the ones he chooses. Recent investigations indicate that more doctors throughout the United States own Franklins than own any other make of Franklin price or higher.

Most noteworthy of all is the rate at which this high tide of favor is advancing. Nearly 10% of all New Franklins sold to date this year have gone to doctors! Couple this with the fact that Franklin's 1926 sales are running well ahead of 1925, and the story it tells is an important one.

Air-Cooling is Only ONE Advantage

Why do doctors prefer Franklins? Simply this: they have found the superiorities which you yourself are seeking every time you buy a different make of car.

Leave the New Franklin anywhere, in any weather—it can't freeze! Jump in it any time, even at zero—it starts readily! Drive it up any grade, through any mud or sand—it can't overheat! It's air-cooled.

This freedom from common troubles, which may be a life-and-death matter to doctors, is a tremendous convenience to anyone. Aviation has adopted air-cooling—you deserve to have it in your car.

Yet air-cooling is only one superiority of the New Franklin. Accompanying this greater dependability are other advantages just as vital.

Saving Your Strength and Energy

Comfort!—no other car gives what the New Franklin gives. No other has such great spring length (296 inches)—such perfect springs (full-elliptic)—such super-flexibility throughout every element in the car (not only tires, springs and cushions, but chassis frame and body mounting, as well).

Ease and safety of control!—no other car makes driving such a pleasure. No other is so free from useless weight, or comes within 25% of having so small a proportion of its weight below the springs—no other combines the non-skid transmission brake with such a low-slung body.

Speed over the road!—the superiority of Franklin principles are summed up here. Franklin holds road records in all sections of the country. It goes faster more of the time—that's why.

Power on the hills!—up in high without any sense of effort—without any fear of overheating. Since 1920, the industry's period of greatest power development, Franklin power has been raised 50%—the biggest increase of any American car.

Maximum economy!—Franklin has no rival here among fine cars, and few among cars of any grade. Long life, ability to keep out of the repair-shop, and 18 to 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline, in fact, create what may be termed the lowest cost per life-mile of any car in the world.

Learn What Doctors Have Found Out

Owning a New Franklin is a complete and ever-growing satisfaction. It will pay you to learn by trial what doctors know by experience. Even a short ride will more than bear out the impression its fine lines and evident quality make. When can we give you this ride?

Ask us at the same time about the 25th Anniversary Easy Payment Plan. It brings this marvelous car within reach of many new thousands.

IRON MASK WINS BY 7 LENGTHS AT HAWTHORNE

French Horse Drives to Victory in Stretch.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Iron Mask II., giant French bred horse from the Pacific coast, added the Edgewater Beach hotel stakes to his string of victories at Hawthorne yesterday, finishing seven lengths in front of Jack Alexander. Arabian was third. More than 12,000 racegoers, the largest crowd of the Hawthorne fall season, backed Iron Mask II. with complete confidence, made him an odds on choice at post time and cheered his victory, which was scored in a canter.

Jockey Frank Baker rode Iron Mask II. and let the long striding Macomber color bearer run a different race than most of his efforts here. He let Jack Alexander and Seth's Alibi cut out the early pace. Iron Mask II. was running third. The others were far back.

Passes Others on Stretch.

On the turn in the stretch Baker gave Iron Mask II. his head. That was all he needed, for the big French horse sailed past Jack Alexander and Seth's Alibi as if they were standing still. Seth's Alibi was so thoroughly whipped he succumbed to the late rush of Arabian and lost the slim end of the purse.

By one of the queer freaks of this form of speculation Iron Mask II. paid his backers more to place than he did to win. He was 80 cents to a dollar to win and even money for the place, which was one of the surest wagers ever won on any race track.

It was the fourth straight stake triumph for Iron Mask II. at Hawthorne and just to add a bit more California color to the day's happenings, Jockey Bobby Jones from San Diego again played the hero among the jockeys. He won three races for the third time this week and is so far ahead of the other riders here it is hardly a contest. The youngster rides like the most polished veteran, brings his hands, his legs, and his heels into play in every race and is one of the most brilliant youths to ply his trade around Chicago in years.

Jones Wins on Blue Fish.

It was his alert jockeyship which accounted for the Rose Tree purse, which served as the secondary feature. He got Blue Fish up in time, after being cut off on the turn into the stretch and forced to pull up, to beat Magic Wand by a length. Chink, the favorite, got up in time to take third money.

Blue Fish was running for the first time in the silks of J. C. McGill of Denver and turned in a sparkling effort, for Columbia and Anne Marrone II. made a dizzy early pace. They raced themselves out, fighting for the early lead, and once Blue Fish got in full stride it was easy for Jones to rush her to the front, never to be headed.

Jones' third winner turned up in the six furlong sixth race when he shot the old time Chicago favorite, The Runt, out in front as the barrier lifted and never relinquished the front position.

Senn High Beats Loyola, 10-0; Lindblom Nips Kalamazoo

Senn High school won a victory it has been seeking for thirteen years when it defeated Loyola academy yesterday, 10 to 0, in the annual football game between the two north side rivals. The game was played at the Loyola campus before an overflow crowd of 9,000.

The annual contest between the elevens has become a tradition on the north side and, with the exception of ties, Senn had never been able to overcome its rival. But yesterday, with a team more experienced and a bit heavier than its opponents, Senn gained a decisive victory.

Gentry, elusive quarterback, scored all of Senn's points. In the third period he plunged across Loyola's goal line after a thirty-five yard pass, Carlson of Rice, had put the oval on the five yard line.

Gentry added the seventh on the try for the point after touchdown. In the final period Gentry booted a 25 yard place kick, adding the points that made the victory certain.

Sharing the leading rôle with Gentry were Thornton, full back, and Herwit, a tower of strength at right tackle. Durkin, Moran, Weimer, O'Hanley, and Agnew played a stellar game for the losers, but their plucky fight was unavailing.

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Elgin and Carl Schurz both generously endowed with beef, but having little in the way of speed, battled to a 0 to 0 tie in a slow and uninteresting opening game here today. The game was a punting duel.

McAuliffe brought her home half a length in front of William Ziegler Jr.'s Bois de Rose after a splendid stretch struggle. The filly carried 108 pounds over a muddy track in 1:42 1-5.

In the Aqueduct handicap at a mile and a furlong, however, it was a one horse race, W. R. Coe's flying filly Black Maria giving a scintillating performance, making a show of her field and winning by four lengths in the splendid time of 1:51 2-5, the mile in 1:37 1-5. Only her stable companion, Pompey, was ever near her and never at any moment in the long journey looked like a winner. Black Maria carried 112 pounds, and her victory was worth $5,950 to her owner. MAROON LINE WEAK, STAGG MAY RELY ON PASSES

Midway Eleven Hit Hard by Graduation.

Improving his green squad slowly but surely, with light workouts for the backs and, only a few scrimmages since the opening of the practice season, Coach A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago is days behind his usual practice schedule, although he is looking forward to a hard fight with the University of Florida eleven less than a week away. His squad is in fine physical condition and the coach plans to drive his men hard this week to make up for lost time.

Stagg has several big problems to face in turning out a finished eleven this fall.

His line, which was almost swept away by graduation, has prospects of being strong on defense, but weak on offense, which, coupled with the fact that Stagg has also lost all of his battering ram full backs, does not speak well for the force of the Maroon attack. The line has plenty of weight but lacks speed.

As a substitute for his line plunging, Stagg seems to be turning to the forward pass, since he has been spending at least a third of his practice time developing his team's efficiency in it.

PURPLE BATTERS FROSH

The Northwestern university football squad spent two solid hours battering the dutiful freshmen yesterday. Throughout it all the Purple looked like a well groomed machine, capable of living up to all that is expected of it, while several of the individuals provided thrills for the 2,000 spectators.

Every one of a hundred yearlings was given an opportunity to stop the varsity, but with only three days of team practice they had little coördination, with the result that the Purple moved through them at will, scoring touchdown after touchdown.

Vic Gustafson, at right half back, was on the receiving end of several long passes for the varsity, while Capt. Moon Baker electrified the crowd by counting on a perfectly executed forty-five yard drop kick.

ROCKNES LOOK WEAK

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The 1926 edition of Rockne's Ramblers went through their first dress parade on Cartier field today in the annual freshman-varsity game here this afternoon. The varsity forward wall was lamentably weak, both defensively and offensively.

The freshmen uncorked a clever forward pass attack that completely crossed up the regulars. Dahman's 60 yard run through a broken field was the high point of the matinee. Neimiec looked good and O'Boyle showed improvement at full. Maxwell at end looked good and will have to be reckoned with this fall Voedisch and Hurlbert at ends, Hogan at full and McNally at quarter came to the fore with exceptional work

YOST NEEDS TACKLES

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—With a week and a half practice finished, Michigan's prospects for a championship football team are only fair. Although Coach Yost has fifteen letter men back, there are weak points in the Wolverine lineup that will be almost impossible to strengthen to the point of last year's power.

The tackles are two of the weakest spots. Edwards and Hawkins were tackles whom it will be impossible to replace with inexperienced men. Among the best of the tackle candidates are Gabel, Oade, and Nickerson, but whoever get the call will be inexperienced.

At the ends Michigan is well fortified, with Flora and Oosterbaan back. Besides these two, there are a number of good substitutes.

The new back field material has not yet shown enough to oust any of the regulars from their positions. Capt Friedman has no rival for his quarter back berth and Bo Molenda seems to be a fixture at full back.

STARS COACH GOPHERS

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 25.—Every man on the University of Minnesota coaching staff has heard the football field resound with cheers for his exploits back in his undergraduate days.

In his playing days as a lineman at Dartmouth, Coach Spears won All-American honors. George "Potsy" Clark, his first assistant, scintillated at Illinois in the backfield. Sig Harris, who will direct the destinies of the scrubs, was a Minnesota quarter back.

Sherman Finger, track coach and head coach of the freshmen in football, stands out in the annals of western conference football as the Chicago full-back on the teams piloted to victory by Walter Eckersall. Merton Dunnigan, also a freshman coach, was a lineman on Minnesota teams of the past decade, while Vernon Williams, assistant dean of men, who will help with the freshman coaching, was center and captain at Minnesota just after the world war.

ILLINI TRIM FRESHMEN

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The University of Illinois football team defeated the freshmen by a score of 19 to 0 today. Three touchdowns were scored by Edgar Nichols, former Lane Tech, Chicago, player, an unknown discovered by Coach Bob Zuppke in his search for new half backs. The longest runs of the day were made by French and Murchison, who were inserted in the second half. Daugherty was the only one of the regular backs to play. The freshmen offense was ragged and they gained little.

HUSKERS BEAT FROSH

Lincoln, Neb., Sept 25.—(AP)—The University of Nebraska football team scored two touchdowns against the freshmen squad in the first game of the season here this afternoon. The first team, however, looked ragged, mentors said, and was substituted in the second half by the second team candidates, who played a commendable game against the first year men.

THE SPORTING GOODS
BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

BROADWAY COX PASSES A FEW REMARKS.

Broadway John Cox, the halter man, spent some years prowling along the R. F. D. routes, lassoing and haltering corn fed citizens of quarrelsome tendencies for exhibition in the ring; but of late he has noticed a brisk trade in amateur athletics, and he states that he intends to organize a stable of amateurs.

"Wherever I go," Mr. Cox asserts, "I see the amateurs doing a big business, and I ask myself why I should go nickeling along all the time, riding the day coaches, and eating out of paper bags, handcuffed to some chump of a fighter who is probably ignorant and unrefined, and doubtless a bum as a fighter, too.

I don't know whether all the good amateurs already have managers or not, but I shall make inquiries, and if they have I will arrange to trade fighters for tennis players and golfers and foot runners. I would be willing to trade a dozen head of assorted prize fighters for a strictly first class tennis player, and I would hurl in a couple of extra welterweights for a first class tennis player with some numbers after his name, such as Windsor T. Tewksberry, the Second, because I think it gives a fellow a touch of class to be called somebody T something, the second.

"I am not very well up on these white pants games like tennis, or these bloomer pants games, like golf," Mr. Cox said, "but I soon could pick up enough knowledge to protect our interests at the gate, which is the manager's place, after all.

"I was talking to a fellow the other day, and he tells me the game is not only very refined, but very simple, too. I understand that all guys are called mister, and when it is your first sock at the ball they don't call it your sock, but your serve. In this game you take your first sock and somebody T something the second socks it back, and it goes along that way—sock, sock, sock, sock— until somebody socks it out of the joint.

"At this point," Mr. Cox said, "the referee yells 'Fifteen love!' and, of course, a lot of my low acquaintances in the fight business would probably yell back, 'Yoo-hoo! Give us a great big kiss!' But if you are smart you keep your face shut, because you only make a mug of yourself if you go yelling 'Yoo-hoo! Give us a great big kiss!'

"Of course," Broadway Cox continued, "I am interested mainly in the way these tennis clubs twist the boys around at the gate because they only give them expenses, as they are called, and never pay off according to the turnstile tally. These expenses are pretty good, I am informed, and sometimes when a fellow is playing in Florida you would think from his expense account that he rode down from New York in a taxicab. But I think it is wrong to give the amateurs only their expenses, because Georges Carpentier once got his expenses and a purse of $5,000 for attending a banquet in New York, but he is still an amateur eater.

"Of course, we would have to use discretion with the bloomer boys in golf, because they tell me they play this game right out in a field where people can crash right in. I understand this makes it necessary for a number of the boys to sell bonds or life insurance or subscriptions to magazines in order to get any dough out of the game at all, and I would attend to that in a businesslike way. It seems to me that if I had a bloomer boy who was a good card I would make them buy a certain amount of bonds or insurance or magazines before I let my boy hit a single ball. Or the club could arrange to pay off by sending out some stiff of a bloomer boy who couldn't hit a mushmelon with a bed slat to play against my boy at a thousand dollars a hole, just as a refined side bet.

"I am told," Mr. Cox said, "that this has been tried successfully in a small way, and that a guy can do it and still be an amateur.

"There is no question," Mr. Cox said, "that refinement is the coming thing in the sport business, and I personally am all for it, because a refined guy is usually a sucker for a smart fellow who has been around to any extent."

Pro Grid Notes

Walter Ellis, all-American tackle from Detroit university, who played last season with the Columbus Tigers, has joined the Chicago Cardinals. The south side team now has three all-American tackles. Gillies, Cornell, and Weller, Nebraska, are the others. Bloomer, Missouri, tackle, made the mythical all-Missouri Valley team.

Paddy Driscoll has won many games with his toe. He accounted for the winning margin for the Bears in last Sunday's game at Milwaukee, booting the ball over the uprights in the first quarter. Last year Paddy made four drop kicks from the fifty yard line.

John Levi, All-American Indian full back from Haskell, is in Chicago and plans to work out with the Cardinals.

Buck Evans, Harvard tackle in 1923 and Cardinal performer last year, was traded to Columbus in the Ellis deal. He has secured his release from that club and probably will be seen in the Bear lineup.

The Chicago Bulls of the American Pro league will play their initial encounter at Newark today. Larson, Notre Dame center, and Eddie Anderson seem to be Joie Sternaman's best in the line, while Joe expects to do the heavy work for the back field.

Although Grange's band of star collegiate performers ran roughshod over the Fox Valley unknowns, they were held for downs three times within the ten yard line. Coach Ralph Scott, old Bear player, probably will discover that his team lacks pro experience. Only one player of the starting lineup last Sunday, besides the Red Head, had any professional experience. That was Goebel of Michigan, who played with Columbus and made the tour last winter with the Bears.

McElwain, Northwestern captain in 1923, has returned to the Cardinals after a season's layoff because of a broken collar bone. His hair retains the reddish tinge which it acquired, so it is said, when dye was applied last winter on the California coast. It is rumored that McElwain masqueraded as Grange in one of the Bear games when the star was ill, and, furthermore, he dashed forty yards for a touchdown, besides counting two others in true Grange fashion.

When Brick Muller, All-American end from California, dips into his bag of trick plays and pulls forth several fifty yard forward passes, the Cardinal back field will have to do more than run in circles if they expect to win the grid contest today at Normal Park with the Los Angeles Nationals.

Muller, member of the unbeaten California team which swamped Ohio State, 28-0, in 1921, will lead his cohorts into Chicago in a determined effort to repeat this spectacular performance.

While the invading eleven is placing faith in the art of turning long passes into touchdowns, the Cardinal team also has something of a reputation at the aerial game. Dunn probably has no peer in the midwest in casting the pigskin, and the Dunn to Erickson combination is about the best in the middle west.

Three All-American tackles are listed on the Cardinal roster, Gillies, Weller, and Ellis, with Bloomer, All-Missouri, another capable man, at present drafted to serve at one of the flank positions.

Cards Display Power.

Although the south side team trounced the Tigers from the Buckeye state last Sunday, there was a flash of offensive tsrength in the first quarter which is reminiscent of the power which carried the team through a long string if victories last season.

With an added week of practice, the Notre Dame style of attack, which the Cards have adopted, should be running more smoothly If so, Capt. Brick Muller may have a busy afternoon at his end of the scrimmage line.

The contest is scheduled for 2:30 o'clock. Lineup:

BEARS PLAY PACKERS

The Chicago Bears battle the Green Bay Packers today on the Wisconsin gridiron, and, unless they can show better football than they did last week against Milwaukee, may be sent home with a package of grief.

The Packers also have one victory in the National league, trouncing Detroit 21-0 in such a decisive fashion as to cause the fans to forget that Cub Buck, Wisconsin tackle and former mainspring of the team, has left the club.

BULLS FACE NEWARK

The Chicago Bulls take the plunge this afternoon into the American league pro pool from which they hope to emerge several weeks hence with the title. Joie Sternaman led his team to Newark last Friday, where they will clash today with the New Jersey club.

While little is known of the personnel of the Newark team, Sternaman is in something of a quandry himself concerning the abilities of his own aggregation. Joe has wisely mixed his college stars with a number of old pro gridders in the belief that such a combination will win ball games.

Ohio State Is Held to Scoreless Tie by Subs

Columbus, O., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Steady downpour of rain failed to stop a practice game today between two Ohio State elevens, which ended in a scoreless tie. With Eby, last year freshman star, making consistent gains, the varsity tried desperately to score, but the second team's defense stiffened within its ten yard line. The slippery ball made impossible the completion of many of the forward passes attempted. Capt. Karow, full back, and Fenner, second team end, made remarkable showings despite the weather.

MORAN TO BOX MURPHY.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 25.—Pal Moran and Tommy Murphy have been matched to fight 15 rounds here Oct. 4 for the south's lightweight title.

IN THE WAKE OF THE NEWS

PARALLEL WITH WILLARD.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 24.—[Special.]—Jack Dempsey lost his title as world's heavyweight champion under conditions strikingly similar to those which beset Jess Willard, from whom Jack gained the honors, at Toledo, seven years ago.

Willard had softened from lack of activity in the ring. So had Jack. Jess thought he was as good as ever—he even had his wife at the ringside to see his anticipated triumph—but he was sadly lacking in his timing and his judgment of distance, while the power behind his punches was gone. Dempsey likewise was confident, felt he was as good as ever, and found the contrary in the first round, but his wife was spared witnessing his defeat.

Willard thought himself capable of managing his own business and directing his own plan of campaign. Dempsey had no manager after his break with Jack Kearns and only at the last minute called in Philadelphia Jack O'Brien as an experienced glove man to act as chief second.

But there was one striking difference. Willard made a sorry showing, both physically and in spirit. Dempsey made a sorry showing from a pugilistic viewpoint, but his spirit and gameness will live long in fistic annals. That difference is because Jack is a natural fighter and Jess was not.

Willard suffered a knockout from a young giant of attack and power. Dempsey stayed the limit against a young giant whose strategy called for counter attack rather than direct attack. Dempsey also was more able to withstand punishment than was Jess.

The lesson in each case is just as plain as it has been from the beginning of boxing. No champion, enjoying soft living and luxuries once strangers, can retain his power and vigor despite added years with lapses of several years between ring engagements.

When they're high and wide and handsome a-bounding off the tee,
And the ball goes sailing through the blue,
It holds a thrill for me.

But of all the shots in golfland
That I have ever seen,
I'd rather take my mashie club
And lay 'em on the green!

I've seen them drive their brassie shots
About a mile or more,
And sometimes make the hole in one
That they were aiming for.

But I get a thump right in my chest
And a swelling in my bean
When I take my little mashie stick
And lay 'em on the green.

Dempsey's Comeback.

Already there is talk of a return engagement between Tunney and Dempsey with an offer of $750,000 for such an encounter. Dempsey, not as good as he once was, still is a good fighter. He probably would do better in another battle. Tunney, on the other hand, with his increased confidence, also would be better. No American heavyweight champion ever has regained his honors.

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT, BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

BIG TEN ELEVENS TO PLAY FIRST GAMES SATURDAY

Michigan Has Eye on National Title.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

After two weeks of intensive training, every football team of importance will get into action next Saturday. A few elevens played their first contests yesterday.

Members of the Western conference officially will open their season but none of the elevens will meet each other. In most cases the coaches look upon the games as practice affairs which will fit their teams for the later and important clashes with members of the organization. The squads have been hard at work since Sept. 15 and most of them are expected to play good football on the week end.

Michigan, the 1925 champion and recognized as one of the best teams in the country, will open against Oklahoma A. and M. at Ann Arbor. The Wolverines are shaping up as one of the most powerful in the middle west and if they complete the schedule undefeated should be entitled to national championship consideration.

Chicago Faces Task.

Chicago will play an intersectional game with Florida as an opponent. The game is scheduled for Stagg field. The Maroons will have a task on their hands to come out on the long end of the score. Coach Stagg has few veterans back and must develop a team from mediocre material.

Purdue will journey to Annapolis to meet the Navy in another game of intersectional importance. This clash will be watched with interest not alone from a Purdue standpoint but also because the Navy will come into the west to meet the Army in Chicago on Nov. 27.

Wisconsin, which should be a contender for Big Ten honors, will meet Cornell college of Iowa at Madison. Coach George Little has some players of known ability, and if they can be supported by others of promise the Cardinal should make a strong bid for the title.

Illinois Meets Coe.

Illinois, which should be represented by a better team than the one of last year despite the loss of Grange, will play its first game against Coe college, coached by Moray Eby, a resourceful football teacher. Illinois should have one of the best balanced elevens in the Big Ten.

Northwestern, with many veterans for a nucleus, will get under way against South Dakota at Evanston. Purple prospects are brighter than in any year since the war and indications are Northwestern will be hard to beat.

Minnesota, another promising aspirant for the conference championship, will play North Dakota at Minneapolis.

Ohio State, which has an important early season intersectional game with Columbia in New York City on Oct. 16, will engage Wittenberg at Columbus in its opener. Prospects are good at Columbus and Coach Wilce can be depended upon to make the most of the men at his disposal.

Colorado Teachers' at Iowa.

Iowa, again coached by Burt Ingwersen, will open with Colorado State Teachers' at Iowa City. The outlook at Iowa City is not any too bright.

De Pauw will be Indiana's opponent at Bloomington and a lot of interest will center around this struggle because the Hoosiers will be coached for the first time by H. O. "Pat" Page.

Notre Dame will meet Beloit on Cartier field and an idea of the strength of Rockne's eleven will be known by nightfall.

Every team in the Missouri Valley conference will play opponents expected to test their offensive and defensive power. The same is true of the teams in the Pacific Coast conference and those in the south.

Along the Atlantic seaboard, Yale, Harvard, Princeton and all other elevens of note are scheduled. From now until the curtain drops on the season with the playing of the Army-Navy game in Chicago, football will occupy the sporting spotlight.

COACH SPEARS TO GET BACK ON JOB AT MINNESOTA U.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Dr. Clarence W. Spears, football coach at the University of Minnesota, who has been in bed for several days suffering from gall stones, will return to his squad Monday, his physician said today. Dieting and quiet rest have so improved his condition, physicians said, that he will be permitted to continue his coaching. An operation, at first believed necessary, will be postponed until the close of the football season.

Depauw Crushes Danville in Grid Opener, 28 to 7

Greencastle, Ind., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—In its first game of the season, Depauw trounced Danville Normal, 28 to 7, on Blackstock field this afternoon. Ridge and Scott were the main cogs in the Old Gold scoring machine. Shelton, left end, made the visitors' touchdown on a forward pass in the second quarter. The first half ended 14 to 7. The Tigers scored in every period.

Purdue Off Thursday for Navy Battle

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 25.—Three hard practice sessions this week will determine the makeup of the squad of 35 Purdue football players who leave next Thursday afternoon for Annapolis, where on Saturday Purdue will open its 1926 season with the Navy eleven. The pre-season drills of the Boilermakers have been the most strenuous ever directed by Coach James Phelan.

Wilcox at Fullback.

Chester Wilcox is the only sure starter in the Purdue back field. Tony Leichtle has been going good at half back, but Kick Ramby and George Houston have also been displaying prowess. Luke Gladders seems to have the best chance for full back, with Mackey, a sophomore, and Abraham Koransky, regular last year, in reserve.

The quarter back proposition is somewhat of a tossup between Paul Smiley, Roger Speidel, Albert Guigliano, and Ed Plock.

Center Is Needed.

Capt. Tom Hogan will handle one of the end positions, but practice this week and the results of some examinations will determine who will appear in the other line jobs. Phelan hasn't an available center who is in the good graces of the university scholastically, but Albert Rabe, Harvey Olson, and Burt Dreyer are hopeful of making their grades before Thursday.

The Navy game will be Purdue's first big intersectional contest.

BESSEMER PARK WINS HORSESHOE PITCHING TITLE

JUNIOR—E. Scholl, Gallistel; J. Sisulka, Douglas park; H. Eberle, Gallistel, and E. McCabe, Fuller. INTERMEDIATE—F. Cook, Budlong; J. Freeman, Ryerson; E. Harr, Bessemer, and M. Lipinski, Wrightwood. SENIOR—H. Neis, Bessemer; W. Bach, Mozart; R. Morgan, Bessemer, and T. Hoffman, Hamilton.

MONROE, 13; DARLINGTON, 0.

Monroe, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Monroe high school defeated Darlington high, 13 to 0, in the opening football game here today.

"HAIR-GROOM"
Keeps Hair Combed, Glossy Well-Groomed all Day

"Hair-Groom" is a dignified combing cream which costs only few cents a jar at any drugstore. Millions use it because it gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to the hair—that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions. Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is greaseless; also helps grow thick, heavy, lustrous hair.

MRS. ELROD COMES TO DEFENSE OF STATE RING CODE

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

State Representative Rena Elrod, the little lady legislator from the northwest side, stepped up yesterday in defense of the Illinois boxing law which the reformers are hammering, while most of the mere male members of the assembly who passed the commission bill are standing by in apparent utter helplessness.

Furthermore Mrs. Elrod, who not only voted for the boxing bill but made a speech for it, says she has a strong notion that Illinois should have a real, comprehensive law for the control of horse racing which a sizeable portion of the population, at least, seems to like.

She has been renominated and it seems to be in the political cards that she will have a seat in the next Illinois house of representatives, as a Republican nomination is practically equivalent to election in her district this year. Should the right sort of racing bill be presented in the next session she probably will be found among its supporters.

"Why, the Rosenberg-Taylor case itself alone justifies the boxing law," Mrs. Elrod said. "If we had no commission the plans of crooked gamblers probably would not be exposed. We would be having crooked fixed bouts and that part of the public which patronizes boxing matches would have no protection whatever.

"If the crooks were exposed at all it would be after the match was over. It is senseless to say we would have no boxing if we had no law. Everybody knows we had ring fights before we had a commission to regulate the sport. This happened to be a championship match which only emphasizes the importance of regulating the sport.

"I think the honest sporting population of Chicago owes a real debt of gratitude to the commission. I think the commission has shown that it can be trusted and it would be a calamity if Chairman Huncke should resign."

The 1926 racing season in Chicago has convinced everybody with an open mind that touts and gamblers are not the only strata of society that likes horse racing, Mrs. Elrod said. She said that she is giving careful study to the systems of regulating racing in other states and believes that a system of wagering satisfactory to a vast majority of people could be worked out for Illinois.

"Of course, there are people who will oppose almost anything and find reasons for doing so," she said. "Some object to racing because they say it is cruel. Well, those people don't know horses."

THE INQUIRING REPORTER.

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question K. Seibel, 841 North Sacramento boulevard, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Do you think Gene Tunney will measure up to the heavyweight champions of the past?

Where Asked.

Monroe and Dearborn.

The Answers.

Betty Vaughn, 2208 North Clark street, model—I think Jack undoubtedly would win in a return bout. Tunney doesn't compare with the champions of the past. I wish him lots of luck, but I don't think he'll hold the title long. I can't believe he is as great a fighter as his victory over Dempsey seems to indicate.

Harold Greenberg, 1441 South Sawyer avenue, inspector—Tunney certainly will measure up to recent heavyweight champions in ability and I don't think there ever has been a more popular titleholder. He has the physique, the fighting heart, and all the other requirements of a world champion. I'm for him.

Marie Douglas, 2208 North Clark street, model—I regret that Dempsey lost the title, but the better man always wins, so I'm for Gene and the marines. Jack still would be the champion if he had done more fighting and less movie acting the last few years. Tunney seems to have everything necessary for ring success and I doubt if he'll be dethroned for several years.

Sam Kerstein, 3621 Ogden avenue, salesman—I didn't like to see Dempsey drop his title without showing the old fight that made him the most feared man in boxing. To the victor goes the spoils and I wish Gene luck. I don't think he'll hold the championship as long as Dempsey did. I can't see that he measures up to any of the former heavyweight monarchs.

Ralph De Butch, 167 East Ohio street, newsboy—Tunney showed he could fight and I'm glad he won. I'm for him as long as he's a fighter. He'll be as good as any of his predecessors. Any fellow who could wallop Dempsey the way Gene did is a champion, make no mistake about that.

Wisconsin to Open Season with Cornell

Madison, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—A 35 yard place kick by Kreuz, veteran full back, gave the "Navy" a 3 to 0 victory over the "Army" in a Wisconsin practice game at Camp Randall field this afternoon. Few long gains were made by either team, the line hammering of Kreuz, Bartlett's defensive play for the "Army" at half back, and the work of Carney, "Army" guard, and Burrus, "Navy" end, were outstanding. Line play was ragged, with frequent offside penalties.

A desire to see how Coach George Little's stable of sophomore back field colts will stand up under the rigors of an actual intercollegiate contest is creating a keener interest in the initial game of the season Saturday between Wisconsin and Cornell college than has been evidenced over an opening tilt here in many seasons.

Early scrimmages have been replete with the deeds of the youngsters in almost all departments of the game.

Badger coaches are quick to refute the claim that the eleven will be all powerful this fall, but the fact still remains that there is an abundance of good material exercising daily at Camp Randall, both in the line and the back field. Wisconsin this fall will have one thing in which it has been lacking for years—adequate reserve material.

Head Line Coach Tom Lieb has been drilling the linemen in strenuous tackling work for the last week. Dummies have been pummeled for long periods each day.

Little's choice to start against Cornell is problematical at this date. A combination of veterans is likely to have Burrus and Cameron at ends; Leitl and Straubel at tackles; Von Bremer and Kasiska at guards; Wilke at center; Capt. Doyle Harmon at quarter back; Barnum and McGiveran at halves, and Kreuz at full back. All are letter men.

Every crowded parking space demonstrates the joy of its handling facility, its short turning radius, the ease with which it parks.

Woman Driver Amazes . . . Seattle Crowd . . .

"Mrs. F. E. Griff, driving an Oldsmobile DeLuxe Coach, surely 'showed 'em' what a skillful woman of 14 years of experience, and a good judge of distance can do with a car that can spurt, brake quickly, steer easily and turn 'on the edge of a dime.' In one of three obstacle races . . . the one in which cars of 110 to 125-inch wheelbase contested in Seattle, the length of a long block, Mrs. Griff amazed the crowd during the one minute and 36 seconds in which she won. Boxes, barrels, packing cases, etc., were placed so as to leave a winding trail, barely wide enough to pass through.

"Afterward two men tried to beat what Mrs. Griff and her Oldsmobile had done. Both came to grief."

CALLAHAN BOXES WALKER AT CUBS' PARK THURSDAY

Fans See Knockout in Bout Between Sluggers.

MICKEY WALKER

Mickey Walker, former world's welterweight champion, and Shuffle Callahan of Chicago Heights, fighters with a punch, will meet in the windup of the boxing show at the Cubs' park Thursday night.

The former 147 pound champion arrived in Chicago yesterday and started training at Mullen's. Mickey has been in the woods of Pennsylvania since he lost his title to Pete Latzo and now claims he has regained the old time form which made him champion. He appears in excellent condition and Trainer Teddy Hayes asserted he will have Mickey in the pink when he entrs the ring.

Fans Expect Knockout.

Callahan has been training at Mullen's for the last two weeks following his stay in the woods of Minnesota. Shuffle has been sending his sparring mates to the canvas with regularity in his daily workouts and claims he will stop Walker.

The bout is creating a lot of interest and the close followers of the sport claim it will not last ten rounds. Walker is a slight favorite.

Four Prelim Bouts.

The main event will be supported by four other bouts. Del Fontaine, the Canadian middleweight, will meet Joe Anderson of Cincinnati in the ten round semi-windup, and Wolcott Langford will clash with Allentown Joe Gans in another ten rounder. Morrie Magida and Dick Watzl will open the show in a four round contest, to be followed by a six round bout between Haaken Hanson and Harry Ebbets.

SPARTA SOCCER TEAM TO MEET BRICKIES TODAY

Sparta, the local soccer champions, will meet the Bricklayers in a Midwest league match at De Paul field today, while in the other half of the schedule the Thistles will meet the Canadian club at 27th street and Kostner avenue.

The Brickies have a remarkably strong team this season, this fact being borne out in the selection of eight of their players to play against the Sparta team of Prague. The Walker brothers, Willie MacLean, Clem Cuthbert, Anderson, and Coutts will create trouble for almost any defense.

The North Shores, who battled Sparta for the major league title last season, will furnish the opposition for the Olympias at 47th avenue and 19th street. Joe Beck has signed MacGregor of the Canadians to play for the Olympias, who defeated Pullman last Sunday. Howitt, the new west side goalkeeper, and Davie Baird have shown up splendidly since joining Beck.

The British Legion plays Buda at Harvey and Pullman will go to Coal City.

Other games scheduled follow:

Sture vs. Norwegians, 4500 Fullerton avenue; Swedes vs. Jugoslavs, at Winnemac and Robey; Vienna vs. Public Service, at Winnemac and Robey; Ravenswood vs. Sparta II., at California and Addison avenues; Waverly vs. Ulster United, at 62d and Robey streets; Danish vs. Norwegians II., at Hirsch boulevard and Le Claire avenue; Sparta III. vs Lynnea, at 27th street and Kostner [1:30 p. m.]; Roosevelt vs. Swedes II., at 18th street and Keeler avenue; Chicago Sport vs. Workers, at Elston and Kedzie avenues; Greek Olympics vs. Vikings, at 4500 Fullerton avenue [1 p. m.]; Ravenswood II. vs. Holstein, at California and Addison [1 p. m.]; Jugoslavs II. vs. Sture II., at 38th and Wells streets; Liberty vs. Chicago Sport II., at Winnemac and Robey [1 p. m.].

All other games start at 2:30 p. m.

EDISON DEFEATS BIFLEX, 1-0, FOR LEAGUE TITLE

The Commonwealth Edison nine won the intercity industrial league baseball championship yesterday by defeating the Biflex Manufacturing company of Waukegan, 1 to 0, in the finals of the annual tournament at the Cubs' park.

Gausselin held Biflex to five hits and fanned seven. Commonwealth Edison scored the lone run of the game when Lenihan raced home on Parks' single.

CHILL BREEZES FAIL TO KEEP CROWDS FROM LOCAL GOLF COURSES

LEE N. THILTGES won the Whiting cup for the third consecutive time in the annual tournament which ended at Calumet yesterday. He won his way to the top of class A and then led the class winners in the playoff. Thiltges had rounds of 40 each time and had a net score of 80, playing from scratch. The class B winner, B. E. Nelson, was second in the final. His card was 50—50—100—16—84. The class C winner, J. Z. Rowe, was third with 58—55—113—18—95. Harold Burnham and J. F. Gilmore tied for first in the blind bogey event, while W. B. Ross and J. D. Brandon tied for second. The semi-finals of the two man team championship event will be held today, with the winners meeting in a 36 hole final next Sunday. In the semi-finals the team of R. M. Sommers and F. Julian will meet H. Burnham and George Clarke. The other bracket includes W. L. Eulass and George Knox, who will meet W. A. Burns and Joe Smith.

RIDGEMOOR.

Harry L. Kirk won the Cherry Orchard trophy when he went around in 84—8—76. The second match of the club championship semi-finals was played and John P. Button defeated Dr. Langsdale 1 up. Button will hook up with Dr. J. C. Weisert in the thirty-six hole final next Saturday. The professional was supposed to have had his day at Ridgemoor yesterday, but that club, too, was affected by the oversupply of aqua pura and so the event was postponed one week.

MAYWOOD.

The final 36 holes of the 54 hole "Wind-up" tournament at Maywood will be played off today. Players over the first eighteen holes yesterday found going very rough because of the recent rains. Jack Casey and Gus Novotney seem to be ahead.

KNOLLWOOD.

F. G. Clements won the club championship of Knollwood when he defeated E. G. Fauntleroy, 6 and 5. The "Tail-enders" tournament found L. Y. Crump at the other end. He led with an 85—10—75. A. W. Somers was second to Crump in class A with his 84—6—78. In class B E. H. Seeman led with a 92—17—75. H. H. Saxon won in class C, his score being 119—28—91. L. Y. Crump, E. H. Seeman and A. D. Williams led the ball sweepstakes.

SUNSET RIDGE.

In the semi-finals of the first flight of the club championship, W. D. Thorsen defeated C. D. Wagstaff, 2 and 1, and H. R. Walton beat A. W. Curtiss, 5 and 4. First place in the ball sweepstakes went to Donald Green with 88—13—75. P. Egan, 108—30—78, was second; H. E. Mock, 99—19—80, third, and J. P. Gillies, 88—8—80, fourth.

TWIN ORCHARD.

The qualifying round for the first annual club championship will be played today. One hundred and seventy-five members are expected to take part in the qualifying play.

RUTH LAKE.

Two members tied for the blind bogie prize, E. C. Irish and G. Glenderleith being the lucky ones. There also were ties in the class A ball sweepstakes, H. H. Mann and R. Klein finishing in first place. A. W. Porter, 85—4—81, and G. Glenderleith, 95—14—81, were second. In class B E. C. Irish led with 94—17—77 with G. Breher, 96—17—79, second. C. J. Crook won in class C with 106—22—84.

OLYMPIA FIELDS.

Match play against par on the No. 3 course with full handicap allowed, found Arthur J. Hoss the winner, three down. Edward E. Bolte won the least number of putts contest, needing but 30. The eighteen hole medal play event on the No. 4 course gave John Hamilton the prize for low net for his 77—3—74. M. A. Cronin, 98—19—79, was the runner up.

CHICAGO GOLF.

The two day invitation tournament was concluded at Chicago Golf, and sixteen prizes were awarded last night. Albert Seckel got the 18 hole low gross prize for Friday afternoon when E. P. Waud captured low net honors. The Saturday morning winners were H. C. Gifford, low gross, 18 holes; D. M. MacMurray, second low gross, 18 holes; E. W. Ripley, low net, 18 holes, and Robert B. Whiting, second low net, 18 holes. The Saturday afternoon awards were bestowed upon Jarvis Hunt Jr., low gross, 18 holes; Tom Miller, second low gross 18 holes; Walter Schuttler, low net, 18 holes; Champ Carry, second low net, 18 holes. The championships will be decided over thirty-six holes of medal play, four men composing a team, the lowest scorer taking the individual honors. In the first annual tournament last year the Hyde Park post won the team championship and is out again to capture THE TRIBUNE trophy, permanent possession of which is given the first three time winner. Art Sweet of the La Grange post is the present individual champion.

Here is the Final Proof of Straight Eight Economy

Twenty-two Jordan Straight Eights—driven 3024 miles—in all parts of the United States—averaged 20.85 miles to the gallon

SOME people think that the Eight cylinder motor is less economical than the Six. They are wrong.

That isn't strange.

It was true before Jordan built the Straight Eight.

Eights of the heavier, bulky type were always used in bigger cars.

Jordan produced the first really economical Eight.

Here is the definite proof.

Twenty-two Jordan cars in twenty-two different cities of the United States have just run 3024 miles through all kinds of country with an average of 20.85 miles per gallon.

This test was run through traffic in New York—over the hills of Pennsylvania—through the mountains of California—over the sand roads of Florida—and under the hot sun of Texas.

No special preparations were made—no stunts were allowed.

Jordan cars were driven under ordinary driving conditions, and the consumption records throughout the country were about the same.

This test will be interesting to those who do not know about the Jordan Straight Eight motor.

Six cylinder salesmen have tried to convince people that the Eight is not economical. Their own experience is based on the motors incorporated in heavier cars.

Here are the reasons for Jordan Economy.

Light in weight. Balanced. Moves steadily forward and never sideways. Holds the road. Does not consume energy in side sway.

Waterways Open New Fields for Motor Tourists

Illinois Projects Will Widen Week-End Areas.

NEW worlds to explore and new joys for the tourist are opening ahead of the Chicago motor fan with the slow development of Illinois waterway plans and the increasing popularity of water "portages" along old familiar automobile trails.

Officials of the Goodrich Transit company report a big increase this season in the use of lake steamers for the transportation of tourist cars and week-end motorists from Chicago and Milwaukee across the lake to the old motor objectives such as Muskegon, Holland, Grand Haven, Manistee, and Petoskey, where drivers found it pleasant and convenient to begin their week-end and vacation tours in the heart of the vacation region usually reached by four to ten hours of hard driving. They see in the development of midwest waterways a vast extension in motor touring areas for the Chicago and Illinois fan who objects to night driving and long hours at the wheel in going to and from the territories he has chosen for his motor explorations.

With completion of the proposed waterway improvements it will be possible for the Chicago wanderer to put his car on a comfortable boat on Friday night and enjoy a restful water trip down the canal to Lockport, down the Des Plaines to the Illinois river, and on down the Illinois to any of the scores of scenic spots between Chicago and St. Louis which now offer ideal touring areas.

He may start, fresh and rested from the water trip, and explore the highways leading from La Salle, Chillicothe, Peoria, Beardstown or other river centers and tour in turn the historic Blackhawk country of the upper river, scenic trails of the Peoria district, the Lincoln country east of Beardstown and hills of western Illinois over Saturday and Sunday and put the car on the boat again Sunday for the return trip to Chicago.

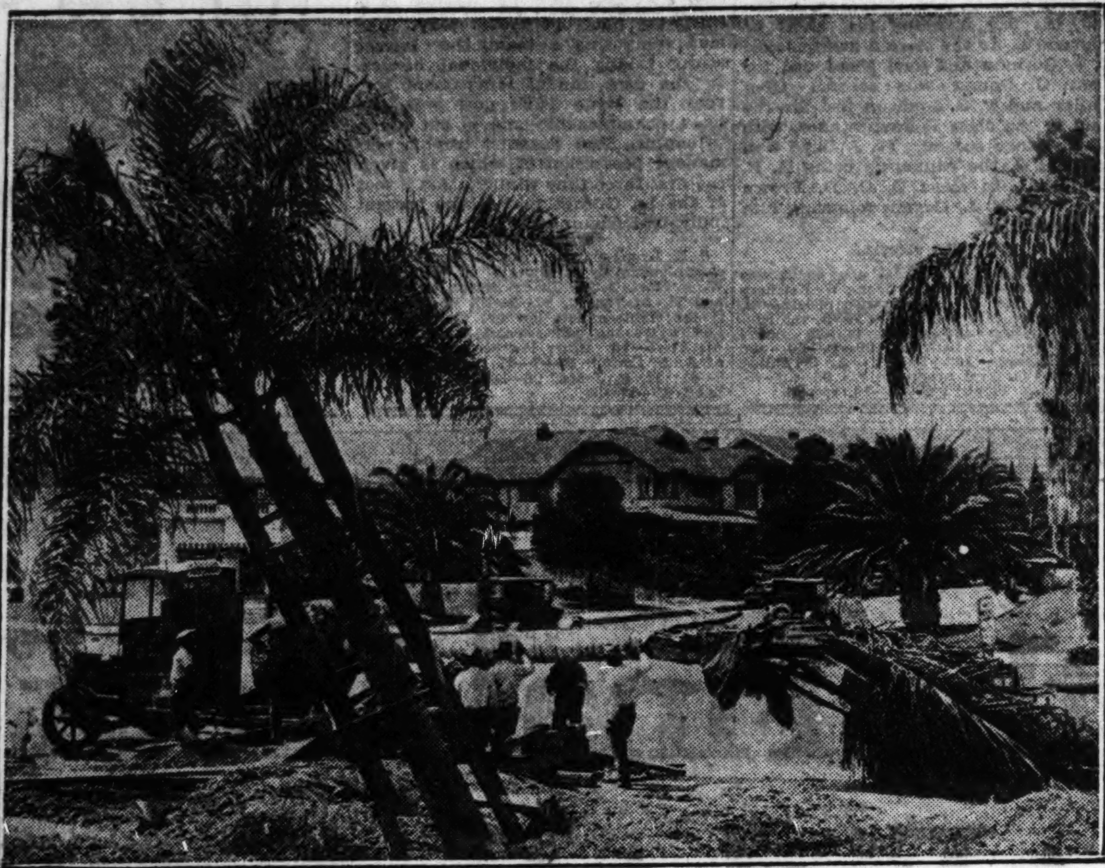
In the same way the tourist bound for Rock Island and the hundreds of beautiful but difficult spots of the middle Mississippi valley may use the waterways to the Hennepin canal and that connection to the Mississippi where the river offers delightfully lazy transportation to tourist objectives all the way to New Orleans without the wearisome job of driving through congested and familiar country on the out and incoming trips.

Water transport has reached the greatest popularity in the lake trip from Detroit to Buffalo. Hundreds of tourists each season prefer to load their cars onto lake boats in Detroit and spend the night on the water rather than working their way through congestion around the lake to Buffalo. In this instance faster time can usually be made by boat in the Detroit-Buffalo jump. Lake Michigan "carries," although still expensive for the average tourist, are drawing more motorists each summer season. The increase in this type of travel resulted this season in adoption of special rates for automobiles on many of the lakes steamers and, according to officials, will eventually bring the automobile rates within reach of all tourists.

AUTO WORKERS.

Throughout the United States there are 3,204,442 persons directly employed in the automotive industry. There are an additional 241,200 indirectly so employed.

WAY FOR WIDE PAVEMENT!



Wide highways must be built, even though their building wrecks roadside beauty, according to road experts. Here is a scene showing the tender care given a famous boulevard of palm trees in Los Angeles, where twelve miles of congested highway pavement is being widened to stop congestion.

[Underwood & Underwood Photo.]

Motor Will.

To finance the acquisition of his business by his employés, the late William Warnock, automobile dealer of Sioux City, Ia., provided in his will for a million dollar trust fund, to operate over a period of 21 years. Four of Warnock's oldest employés and business associates will act with a local bank in executing the fund. Warnock, who had no immediate family, left an estate of approximately $1,500,000.

ROAD RIGHTS.

annoys and inconveniences other folks, but is dangerous. Don't try to hog the road. Other motorists have just as much right to our streets and highways.

One Machine That Might Weather Roughest Roads

RECORDS of the number of bumps in a mile of road are now being kept by the Minnesota highway department, according to a recent bulletin. The record is made with a "roughometer," a device attached to an automobile in such a manner that when the car strikes a bump which depresses the front springs one inch one "point" is recorded on the dial on the instrument panel. Bumps may record from one-thirty-second of a point to two or three points, according to their size.

On a recent test run made by O. L. Kipp, construction engineer of the department, and F. C. Lang, engineer of tests, one piece of pavement was found on which 528 points were recorded. This, however, had been built before the state trunk highways system was established and has carried several thousand vehicles a day for several years. The minimum on pavement was 56 points in a mile, and most of the pavements built by the state showed from 80 to 150 points a mile. Some of this was on new construction, where the expansion joints had not yet been smoothed down.

The minimum on gravel was 105 points and the maximum recorded was 445, but the latter was on a road so rough that it was necessary to slow down and dodge around holes. A much higher record would have been made if the average speed of 35 miles an hour had been maintained, as was done on the pavement and the better gravel roads. On well maintained and recently leveled gravel road the "points per mile" usually ran from 150 to 200.

"The record confirms the popular impression that some of our gravel roads are 'smooth as pavement,'" Commissioner C. M. Babcock said. "The only trouble is that it is impossible to maintain that surface in all kinds of weather or under heavy traffic. We have some gravel roads that cost us more than $2,000 a mile a year for maintenance, and still their condition is far from good.

"The abundance of gravel in Minnesota, however, has made it possible to get the state out of the mud years ahead of some of our neighbor states."

News and Views of the Auto Trade

ANOTHER European pilgrimage began last week when a group of General Motors executives sailed for a thorough inspection of overseas plants and investigation into continental manufacturing methods. Alfred P. Sloan, president of the big motor organization, declared in leaving that conditions in American factories and the fall and winter outlook here have never been better.

Cannonball Baker, the perpetual road scorcher, added to his long list of transcontinental trophies last week by pulling into Los Angeles just five days, 2 hours and 13 minutes after leaving New York in a Ford roadster equipped with Boyle valves and sealed in high gear. He drove the car alone over the entire distance and claims the record for one-man driving in high gear.

H. A. Wehmeier, general manager of Community Motors, the Oakland and Pontiac dealers, issued a call yesterday for the fall and winter inspection and adjustment of Chicago cars. He pointed out that, to gain the highest degree in service, the careful motorist should have his car adjusted to changing temperatures at once.

Star car dealers staged a three day parade last week with forty cars, including all models in both the four and six types, in line.

Harry B. Harmer, recently appointed manager of the Kelly-Springfield Truck and Bus corporation's Chicago branch, has been made district manager, according to announcement made yesterday by E. T. Herbig, general sales manager of the corporation.

Chief Collins, Sheriff Hoffman, and a score of additional traffic safety exponents, have been interested investigators during the week at the series of safety demonstrations arranged by F. D. Cerf, president of the Stutz Chicago branch. Details of the Stutz "safety chassis," with its many safety innovations, have been exploited for the benefit of Chicago officials.

To further round out its line of light six cars, Moon Motors has announced a new Moon 6-60 four door sedan.

Motor Toll More in Month than Florida Disaster

WHILE regretting the Florida desolation and rejoicing over the relief measures, the National Safety council, in a statement just issued, calls attention to the fact that during the last month approximately 2,000 men, women, and children were killed in automobile accidents throughout the United States, but the American people as a whole are doing comparatively little to stop these preventable fatalities.

According to the accident prevention institution, August automobile casualties showed a marked increase over those of August a year ago and July, 1926. Last month 67 persons were killed by motor vehicles every day, estimates C. E. Robb, statistician of the council, whose figures are based on reports received from leading cities and states throughout the nation.

The number of children killed and injured by autos last month showed an increase. Fifty per cent of the pedestrian victims were under 15 years of age.

Drivers of trucks and commercial vehicles were involved in four times as many accidents during August as in previous months.

Drowning accidents decreased in August, rejoices the council.

Another gratifying decrease in home accidents is reported. The largest number of casualties in residences was caused by falls.

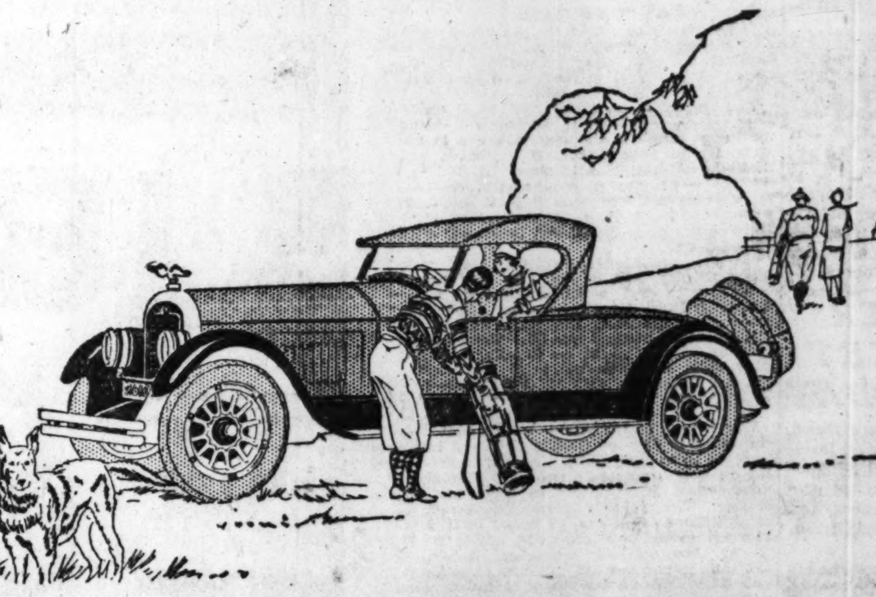
GARDNER
EIGHT-IN-LINE
GARDNER HAS BEEN BUILDING WELL FOR OVER FIFTY YEARS



Makers of FINE CARS were First to Correct this Error

that is costing car owners millions

DON'T give cold a chance at your motor. It's the cause—automotive experts agree—of 50 to 75% of all premature motor wear. And cold doesn't just mean below-zero weather. At 60 degrees Fahrenheit your motor is underheated.

Your motor—a heat machine

Creating heat energy is its only job. To do that job well—it must be kept hot.

To prevent overheating of the first motors built, engineers perfected the water-cooling system. The radiator on your car is the indicator and regulator of that system.

The radiator is a heat-waster

To do its job effectively—your radiator must waste heat—actually throw away 35 to 40% of the heat of the fuel.

Thus, during hottest months, when motor temperature runs high—this heat waster prevents overheating.

Cold weather finds it still wasting heat

There are eight months of the year when to waste heat means to wreck your motor. A cold motor—authorities agree—is the biggest cause of fouled spark plugs, high gasoline consumption, excessive crankcase dilution, poor lubrication, extreme corbonization, corrosion and rapid cylinder wear.

Pines Automatic Winterfront stops heat waste

The Pines Automatic Winterfront is a thermostat controlled shutter that fits snugly over the radiator. Every temperature change within the motor is transmitted through this control to the automatic shutters. Thus when more heat is needed—the shutters close themselves. When cool air is needed—they automatically open to the exact angle required.

With a Pines Automatic Winterfront on your car—your motor is kept always at highest operating efficiency—you experience a new degree of gasoline economy—increased warmth inside your car—summertime smoothness and flexibility in your motor.

It cuts the costly "warming-up" period to seconds, eliminating the need for excessive use of the "choke."

Wrong

Thousands believe that a motor needs protection only in freezing weather. This erroneous belief is costing car owners millions. It is the cause—authorities agree—of 50 to 75% of all premature motor wear. Correct this belief—at freezing the damage is done.

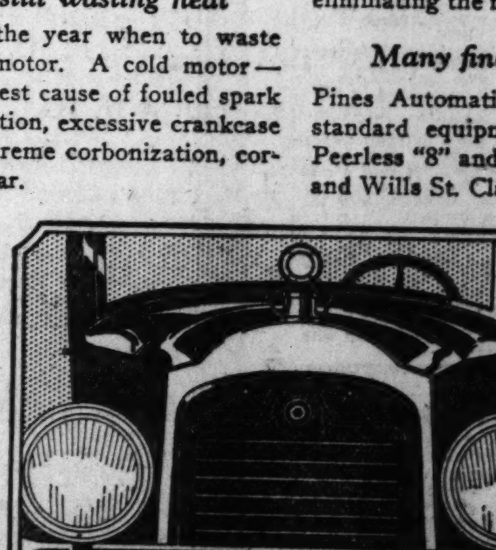
Right

Cold starts its work of destruction at 60° Fahrenheit. That's when you need Winterfront. Makers of many fine cars provide Winterfront protection the year 'round—guarding their owners against the damage wrought by cold. At 60° Fahrenheit, have a Winterfront installed. Don't give cold a chance at your motor.

Many fine cars provide this protection

Pines Automatic Winterfront has been adopted as standard equipment on Packard "8," Pierce-Arrow, Peerless "8" and De Luxe "6," Willys-Knight Big "6" and Wills St. Claire. Engineers of these fine cars have stopped the damage done by cold — saving their owners millions annually.

Pines Winterfront is made in sizes to fit all cars—designed to add beauty as well as protection. It is automatic—opens and shuts itself. There is nothing to get out of order—nothing to remember. Just put it on and forget it. Winterfront will outlast the car itself. We will give your car this vital protection in ten minutes. Drive in today—don't give cold a chance at your motor.



Pines Automatic Winterfront is standard equipment on Packard "8," Pierce Arrow, Peerless "8," and DeLuxe "6," Willys-Knight Big "6" and Wills St. Claire. Makers of these fine cars have stopped the damage done by cold.

Models for all cars priced $22.50 to $30.00. Special models for Ford, Chevrolet and Dodge priced $15.00, $17.50, $20.00

Three extra years to Use or Sell that cost you nothing

When autumn haze hangs on the hills, choose a Reo Sedan for carefree, comfortable travel to anywhere

THE average price of all five-passenger sedans of American make is approximately $2330, according to the statistics quoted in a recent motoring magazine.

The cars whose cost make up this average price are those whose life history was studied to determine the truth about the length of automobile life . . . the studies which proved that Not One American Car Lasts As Long As Reo—Not One.

The Reo Special Sedan costs $1745 f. o. b. the factory. That is $585 less than the average for all five-passenger sedans—the most popular automobile model today.

Yet the Reo, which costs $585 less than the average, lasts more than three years longer than the average American automobile . . . giving you three extra years, to use or sell, that cost you nothing.

Compare Reos With Cars of the Same Size

Reo—which far outlasts all sedans of comparable size—costs almost $300 less than the average price for which you can get the same size car with its corresponding comfort.

And a Reo gives you three extra years, to use or sell, that cost you nothing.

The Lightest Weight Six-Cylinder Sedan of Its Size in America

Reo has proved that long life is not dependent on excessive cost nor great weight.

The Reo Six Sedan is the lightest six-cylinder sedan of its size in America, 100 pounds lighter than any other, 250 pounds lighter than the average weight of all six-cylinder sedans of the same size.

Reo achieves lighter weight and longer life through the use of costly, less bulky, yet stronger materials. Reo saves on original cost by freedom from financial burdens, economy in the efficiency of production units, continuous production divided between Reo passenger cars and the world-famous Reo Busses and Speed-Wagons, lower labor turnover, and many others.

What Three Extra Years of Life Mean to You

The added life built into each Reo means greater freedom from repairs or replacements . . . otherwise Reos would not be kept so long.

It means lasting beauty of design—or Reos would be discarded for newer models much more quickly.

It means comfort that lasts because springs endure, appointments and coverings wear and wear . . . otherwise Reos would be abandoned because travel in them became toil.

It means far lower cost of depreciation per mile because Reo re-sale value is always high, due to the great number of unused miles of transportation remaining in them.

It means that operating costs on a Reo are low, and remain low throughout its longer life—or Reos would not be kept running.

In addition, there are the great savings in cost, and in freedom from layups of your car, made possible by Reo construction. And three extra years, to use or sell, that cost you nothing.

Come In and See It

Come in and see the car which gives you three extra years, to use or sell, that cost you nothing. Compare its construction with that of any car you wish. Judge its very good looks for yourself. Ride in it. Drive it. You'll be pleasantly surprised at what you can buy for a moderate price—and in addition there are the three extra years, to use or sell, that cost you nothing.

Clamor for New Cars Keeps Motor Wheels Humming

'Another Four Million to Roll from Plants in 1926.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The automobile industry is just now experiencing a condition never before so pronounced at this season of the year. Automobile buyers are asking for the immediate delivery of new models, and the demands from dealers have caused manufacturers to step up production to a greater extent than was anticipated a few weeks ago.

With practically all new models now obtainable orders are being placed and deliveries made as fast as factories can supply dealers, and in many cases it becomes necessary to place the order on a waiting list.

It is noticeable that the usual fall decrease is effecting only those manufacturers who did not come out with new models. However, they all report satisfactory fall sales, and production is being maintained all along the long line at a good rate.

In recent statement, A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker corporation, declared that the country at large is facing a long period of prosperity, and that the automobile industry in particular has a long period of prosperity ahead of it. The coming year will be another 4,000,000 car period, he predicted.

For the next 12 months at least the present high intrinsic value of American motor cars will be maintained without important price changes, continuing to hang around the present level. As the volume of production determines cost, it becomes manifest that present prices are made possible by this year's record production.

One of the great problems of the industry is the avoidance of over-production, and the set-backs it implies. Of this there is but little fear, as manufacturers now build according to incoming orders. This works to the financial advantage of everybody concerned—the manufacturer himself, the dealer and the buyer. To produce only enough cars to satisfy current demands is often a difficult procedure, but experience during the past few years has enabled manufacturers almost entirely to forestall over-production.

Preference for closed models continues to increase. Of more than 3,500,000 passenger cars produced last year nearly 60 per cent were closed models, and the percentage for 1926 will be even greater.

The new Stearns-Knight made its initial appearance this week, with a full line of both closed and open models, which the company announce as the climaxing achievement of 27 years' experience. Every detail of the new models is affected by European influence.

Continental Motors produced this week what is believed to be the first "pony" car to be designed and built in the United States, following the small European vehicle.

The car is a roadster, as yet without a name, but according to its designer and builder, Charles W. Bury of New York, is to be produced in volume, probably in Detroit. The car already has sufficient financial backing to assure its success.

The little vehicle has a wheelbase of only 73 inches, and 48 inch tread. This is somewhat smaller than the English Austin car, is powered with a standard pony car engine of Continental build, and capable of covering 50 miles per hour. Bury intends to place his car in both the New York and Chicago national shows with a view to starting distribution through dealers. Eventually sedans and touring models will be produced. The car weighs 1,300 pounds.

"Rick" Leaves Auto Industry for New Conquests in Air

CAPT. EDDIE V. RICKENBACKER, vice president of the Rickenbacker Motor Car company, has announced his resignation and henceforth will devote his time to aviation interests. Although the American ace of aces refused to discuss his resignation, it is understood that it will in no way effect his holdings in the company, nor will it interfere with reorganization plans now in progress.

EDDIE RICKENBACKER.

The call of the air proved more than Capt. Rickenbacker could resist. For five years — in fact, since he became the practical head of the automobile company that bears his name—a contract kept him from flying. Airplane driving to him is equal to automobile driving to the most enthusiastic motorist. It is whispered among his friends that his desire to again pilot an airplane had much to do in influencing him to resign from the company. He announced that he will "take to the air" immediately, his contract to keep on the ground having expired.

Fatal County.

With an increase of 64 per cent in the number of serious automobile accidents the first six months of 1926 over the same period in 1925, Westchester county, N. Y., holds a record which surpasses any county in the United States. There were 36 persons killed and 692 badly injured by automobiles in the first half of the year, compared with 22 killed and 311 badly hurt in the corresponding period of 1925. There were 91 deaths in the county from automobile accidents last year.

Use the Oil.

Rocker arms on overhead valves require frequent oiling unless they are constructed to oil automatically. A few minutes spent each morning in oiling will be repaid by better operation.

Parking Solution

Ninety retail stores in Boston, Mass., give free parking in central garages to customers during the morning hours.

At one garage, entirely under cover, with room for 1,500 cars, there is free parking from 9 a. m. until 11 a. m. Customers may leave their cars after the three hours at a charge of 10 cents for each additional hour.

Thirty-five cents entitles a retailer's customer to storage in the garage for the day. Steady customers may buy coupon books of 25 coupons, each entitling them to a day's storage in a large garage.

BUS TRAFFIC.

Bus traffic constitutes only .84 per cent of the number of vehicles using the roads in Minnesota.

Safety Signals.

The Automobile Association of Great Britain maintains hundreds of scouts on bicycles and in automobiles on the suburban roads. If a member of the association carrying the "A. A." on his car radiator passes one of these scouts and the scout does not salute, it means "thumbs down"—a speed trap is near by. On the other hand, a snappy salute means that everything is favorable to the motorist.

Keep 'Em Quiet.

The lubrication of the old parts of the car, such as the steering gear, transmission, rear end, universal joints, spring shackle bolts, king pins, etc., is just as important as the correct lubrication of the engine, if the parts affected are to retain their life and quiet operations.

Last Service

Junked motor cars are being put to the new use of helping to "tame" the Missouri river at Pierre, S. D. It has been discovered that the frames of junked cars, piled one upon another wherever the channel is cutting away the bank, settle so firmly and are so impervious to the channel stream that they stop the cutting away of the bank. Several score of abandoned automobiles are serving more efficiently than expensive piling.

PACK CONNECTIONS.

Keep all connections on the exhaust pipe packed and tight. Otherwise the exhaust gases will come through the floor boards, resulting in headaches and often more serious results. Carbon monoxide gases are dangerous and give no warning.

In Rubber Market.

According to Oscar K. Goll, executive secretary of the Association for the Advancement of Commerce and Industry in Mexico, that country bids fair to be one of the largest producers of guayule rubber in the world, within the next two years. The high prices prevailing in the rubber market will cause a revival of the old guayule industry, Goll predicts. Vast quantities of guayule shrubs are now growing wild in all parts of Mexico.

Light Law.

In Australia there is a motor vehicle regulation requiring that rear lights be so adjusted that they cannot be extinguished from within the vehicle; in other words, the driver must descend from the car to light or extinguish the tail light of his car.

After Road Honors

Prudent and polite taxicab drivers in Paris are to have their merits recognized by a badge under a scheme inaugurated by l'Auto, which has obtained the approval of the big taxicab companies.

Each passenger is requested to note his chauffeur's ability and whether he toots carefully at crossings, slows up when he ought to, and attempts no acrobatic stunts with tram cars and other vehicles.

When a driver has been cited several times in this way he will receive a distinctive badge to wear on his arm or fix on his windshield.

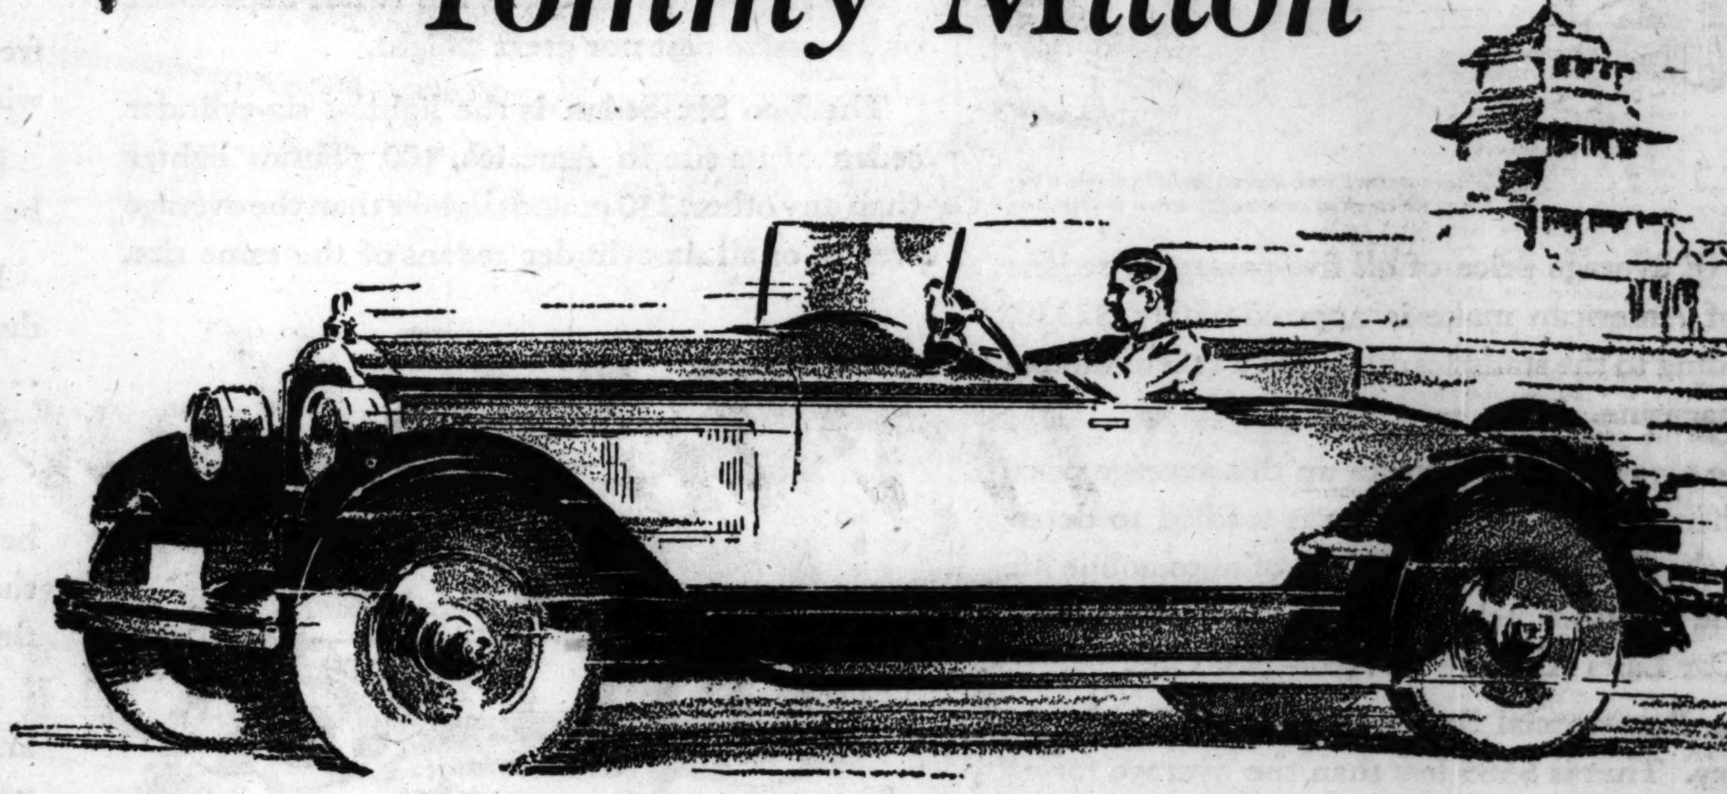
"AMERICA'S GREATEST CAR"
—Tommy Milton



THE first of the improved Packard Eight cars was bought by Tommy Milton, veteran automobile race driver, former international champion — the only man who ever twice won the 500-mile Indianapolis Speedway race.

Milton knows automobiles. Racing drivers, gambling their lives in the crucible of grueling speed, must learn the meaning of mechanical perfection down to the last cotter pin.

And Milton was not only a racing driver but one of the greatest in the history of the sport. He still holds the official record for having traveled faster than any other man has ever traveled on wheels.

What is more natural than that such a man should test his car's performance on the Speedway? Milton tried his Packard Eight runabout at Indianapolis. He drove it 88 miles per hour—faster than the grand average of the speeds which won the Indianapolis Speedway races since 1911. Milton won the 500-mile race of 1921, in the fastest racing car of the year, with an average speed but a mile and a half an hour greater than he reached in his Packard Eight —a standard car.

No one knows better than Milton what hard work it is to pilot a car at high speed. But he found restful ease in his Packard Eight at speeds second only to those of specially designed racing cars.

Is it any wonder then that Milton has called the improved Packard Eight "America's greatest car"? He means great in performance, great in design and beauty, great in ease and comfort.

Nor is Milton the only famous racing driver to give the improved Packard cars the distinction of his preference. Harry Hartz, one of the most consistent winners on the "Roaring Road", who this year leads in points in the race for the championship crown, was one of the first buyers of the new Packard Six.

Have you experienced the thrill of driving one of the improved Packard cars? You are welcome to take the wheel of either Six or Eight at your convenience. Despite their new beauty, comfort and performance prices have not been increased.

The improved Packard Six Runabout with complete accessories costs but $2860.00 delivered at your door. On the Packard payment plan you pay $747 on delivery and $196 a month. The value of your present car is deducted from the first and monthly payments.

County Board Has Big Road Program for Quick Action

532 Miles of Wide and Improved Pavements on List.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

Anton J. Cermak, president of the Cook county board of commissioners, received the final and complete recommendations for Chicago's new deal in automobile roads last Monday from Chairman D. H. Burnham of the Cook county highway advisory committee.

The recommendations, already approved by all of the highway building agencies involved and by members of the roads and bridges committee of the county board, will be submitted as soon as possible for the general approval of the county board. Their adoption and the immediate framing of a new county bond issue to be voted on in November are the only remaining steps in the vital traffic relief campaign that has been waged by Chicago and Illinois transportation interests, motor clubs and business men for two years—or since the pyramiding traffic demanding terminal highway improvement in the Chicago region reached the accute stage.

Adoption of the recommendations by the county board, and voting of the proposed $15,000,000 bond issue by Cook county people in November are considered as well as accomplished by promoters of the big improvement program who have now cleared away all of the involved tangles surrounding the big widening and paving projects and have allotted their costs to the proper agencies under the road building laws. Work will start on the actual construction of pavement widening immediately after the county bonds are voted. The state highway department has already begun work on portions of its allotment.

Pavement widening to 40 feet, new 40 foot pavement, shoulder widening, new 20-foot country pavements and new city pavements on 532 miles of roads.

The total cost of all improvements in Chicago and Cook county will reach $32,090,000.

This total cost will be divided as follows:

State highway funds now available and promised	$ 3,735,500
County highway tax funds and proposed bond issue	21,281,500
Forest preserve funds	538,000
Municipal funds, Chicago and county towns	6,535,000
Total	$32,090,000

The final report to President Cermak by Chairman Burnham of the advisory committee declared that only through this combination of construction and financing can Chicago and Cook county hope to meet the traffic emergency thrust upon the community and state by its flood of automobiles.

"In these highway improvement projects," he wrote, "construction was first tentavely allotted to the several road building bodies engaged in highway work in Cook county. The Illinois division of highways accepted for prompt construction an amount even greater than first allotted to that department. It was ascertained that the cities and villages in the country have many of the projects allotted to them in some stage of preparation now and will carry them through with county help. It was further learned that, while the forest preserve districts has legal power to build roads, it has no funds available for that purpose. Thus the part assigned to the forest preserve districts has been added to the balance which is expected to be paved by the county highway departments.

"On the behalf of your advisory committee, I have the honor to make the following recommendations concerning the physical program:

"That the pavement widening to 40 feet and new 40 feet pavement projects be given priority in the construction program.

"That the pavement construction program be rushed at the earliest possible date.

"That funds from the County highway tax be used for from two to three years to build these projects allotted to the county, which are urgently needed; and which may be built legally with these current funds.

"That the balance of the program allotted to the county be financed by a bond issue, estimated at $15,000,000, to be voted by the people of Cook county. Your committee has not studied the detailed legal features of the proposed bond issue, since it considers this matter a function of the County board and its legal advisers."

The committee, pointing out Attorney General Carlstrom's interpretation of the highway laws on which the new program is based, urged the county board to include the specific roads recommended for improvement in the bond issue to be submitted in November.

In the program proper, the immediate widening to 40 feet of existing pavements on 74.6 miles of the following existing roads is recommended as the first emergency construction step:

	Miles.
Roosevelt road from Austin boulevard to west county line	7.5
Milwaukee avenue from Elston to Harlem avenue	2.4
Waukegan road, Milwaukee avenue to Lake avenue	4.5
Ogden avenue, Cicero to Lawndale street	5.0
Lincoln avenue, Devon to Oakton street	2.8
Western avenue, 135th to Sibley street	1.9
Halsted street, South Park avenue to Lincoln highway	8.0
Dempster street, Evanston limits to Milwaukee avenue	6.5
Touhy avenue, Chicago limits to Lincoln avenue	1.5
Northwest highway, Chicago limits to Dundee road	15.5
Irving Park boulevard, Chicago limits to Mannheim road	4.5
River road, Roosevelt road to Northwest highway	11.5
95th street, Western avenue to Cicero avenue	3.0

Part of this work will be done by the state highway department, part by the county highway department and part by municipalities.

New 40 foot pavement will be laid on the following 48 miles of roads:

	Miles.
West Railroad avenue, Howard street to Dundee road	7.5
Skokie Valley road, Devon avenue to county line	11.0
Devon avenue, Milwaukee avenue to Caldwell avenue	1.2
Harlem avenue, Waukegan road to Joliet road	11.8
Joliet road, Harlem avenue to Lawndale street	1.8
Southwest highway, 87th street to county line	15.0

This work will also be done by state, county and municipalities.

The following intersections are recommended to be widened to 40 feet:

Rand road and River road; Higgins road and River road with new bridge across Des Plaines river; Irving Park boulevard and River road; Grand avenue and River road and the Glenview and Waukegan intersection with two bridges.

Recommendations for new 20 foot concrete pavements on 249.5 miles of roads and for the widening of shoulders, bridges, and culverts on 51.5 miles remain practically the same as in the original programs.

One of the most important items in the entire program is that which will build and keep clear a minimum of 40 feet of pavement on 57 miles of Chicago city streets which meet the state and county highways at the Chicago gateway, and also the village and town streets carrying these highways through Cook county municipalities.

The committee recommends that special assessment proceedings be started at once or hastened on all of these streets, such as Kedzie, Lincoln avenue, Crawford avenue, Cicero avenue, Devon avenue, Milwaukee avenue, Roosevelt road, and other city gateways so that they will offer 56 foot pavement for moving traffic and parking.

Meantime, the Chicago Regional planning association, Chicago Motor club, and other agencies credited with the success of this big improvement program, have resumed the coöperative campaign in which practically all of the counties and states which adjoin Cook county have agreed to carry on the highway widening from the Cook county line through their territories.

Before the actual physical widening program was drawn, highway authorities of Du Page, Will, Kane, and Lake counties and of Wisconsin and Indiana agreed with the Planning association to meet such proposed widenings at the line and carry them on with the aid of their state highway departments. A check-up on this second step in the regional project disclosed yesterday that the Illinois state highway department and the departments in Indiana and Wisconsin have promised to coöperate and aid these neighboring counties in carrying on the widening. W. W. De Berard, chief engineer of the Regional Planning association, declared yesterday that he will concentrate on this extension program now that the Cook county program is complete. He hopes to aid the adjoining counties in drawing up their plans so that their road widening may be started in time to meet the completed improvements in Cook county.

USE CARE.

Use brakes with discrimination. Bear in mind that control of a moving vehicle is three-fourths in being in a position to stop it promptly at any rate of speed and under all sorts of road conditions. Motorists more often than not make the great mistake of relying solely on this control, thereby wasting the great natural power-momentum.

The Inquiring Reporter

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question C. M. Webb, Box 437, McGregor, Ia., was awarded $5.

The Question.

Would you like to have the names of streams and lakes on the highways marked plainly?

Where Asked.

Michigan avenue and Roosevelt road.

The Answers.

F. H. Yarnell, 1734 East 71st street, manager—Marking of all streams, the names of towns and lakes on the main highways would add greatly to the pleasure of touring. There are hundreds of historic streams on all of the main auto trails that would be of special interest to drivers, but all bridges look about alike and tourists breeze by them without noticing them. State or county highway departments should mark these streams and lakes.

J. H. Kaplan, 1425 South Clifton avenue, salesman—In some of the counties of northern Wisconsin, good permanent markers have been placed on all of the bridges and along the roads bordering lakes. The signs help tourists in locating resorts and in planning their camping places. Marking all historic or scenic places along the highway is an excellent idea.

E. H. Mense, 4017 Lake Park avenue, salesman—I would like to see every river and stream in Illinois marked on the highways and bridges, and the names of every town shown. The state highway department has marked all town limits with names of the towns on the state roads, but on many of the county roads neither towns nor streams are marked.

Josephine Anderson, 6440 South Richmond, bookkeeper—Everybody who drives would like to know the names of rivers and lakes and even of the creeks and brooks they cross on the main highways. Knowing the names of streams and historic spots helps to make motor trips enjoyable. People are inclined to go too fast on their tours and they miss most of the interesting things on the trips.

Ann Louise Taylor, 1355 Estes avenue, stenographer—I think that the marking of rivers and lakes should be taken up by all states now that the road direction and caution signs are established on all of the main trails. Every one would be interested in knowing the names of local streams and lakes. It means added interest in motor touring. ing.

MacKinnon, Good Roads Veteran, to Guide Elgin Club

THE vacancy in the management of the Elgin Motor club caused by the tragic death of Al C. Parker, who, with his fiancée, Miss Ione Long, was killed recently by a Rock Island train near Morris, Ill., at a death's crossing where four others had been killed within the month, has been filled by the election of Malcolm MacKinnon, secretary of the Grant and Marquette highway associations.

MacKinnon has spent a great deal of time in Elgin for the last ten years and has been associated with the work of the club, particularly in connection with its effort to support THE TRIBUNE'S wider roads program and the west town's plans for a wide highway on the line of the North avenue road out of Chicago. He has also been closely associated with Col. W. G. Edens of Chicago, president of the Illinois Highway Improvement association, and under the direction of the latter he campaigned in the forty northern counties of the state during 1918 helping to get out the vote for the $60,000,000 bond issue approved that year.

It is the irony of fate that former Manager Parker and Miss Long should have been killed at a railway crossing, since he was an ardent worker for better protection at such places. The grade crossing where this and other fatalities took place is six miles east of Morris on state route 7, and is guarded by lights on the side of the double tracks toward Joliet. These lights show both ways, but to those driving from Morris they are on the far side of the right of way of the Rock Island, as well as that of a parallel interurban track. Inasmuch as the recent killings here have been of those driving from Morris, the indications are that drivers have assumed that the tracks were beyond the lights, as is usual, instead of on the near side from them, as they actually are in this case. The Grundy county coroner has called the railway company's attention to this dangerous condition several times in the past and has done so again after the death of the Elgin couple. The Rock Island is working out plans for better protection of motorists at this point.

Big Road Program.

The value of work under construction on Connecticut roads at present totals $7,293,187.90, the state highway department reports. A financial statement prepared as of Aug. 15 shows that of this sum $3,103,810.82 has been paid to contractors and $4,189,377.08 remains due on the contracts, to be disbursed as the work progresses.

About one-third of the amount, or $2,515,389.59, is being expended on the federal aid system, upon which the government shares the cost at the rate of $15,000 a mile.

PAVED highways, practically free now from the ravages of recent high water and September storms, lead downstate into the famous hunting grounds of the Illinois and Mississippi river valleys. Here they are in detail, with suggestions concerning the best spots so far discovered, camping facilities en route and all other information sportsmen desire.

The new Joliet highway—Illinois 4—is the gateway into the southwest hunting grounds for the Chicago driver, bound for Peoria, Morris, Havana and Beardstown fields.

A new and interesting route to Cairo and the Ohio river fields is opened by new concrete pavement on Illinois highway 1—the Dixie. It is possible now to use No. 1 all the way to Harrisburg, No. 13 to Carbondale and No 2 to Cairo without leaving pavement. The short stretch between Mounds and Cairo on route 2 is good gravel.

Peoria Leads Van in State Support for Wide Roads

ENTHUSIASTIC downstate support of the Illinois state highway department and Cook county board in the wide highways program based on the proposed $15,000,000 county bond issue, is indicated by the following resolution issued yesterday by the board of directors of the Peoria Association of Commerce:

"The board of directors of the Peoria Association of Commerce recognizes in the proposed $32,000,000 road program of the Cook county board of county commissioners the hopeful beginning of super-highway construction in Illinois. The widening of pavements in Cook county and in territory tributary thereto, Peoria regards as the first and logical step in the development of a super-highway traversing the Illinois river to Peoria and thence south to St. Louis.

"Such a highway not only would afford a great scenic route connecting Peoria with Chicago, but would parallel the proposed lakes to gulf waterway, on which Peoria would be the most important downstate port, and would justify liberal state aid. The directors of the Peoria Association of Commerce note with gratification that Gov. Small and state highway officials have promised to coöperate with Cook county authorities in carrying out their program for widening and coördinating existing pavements in and about Chicago, and that $3,750,000 of state funds has been pledged in aid of this project. In addition to other improvements to be undertaken at state expense, this allocation of state funds is due Chicago not only on the basis of motor vehicle license fees paid into the state treasury, but is also due a general condition of traffic congestion in which all Illinois must be presumed to have a vital interest.

"Peoria congratulates Gov. Small upon setting this important precedent. In the view of the directors of the Peoria Association of Commerce, super-highway construction is fully justified by general traffic conditions, and should be financed with reference to arterial development, actual and prospective. In routing super-highways, the best combination of commercial traffic and pleasure travel should be a controlling factor.

"The Illinois river is the Hudson of Illinois. It traverses historical territory touched by white men two generations before George Washington was born. No highway in the state combines so many features of sentimental and commercial interst as that which connects Chicago and Peoria via the Illinois river. The present narrow roadway, however, is badly congested and inadequate for the increasing fleets of busses and trucks hauling construction material and other heavy freight. Chicago and Cook county, under the spur of necessity, are doing what eventually must be done by Peoria on a smaller scale. The super-highway with express and local travel lanes is inevitable.

"The directors of the Peoria Association of Commerce therefore pledge their best efforts and the efforts of the citizenry of Peoria to coöperate in every possible way with the authorities of Chicago and Cook county, with the authorities of interveneing counties and with the state administration to the end that a superhighway connecing Peoria with Chicago via the Illinois river may be constructed as soon as possible and in accordance with plans which will make liberal allowance for the growth of traffic."

PEORIA ASSOCIATION OF COMMERCE.
By Charles G. Farnum, President.

Backs Wide Roads.

Because of the ever increasing number of automobiles in the United States, and partly because of traffic discussions of the 1926 convention of road builders at Chicago, wider highways are being adopted throughout the nation as a means of safeguarding the lives of motorists and relieving traffic congestion, S. T. Henry, newly elected vice president of the American Road Builders' association, states. Adoption of wider highways is not merely a convenience but also a necessity, he claims.

Women Organize.

Three hundred women, of Paterson, N. J., who successfully completed a safety-first course for women drivers of automobiles, have organized to prevent accidents of all kinds, and will continue their studies in the fall. They were also instructed on the prevention of accidents in the home. Membership in the new organization was restricted to those who were able to pass an examination. Practical demonstrations were given in the work of all mechanical parts of an automobile.

HEADLIGHTS.

Your headlights should receive the proper attention so they won't cause inconvenience and danger to other people.

Bad for Brakes.

More brakes are ruined through overloading differentials and front wheel bearings with grease than are worn out through use. When poor grades of grease are used in lubricating cars as soon as the weather becomes hot it melts and gets on the brakes. This is a paramount cause for faulty brakes, for as soon as the oil or grease accumulates on the brakes they will not function properly and as it dries it collects dirt and grit and causes them to grab badly.

Take That Card.

Thousands of American motorists are being turned back at the Canadian border because identification as owners and operators of their cars is not complete. The card of a motorist planning a tour of Canada and carrying the state registration license card, giving full information concerning the car and its owner, must be turned over to the inspector if the tourist is to stay in Canada less than 24 hours and return to the United States by the same port of entry.

More Trucks.

Demand for motor trucks in prosperous farming sections is indicated by the commercial vehicle registration in the six corn belt states of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, and Nebraska, which have a total motor vehicle registration (excluding Chicago figures) of 382,501. This is more than twice the number operated in these states in 1920, when the total was 168,185.

YOU have probably noted the rapidly increasing number of new Cadillac owners who have heretofore restricted themselves to lesser cars.

The movement toward the great new line of Cadillac cars is, of course, actuated partly by the fact that point-by-point comparison reveals the Cadillac to be the greater dollar value.

This new demand for Cadillac, however, has a deeper meaning. It indicates a growing public conviction that, in the long run, the best in motor cars—like the best in everything else—is also the best investment.

And Cadillac is acknowledged the best of all fine cars—not simply because tests prove it to be one of the fastest stock cars in the world, or because of any other one or two or three other features—but because in it every feature is developed to that complete excellence which is Cadillac.

Cadillac is today outselling—two-to-one—the combined total of all other cars at or above its price.

The great new line of Cadillac cars in 50 Body Types and Styles and 500 Color and Upholstery Combinations is another important advance in a continuous series of forward steps which had already left Cadillac almost alone in its own fine field.

Strained to the limit by excessive supplies, market for cattle finished in a top-heavy condition last week, steers of medium and fair quality indicating sharp losses since a week earlier. Two weeks' receipts totaled 162,000. Only a scattering of fancy yearlings closed steady, due to the acute scarcity of finished 800@1,000 lb averages. With a big run of westerns rumored to be heading to market for early next week, the trade is hoping for a light run of natives to check the downturn.

Despite the break in cattle prices after the middle of the week, general average advanced to $10.70, highest since October, 1925, and within 95c of the corresponding week a year ago. "Show" yearlings topped at $12.40 for load lots, four head reaching $12.50. Prime 1,296 lb steers brought $12.00.

Quality of Hogs Lower.

Quality of hogs, as usual on the week-end session, was lacking yesterday and offerings met slow clearance on a "catch as catch can" market. Light light finished in an uneven slump, due to the absence of support from shippers. Top and average prices lowered to $13.60 and $12.25, respectively, owing to poorer quality, comparing with a top of $13.55 and averaging of $12.05 on the previous Saturday. Good to choice 180@260 lb averages brought $13.50@13.60, choice 300 lb butchers at $13.25.

Better grades of hogs reacted sharply early in the week, following a strong to higher opening Monday, but recovered part of the loss on active mid-week buying, finishing 15@25c above a week ago. Weighty packers weakened after mid-week, as demand switched to better kinds in preference to lower priced hogs. The latter, however, are still selling 25@35c above a week ago.

Hog receipts during last week were second smallest since last September at 98,800, with only about half a dozen smaller weekly totals since 1920. Average weight hogs is also on the decline, last week's estimate at 259 lbs being the lightest in ten weeks and 18 lbs below a month ago, due to the increasing number of light and diminishing number of weighty mixed and packers in recent supplies. Extreme top for the week at $13.80 stands 85c under last week's peak, while the general average price advanced to $12.20, highest since week ending July 24.

Sheep Receipts Large.

All classes of sheep and lambs, including feeding and breeding stock recorded sharp losses under the depressing influence of large supplies around the entire market circle last week. Biggest increases were at Chicago, two weeks' offerings on the local trade at 278,500 being the largest since the fall of 1919, including an abnormal supply of thin lambs suitable for feeders, billed mostly from Montana, Wyoming, and Idaho. Market for feeders finished in a weak position, most country orders carrying price limits. Fancy light brought $14.00, against $15.00 less than two weeks earlier. Top fat lambs stopped at $14.35, with a load of light ewe lambs at $14.50 for future breeding purposes.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 31,000 cattle, 33,000 hogs, and 30,000 sheep, against 33,977 cattle, 22,927 hogs, and 32,425 sheep, a week ago, and 32,162 cattle, 46,025 hogs, and 18,860 sheep, the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 74,000 cattle, 120,000 hogs, and 125,000 sheep, against 74,069 cattle, 138,071 hogs, and 200,818 sheep, a year ago.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

The grain trade on the whole is bearish, with pit operators doing most of the business. Those who have tried to bull grain all week have met with indifferent success, getting no help from the outside, despite the bad weather in the northwest delaying harvesting, threshing and marketing, and the frost scare in part of the corn belt, which it is feared has damaged some of the late crop. There has been buying of weekly bids on all grains to a liberal extent and fair purchasing offers on corn.

Weekly weather forecast is for a showery period near first part of week and probably around the close, with fair in middle days, and temperatures somewhat below normal, for region of the Great Lakes with fair weather over the upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valley, with some precipitation and temperatures near or somewhat below the average.

Des Moines, Ia., reported ice formed at Mason City and Sioux City, heavy frost at Waterloo, Dubuque, Fort Dodge, Sheldon, and Storm Lake. Light frost at Marshalltown and Iowa Falls, with no frost at Iowa City or Cedar Rapids.

Indications are for an increase of around 3,000,000 bu in the visible supply of wheat in Monday's report, which will compare with 3,845,000 bu last year. The gains will be largely in the northwest. World's shipments are estimated at 11,600,000 bu, against 11,084,000 bu last year.

"We believe it is logical to expect after October liquidation has been assimilated and the lard stocks are lodged in refiners' hands, an effort will at least be made to advance prices for perhaps 30 to 60 days for obvious reasons," says L. Harry Freeman of Rumsey & Co. "After that it would seem to be folly for the manufacturer to do other than bend his energy toward lower basic values for his winter kill."

PRIMARIES FOR WEEK

Primary receipts of wheat for the week of 18,923,000 bu were 800,000 bu less than the previous week and 9,500,000 bu under last year, and 8,600,000 bu below the five year average. They were the lightest in over two months, with wheat the smallest at this time since 1922, while corn increased fairly during the week, and of oats was the smallest for the period in more than five years. PRICES OF WHEAT SUFFER DECLINE AT WEEK'S END

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat was under pressure from the start, while there was fair support from shorts the close was within a fraction of the bottom with net losses of ⅝@1⅛c with September leading.

The latter closed at $1.33⅝@1.33½ or 3⅝c under the December, while May was $1.42⅝@1.42⅛. Corn made a poor response to the heavy to killing frost over part of the belt and closed unsettled with September ⅝c higher; December ⅛c lower with May ½c higher with September 74½c; December 80⅝@80½c and May 87⅝@87⅞c. Oats were unchanged with September 41c and December 43⅝c. Rye was ⅛@⅝c lower with September 93⅞c and December 99½c.

Wheat market decidedly was unsettled last week within a range of 3⅝@4⅝c, and closed unchanged to ⅛c higher as compared with the previous week, with September showing relative weakness. Corn was ⅝c lower to ⅛c higher, the former on September, while oats were ⅝@1⅛c higher and rye ⅛c lower to ⅞c higher. Provisions were irregular with lard 20c lower to 5c higher; ribs, 40c lower to 15c higher, and bellies, 25@50c higher.

Eastern Houses Sell Wheat.

Houses with eastern connections were fair sellers of wheat early and with local pressure the decline was easily attained. Winnipeg acted heavy and lost 1⅛@1⅝c. Sentiment generally remains bearish, and there is little outside support being received. Generally fair weather prevailed in the Canadian northwest, and the weekly forecast indicated little or no rain this side of the international line. A few days of good weather is expected to witness a resumption of threshing operations in the spring wheat territory. For the week farmers in the three Canadian provinces marketed 19,000,000 bu at interior points.

Foreigners continue to show no disposition to buy cash wheat on a liberal scale, while exporters are afraid to offer freely unless they have the ocean room booked. Liverpool closed ⅛d to ⅝d lower. Monday's statistics are expected to be moderately bearish.

Fear Frost Damage to Corn.

Heavy to killing frost was experienced in parts of Iowa and Nebraska where the corn crop in some sections was in a position to be damaged. The market opened about ½c higher only to break 1¼@1⅝c from the top on selling by local professionals, and then rally sharply. September closed strong due to scattered buying orders finding a lack of offerings. The December-May spread widened to 7⅝c at the last, while September was about 6c under December. The forecast indicated more frost over Sunday. Country offerings of old corn were much smaller, with purchases estimated at 75,000 bu, while the eastern demand was much better with sales of over 200,000 bu. It is estimated that 50 per cent of the Iowa crop was safe from frost, and that from a commercial standpoint 75 per cent was safe.

Oats held within narrow price limits, longs selling December on the minor upturns while the breaks brought in commission house support. Rye was dull with the northwest a fair seller, hedging against cash grain, while shorts bought on the breaks. Nothing was heard regarding export demand.

WEAKNESS IN LARD PRICES

Renewed liquidation in lard, with only limited buying on breaks at times by packers and shorts, made a weak and declining market, with the finish at the low point, losses on the near futures being 10@12½c and on January 5c. There was selling of October and buying of January at 77½c spread. Short ribs were unchanged to 15c lower and bellies unchanged to 5c lower. Shipments of lard for the week were larger than the previous week and last year and of meats smaller. Hogs were stronger early, but closed easier, with receipts smaller than a week ago and a year ago, and a moderate run is expected next week. Lard in Liverpool was unchanged to 6d higher. Exports of lard from the seaboard were 1,585,000 lbs and of bacon 42,500 lbs. Prices follow:

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Foreign demand for cash wheat was again reported as slow, although a seaboard exporter claimed he had sold a moderate amount of domestic red and hard winters abroad.

Local handlers sold over 200,000 bu corn and 40,000 bu oats to the domestic trade. Deliveries on September contracts were 493,000 bu wheat and 93,000 bu corn.

Basis on cash wheat here was unchanged with No. 2 red 1½@2c over and No. 3 red September to 3c under. No 2 hard brought 6@7c over and No. 3 hard 1@3c over September. Kansas City basis was unchanged and Minneapolis unchanged to 1c lower.

There was a material letup in country offerings of corn to arrive with purchases estimated at around 75,000 bu. Spot basis was ½c lower to 1c higher, with No. 2 grades, ½c under to 2c over; No. 3 grades, 1½@4c under, and No. 4 grades, 2⅝@5c under the December. Outside markets were ½c higher to 1c lower.

Cash oats sold fairly with the basis ¼c lower to ¼c higher. No. 2 white was December price to 2c over and No. 3 white, 1@2c under.

Reports from Youngstown indicate that third quarter earnings of independent steel companies in the district generally will exceed earlier calculations, the period proving to be one of the best of any year since the war. Order books in sheets, strip steel, tin plate, and tubes are comfortably filled going into the fourth quarter. Premium prices are beginning to appear in the sheet market for delivery concessions.

Announcement that T. A. Hamilton, former president of the International Great Northern, had been retained as advisor by the minority stockholders' committee of the St. Louis Southwestern, which is opposing the Loree plan of consolidation, was made by W. E. Meyer, chairman of the committee. Mr. Meyer, who will attend the hearings in Dallas, said Mr. Hamilton characterized the Loree plan as "unsound from a practical railroad operating standpoint."

Effective Monday, prices of the Studebaker corporation's cars have been cut from $35 to $205. The reductions, according to President Erskine, are made in order to give purchasers immediately the benefit of the economies which result from increased production.

The General Motors corporation has incorporated the Delco-Remy corporation in Delaware to handle the sale of products manufactured by the Dayton Engineering Laboratories company of Dayton, O., and the Remy Electric division at Anderson, Ind.

Ford Motor company of Canada has declared a dividend of ten per cent on the common stock, payable Oct. 11 to holders of record Oct. 1. The previous payment was ten per cent on Nov. 15, 1925.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Trading in butter and eggs on Saturday was fair, and prices unchanged, with ample offerings. In the live poultry market the only change was the drop of ½c in spring chickens to 22½c.

Weather was favorable for the potato trade, and a good business was on at former prices. Arrivals were 122 cars, and 323 cars were on track. Watermelons were slow sale as the weather was too cold.

"DEEP THINKERS" HAND LAUGH TO GREEK SCHOLAR

BY HARPER LEECH.

Six billions annually is the estimate of a university president of the value to American business of comparatively recent research by university scientists.

It's probably a low figure. Our future prosperity must rest largely on the laboratory. Anything which might discourage support of scientific teaching and research is to be regretted. At present the only cloud on the horizon is a flood of pseudo-scientific books. How can one tell the difference between science and imitations? Prof. Paul Shorey of the University of Chicago, a world known authority on Greek, has told us in an address—a masterpiece of satire.

Look at the peroration of his book. Real science usually speaks in mathematics or measured words. Pseudo-science can rarely resist the urge to verbal ecstasy. Prof. Shorey cites Shelley's "Queen Mab" as their model. He finds this type of composition reaches perfect flower in Russian "drawn rhetoric"—which cost Americans $20,000,000 in famine relief. Now that the Russians have cut down on "dawn" and gone back to vodka there is more to eat. In style and shibboleth our "dawn" books ape the British intelligentsia, whose socialism has raided British prosperity.

Here are some hot ones from Prof. Shorey:

"Mr. Havelock Ellis, encyclopedist of the pseudo science of sex, concludes one of his jumble books with—'sunset is the promise of the dawn.'

"Mr. Bertrand Russel perorates in 'Roads to Freedom'—'the world in which we exist will pass away, burnt up and from its ashes will spring a new and younger world with the light of morning in its eyes.'"

"Prof. Watson winds up a dogmatic presentation with a similar prophecy of a new dawn, behaviorism being in this case the cock, which will cause the sun to rise."

Admitting that a little nonsense now and then is relished by the wisest men, Prof. Shorey says he prefers Aristophanes, Alice in Wonderland, or the Hunting of the Snark.

With devastating, but delightful effect he translates much current psychiatrical and criminological cant into English, then heaves this Irish confetti at hokum—"Take any book of phychology, sociology, anthropology, or education, which you have been told is to alter the face of the world. Go through it faithfully, pencil in hand. Strike out all unsupported repetitions that all old ideas are false and all new ones about to work miracles, all general enumerations in the style of 'Mind in the Making,' of the fallacies and weaknesses of human thinking, from which none but revolutionary thought is free, all imputations of fear, selfishness and ignorance as the only possible explanations of conservative thinking, all prophecies of what pseudo-science is going to do, all tautologous definitions and terms badly derived from Greek all circumlocutory saying of things in such a polysyllabic way, and then ask yourself precisely how much remains of new, significant, verifiable and serviceable truth."

One can get good sport out of these books by identifying old ideological notions under their new "materialist" disguises. For instance the "behaviorist" insistence that we acquire our "minds" after birth and inherit no traits, is the old dualism of "mind versus matter" in a new form.

The detour by which the "behaviorist" finally arrives at this destination is long and wide, perhaps, but by using "psychoanalytic" methods on "wishful thinking," one finds that his motivation is usually the same as that of the dualist.

COTTON MARKETS

A stronger undertone prevailed in cotton, with a rally at the [illegible] followed by weakness at the finish, with trading at around the inside. Yet in spite of the break late in the day closing trades on futures were at net gains of 5 to 12 points in the leading markets, while futures in Chicago were 10 points higher to 10 points lower, the latter in March. Spots in New York were 10 points higher at 15.25c. Liverpool was stronger and 16 to 18 points higher.

Rains were reported in the Texas Panhandle, Oklahoma, and Arkansas, which induced buying. There has been a break of over 3c per lb. of late and the trade in some instances is going slower on selling on breaks.

Spinners' takings for the week were 285,000 bales against 587,000 bales last year. Into sight movement was 547,000 bales, against 710,000 bales last year. For season to date 2,168,000 bales against 2,978,000 bales last year.

At a meeting of commissioners of agriculture held in Dallas, Tex., resolutions were adopted asking the government to abandon crop estimates prior to Sept. 1, and asked that they be issued on the first of each month instead of semi-monthly. Prices in leading markets follow:

New Regulations for Registration of Brokers.

The regulations for registration under the Illinois blue sky law of all dealers in securities contain several good provisions designed for the protection of investors.

These regulations, which were prescribed by Louis L. Emmerson, as secretary of state, became effective July 1, 1926.

Under their provisions no person, owner, dealer, or broker is allowed to offer for sale or sell securities within this state unless he has registered with the secretary of state.

Each applicant for registration must present under oath an application in writing containing certain required information, must submit satisfactory evidence and proof that he is of good repute, must enter into a bond and must file with the secretary of state a written consent to service of process.

In determining the amount of indemnity bond to be given, the probable amount of advance and partial payments on securities, and, in case the applicant acts as depository for monthly or other deposits of interest or bond maturity or other payments, the probable amount thereof, will be considered and the amount of the bond shall be sufficient to equal the highest estimated combined total amount thereof expected to be in the hands of the registrant at any time during the registration period.

The amount of the indemnity bond required of each applicant for registration may be determined in the above manner, prescribed by law or fixed in the discretion of the secretary of state, with a maximum of fifty thousand dollars.

This bond is to be held by the state for the protection of investors in the securities sold by the applicant, to insure that he complies with the securities law and conducts his business in such a manner as not to tend to work fraud.

The secretary of state is given the right to require any owner, dealer, broker, etc., at any time to produce all books and records pertaining to matters arising in any proceeding and also to require such persons to submit to examination under oath and to give all information deemed necessary to enable him to ascertain all the facts, financial condition and methods of business of any owner, dealer, broker, etc.

The secretary of state may also require issuers of securities, who have prepared statements for filing under the securities law, to produce similar information whenever deemed necessary in any proceeding arising under the securities law.

All persons, companies, etc., acting as broker in the sale or exchange of securities are required to furnish, upon demand, to any customer a true written statement showing the names and addresses of the parties from whom the securities were bought, or to whom they were sold, the time when, the place where and the price at which such securities were either bought or sold.

Owners, dealers, and brokers, upon receiving payment or upon tender of full payment for securities shall immediately deliver such securities. Prompt settlement of daily balances due others also is required.

Any delay in the delivery of securities or in the payment of daily balances to other owners, dealers, and brokers shall because for cancellation of the registration.

In the case of real estate mortgage notes or bonds, the owner, dealer, or broker who originates or underwrites them must furnish on demand and under oath written statements giving such desired information as the fair market value of the property securing the notes or bonds and, in the case of construction bonds, also the contract price of construction, the provisions as to insuring completion of the building free of all prior charges and liens, estimated net rental income and operating expenses of the building when completed, name and address of architect, appraisers and contractors, and insurance carried on the building and must also furnish a copy of the mortgage or trust indenture and the circular used in selling or offering such securities.

In the case of junior mortgages they must also furnish complete details as to the first mortgage which is ahead of them.

No security may be offered for sale as "insured" or "guaranteed" unless insured or guaranteed (specifically) as respects the payment of both principal and interest in an old line company qualified under the insurance laws of Illinois, with a resident agent in this state, specifically authorized by law to insure or guarantee such risks.

These are the principal provisions of the new regulations which, we think, constitute a long step towards making this state safer for investors.

6½% First (Closed) Mortgage Gold Bonds
(Construction Bonds)

Dated: July 15, 1926—Maturities: 1½ to 12½ years—Callable at 101 and accrued interest except that no premium shall be paid on bonds redeemed after January 15th, 1938—Interest payable January 15th and July 15th—Individual Trustee, Harold A. Moore.

The bonds are the individual obligation of C. Benton Cooper

Corporate Trustee: The Pennsylvania Company for Insurances on Lives and Granting Annuities

Title Insurance Policy by The Real Estate Title Insurance & Trust Company of Philadelphia

PRICE: 100 and accrued interest to net 6½% for all maturities excepting January 15 and July 15, 1928, and January 15 and July 15, 1929, which are offered at a price to yield 6%.

The following information has been taken from letter of KENILWORTH BUILDING CORPORATION which has purchased the property from C. Benton Cooper, and is erecting the buildings:

Security: These bonds are secured by a closed first mortgage executed by C. Benton Cooper on the land owned in fee (containing over six and one-half acres) having a frontage of 848 feet on Fairmount Park, and the two 12-story and basement fireproof housekeeping apartment buildings in course of construction, to be known as the KENILWORTH. These are to be 100% co-operative apartment buildings and the sale price for apartments according to schedule aggregates $3,200,000.

Buildings: Each of the two buildings will be twelve stories in height, fireproof construction. The two buildings will contain approximately 84 apartments ranging in size from 7 rooms and 2 baths to 10 rooms and 4 baths, with 5 smaller apartments additional in the towers.

Co-operative Apartment Demand: KENILWORTH is being built in response to a demand for high-grade apartments which developed while apartments were being sold in Alden Park Manor. Every large apartment in Alden Park Manor was sold before January 10, 1926, and since that date applications have been received for larger and more luxurious suites. KENILWORTH is being built in response to this demand and THE KENILWORTH BUILDING CORPORATION believes that both buildings will be sold out long before completion. The estimated net annual rental income, if the property were to be rented, is $324,329 on the basis of $50 per room per month, with an allowance of 10% for vacancies.

Location: The property is located in the exclusive Germantown residential district of Philadelphia, is surrounded on two sides by Fairmount Park and overlooks the beautiful Wissahickon Valley. It is but 1500 feet from the Chelton Avenue Germantown Station of the Chestnut Hill Electrified Branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad. 43 trains travel to and from the Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, the trip by express consuming about 15 minutes.

Experienced Management: Mr. C. C. Mitchell, president of Kenilworth Building Corporation, was formerly president of C. C. Mitchell & Co. of Chicago, and has had a wide and successful experience in the financial and construction fields. Mr. Mitchell is connected with the operation and management of Alden Park Manor of Detroit, built in 1921; Alden Park Manor of Brookline, Mass., completed in early 1925; and Alden Park Manor, Philadelphia, co-operative apartments, recently completed.

STOCK MARKET HOLDS ADVANCE AS WEEK ENDS

YESTERDAY'S AVERAGES

New York, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Stock prices gained ground today, although extreme advances in many instances were sharply reduced by a last minute wave of profit taking. Closing quotations were irregular but with net gains ranging from 1 to as much as 5 points predominating.

Favorable trade reports, particularly from the retail merchandise field, coupled with signs of greater stability in the money markets gave impetus to the early buying movement which broadened steadily until the final fifteen minutes of trading. Steel, equipment, chemical and amusement shares were favored.

Resuming its upward movement after several days of hesitation, General Motors climbed to 160¾, the highest price since the distribution of its stock dividend. It was accompanied into higher ground by Du Pont, which rose more than five points to a new top at 320¼.

Automobile Price Cutting Feared.

Fears of price cutting in the motor industry were subsequently aroused by the announcement that the Studebaker corporation had made substantial reductions and the automobile shares encountered renewed selling pressure. General Motors fell back to 158¼, which represented a gain of one point for the day.

U. S. Steel closed fractionally lower at 149⅝ after selling as high as 150½. Gulf States Steel and Sloss-Sheffield were more successful in maintaining their gains, which amounted to 3½ and 4 points, respectively, as buying developed on indications of large orders from the railroads. The same factor accounted for the strength of the equipment stocks.

The recent slump in the price of silver to the lowest point in five years was blamed for the heavy selling of American Smelting and Cerro de Pasco, which broke 2⅝ and 3¼ points. Allied Chemical, Mack Trucks, General Asphalt and Woolworth also felt the force of the late selling movement and closed 1 to 2 points lower.

Railroad Shares Are Steady.

Railroad shares made progress, with the exception of Norfolk and Western and Colorado and Southern, both of which were boosted about four points to new high prices. Accumulation of the Van Sweringen issues failed to bring about any important price changes.

Continued strength in the industrial and public utility issues featured a fairly active opening on the curb exchange today. The buying movement included a 2 point advance in Northern States Power, a like gain in Commonwealth Power warrants and a point rise in Middle West Utilities.

Industrial shares also contributed several strong points with most interest attached to Victor Talking Machine, which moved up 2 points, and Curtiss Aero and Motor. Warner Brothers Pictures was in supply after an early fractional advance when the quotation lifted to 58⅛. In the following depression a loss of about 2 points was recorded. Du Pont, new, developed activity in the later dealings, selling up 3¼ points to a new high of 182.

Bonds Dull and Irregular.

Dwindling interest in the bond market today resulted in narrow and irregular price fluctuations. Domestic obligations held fairly firm, while foreign issues drifted lower. Polish bonds were the outstanding weak spots of the foreign group, being forced down one to two points. Fractional losses were common among French and other European issues.

Denver and Rio Grande Western 5s continued to reflect disappointment over the decision against beginning interest payments on Nov. 1, but several other rail issues, including Lehigh Valley 5s and Wheeling and Lake Erie 4s, scored moderate gains on a small turnover. Buying of Brier Hill Steel 5½s and Federated Metal 7s contrasted with the heaviness of Wickwire Spencer Steel 7s and Warner Sugar issues.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Although trading in the local unlisted securities market was on a more restricted scale last week, a good tone prevailed, resulting in the majority of issues advancing slightly.

Acme Steel Goods developed strength in the late trading, closing quotations of 74 bid, 75 asked, ex dividend 62½c, showing a net gain of 2 points for the week. The Celotex issues were rather quiet, the common ranging between 175 and 185, closing with practically no change at 180. The preferred was steady around 90. After a period of inactivity Fulton Market units, consisting of 10 preferred and 3 common, were in good demand, moving up to 510 bid, 520 asked. Great Lakes Transit moved up from low sales at 24 to high and last transactions at 25¾. The preferred was steady at 83 bid. Hall Printing was easier, with sales between 28½ and 29½. Interstate Iron and Steel was again in demand, selling up 2 points to 92 bid. Kellogg Company common, which was previously offered at 105, with little interest showing on the buying side, was traded in around 103½, at which price additional stock was wanted, with offerings at 105½. Keystone Steel and Wire common improved 2 points to 46½ bid, 48½ asked. The new preferred was also strong at 83½ bid. H. O. Stone common was again wanted at 135. National Theaters was quiet and fractionally lower, with offerings at 7¼ and bids of 7.

Easiness was noted in Elgin National Watch, early transactions being reported at 90, with the market gradually declining to closing bids of 88, with stock offered at 89. The Creamery Package issues were firm but not very active throughout the week, bids of 33⅞ were prevalent, with stock available at 34½ and several transactions being reported at prices ranging from 34 to 34½. Northwestern Yeast, ex dividend $3, was in demand at 170, with stock offered for sale at 173, with no sales being reported. Although Illinois Merchants Trust was ex dividend $5 transactions were again made at 604. National Bank of Republic was freely wanted at 288, with limited offerings at 291. Bids of 425 ex dividend for Union Trust represented an advance of about 8 points for the week. Union Bank of Chicago was in excellent demand at 237, with no reported transactions on account of the scarcity of offerings.

DRY GOODS MARKET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Cotton goods and yarns were steadier today, with trading in moderate volume. Lower cotton is aiding a substantial expansion in cotton goods consumption, merchants state. Burlaps were steady to firm, with all goods afloat in demand. Calcutta holds about unchanged. Raw silk was unchanged. Silk crepes were more active for imediate shipment and cutters are using silk goods freely for immediate deliveries of garments. Raw wool markets held steady and wool goods sold well for spot and spring shipment. Household linens and handkerchiefs were bought freely for fall trade.

Why Overland's amazing Price Cuts are possible

—on the two most successful cars of their size and price class

Retail sales during July and August were the largest in Willys-Overland history. Over 39,000 cars were sold in these 2 months.

The original Whippet production schedule laid out in July called for 500 cars a day. Within 60 days it has been increased to 650. And now, at these amazing new low prices we anticipate a volume of 1000 Whippets a day—and from every present indication it will be quickly attained.

Sales of the Overland Six have also been gaining in tremendous volume. Over 60,000 were made last year. Each month sees another record broken. And at these startling, low prices we believe Overland Six production will reach 100,000 this year.

Big volume makes low prices possible. Low prices bring big volume. This in brief is the economic reason behind this amazing price reduction.

If orders are placed at once prompt deliveries can be made. The time to buy is NOW!

ARCHITECTS OF CHICAGO PRAISE HOME CONTEST

"Big Move in Right Direction."

Enthusiastic words of praise continue to pour into THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, vigorous, wholehearted praise from Chicago's architects, for the Small Homes Competition now launched on its third week. Last Sunday commendations from such men as A. N. Rebori, Alfred Granger, H. B. Wheelock, John Holabird, Pierre Blouke, and A. Allen were published, that the public might know the vital interest aroused by this movement in the interests of the small home and the small home owner.

Now from Mr. Childs, of Childs & Smith, is this expression of hearty approval:

"The interest in the small house which THE TRIBUNE is rousing, is, I think, an excellent thing from the standpoint of the American family. At the present time, with so many people moving into apartment hotels, any movement which can be made towards interesting people in small homes is greatly to be commended.

"If we can emphasize also the charm of the garden as an adjunct to the house, we will go far towards beautifying the small home. There are many examples of lovely small homes in this country, and any effort to increase their number should be greatly encouraged."

Encourages Younger Architect.

Again, from Benjamin Franklin Olsen: "Not until the last decade has the small residence had enough thoughtful study to bring it out of the commonplace. Competitions similar to the one now espoused by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE have done much to encourage the younger architects and draftsmen to conceive novel departures that better meet the demands of our changing modes of living. Departures which place at the disposal of the home builder picturesque small houses of a character that reflects favorably upon the owner and the community."

And from A. L. Klewer: "A big move in the right direction. When you see the hopelessly commonplace, unattractive small homes put up so frequently, when you realize how a great deal of good property has been depreciated by the poor houses built on it, you can't help but be 'strong' for such a movement as this, which will give to the public examples of the best small home architecture."

Of Value to Draftsmen.

Still another from Allen Erickson: "Such a competition as this cannot help but be of immense value to the young architect and draftsman."

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, through this competition, is going to offer to the public at the purely nominal sum of one dollar the finest designs it receives from the most skilled of present day architects.

From THE TRIBUNE the architects will receive their returns for their efforts put forth in the cause of the five and six room home, designed with a maximum of artistry and practicability.

From THE TRIBUNE the public will be enabled to take advantage of this architectural talent, brought to bear on that object dear to all men's hearts—a home of their own.

Full Details Are Ready.

In this small House Competition a full program of the competition, containing all details, will be sent to all those who wish to enter the contest. Write THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Public Service bureau, Tribune Square, for the program.

The competition closes Dec. 1, 1926. Announcement of the awards will be made in the SUNDAY TRIBUNE on Jan. 1, 1927.

For first prize designs in each class, $1,000.

For second prize designs in each class, $750.

For third prize designs in each class, $500.

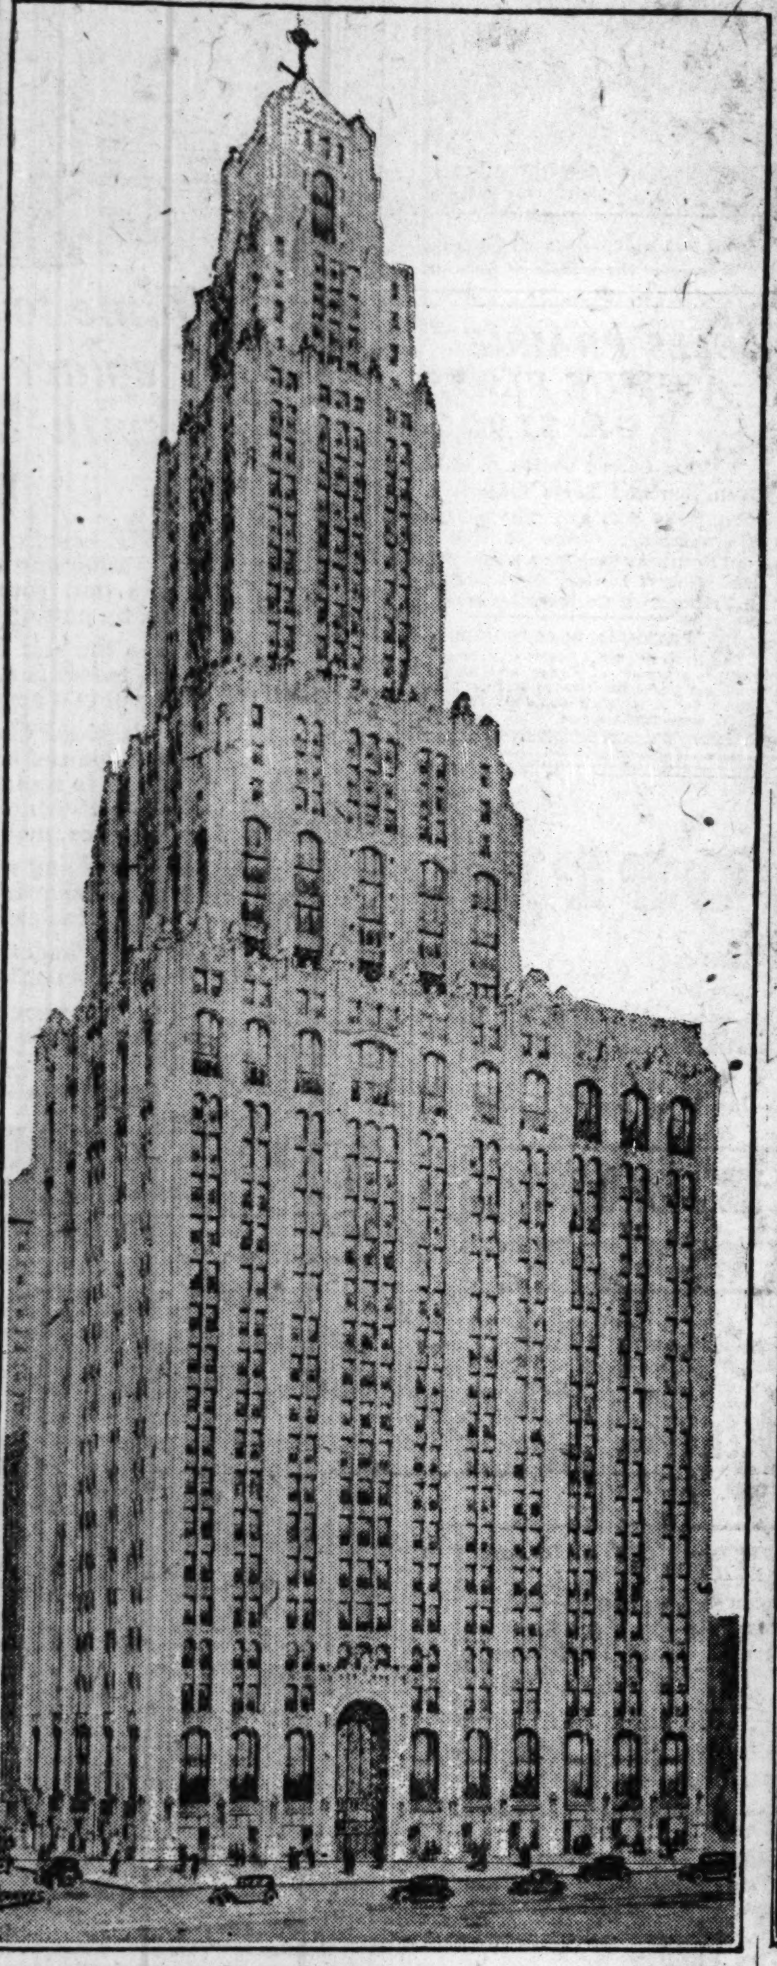
BERKSHIRE IS TRADED FOR 5,450 ACRES

The "Old Trails" farms, comprising 5,450 acres in central Missouri, have been traded for the fifteen story Berkshire hotel, 15 East Ohio. George W. Swigart, of Swigart & Co., was broker for the farms owner and George Young for the owners of the hotel, which is one of the Wenzel chain.

WORK STARTS ON CAISSONS FOR 519 FOOT TOWER

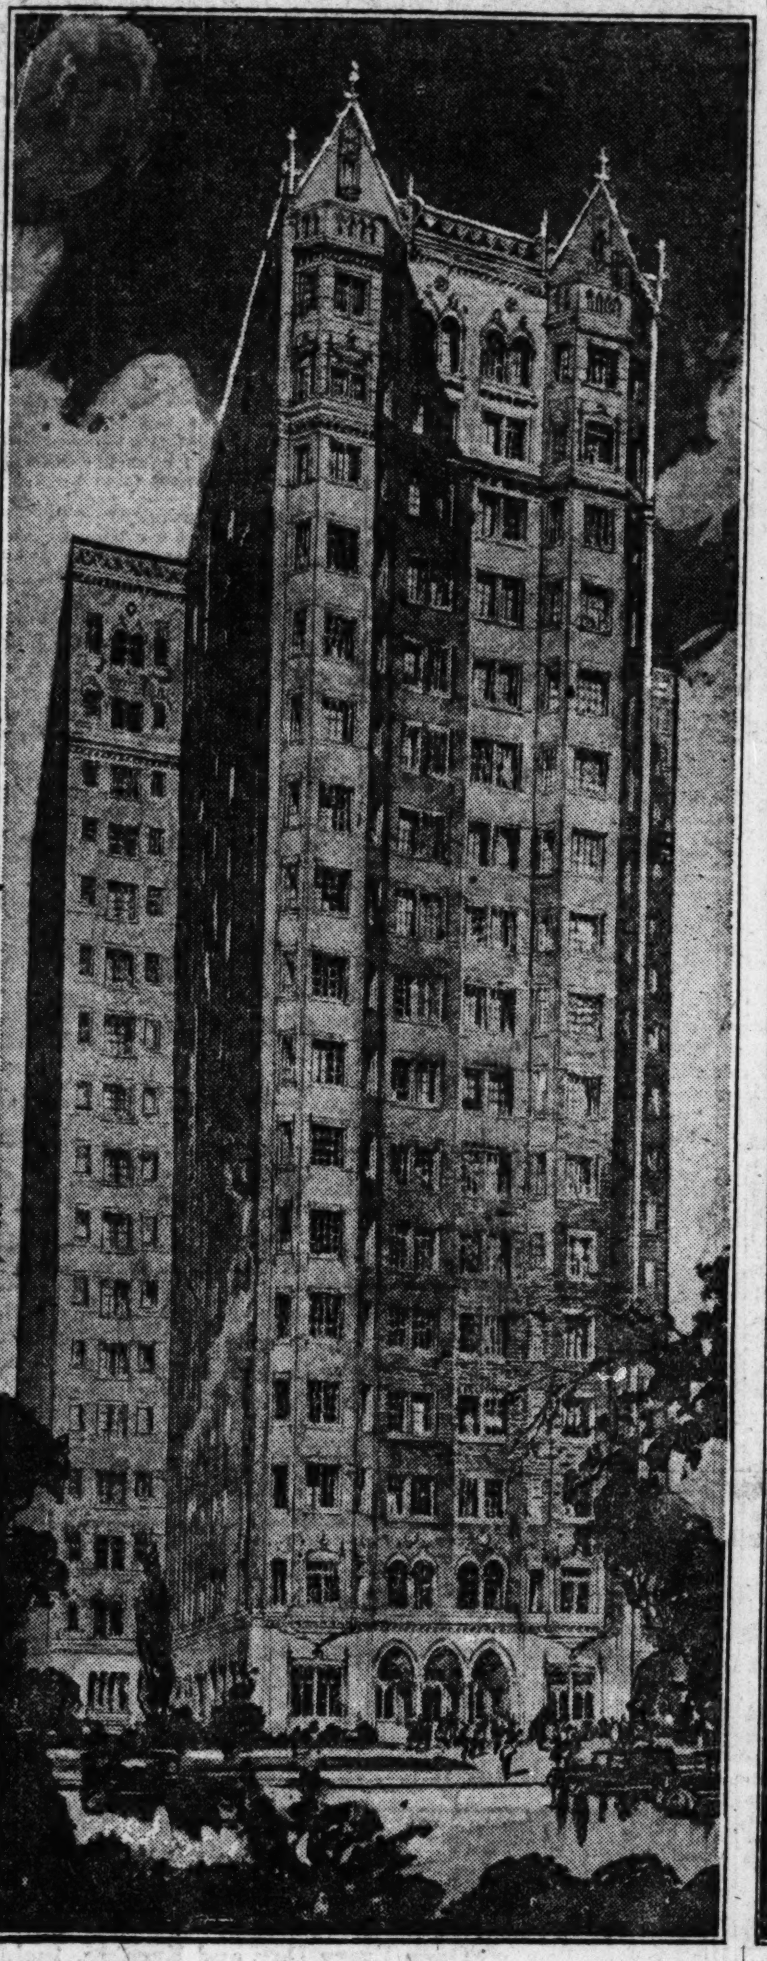
Work has started on the caissons for the needle-like Mather tower, forty-two stories high, on Wacker drive, just a few feet southwest of the London Guaranty building.

CITY'S TALLEST BUILDING



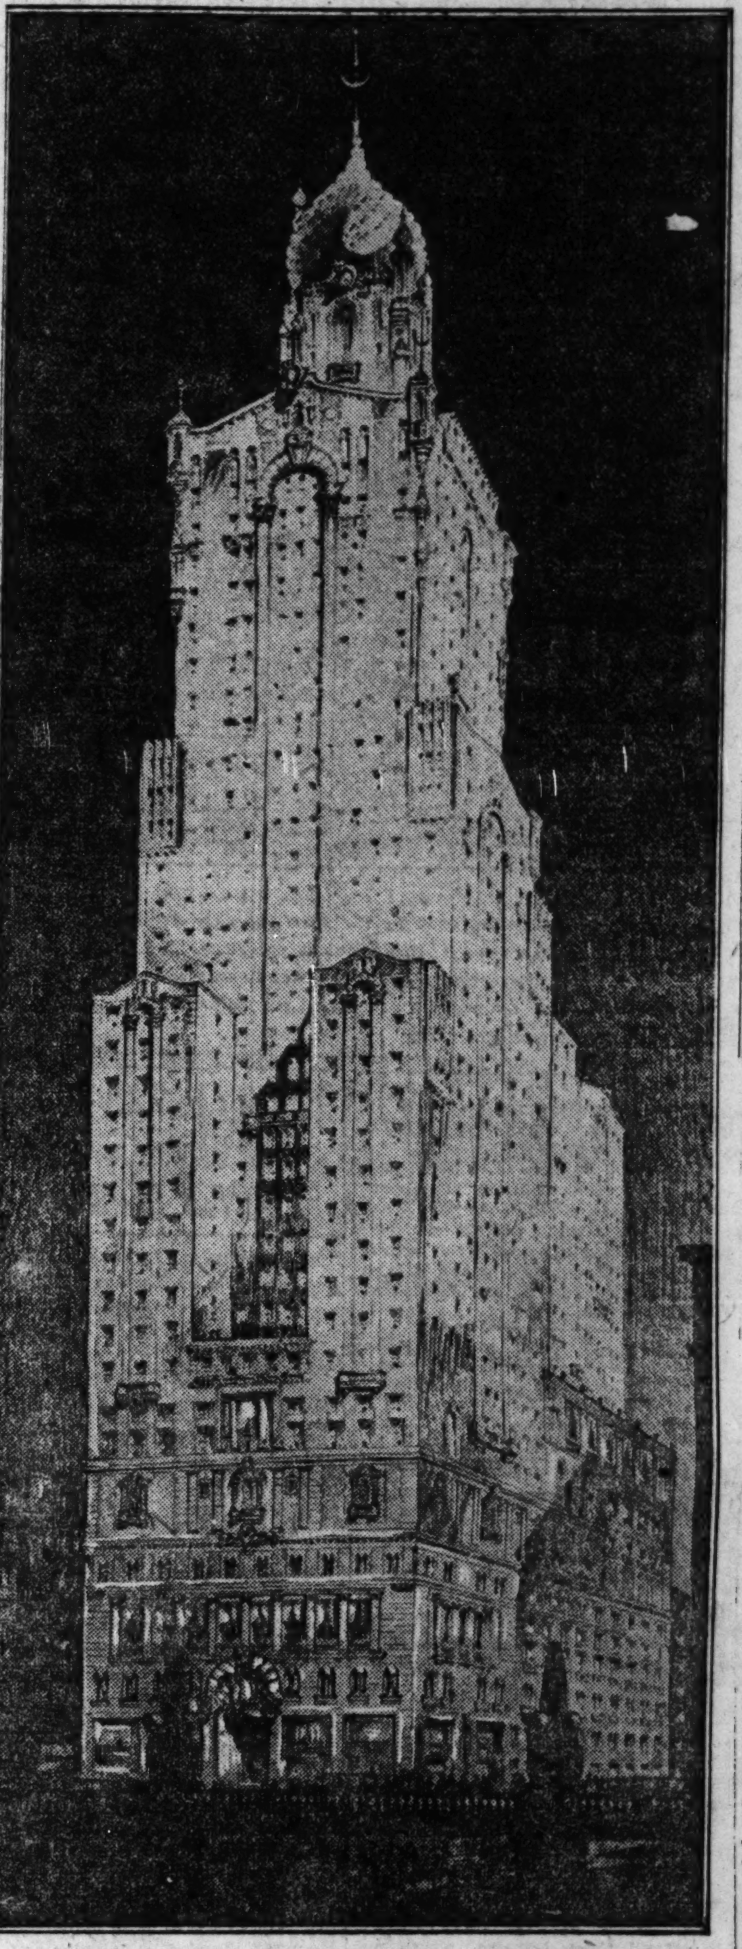
This is the accepted design for the Frontenac Athletic club, by K. M. Vitzthum and John J. Burns, published for the first time and supplanting one by another architectural firm shown a few months ago. Three loop sites for this lofty structure are under consideration. It will be the loop's tallest building, reaching one foot nearer the sky than the Chicago Temple. Rendering by E. Tronnes.

PATRICIAN APARTMENTS



Roy F. France & Co. are architects of the above Patrician apartments, announced recently to be built at 405 Fullerton parkway, between Commonwealth avenue and Clark street. S. W. Straus & Co. will underwrite a $952,000 bond issue on the project. It will contain 148 suites of one, two, three, and four rooms. This is the site of the famous old Loeb residence. Rendering by Charles Morgan.

ON UPPER BOUL MICH



Walter W. Ahlschlager, Inc., has designed the above Medinah Athletic club, to be erected within a few weeks at the northeast corner of Upper Michigan avenue and Illinois street, directly north of Tribune square. The total cost of this big project is estimated at $6,000,000. An architectural feature will be a golden dome 471 feet above Boul Mich. There'll be 41 stories.

Huge Cinema and Ballroom; 47th-Michigan

Chicago's fast growing and already populous colored section is to have one of the largest and most elaborate places of amusement in the city, a $3,000,000 project, scheduled for the northwest corner of Michigan and 47th. It will contain a huge cinema, within fifty or so seats of the loop's biggest picture palace, a ballroom, a 150 room hotel, and a large commercial building.

The playhouse, to be known as the Booker T. Washington, is to have 3,750 seats, according to present plans, with a possibility that this may be increased to 3,800.

To Be Artificially Cooled.

Max J. Schmidt bought this property, which extends from Michigan to Wabash, last month. Yesterday he sold it to the Lubliner & Trinz Theaters, Inc., and they commissioned John Eberson to draw plans for a huge Moorish theater, ballroom, store, office, lodge, and hotel building.

The dance hall will have a dancing floor 75x110. Both the ballroom and playhouse will be artificially cooled in summer. The office building will contain twenty-four stores, with offices upstairs arranged for doctors and dentists. The entire project will be fireproof.

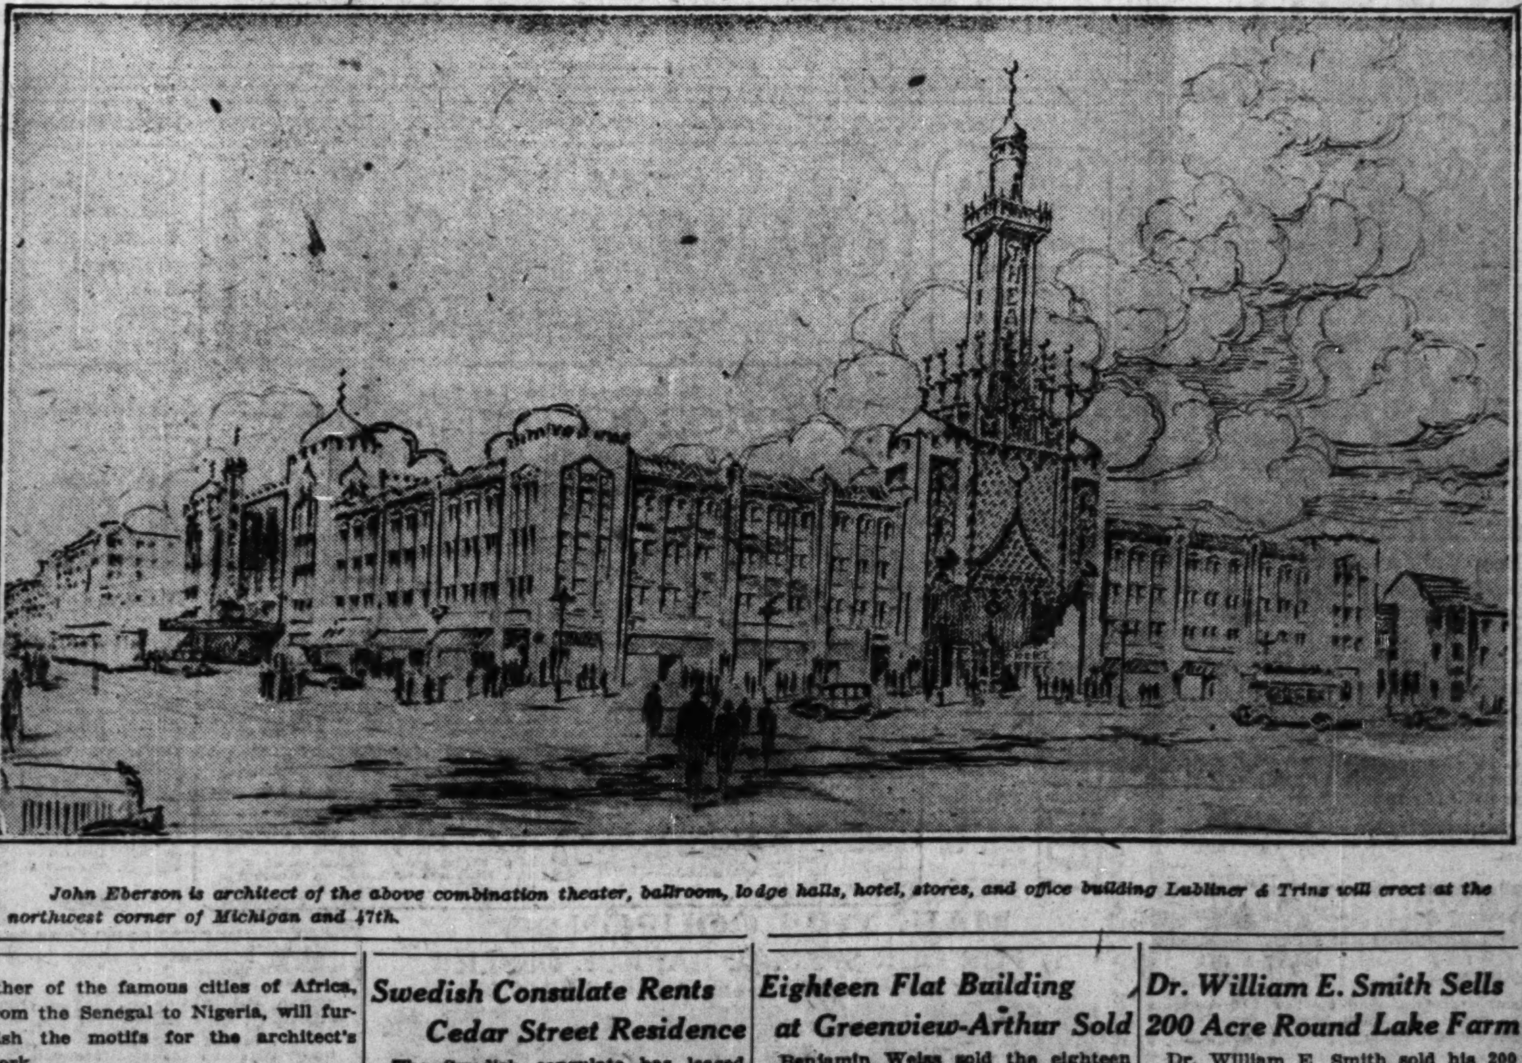
Back to Africa.

We'll let Mr. Eberson describe the architectural glories of this structure: "The entire building will be executed in Saracenic architecture, African architecture, whose fine specimens of Moorish decorative art are so familiar to the traveler who has seen Mediterranean Africa and those portions of the dark continent that are the original home of the colored race.

"The keynote of the decorative and lighting effects will be the crimson and turquoise of a Moroccan sunset, blending and yielding to an enchanting purple dusk. The show places of Zanzibar, Abyssinia, Fez, Durban and other of the famous cities of Africa, from the Senegal to Nigeria, will furnish the motifs for the architect's work.

"This building enterprise represents one of the most important and complete plans to concentrate and enliven the commercial and social life of the colored section of Chicago."

MOORISH-AFRICAN PALACE FOR SOUTH SIDE



John Eberson is architect of the above combination theater, ballroom, lodge halls, hotel, stores, and office building Lubliner & Trinz will erect at the northwest corner of Michigan and 47th.

Swedish Consulate Rents Cedar Street Residence

The Swedish consulate has leased the twelve room residence at 52 East Cedar, through Mellicent Martin, and will use it both as a residence for the consul and a place of business.

Eighteen Flat Building at Greenview-Arthur Sold

Benjamin Weiss sold the eighteen flats at the northeast corner of Greenview and Arthur to John A. Seymour at an undisclosed price, subject to $60,000, through John J. Kern & Co.

Dr. William E. Smith Sells 200 Acre Round Lake Farm

Dr. William E. Smith sold his 200 acre farm on Belvidere road, at Round lake, to Ferdinand Hotz of Glencoe for a reported $60,000, through Murray & Terry.

Plan 18 Story Apartments in Sheridan Rd.

One of Chicago's most conspicuous residential corners, at the southwest intersection of Sheridan road and Devon avenue (the short stretch of that thoroughfare known as Sheridan road) is to be improved with an eighteen story apartment building involving a total expenditure of approximately $3,000,000.

It is to be erected by A. B. Allen, whose offices are in the Metropolitan block, from plans by Frank D. Chase, Inc. The design calls for a striking use of setbacks.

The site fronts 146 feet on Sheridan road and 150 on the Devon avenue side. The property is across from the famous old white marble residence erected years ago by Albert G. Wheeler. It is just north of and adjoining the Devonshire apartments.

The new building will have eighty apartments with from six to ten rooms each. The project is to have many unusual features to be announced later, according to Mr. Allen.

SELLS FLATS AT GREENVIEW AND ARTHUR: $140,000

Benjamin Weiss has sold the eighteen flats at the northeast corner of Greenview and Arthur to John A. Seymour for a reported $140,000. The three apartments at 6336 Magnolia were given by Mr. Seymour as part payment at $95,000. John J. Kern & Co. were brokers.

Ridge Avenue Apartments Change Hands: $30,000

J. R. Moore bought three flats at 7234 Ridge from V. M. Burke for a reported $30,000, through F. W. Boston of E. A. Hastings & Co.

DESIGNS FOR FRONTENAC AND MEDINAH READY

Shriners to Start in Few Weeks.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Two of Chicago's biggest club projects simultaneously decided they wished to announce their final building plans and show the world what their club edifices would be like. The real estate editor of THE TRIBUNE tried to hold one or the other over so each would be given an independent showing. Neither would wait, though apparently neither knew the other was going to announce its final plans.

Both clubs had almost exactly the same space and prominence allotted to their original announcements some months ago. One is the Frontenac Athletic club, a Catholic organization, and the other is the Medinah Athletic club, a Masonic organization composed entirely of Shriners.

The Medinah is given preference in this story merely because its announcement is more definite and timely. The Frontenac hasn't yet decided on its site.

Work to Start Soon.

The big Shriners' clubhouse, shown in an adjoining column, will be erected from plans by Walter W. Ahlschlager, Inc., at the northeast corner of upper Michigan avenue and Illinois street, directly north of Tribune Square. Work will start when possession to the land is obtained, Jan. 1. Caissons probably will be installed within a few weeks.

Mr. Ahlschlager has made enough changes in the original design, printed in this section several months ago, to warrant showing it again. He describes it as "a tower of the orient, a Saracenic tower, proudly piercing the sky with its gold pear shaped dome and many minarets."

Will Be 41 Stories.

It'll be forty-one stories, climbing skywards 471 feet. Of course it'll have all of the usual luxurious features of the modern athletic club, and in addition 538 hotel sleeping rooms.

The Medinah organization, it was stated last night, has a membership of 2,650, with the limit placed at 3,000. Thomas J. Houston is president, Paul C Loeber and Edward H. Taylor vice presidents, Henry R. Kent treasurer, and Thomas E. Kennedy is secretary.

To Be City's Tallest.

In a nearby column on this page is shown the new design of the Frontenac Athletic club, by K. M. Vitzthum and John J. Burns. This supplants a sketch given in this section a few months ago. Three loop sites for this imposing structure are now under consideration.

The Frontenac will soar considerably nearer the clouds than will the Medinah, in fact, it'll be Chicago's tallest building. As the Chicago Temple's cross is just 556 feet above the loop, the Frontenac will have to surpass this. It will, according to Mr. Vitzthum. Its tip top piece of steel will be 557 feet above street level. This is two feet higher than the Washington monument.

The first thirteen stories of the Frontenac building will be devoted to business. The upper floors will be for club purposes. There'll be a chapel in one of the top stories.

Open Air Swimming Pool.

It goes without saying that the Frontenac will have every modern athletic club luxury and convenience. There'll be 400 sleeping rooms. The swimming pool will be on the twenty-fifth floor, or top story of the main structure, with glass openings permitting open air swimming in summer.

The directors state the club already has 1,000 founder memberships sold. The club's secretary, William J. McGah, and Treasurer Alexander L. Jarema announce that two new vice presidents have been selected: Thomas S. Hogan and John E. Maloney. Edward G. Dunne is director of organization work.

Tall Co-Op to Go Up Across from Cardinal

L. J. Mensch, builder, has purchased the famous old residence of Alvin C. McCord at 1530 North State parkway and has had plans drawn for a fifteen story coöperative apartment building, work on which will start in January.

The front elevation will be of Indiana limestone, of Gothic design. The building will contain twelve apartments, with a duplex suite on the two upper floors. They will each have eleven rooms and five baths, with additional maids' and chauffeurs' quarters in the basement.

The site, fronting fifty-five feet on State, looks east over the grounds of Cardinal Mundelein's residence. It is just half way between North avenue and Burton place.

According to Louis G. Sudler of McMenemy & Martin, who will have the exclusive sale of the apartments, the project is to be 100 per cent coöperative. It will be ready for occupancy about Jan. 1, 1928. The architect's name was not disclosed.

Standard Oil Buys Site for New Filling Station

The Standard Oil company has bought the northwest corner of Diversey and Greenview from Fritz Krause and Fritz Niemann for a stated $27,500.

DON'T LOOK DOWN IS WARNING TO ALL SKY WORKERS

Perils of Steel Men Told by Union Head.

BY THOMAS WREN.

JOSEPH CORR.

Perched on a steel beam twenty or thirty stories above street level, a structural iron worker never allows his eyes to wander toward terra firma. Once he does he becomes nauseated and is apt to lose his balance and plunge to death. The nauseated feeling experienced by the iron workers riding high in the air is the same as that of passengers on an ocean liner who gaze too long over the rail at the seas as the boat plows its way through the water.

On all jobs the erectors of structural steel begin their employment when the steel girders are fastened to the shoes on top of the concrete filled caissons in the basement and continue on until the steel work is completed. To these men the aerial work on the upper stories means little or nothing. But when an iron worker is given employment when the eleventh or twelfth story is reached it takes him half a day to get his bearings.

Many Die Annually.

"These established facts," asserted Joseph Corr, business agent of the Chicago local of structural iron workers, last night, "are impressed on the minds of all apprentices before they are allowed to do any work above the first floor.

"Virtually every large building in Chicago," said the union leader, "is a monument to some iron workers, as on most of them one or more has been killed in discharge of duty. It's safe to say there are between 15 and 20 structural iron workers killed in Chicago every year and between 300 and 400 injured annually; many of the latter become hopelessly crippled, while some recover sufficiently to resume work.

Few Carry Insurance.

"The trade of erecting structural steel is classed in the ultra hazardous group of occupations by the insurance companies and but few of the men engaged in the work carry insurance because of the exorbitant rates. To men injured the union pays $10 a week for twelve weeks and from $100 to $400 in case of death.

"The only real protection for iron workers comes through the compensation law, which provides an insurance of about $3,500 in case of death. For the insurance carried in accordance with the compensation act employers pay from 18 cents to 25 cents on the dollar."

Federation Corporation Expands.

William Maloney, secretary of the Illinois Federation corporation, announced last night that the board of directors of the organization had increased the capital of the company from $550,000 to $1,100,000. The Federation corporation was launched by the Chicago Building Trades council last March for the purpose of financing home building for the organized wage earners in the city and suburbs.

"Since the company was launched its activities centered largely on the building of small homes," said Mr. Maloney.

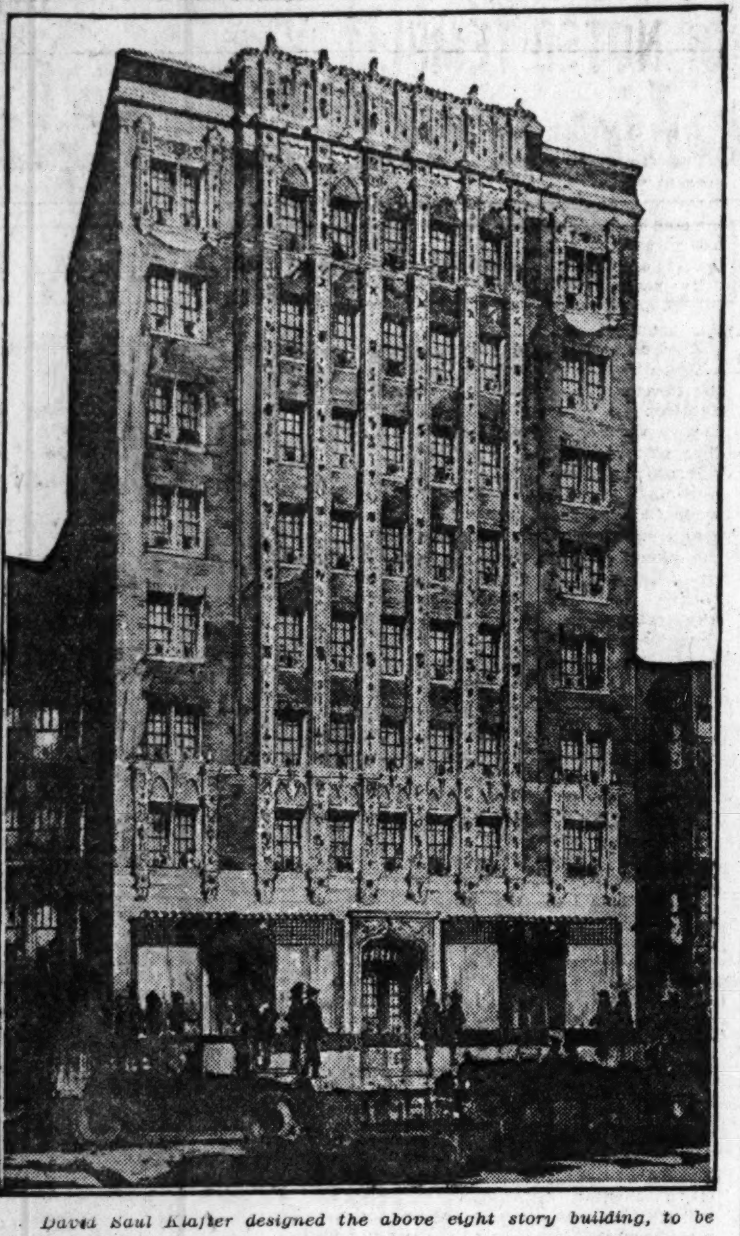
Workers Tire of Flats.

"Next year the directors of the company plan to enlarge the scope of its activities and finance some of the larger types of construction.

"Next year the Illinois Federation corporation expects to do at least a $1,000,000 business. Money for home building is loaned to all wage earners, the only string attached being the provision that from the basement to garret all work must be done on a 100 per cent union basis."

Last week William J. Lynch, formerly vice president of the Thompson-Starrett Construction company, announced the formation of his own company under the name of W. J. Lynch company. The offices of the Lynch Construction company are located at 844 Rush street.

ON SHERIDAN ROAD



David Saul Klafter designed the above eight story building, to be erected at 4539 Sheridan road by the 4539 Sheridan Road Building corporation, of which James A. Bidderman is president. It's to contain 150 one and two room apartments, as told about in this section on Aug. 15. Bids are now being taken, with completion set for next May. Above rendering by S. Chester Danforth.

FRED M. CLARKE WILL SPEAK AT REALTY CLASS

Attorney James G Skinner is conducting the course in realty law every Tuesday evening. The Cook county real estate board has extended an invitation to real estate brokers, salesmen, and property owners to attend these lectures, which are given at the board rooms, seventeenth floor of the Conway building.

SOUTH CHICAGO HOTEL LEASE.

Jacob and Jeanette Distenfield have leased to the Exchange Hotel company the Exchange hotel at 2942 East 92d street for ten years beginning July 1, 1927, at a total rental reported to be $102,000. Aleck L. Bernstein of Bernstein, Zolla & Bernstein, and Peden, Kahn & Murphy were attorneys.

REALTY BOARD TO GIVE FARM CONTEST SILVER LOVING CUP

JOSEPH K. BRITTAIN.
[Walinger Photo.]

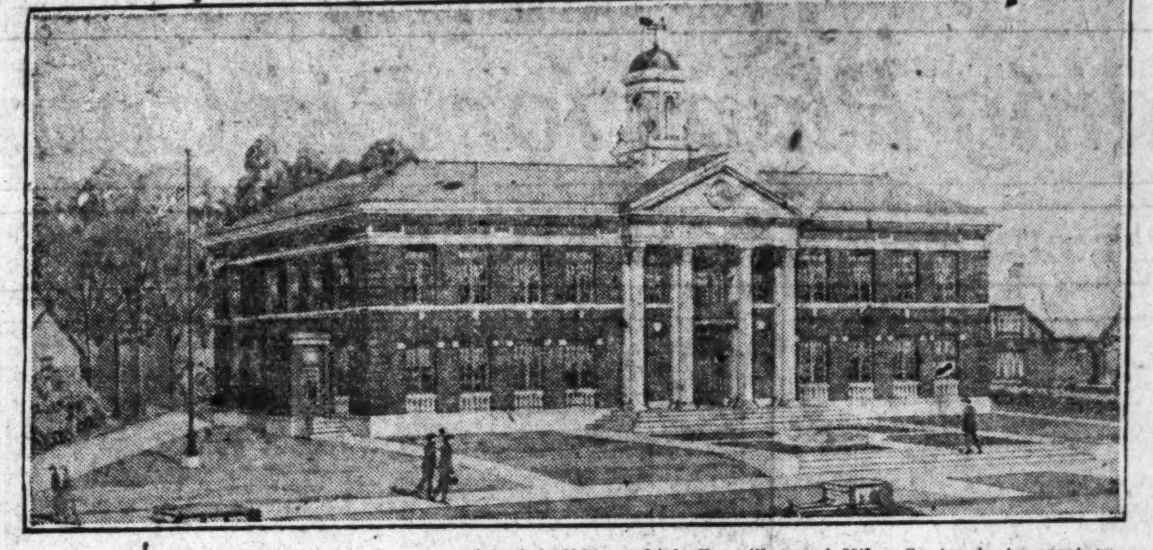
The Chicago Real Estate board is to give the silver loving cup for the best description of Illinois agricultural property for sale, announced in this section on Friday. This was decided upon when realtor after realtor asked if he couldn't pay for the trophy.

"This is the affair of all of us," said President Joseph K. Brittain, "and the Chicago Real Estate board will give that cup as a token of our city's vital concern in the farm lands of Illinois. This contest serves to bring home to our people the realization of the sound and permanent value of Illinois farms where crop failures are unknown."

"It's the daily experience of Chicago brokers to receive inquiries from prospective farm land buyers," said Henry G. Zander, subdivider and former president of the realty board. "But our business is Chicago property; we have no available machinery through which to put them in contact with the brokers and owners downstate.

"The Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards, in providing that contact, is rendering an important service to Illinois investors."

SUGGESTING NEW ENGLAND



Hyland & Corse designed the above municipal building which the village of Niles Center is to erect on Oakton street, just west of Lincoln avenue. Its cost is placed at $85,000. Work is to start the middle of October.

NILES CENTER IS TO HAVE MODERN VILLAGE HALL

Niles Center is to have one of the most attractive municipal buildings to be found in the Chicago suburban district. It has been designed by Hyland & Corse in "American Georgian" and according to the architects, will hold to all the traditions of the New England village hall.

The exterior will be of colonial brick, with Indiana limestone trim, with a portico of Corinthian columns and surmounted by a cupola. It's to be of fireproof construction.

The first floor will contain the clerk's and collector department on one side of a stairway and the police department and large cell room on the other.

The second floor will contain a spacious council chamber on the west and a large courtroom on the east.

The new building is to be on the south side of Oakton street, just west of Lincoln avenue. Work will start the middle of October. It will cost in the neighborhood of $85,000, according to the architects.

DE PAUL TO HAVE TWO YEAR REAL ESTATE COURSE

De Paul University College of Commerce announces a two year program in real estate in its downtown building at 84 East Randolph street. Land economics, real estate practice, and real estate law, together with such supplementary courses as property insurance, business law, elementary economics, and financial organization of business are to be offered. E. J. Queeny, attorney, who taught the real estate law course last year, will be in charge again this year.

Beg Your Pardon

Victor C. Carlson writes that he is not the architect of the Richton Park Country club, as was stated in last Sunday's real estate section. As this information was supplied by the club, we supposed it was correct.

L. A. Reinert, manager of the new Hotel Markham at Gulfport, a picture of which was shown in this section last Sunday, states that he has not been the lessee-manager of the Cooper-Carlton hotel for some time. Clarence Beck and R. H. Weaver now operate it. He adds that he is the largets individual owner in the new Mississippi gulf coast hostelry and will be vice president and managing director.

Time to Replace with CHICAGO FAUCETS

THE heart of a faucet is a valve—where washer and seat meet. When the washer wears out, your faucet leaks. That can be fixed by putting in a new washer.

When the seat becomes worn or water-cut, your faucet is done for. Have it taken out and put in a new one.

That's where Chicago Faucets save you a lot of trouble and expense. In Chicago Faucets the seat is replaceable just like the washer. Costs a few cents and can be changed in a couple of minutes, making your faucet new again.

Both seat and washer are located in a standardized, renewable working unit that can be taken out as easily as an electric bulb.

Chicago Faucets at every water outlet solve the faucet problem for the entire life of the building.

If your plumber can't supply you, let us recommend one who will. Call, write, telephone

EVANSTON ART COMMISSION TO BEAUTIFY CITY

Starts Campaign Against Ugly Buildings.

Evanston is going to be made the most beautiful city north of Chicago if the art commission of that suburb can accomplish it, states Thomas E. Tallmadge, president of that body. And the first step towards the realization of such a goal is to get after the people who build ugly buildings, says Mr. Tallmadge, who is a member of the Chicago architectural firm of Tallmadge & Watson. Miss Jessie P. Lacey, Mrs. Thomas Eddy, Earl Reed Jr., and Frank Cunningham are the other members of the Evanston art commission.

"Its purpose primarily is to advise, censor, or even veto plans for city improvements, architectural, sculptural, or any other kind, in so far as their artistic appearance is concerned," said Mr. Tallmadge.

Beauty a Prime Essential.

"It is, however, the intention of the city fathers, as expressed by the mayor, that the art commission will go farther and do more than this. The city has definitely embarked, through this commission and the Evanston plan commission, on a policy which officially recognizes beauty as a prime essential in every civic undertaking that affects the appearance of our city.

"That this is a most important act, filled with opportunities for a veritable renaissance, we are confident, but it requires the enthusiastic coöperation of every citizen. So the mayor has suggested that the art commission act beyond the strict letter of the law and use its influence, good offices, and technical knowledge to assist the people, if they wish it, to do their part in making our city more beautiful.

Bulletins to Be Issued.

"The art commission stands willing, therefore, to give its advice concerning the artistic aspects of any design for buildings or other improvements that might mar the city's appearance if done inartistically. This, of course, it will do without charge.

"It also purposes issuing bulletins or instructions to prospective builders that may guide in the direction of building beautifully.

"It hopes, in the future, to further and assist some of the many projects for needed civic improvements which have died a-borning or lapsed through lack of interest in the public or initiative in the promoters. Responsibility and opportunity alike loom large before the art commission."

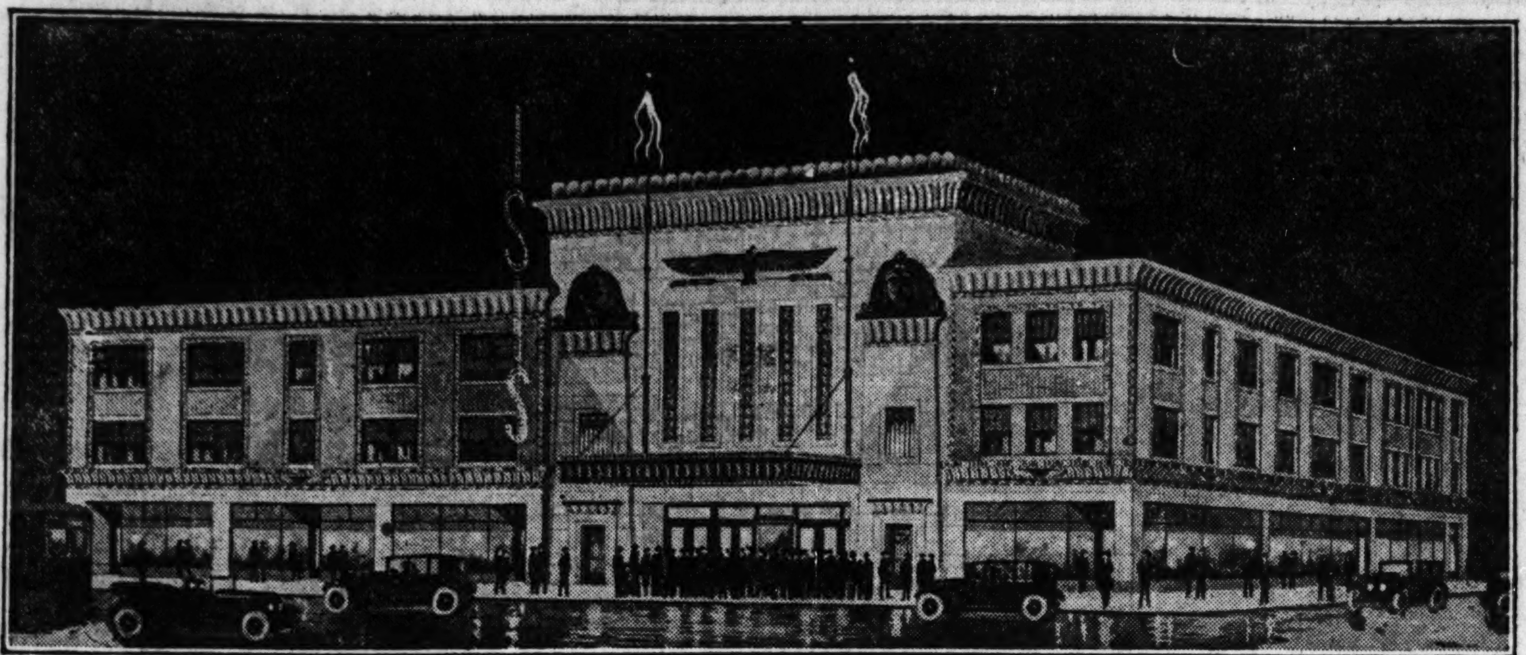
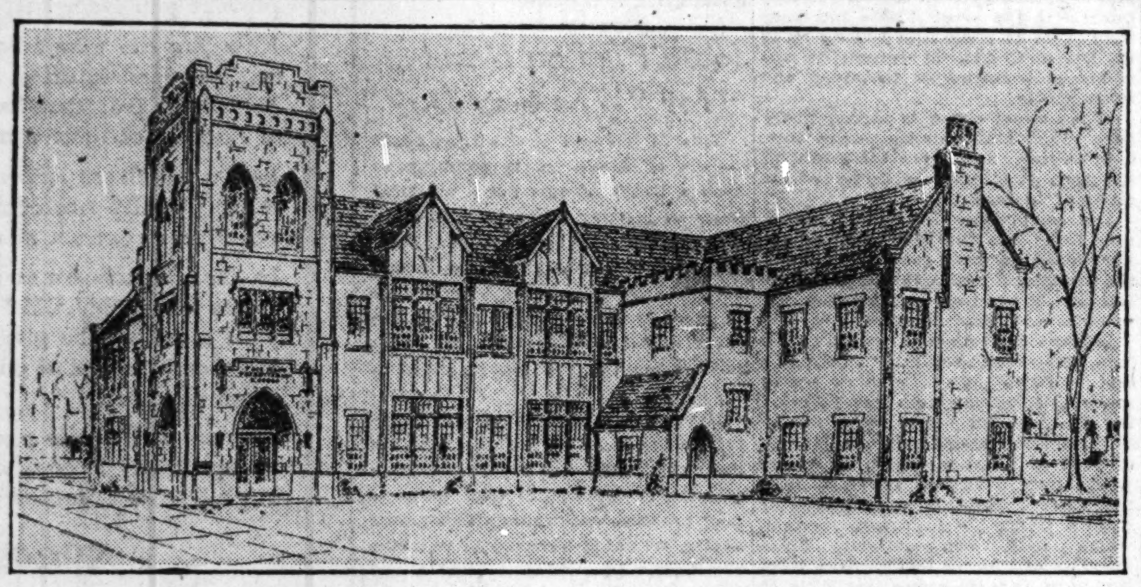
FROM THE NILE TO CHICAGO



Here we have the new Isis moving picture theater which will be erected at the southeast corner of West 69th and Ada streets. Z. Erol Smith is the architect who designed the building, which, it is said, will be a replica of the temple to the Egyptian goddess which long graced the island of Philæ, in the Nile river. The temple is now covered by the waters of the Nile. The movie auditorium will seat 1,800. It is stated that the project will represent an investment of $750,000. Rendering by E. L. Bloomster.

OAK PARK'S NEW PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH



This is the first unit of the Fair Oaks Presbyterian church, to be erected at the southeast corner of Thomas street and Fair Oaks avenue, Oak Park, as announced in Tuesday's real estate column. Herbert A. Brand is architect. The above unit will contain a chapel with wood beamed and paneled ceiling, a recreation and assembly room, men's club room, ladies' parlor, and Sunday school department rooms. The exterior will be of random variegated Indiana limestone, with some half timber and stucco. Stone tracery and leaded glass windows will be used throughout. The Rev. George J. Searles is pastor. A. G. Bryant is general chairman of the building committee.

BUCKLE, BUCKLE, BUCKLE! WHO'S GOT THE BUCKLE?

Four gold belt buckles are to go to the four golfers making the lowest gross scores and four silver buckles to the four making the next best gross scores at the Chicago Real Estate board's golf tournament, to be held next Wednesday at Glen Acres Golf club, one mile west of Glen View, on the Glen View road, according to Earle G. Krumrine, general chairman of the outing committee.

A provision of the contest, however, permits the holder of a silver buckle to challenge the holder of a gold buckle at any time during the coming year and if he defeats the gold buckle holder in a thirty-six hole contest, the buckles change hands.

Furthermore, any member of the board can challenge the holder of a silver buckle during the ensuing year to a contest at thirty-six holes. If the challenger wins, the silver buckle goes to him and the challenged golfer passes into the buckleless portion of the board's membership.

Playing at Wednesday's tournament will start promptly at 12:30 p. m. A chicken dinner will be served at 6 p. m.

NEW MOVIE IS TO BE REPLICA OF NOTED TEMPLE

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The dim past is mingled with this present flashy age in the announcement of plans for a new cinema for the southwest corner of West 69th and Ada streets. The theater is to be called the Isis and the inspiration for its decorative features, both exterior and interior, is obtained from an ancient Egyptian temple.

Z. Erol Smith is the architect who designed the building which will house the theater. Besides an 1,800 seat auditorium the structure will contain fifteen apartments, seven stores, and four offices.

But it might be interesting to go back in time a bit, even beyond the day when Chicago began talking about digging a subway. The goddess for whom the cinema is named was the daughter of Keb and Nut. Never heard of them? Well, they were Earth and Sky, rather important individuals in those days.

A Wayward Girl.

Isis, according to historians, was a somewhat wayward girl or woman, but the Egyptians thought she was just about all right, for they erected a number of temples in her honor. Among others was the famous one on the island of Philae, which lies above the first cataract of the Nile.

And ultra-modern Chicago, save for that aforementioned subway, is to have a replica of this temple in the new movie theater, or at any rate, as far as the interior goes. The original temple was erected by one of the last of the native Egyptian kings, a gentleman by the name of Nekhtnebf, who lived about 350 B. C.

To Cost $750,000.

It is stated that the project when completed will represent an investment of $750,000. It will be operated by the theater corporation composed of Charles Martin, H. McFarland, and H. M. Beal, or else leased to one of the city's theater organizations. Work will start as soon as the plans are completed and it is hoped to have the building ready by Nov. 1, 1927.

W. J. McDonnell of W. J. McDonnell & Co. was broker for both parties in the site purchase.

FARM AND GARDEN

Illinois Farmers Realize Value of the Legume Crops

Acreage of Soy Beans, Clover, and Alfalfa Increases.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

MINIATURE farm factories are working night and day in Illinois turning out fertilizer and protein, the missing link in the home mixed feed. Agronomists call these little factories, which include clovers, alfalfa, and soy beans, legumes. They do the work of the chemist and manufacturer in turning out products to feed soil and live stock.

By incerasing the acreage of these crops farmers are hushing critics who scold them for continuing to mine the soil in this country. Legumes help to add certain elements to the soil instead of taking everything out and putting nothing back, a practice that eventually leaves worthless fields. Hundreds of Illinois farmers are turning to them.

J. C. Hackleman, one of the most outstanding crop authorities in the country, says that the increase in the acreage of legumes grown on Illinois farms has been exceeded in few other states. As extension specialist at the college of agriculture, Urbana, Ill., he has been one of the foremost leaders in encouraging farmers to grow more soy beans, clover, and alfalfa. The acreage of legume hays in Illinois increased nearly 48 per cent from 1919 to 1924, an increase which was exceeded only by one other state, Missouri. The acreage of these crops is still climbing.

Figures Tell the Tale.

It takes only a glimpse at a few of Mr. Hackleman's figures to show how rapidly the farmers are joining the army of legume growers in this state. Soy beans have shown the most striking increase. There were only 3,000 acres of the beans grown for seed seven years ago. Three years ago the acreage had jumped to 218,000, the next year nearly another 100,000 was added, and last year there was a drop, but this year the gain which has been made in acreage will more than make up for the loss in 1925, according to Hackleman's estimate.

He points out that the acreage of soy beans planted this season would have been even greater if farmers could have secured good seed. His figures show that the alfalfa acreage has been tripled in the last six years, increasing from 88,968 acres in 1919 to an estimated acreage of 275,000 this year.

Sweet clover, the "camel" of the legume family, is the other principal soil building pasture crop that has shown a marked increase in popularity in the last few years. Despite the fact that farmers once considered sweet clover a weed, there are approximately 360,000 acres growing in this state today, according to estimates. Nearly 20,000 acres have been added this year.

No doubt thousands of acres will be sown within the next few years because of the improved methods of harvesting and handling the hay and seed crops and the increased appreciation among farmers of the value of the legume as a feed and as a crop that adds to the richness of the soil and increases the yields of other crops that follow.

Reasons for Present Condition.

Hackleman cites several reasons for the present increase in legume acreage. He says that the slump in corn prices following the war caused many farmers to turn to alfalfa, clovers, and soy beans. Secondly, the idea of home grown feeds has been constantly hammered away at by the feed and crop experts at the University of Illinois.

"The cost of shipping alfalfa hay into Illinois from other states has made the use of such feed almost prohibitive for many dairymen," says Hackleman. "Farmers have found they can raise their own alfalfa and make a highly satisfactory grade of hay for much less than they can hope to buy it. The increased acreage of sweet clover has been due to its value as a green manure crop for soil improvement purposes and because farmers have had poor luck with red clover. The point was reached where the high price of native red clover seed, together with the uncertainty of the crop, led farmers to look for a substitute. Sweet clover got the call."

Hackleman and his co-workers at first pushed the soy bean primarily as a substitute for oats and it still is being used for that purpose. Alfalfa and soy beans are both used largely as leguminous forages.

Looking Ahead.

Farmers will continue to grow soy beans as a seed crop, Mr. Hackleman believes, if the processing interests are able to maintain a price that will be profitable for the grower.

"The future of the soy bean as a seed crop, therefore, is going to be governed by the outlet for the surplus seed," Hackleman says. "As a pasture and hay crop the soy bean will continue to increase in popularity because the beans make a rich protein feed. They grow on land too sour to produce clover and alfalfa. This makes it possible for the farmer to grow high protein hay without the necessity of paying out money for limestone."

In looking into the future, crop and soil experts at the state agricultural college say that, despite the marked increase in the acreage of legumes in Illinois during the last few years, the thing is far from being overdone. They recommend that each acre of cultivated land grow a legume not less than once in four or five years—a practice which is far from being common at the present time. But some of the most successful farmers, who are cooperating with the college bookkeeping experts in working out the business records of their farms, are successfully using legumes every two or three years on their land.

Legumes are given credit for increases in the yields of other crops. One of the common practices is to sow white blossomed sweet clover with wheat and turn it under as a green manure for corn. When the weather is normal sweet clover turned under in this way gives excellent results, according to tests made by college experts. In tests made by Bauer and Snider at Carthage, Ill., sweet clover green manure increased the corn crop 62 bushels to the acre; at Clayton, 36 bushels, and at Hartsburg, 30 bushels to the acre.

Results on Eight Farms.

On eight southern Illinois fields where sweet clover will not grow without the use of limestone, sweet clover and limestone gave an increase of 30½ bushels to the acre. These increases vary from 14 bushels at Oblong to 52 at Lebanon, due, of course, to the combined influence of limestone and sweet clover.

When sweet clover is turned under as a green manure crop where corn is to be grown and dry weather sets in, the corn yield may be decreased instead of increased.

The combination harvester-thresher now looks like the best machine for harvesting soy bean seed. The use of the combined outfit is increasing in Illinois. It has been used successfully in Coles and other counties.

Legume hay supplies cattle with lime, an element necessary in the cow's diet. Dairy cows eating liberal amounts of legume hays show no craving for lime put before them in the form of finely ground limestone. The amount of limestone eaten by cattle where they have free access to it is negligible if they are given plenty of legume hay. Even growing heifers, which need comparatively large amounts of lime in building the bony structure of their bodies, eat little of the ground limestone where they have access to legume hay. This was shown at the state college by Nevens in his experiments to determine mineral requirements of milk cows.

Feed for Fillies.

Edmonds and Crawford at the university have found that fillies winter well when they are given equal parts of sheaf oats and soy bean hay supplemented with about one-fourth of a normal grain feed. In their experiments they fed the weanling fillies 8.05 pounds of sheaf oats, 8.29 pounds of soy bean hay, and 2.3 pounds of grain [4 parts oats and 1 part bran] a head daily. The second winter the feed consumption was 9.44 pounds of sheaf oats, 9.27 pounds of soy bean hay, 3.4 pounds of grain a head a day. These amounts produced good gains in height and frame and kept the fillies in thrifty condition.

Limestone is usually necessary in order to get a good stand of legumes. Lime applied to soil shows beneficial effects at least twenty years after it is put on the ground. Some farmers have noticed that they get better crops five, six or seven years after the soil has been limed than they do the first and second years after it is applied, where legumes are grown.

There are many varieties of soy bean grown in Illinois, but the hardier varieties are standing the test. The Illini soy bean, a new selection from A. K., a common commercial variety in Illinois, proved superior to all others in the variety test recently made by Hackleman and Burlison at the college. It averaged 50.9 bushels to the acre.

Records over a long period of years show that alfalfa is the most profitable hay crop grown. Its acreage should be multiplied in Illinois during the next few years.

Farmers interested in growing legumes, including particularly alfalfa, clovers and soy beans, should first learn the fundamental cultural requirements of each crop. J. C. Hackleman, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill., will be able to furnish free helpful information to farmers.

POOLERS' ELEVATOR

SOY BEAN COMBINE.

Iowa Pigs on Hand for "Who-o-ey Day"

John M. Evvard of the Iowa State college at Ames, Ia. is planning to have a bunch of pigs tell a practical story in hogging down corn to Iowa hog raisers when they attend the annual "who-o-o-ey day" at the school Nov. 12. He has eight groups of pigs busy in the corn fields on the station farm now and they will play their parts when the hog feeders come to town.

Evvard, who is chief of animal investigation at Ames, says the hogging down of straight corn without any supplementary feeds other than water is poor practice, even though well grown shotes, weighing 100 pounds or more, are used. Just what to add is the question. Farmers want to know whether soy beans planted in the corn last spring will balance the ration.

"Last year," Evvard says, "pigs hogging down standing corn and soy beans did not make 'hogs of themselves" as rapidly or as profitably as those receiving other protein supplements in addition to the soy beans. Will the story be the same this year when tankage is relatively high in price?" The pigs are going to answer that question "who-o-o-ey day."

COMPACT HOME FOR COUPLE OF WAGE EARNERS

Plan Tiny Domicile on Spanish Lines.

> Are you interested in home plans? "Small Homes" plan books may be purchased for ten cents at the Public Service office of The Tribune, 11 South Dearborn street, and in the branch in the lobby of The Tribune Tower. They will be sent out by mail on receipt of thirteen cents in coin or stamps.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Such a small home as this, with its three rooms and dining alcove, its tile bath and abundant closet provision, all included in a general overall of 24x28, is one which meets the needs of many married couples today. It is an evidence of architectural artistry bestowed upon the very small home, and a proof of what can be offered in charm and comfort at a minimum cost of $4,000.

It has been designed by the American Homes Service bureau, 537 North Homan avenue, Chicago.

Shape Is Economical.

Touches of Spanish ornamentation add to the dignified lines of the cream tinted stucco exterior. There is an ornamental iron railing in front of the window and red tile covers the hood of the porch.

The long front window with its small casement windows of plate glass has the Spanish arch. The house is more rectangular than square, but its shape is an economical one to build.

With the present day economic situation what it is, there are many married couples to whom this type of small house will especially appeal.

Not the married couple with children, but the married couple without a family, and where both are wage earners. Each leave in the morning and do not return until night.

Can Add to Income.

A small compact home such as this, with its floor space so arranged as to offer a minimum of labor at the housekeeping end of it, and yet affording all of the comforts and pleasures of a complete home with grounds around it, and individual living room, bedroom, kitchen, and dining nook, and abundant closet space and tile bath, is admirably suited to people who have neither the time nor the energy for too much attention to domestic machinery and yet after all desire to own a home of their own.

As can be seen from the floor plan the bedroom is completely cut off from the living room. If a young couple wished to add to the family exchequer by renting the bedroom they could do so. By cutting a door in the space at the side of the porch, perhaps adding a foot or so to the length of the bedroom, this room would have all of the privacy of a hotel bedroom, with a private entrance of its own.

Caters to Maturer Couple.

Or again, a home of this sort caters to the needs of the maturer married couples whose children have grown and left them. Many married couples, on seeing the last of their children leave home, try hotel life for a while. The woman welcomes it as a relief from housework and the man as a freedom from responsibility. The chances are the "old home" is much too big, and the care of it a real task.

A few years pass and you find that the husband and wife are looking around, obviously trying to find some house which "won't be too much work but will be like home again."

The living room walls are a pastel shade of sand finish. Sometimes in Spanish houses there is a noticeable similarity between the exterior coloring and the interior, such is not the case here, where the house, which has a Spanish exterior is strikingly American so far as its interior plan is concerned.

A room like this, in a home of this size particularly, is one well suited to a built-in bed. Until recently built-in beds were of steel, but now they can be had with wooden head and foot ends, which means that they can be included in a smaller area. Space saving is an important problem in a very small home, and the built-in bed is one way of solving it.

Labor Saving a Factor.

Labor saving is another problem to be faced, if the couple who own the home are both wage earners, or mature people, whose strength is not as boundless as it once was.

Oil or gas in the furnace, or an automatic, electrically worked coke feeder in connection with the furnace, contributes a considerable share in the general labor saving quota of a home, and furthermore makes it possible for the couple to be gone all day, and still have the house warm and cozy when they return.

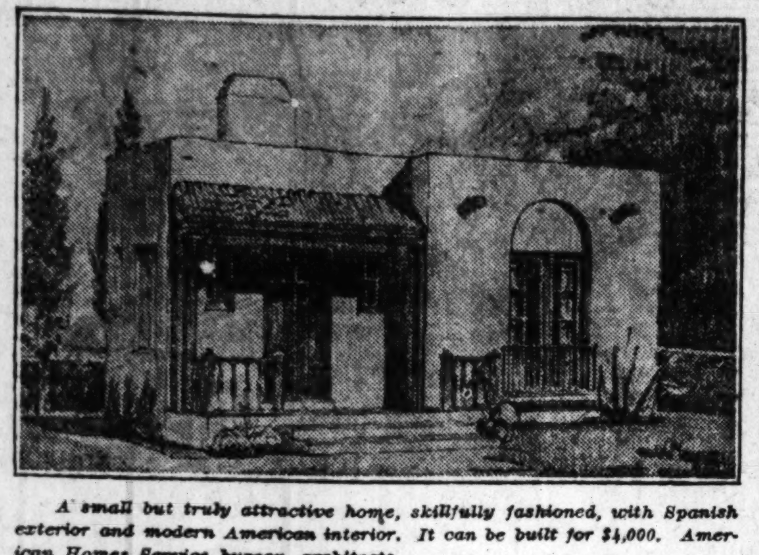
Kitchen a Tiny Affair.

The kitchen is diminutive, but perfectly equipped with all modern requirements. Electrical devices, installed later, would lessen still more the housekeeping duties of the mistress. The bathroom is tile with shower.

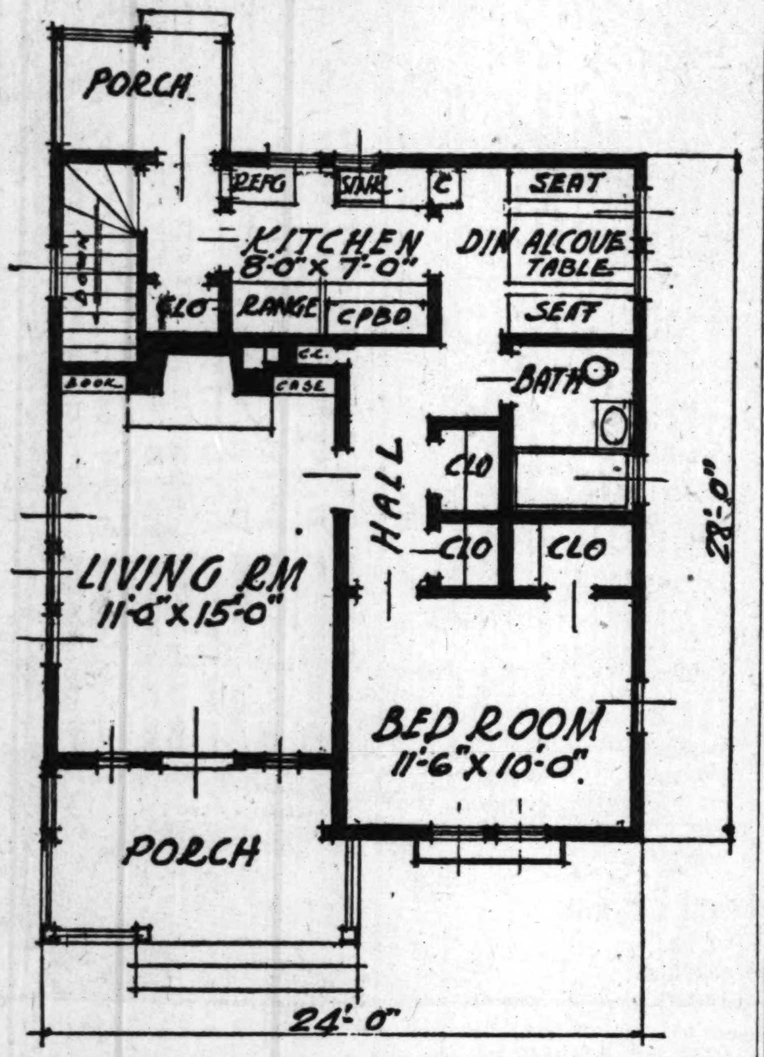
Every effort has been made to render the floor plan as practical as possible.

The three rooms and bath are placed around the central hall. The dining nook has a disappearing table. In the kitchen are built-in cabinets, ironing board, ice refrigeration, and there is also a closet off the kitchen entry.

DESIGN SPANISH-AMERICAN



A small but truly attractive home, skillfully fashioned, with Spanish exterior and modern American interior. It can be built for $4,000. American Homes Service bureau, architects.



LOOKING BACKWARD

To Sept. 26, 1916; 10 Years Ago Today

Dr. James Whitney Hall has sold through Paul Steinbrecher & Co. to John F. Riehle the residence property at 940 Castlewood terrace, which is a restricted street. The house, which stands on a lot 50 x114 feet, contains nine rooms and the consideration is said to have been around $15,500.

Ascher Brothers have leased the theater in the new building erected by Albert Fuchs at the northwest corner of Halsted and Grace streets, at the intersection of Broadway. The rent is on a graded basis, with an aggregate of $175,000 for the term. The theater is the largest in the city outside the loop, having a seating capacity of 2,500.

State's Attorney John J. Healy sold to Cora Belle Bullen 100 feet of property in Sheridan road, 304 feet south of Granville avenue, west front, extending back to the lake, for $15,000.

William T. Farwell sold to C. S. Woolfolk of Evanston the three story stone apartment building in West Jackson boulevard at Turner avenue, with eighteen apartments and 145x90 feet of ground, for $75,000. In part payment Mr. Farwell took the residence property at 4333 Berkeley avenue. Both parties were represented by John F. Wallace & Co.

Rounds & Wetten report having made a lease last week for Ogden, Sheldon & Co. to Jeffe & Pincus of the store and basement at 194-196 Fifth avenue for three years at a term rental of $10,000.

"We are having a fair demand for business property," said E. F. Keebler of the renting firm of Keebler & Co., "and the outlook for fall and spring renting shows a marked improvement over the same time last year. While we have closed a number of important leases in the wholesale and retail districts during the last few months, still, for the future, much depends upon the result of the election."

$270 PROFIT ON LOOP CORNER IN THREE MONTHS

Robert B. Brown of 2336 East 70th place calls attention to a "Looking Backward" item which harks back to Sept. 26, 1833—ninety-three years ago today.

"George E. Walker, who bought the northeast corner of Dearborn and Randolph in June, 1833, for $130, has sold it to Hiram Pearsons for $400, thus making a nice profit in three months."

This is the corner reported in The Tribune of Sept. 17 as having been leased by Irving Winter for 198 years at a term rental of $11,805,000.

Tribune Official Buys Co-operative Apartment

D. M. Deininger, auditor of The Chicago Tribune, has purchased an eight room apartment in the 100 per cent coöperative project at 1320 North State, through H. O. Stone & Co. He now lives at 446 Diversey parkway.

William Tracy Alden, attorney, has bought a nine room duplex studio suite in the same building. He now occupies a rented apartment in Delaware place.

CO-OP OWNERS BUY REMAINING FLATS IN EVANSTON BUILDING

Sixteen owners of apartments in the coöperative flat building at 800 Michigan avenue, Evanston, recently decided they'd like to control the sale of the remaining sixteen units and be able to decide who their neighbors should be. So they purchased from W. W. Tarr & Co. the sixteen unsold flats and will sell them to the sixteen families who live up to the imposing list of qualifications which the owners believe make for good neighbors. Albert Lake and Howard Ames were attorneys.

ON November 11, 1924, the firm of Collins, Murphy and Jackson, Inc., purchased 71 Frigidaire Electric Refrigerators for installation in the Barry Apartment Building at the corner of Barry Avenue and Sheridan Road.

And now Collins, Murphy and Jackson, Inc., have arranged to install Frigidaire in their two new buildings, the Seneca Hotel in Streeterville, to be opened October 1st, and the Cornelia Apartment Building at the corner of Cornelia Avenue and Sheridan Road, ready for occupancy November 15th.

Frigidaire was selected for these new buildings solely because of its performance in the Barry Apartments, where for practically two years of continuous operation it has proved its efficiency, economy and dependability.

The confidence placed in Frigidaire by Collins, Murphy and Jackson, Inc., is based on their own experience—experience that is typical of the dependable performance that has made Frigidaire the world's most popular electric refrigerator.

To those who are interested in refrigeration for apartments, homes or stores, the long list of satisfied Frigidaire users in Chicago and vicinity and the endorsement of more than 250,000 users everywhere should be an important reason for selecting Frigidaire. It means an assurance of satisfaction that only Frigidaire can give.

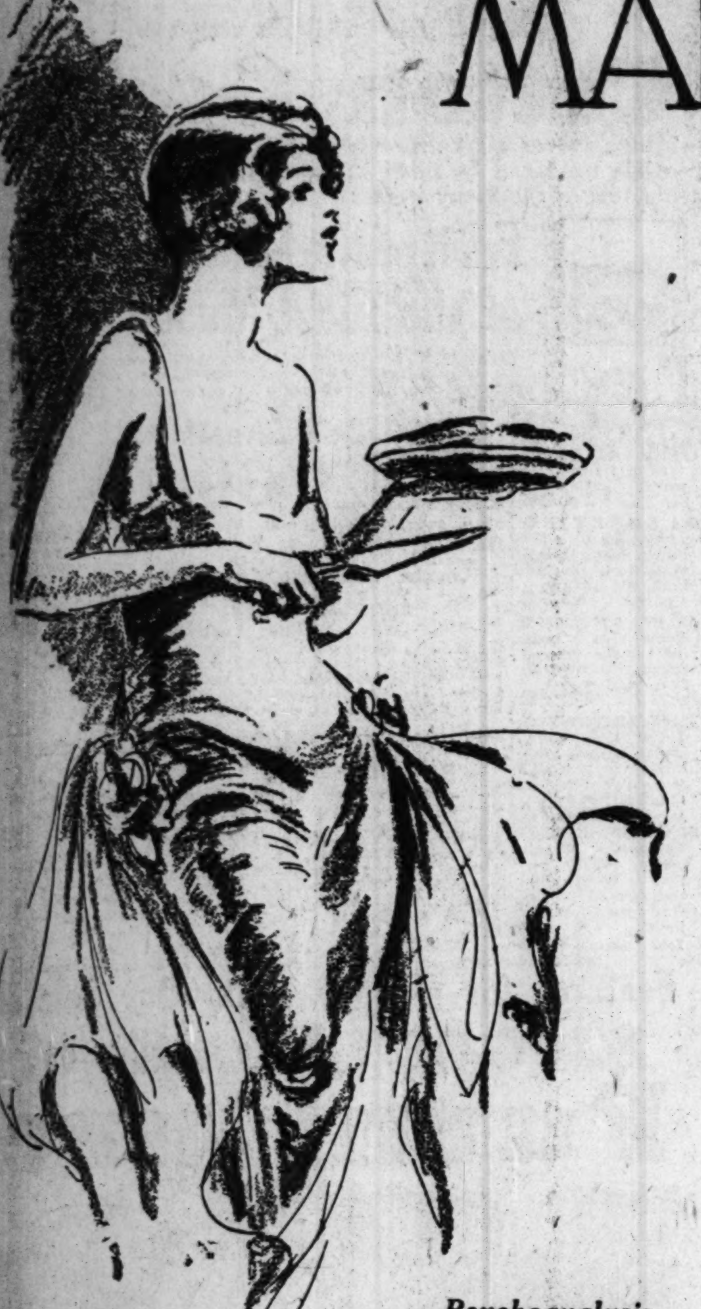
Woman's Section

MAIDEN MEDITATIONS by Sara Moore



Psychoanalysis.

They say a prima donna sings
More sweetly when her heart's in pain,
And a composer's masterpiece
Expresses love that bloomed in vain.
Romance and loss the arts enrich—
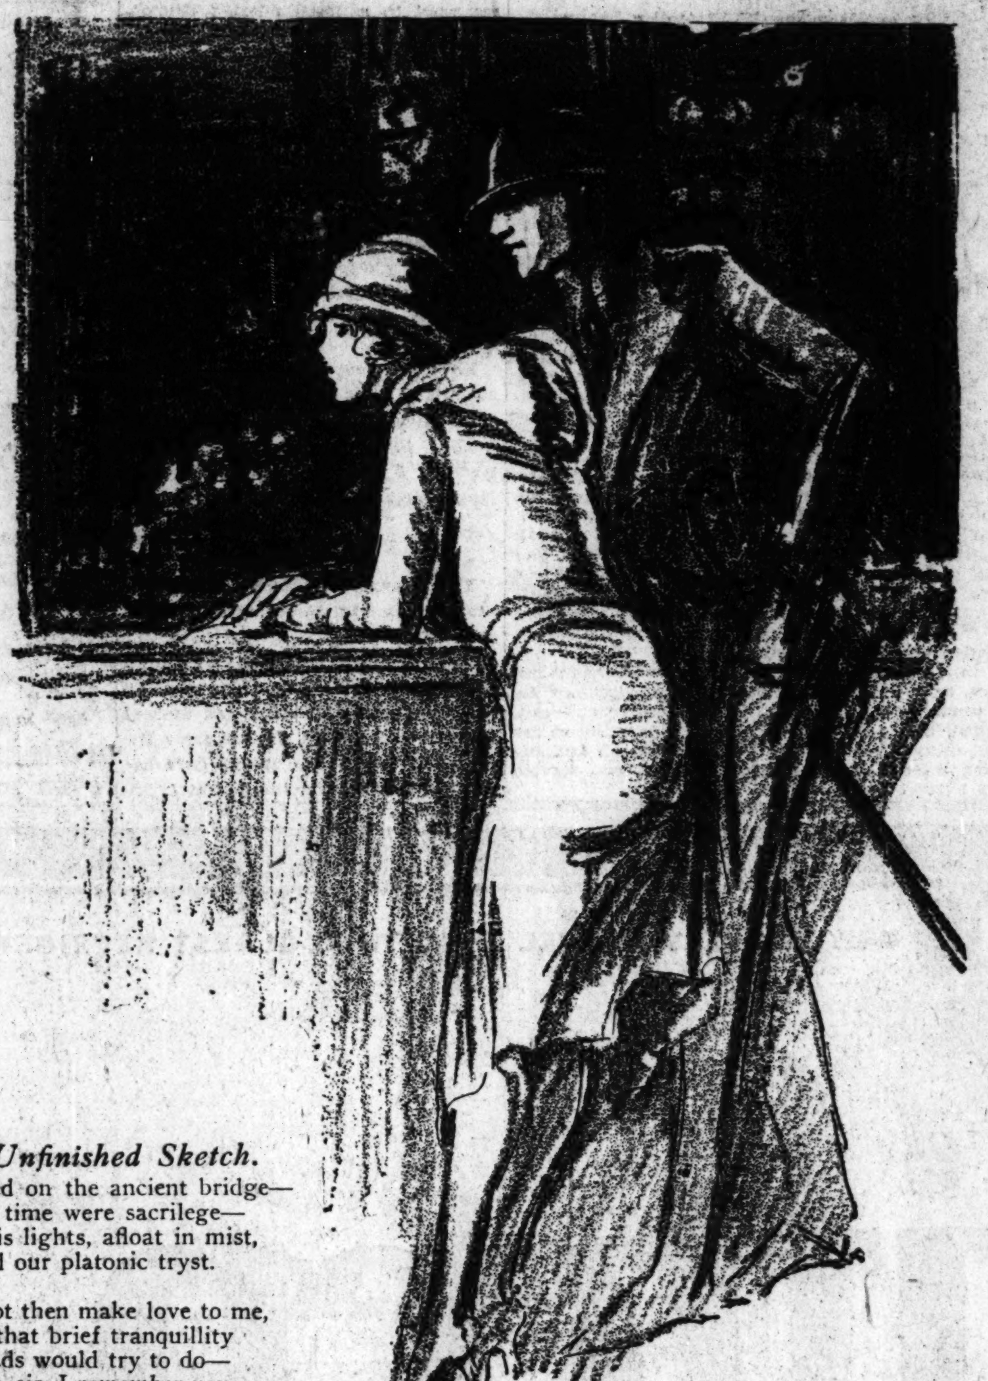
You'd find, if you should look,
This cherry pie but sublimates
The heartbreak of a jilted cook.



An Unfinished Sketch.

We lingered on the ancient bridge—
To reckon time were sacrilege—
While Paris lights, afloat in mist,
Bespangled our platonic tryst.

You did not then make love to me,
And spoil that brief tranquillity
As other lads would try to do—
That's why, sir, I remember you.

Between Lines.

Dear Sir:
Much fondness I compress
Within this formal, trite address,
Though it's not stressed unduly.
And when it comes to signatures,
Do you suspect how much I'm
" yours "
When I write
Very truly?

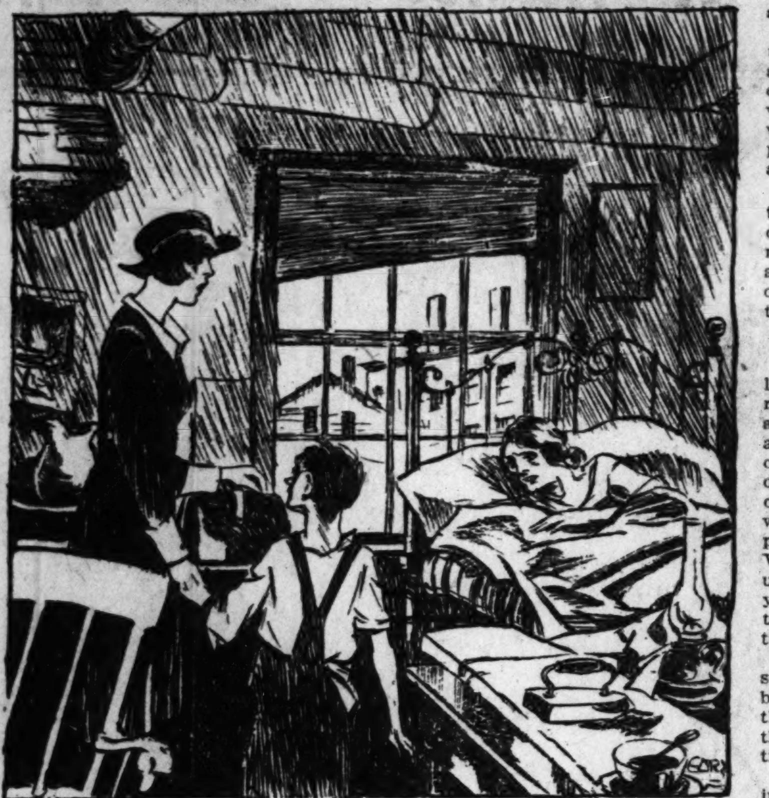
The Field of Social Service Work

By Georgia Bayne



THERE are a certain number of definite characteristics the girl must have who is considering social service work. That is, if she is going to enjoy it and make of it a real success.

Physical vitality comes first and foremost, for in most lines of social service work she is dealing with human beings who, through inheritance or environment, have fallen into abnormal states of living. Poverty, disease, erroneous views of life and living—all these she is constantly combatting.

Hers must be a keen power of observation, a stable viewpoint on life, and a friendly personality. She must be the kind of person who gains the confidence of others and has a genuine liking for all kinds of people—everyday people, who perhaps at heart are no different from you or me, but whose viewpoint and general standards of existence have become in many cases painfully distorted.

It is fascinating work for the girl with this instinctive appreciation of the other fellow's plight and a real desire to do what she can to better it.

Many of the problems she is called upon to help solve are emergent. She must act quickly and vigorously and kindly. While there is naturally a physical and mental strain accompanying all this, there is often also a consciousness of some real help rendered. This is the consciousness which gives strength to the many workers in the social service field, which makes them keep at it when outsiders often shake their heads and ask pessimistically, "What's the use of it all?"

As one wealthy business man remarked once to a social service worker who was struggling with some of the many problems back of the stockyards in Chicago, "You know your work is about as useful as throwing snow balls down into that place commonly accepted as under the world."

The optimistic social worker answered, "Well, if we throw down enough we may cool it off a bit, anyway."

Which, after all, is the attitude of the true service worker—the determination to do her bit, and make that bit count in whatever line she may have chosen.

Work with Associated Charities.

Usually larger cities are divided into districts, with a branch office of an Associated Charities in each district. From this office visitors each day visit the families who have sought their aid, or who have been reported to them by other agencies as being in need of the necessities of life.

While they give money and food to relieve temporary emergencies, they also strive in every way to remedy, as well as relieve, the conditions of the family. They find work for those who can work, free medical assistance for those who are sick. The charity worker must have a knowledge of the different social service organizations in the city where she works, so that she may utilize all of them she needs in her task of making her different families self supporting.

College girls are preferred, though there are instances of girls without university education but with intensive social service training of a year or two who secure positions with the different charitable organizations of the cities. The salaries, it goes without saying, are not high. No social service worker receives the proportionate salary she might expect in business or the professions for the amount of energy, brains, and talent for constructive work she puts into her job. The fact that she likes her work is a part of her reward. The salaries are livable, of course, but not large.

In Chicago there are several large charitable organizations, among them three which stand out most prominently—the United Charities, the Big Sisters Charities and Catholic Charities, and the Jewish Charities.

Work with "Misfit" Girls.

In dealing with the girl who, through lack of opportunity or training, has stumbled into wayward paths the social service worker may choose one of several branches of endeavor.

She may be a probation officer, connected with the juvenile courts, and have certain girls assigned to her to watch and to help—girls who, the judge believes, do not need institutional care if they can only have some real guidance for a little while in the community where they live.

Or again she may be an investigator for a public or private charity. She must have a thorough knowledge of the neighborhood where she works and the type of girl with whom she deals.

Still another line is the policewoman, working with the police department or with a separate bureau in close touch with the police. One of her main objects is to watch and to guard the young girls who are beginning to show signs of looseness and waywardness.

Salaries are variable and educational demands not standardized. Some organizations prefer college women, others do not.

Work in Social Settlements.

The function of social settlement workers is primarily to work with the men and women and children of the neighborhood in which the social settlement house is located, and to improve the health, happiness and general standards of the community.

Naturally the social settlement house is in a district peopled with the poorer of the working classes, often crowded with foreigners and with submerged native born Americans.

Normal, needed services are rendered in these settlement houses; services which the people in the neighborhood are too ignorant to perform for themselves and too poor to pay for. They include clubs for men and women, instruction and playground recreation for children, social classes for the young people, baby hygiene stations, clinics and dispensaries, day nurseries, kindergartens and home making instruction for the mothers and the wives.

It is a varied interesting life, in that it is lived among different sorts of people from those with whom the worker has been reared. To become a settlement house worker it is advisable to take a course at some university or social service school. The demand for community workers who are skilled in dealing with others and who possess a talent for really constructive service, is great. Salaries range from $1,000 up.

Child Placement Bureaus.

The purpose of organizations dealing with child placing problems is to find suitable homes among the more prosperous class of people for the many parentless babies who would otherwise have to be reared in orphanages. These societies usually have a few homes of their own which they support and where the children are boarded until they can be adopted.

There are investigators for these bureaus, as well as district visitors. These young women are naturally energetic and possess a knowledge of the city in which they work, its charitable agencies, its juvenile courts and judges.

Hospital Social Work.

In connection with many hospitals, especially the county hospitals of large cities, there are social service workers. These are to coöperate with the poor who are brought into the hospital, visit their homes, see that there is no destitution with the breadwinner taken away, and also to follow up the sick after they are taken home, watch their recovery and guard over their best interests.

The same sort of training holds for this kind of work as for court and charity investigation. Intensive training at some social service school fits a young woman to undertake any one of a dozen different lines of social service.

Probation Officers.

These young women usually work in coöperation with the Juvenile courts. Their tasks, in the main, consist of studying the youth of the neighborhood in the particular district where they work, bringing wayward cases which are reported to them into court, and watching after those girls and boys who are paroled to them by the judges.

Often a judge will decide a girl or boy is not sufficiently bad to be sent to a reformatory institution, and if he or she has some intelligent, sympathetic person to watch over him for a few months, the offense may not be repeated. Thus it is the duty of the probation officer to do and to report on the development of the young person to the court from time to time.

Playground and Recreation Work.

Under this heading is included the work such as is conducted in playgrounds, at community centers, at social settlement houses. Club work for girls and boys is also conducted, and the direction of the fun and amusement of the youth in various congested city districts is undertaken by trained and competent playground workers.

This line of work is considered vitally important by all social service authorities. Through its medium close contact is established between the workers and the young people. In this way healthy, wholesome amusement is provided, and much physical, mental, and moral good results.

It demands resourcefulness and training. The salaries are not fixed, differing in different cities and communities. They may be said to start at $1,000 and continue to increase according to the ability and experience of the worker.

Immigrants' Protective League.

Leagues of this nature are established for the protection of newly arrived foreigners. Workers in this field are constantly on the alert for recent arrivals, and naturally must possess considerable knowledge of places and organizations the city offers for their care. The task of finding suitable work for the immigrant is no small part of the task of such a league. While immigrants of all ages come under the protection of the league, the young girl and the young boy, particularly exposed to the dangers of the city, are objects of especial care.

There is also work to be done among such agencies as those which assist the blind and the deaf in learning to help themselves, teaching them work which they can do to become at least partially self-supporting.

Nor should the work done within the institutions of cities and counties be forgotten. Orphanages, homes for the friendless, refuges for girls, and girls' clubs where working girls on a small salary can secure good rooms and board for a small sum—all of these institutions employ superintendents and matrons, clerical help, and often young women to assist as managers, directors, etc.

Besides these there are humane societies, hygiene leagues, vigilance associations, and industrial service centers which all afford opportunities for the ambitious girl or woman anxious to identify herself with social service work.

Strange Weddings

Have you ever seen a wedding so outlandish that it upset all your ideas of the traditional ceremony? Some marriages are foreign and quaint in their adherence to ancient customs; others are ultra modern in their haphazard speed and unconventionality. The Tribune would like to know the story of the strangest wedding you've ever seen. We will pay $1 for every letter published. Address: Strange Weddings, Chicago Tribune.

A Mexican Marriage.

While visiting down in California we went to a small mission church. In the midst of the sermon a crowd of Mexicans came down the aisle. There were fourteen in the bridal party—two flower girls, two small children, who carried perfume atomizers; the bride and the bridegroom, a ring bearer, and another small child, who walked with him; then there were two older girls, dressed in pink, wearing large, fancy hats without any tops, two groomsmen, and, last, two more girls in deep yellow with tulle bows on their heads.

The whole crowd walked up to the altar, and after the sermon was over the couple were married.

That certainly was the strangest wedding I've seen, and it will be a long remembered one. L. R.

Determined.

The strangest wedding I have ever seen was one in which a sick girl got married. The wedding had been put off two previous times, due to the illness of the bride-to-be. However, on the third time the bride was dressed and lay down until the time for the march to begin. Her father gave her away in marriage, and immediately following the ceremony she went back to her room. B. U.

An Odd Combination.

This tale I am about to tell may sound absurd, but nevertheless it is the truth.

The strangest wedding I ever saw was in New Jersey. The bride was resplendent in green velvet and veil, while the bridegroom wore overalls. M. G. V.

Never a Marcel Wave

By Edna Wallace Hopper

My hair is ever curly, with never a Marcel wave. And it always has a glow. The reason lies in a hair dress made exclusively for me. It was perfected for me by great experts when I had my long hair bobbed. Now all toilet counters supply it under the name Edna Wallace Hopper's Wave and Sheen. The price is 75c.

I cannot conceive of a girl or woman going without it when she knows. No one who sees my hair will do so. Nothing else I have ever found makes hair so lustrous, so wavy, so fluffy, so abundant. My guarantee is enclosed with every bottle, so it costs you nothing if it doesn't please. Go try it at my expense.

RESULTS OF JEALOUSY

We're all acquainted with jealousy, the monster that smashes love affairs, wrecks homes, causes business quarrels, and generally plays havoc with us mortals. We'd like to know your most notable experience with a jealous person or persons. If you have encountered a situation where jealousy led to a tragic or ridiculous climax, tell us about it. The Tribune will pay $1 for every story published. Address Jealous Editor, Chicago Tribune.

Not to Be Outdone.

Bobby was 7 and rather proud of his maturity. But a surprise was in store for him when his cousin, Florence, a year younger than he, arrived. She was minus two teeth! This perplexed Bobby some and angered him a lot. Why should a girl, a year younger than he, at that, have two teeth missing when his were not even loose?

For a while he was sullen, and then he disappeared. Some ten minutes later Bobby reappeared, hammer in one hand and pliers in the other, face smeared with blood, but a happy grim showing that the two troublesome teeth were not. S. S.

Running a Race.

The most jealous person I ever knew was a woman who was my tenant. If I bought oranges she bought them. If I bought my girl a new dress she bought her girl one, too. When I bought cream puffs, sure enough her boy ran at break neck speed for cream puffs. When I bought a phonograph she bought one, too.

But when I bought a piano she could not afford to buy one, so she moved out. Now all our fun and excitement is over. M. F.

Tripped.

It happened quite a few years ago. There were only two of us left in the big girls' race, for we had raced to a tie. Crouching expectantly, we awaited the pistol shot to send us off. Bang! And the race for supremacy was begun!

On and on we raced, I slightly ahead and gradually widening the distance between us when, with a sudden spurt, my opponent, prompted by jealousy, drew up and deliberately tripped me. In a moment I was again on my feet, bleeding at the mouth and minus a half of my upper front tooth.

We are now dear friends just the same, but my opponent says she still feels like a murderer whenever she sees my front gold tooth. A. M. V.

Wrecking a Life.

Marie and I grew up next door to each other. She always had the most dolls and toys, and later, the most expensive dresses and jewels of any girl in our set. When she married Jim and came to live in the little house next door to me I was delighted. I thought the old good times would continue.

But she resented the fact that I now lived in a better place and had more things than she did. She would scarcely be civil when some friend would show her a new gown or some new furniture. But the final burst of jealousy came when she saw my new car. She made life so miserable for her husband, a quiet, dreamy fellow, that he had to buy her a more luxurious car.

When his employers missed several thousand dollars from the safe they had no trouble in getting him to confess. So it was jealousy that broke up Marie's home. I am still her friend, but some of the old feeling still exists, and so she turns away from me. H. C. F.

Hard to Forget.

My sister-in-law has always been jealous of me. About four years ago some friends of mine bought a new car and of course invited me with my family to go out with them.

My sister-in-law had a grocery store at that time, so I went in and asked her what she would suggest to take along for lunch.

She was so jealous because I was going and she was not that she said, "Take along some poison. I hope it rains so hard you will have to come right back."

After four years that remark still lingers in my memory. M. B.

Activities of Women

Mrs. Frances E. Whitely, recently made vice president of the American Forestry association, is the first of her sex to hold such an important office in the association.

The woman suffrage movement in Mexico received a setback when Senora Elvia Carrillo, first woman to run for a seat in the national congress, was defeated in the recent elections.

Municipal Judge Mary B. Grossman will preside over Cleveland's new morals court, which begins functioning in September. She is the first woman in the country to preside over such a tribunal.

Mrs. E. Lowe Gordon of New York City has obtained the coöperation of educators in several countries, as well as the French government, to promote world peace through an international girls' camp.

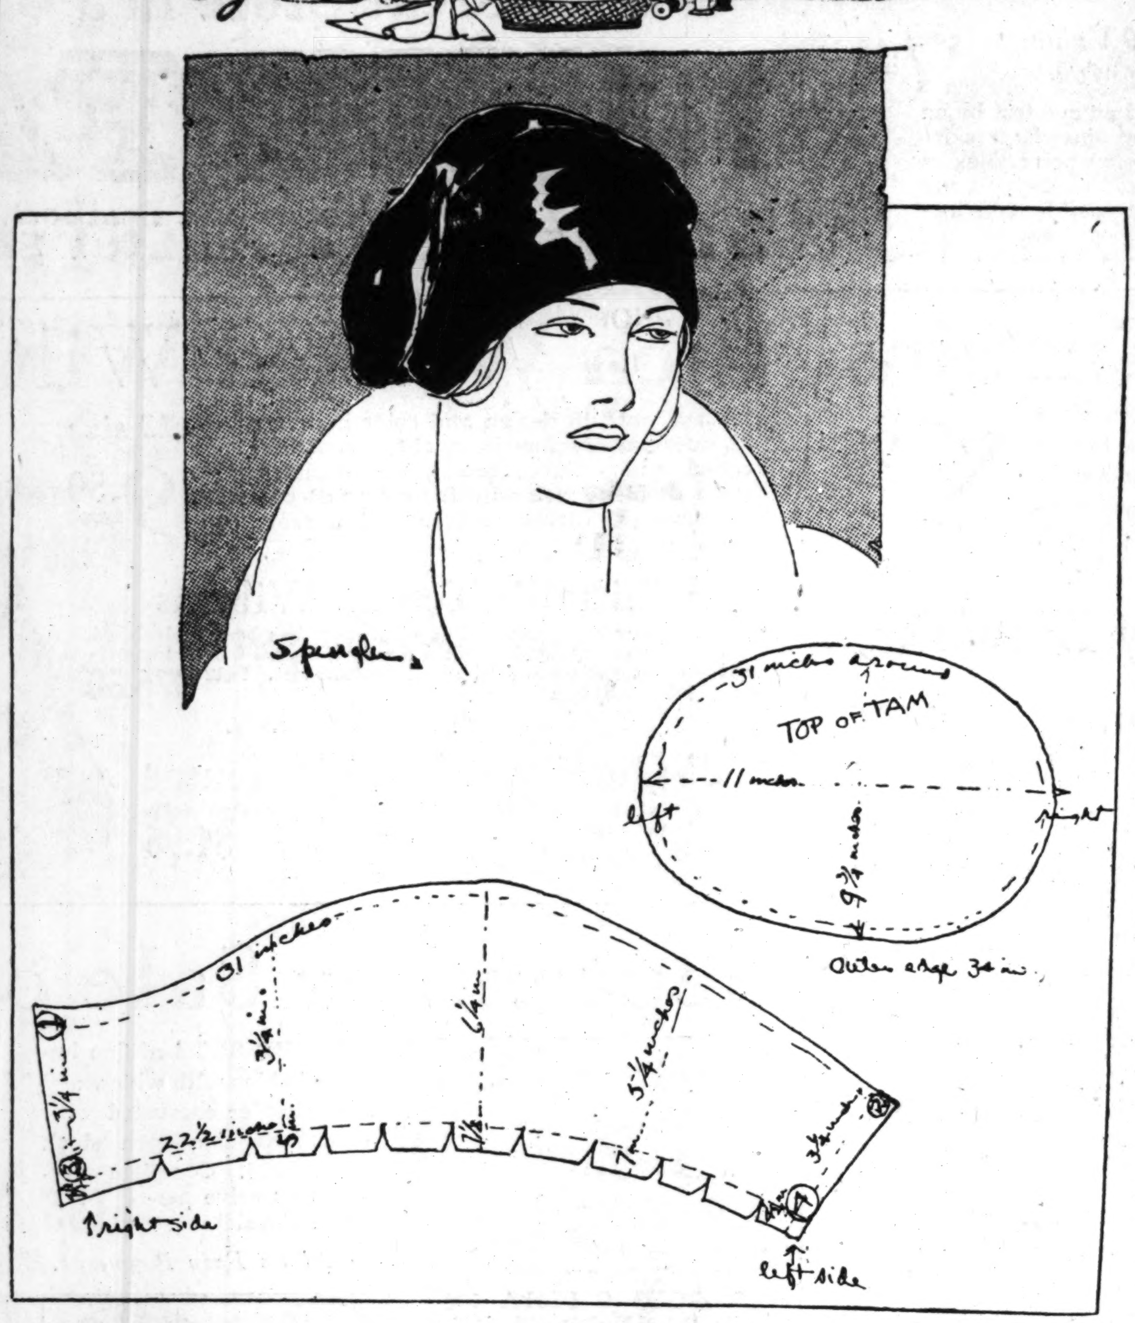
Practical and Fancy Needle Work

By Clotilde



Here's the Way to Make the Ever Popular Tam-o-Shanter; And the Material? Velvet.

What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework write to Clotilde. The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope, if a personal reply is desired.

If the measurements and instructions given in this article are followed closely no trouble will be had in getting a good pattern for a tam-o-shanter, so popular this season. From point one to two on the outer edge is thirty-one inches, allowing one-half inch for seams at both ends. The lower line [three to four], which is the head size line, measures twenty-two and one-half inches, also allowing for a one-half inch seam.

Mark the center front of your pattern. It should measure seven and one-half inches from the top of the pattern to the slashed edge, but six and one-quarter inches from the top to the head size line, as the slashed edge is turned up into the head size. Both ends measure four and one-half inches deep, three and one-fourth inches from the top to the head size line. On the left side, half way between the front and back, it is seven inches deep, five and one-fourth inches between the top and the head size line. On the right side it has a small curve in it and narrows down to five inches deep, three and one-fourth inches from the top to the line described in the others.

The next measurements given are for the top part of the tam-o-shanter. You will notice the pattern is wider from side to side. It is nine and three-quarter inches from the front to the back and eleven inches from side to side. This circle measures thirty-four inches around.

After you have made the pattern from the measurements, cut it out of stiff paper so the edges will not get torn or otherwise lose their shape. Lay this pattern on velvet or any goods you have selected for your hat [notch the center front of the pattern so you will know it] and always lay the center front of the pattern on the bias corners of the goods. It does not matter how the rest of the pattern lies on the goods, but for well fitting hats it is always better to have the front on the bias.

Allow a small margin all the way around the pattern for seams. Join the back seam of the large piece on the sewing machine. Next cut out the top circle of the goods, put the markings of fronts, backs and sides together of both pieces. There will be a little fullness in the top circle, but this is to be held in when basting the two together. This is also sewed on the sewing machine. If the material used is velvet, run the seam over the edge of a hot flatiron, but if other material is being used the iron can be used to press the seam.

Make a head size band of bias canvas two inches wide, double. Make this to fit the wearer's head, join in back, put the bottom edge of this band on the line marked head size, turn the slashes into the head size and sew them to this bias headsize band.

In adjusting the tam to the wearer's head leave it high in front and on the left side. Put a plait on the right side back and bring it down over the right ear. No trimming is required, but if one desires any, a pearl or rhinestone pin is always attractive.

Bright Sayings of Husbands and Wives

The snappy comeback of the better half when cornered has often been a source of wonder to husbands and wives! The husband or the wife has come across with a bright saying that will never be forgotten by the other half of the matrimonial sketch. What was that bright saying, Mr.? Mrs.? Send it to us, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. Address Bright Sayings of Husbands and Wives, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Appearances Didn't Deceive.

Mrs.—George, you looked awfully foolish when you proposed to me.

Mr.—Well, very likely I was. J. A.

That Accounts for the Delay.

"What keeps you out until this hour, John?"

"Well, dearie, one of the men at the club paid you a compliment tonight, and I kept waiting and waiting to see if he wouldn't pay you another one." L. V. E.

Screw Loose.

The other day our little daughter picked up a screw which had been dropped on the floor. The child asked where the screw had come from and mother brightly answered, "O, that just fell out of daddy's head!" R. K.

No Desire to Be a Cop.

Hubby and I patiently waited on a busy street corner near home for the unending line of autos to pass by. There being no cop and no end to the procession I lost all patience and hotly demanded that we take a chance and break through.

Upon reaching the other side unharmed I said, "Never mind, some day you will be holding back the crowd, won't you?" meaning, of course, we would then have our own car.

"What! me a traffic cop, dear! Not on your life!" B. E. E.

Corn Fed.

Father, who is quite fat, is especially fond of corn on the cob. We were eating in a cafe, where the menu included his favorite dish. As father prepared to bite into the juicy kernels he remarked, "I wonder how they knew I like corn so well."

Mother said: "Because you look corn fed." B. T. G.

Everything for Nothing.

Idealistic husband—My wife must keep herself beautiful, be well dressed, economical, and a good housekeper in order to insure a happy marriage.

Now's the Time.

We had not been married long, and while I knew I had the most wonderful husband in the world, yet I felt it my duty to improve his manners. One thing which especially annoyed me was his habit of singing at the table. So, one day when we had seated ourselves and he had started in on a gay little tune, I thought the time had come to administer a mild rebuke and remarked sweetly, "Frank, dear my mother never allowed me to sing at the table."

Totally unabashed, he grinned at me and replied, "Well, you can do it now." L. C.

Dubious Answer.

Wife: How did you like my first breakfast?

Husband: O, the muskmelon was delicious. M. V. C.

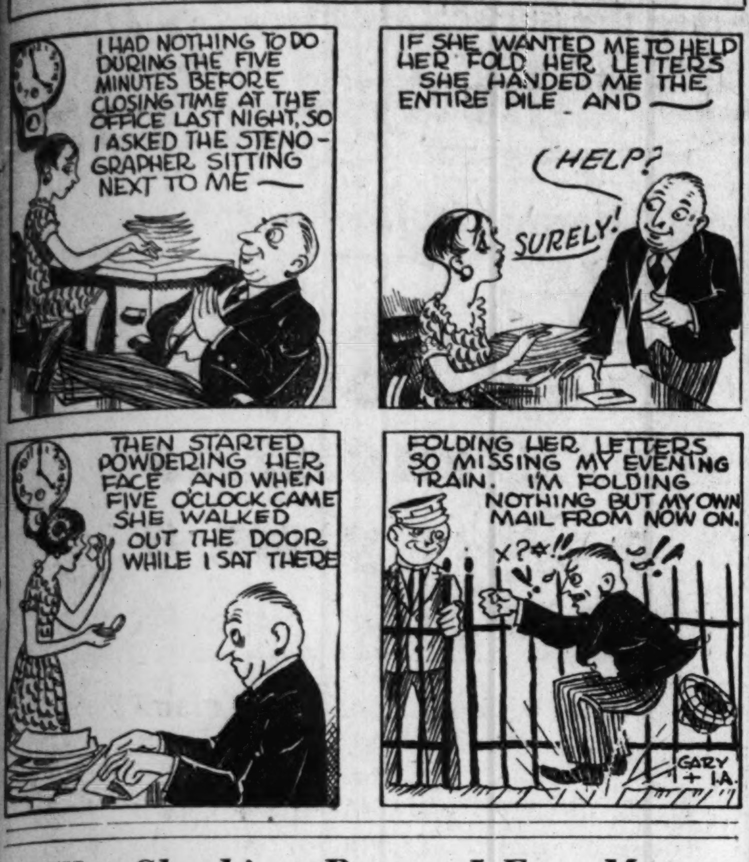
The Cheekiest Person I Ever Met



I HAD NOTHING TO DO DURING THE FIVE MINUTES BEFORE CLOSING TIME AT THE OFFICE LAST NIGHT, SO I ASKED THE STENOGRAPHER SITTING NEXT TO ME—
IF SHE WANTED ME TO HELP HER FOLD HER LETTERS SHE HANDED ME THE ENTIRE PILE AND—HELP?
SURELY!
THEN STARTED POWDERING HER FACE AND WHEN FIVE O'CLOCK CAME SHE WALKED OUT THE DOOR WHILE I SAT THERE
FOLDING HER LETTERS SO MISSING MY EVENING TRAIN. I'M FOLDING NOTHING BUT MY OWN MAIL FROM NOW ON.
X?*!!
GARY + I.A.

The Cheekiest Person I Ever Met

Send us a short, to the point, reminiscence of the cheekiest person you ever met, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. All letters must be addressed to the Cheekiest Person Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

100 Per Cent.

I am a salesman in a loop department store, boys' clothing section.

A lady came in recently and bought a suit for her little boy, who tried it on, and, as it was a perfect fit, the customer seemed to be satisfied.

But the following day she returned the suit and wanted a refund. I asked her if it wasn't satisfactory, and she said it was but that she only wanted to have his picture taken in the suit.

How about that for cheek?

R. L. S.

Light Fingered.

The cheekiest person I knew was a girl who went to dinner with my boy friend and me and appropriated the tip my friend left for the waiter while his back was turned. I witnessed the proceedings with the aid of a mirror while my friend helped me on with my coat.

R. P. C.

Asked for Seven Cents.

The cheekiest person I've ever known is a fellow I work with. He just purchased a new car and, being a next door neighbor, invited me to ride home with him.

When I was leaving the car he said, "How about the money?"

I said, "What money?"

He said, "Why, the seven cents it would cost if you had taken the street car."

Needless to say, I paid him and have been riding in a trolley car ever since.

E. J. H.

Refused to Reciprocate.

A neighbor has the habit of borrowing a number of my late magazines, and I thought nothing of it, until one day, at her home, I happened to see a late edition of one that I didn't buy, and said to her, "If you have read this I will take it and read it."

She politely said that she didn't care to lend her magazines. Needless to say, she got no more of mine. C. R.

Invited Her—To the Kitchen.

The cheekiest person I know is my neighbor who asked me to her daughter's wedding, a home affair.

She told me to wear a house dress so I could help in the kitchen to serve the wedding supper, as I was handy doing that work. I am sorry to say I had to inform her the night before that I could not attend the wedding.

J. B. R.

Hard to Equal This One.

A girl I know worked in a store in a small town. The owner's mother became ill and he asked this girl to go to her home and nurse her, as a trained nurse was unobtainable.

She went, nursed, and cooked, and kept the house for several days, until the old lady died. Then she stayed to put things in order after the funeral. She expected and received no pay for this.

But—imagine her feelings when she received her next salary check and found she had been "docked" for the time away from the store, caring for the owner's sick mother. F. G. A.

Cheaters.

One day a lady asked me if I cared to earn fifty cents by staying with her little girl that evening from eight o'clock until ten-thirty while she and her husband attended a party. I was a college student and gladly accepted her offer to earn a little money without being out late.

Eleven o'clock came and they weren't home; twelve; one. At one-thirty the arrived and told me they were sorry they had kept me so long but would pay me in the morning as they didn't have the change. One week later when the woman knew I was at class, she left fifty cents for me with my landlady, saying her husband told her to give me fifty cents for the evening. M. G.

Nervy.

I was working in a garage in my home town. Among the people I knew was a man who never bought any thing at home, but always sent away for everything.

One day he was unfortunate enough to have a blowout which put his car out of commission until he could get another tire.

He sent to our garage and wanted to know if we had a tire he could "borrow" until some he had sent for arrived. G. W. J.

Utilizing the Flowers.

Have I run across one? I'll say I have! The other day my neighbor came in and asked me for some of my prized gladioli for the church. I gave them to her, but imagine my amazement, not to say indignation, when a friend of mine told me that my neighbor had used them to decorate with at a party she had given. Yes, and she had left her own unpicked! E. R.

Expected Everything.

I had rented a house that was sorely in need of paint and I told the landlord if he would buy the paint I would paint it. So he sent to some cheap house and got barely enough, and then it was up to me to buy the brushes, which I did.

The landlord then decided to paint his house, so while I was at work during the day, he being retired and at home, would come and get my brushes that I was using in white paint and paint his house brown, and I would have to clean them all up before I could use them.

Wasn't that cheek? Mrs. R. S.

Ingratitude.

The cheekiest woman I have ever known was a new neighbor, who last year borrowed our lovely blue, almost new baby carriage. Last month I discovered it in our garage, minus three tires, and otherwise badly worn.

Our new neighbors had left it there, moved to a near by town, minus a word of thanks for the carriage and without bidding us good-by. R. M. B.

Was It True?

The cheekiest person I ever met was a woman who drove up in front of a drug store, honked her horn, and when the clerk came out she ordered a postage stamp and said, "Charge it."

Was this cheek? I. C.

MILADY'S EYES

Wondrous Witching Orbs Make a Girl Irresistible

by Antoinette Donnelly

Mirrors of the Soul, the Poets Call Them; They Are Also Mirrors of Health, and These Suggestions Will Help to Keep Them Bright and Lovely.

NEW YORK. — (Special Correspondence.)— Perhaps the most important factor in the makeup of the femme irresistible is a pair of wondrous witching orbs. Many a wary lady has talked eloquently with her eyes when words failed her, and many a man has lost his heart because of the light that lies, even though his head warned him against the wiles of femininity.

Be they wickedly black or innocently blue, merrily brown or pensively violet, the eyes have it! How often cold blooded jurymen are known to temper justice with mercy under the appealing glance of the lady defendant! How many susceptible husbands sacrifice cigars and cut down on lunches because they can't resist the charm of their wives' optics when asked for the price of a new hat!

Poets have sung of the sweet soul which shines through a woman's eyes, but whether they are true mirrors of the soul does not enter into the business of the beauty editor. It is enough to know that the possessor of beautiful eyes has an invaluable weapon with which to battle her way through a more or less practical world, and my aim today is to tell you how to care for the optics which have been allotted to your particular set of features.

Nightly Care Is Advised.

If there is no strain felt other than the natural tire after the day's work, there is no need of an eye wash. I do advise, however, after the nightly bath, applying a warm cloth to the closed lids, letting it remain there for a couple of minutes. This releases the eye muscles from the set position they have been in and rests them. Then in the morning, after the face ablution, repeat, using a cold water application to the closed lids. This is a tonic, and many actresses of the stage and screen who are noted for the beauty of their eyes testify to its beneficial effects.

If the eyes are unusually tired or weak, the following wash is recommended: Boric acid, 1 per cent; sodium biborate, 1 gram; water camphor, 60 drops, and three ounces of distilled water. Apply with an eye cup, which, as you know, fits right over the eye. Another excellent wash is boiled water to which a little salt—just enough to make the water taste salty—is added. The salt will allay the smarting which the plain water usually causes. It has the same effect as tears, the natural eye wash, which have a salty taste.

DOROTHY DULIN

Oculists have informed me that eye exercises should not be recommended promiscuously. One who knows the strength of the eyes should be consulted, for few can judge their own eye strength. And if they take up a set of exercises too vigorous for their eyes they may do considerable harm.

Flabby lids are due to a run down physical condition. Flabby cheeks or flabby skin on any part of the body may be attributed to this same cause. Naturally, the remedy is building up one's strength and toning up the entire system.

The condition of one's system may be readily surmised by examining the eyes. The floating particles frequently complained of are usually the result of a disordered stomach and constipation or kidney trouble. A yellowishness of the eyeballs is often due to constipation, sluggish liver, and too rich blood.

Dark rings and circles and bags under the eyes are matters calling for medical correction, except where the rings and circles are due to lack of sleep and anxiety of some kind. Bags under the eyes are indicative of kidney trouble and indican in the system, which is waste matter that should be eliminated.

Red lids are due to using the eyes in a poor light, long hours, late hours, which produce eye strain; reading in bed, reading in street cars, with the light away from the reader.

How to Rest the Eyes.

An eye rest that should be practiced by everybody several times daily is long distance gazing. Go to the window and look out toward the horizon for a minute or two every little while during the day.

The annoying crusts that accumulate on granulated lids can be soaked off with a weak solution of bicarbonate of soda.

Crossed eyes in the young may be straightened with glasses. Up to the age of 21, glasses and exercise may be used successfully, but after that an operation is necessary.

Eye strain is often overlooked in attempting to determine the cause of brain fag and nerve fag. A local symptom of eye strain is a sense of fatigue in the eyes, accompanied by pain in the back of the head. Another symptom is a feeling of discomfort in the eyes, accompanied by pain in the back of the head. A headache over the eyes is a frequent result of eye strain. The persistent occurrence of any of these symptoms indicates the need of examination by an oculist.

Brow and Lash Treatment.

Now, a word about eyelashes and eyebrows. Train the eyebrows by brushing for a few seconds every night with a tiny eyebrow brush, shaping them toward a slight arch in the center. A little vaseline used on the brush will help to make them grow, too.

The following tonic is excellent for both lashes and brows: Yellow vaseline, 2 ounces; oil of lavender, 15 drops; oil of rosemary, 15 drops. Mix thoroughly. Particular pains must be taken if you apply this tonic to your eyelashes. It will inflame the eyes, as any oil will, if it gets into them.

Answers to Queries.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

MRS. H.: The abundant eating of fruit and green vegetables, if persisted in, is an excellent means of overcoming constipation trouble. Ripe raw fruits and cooked fruits—baked apples, stewed prunes and figs—are good. Also drink from six to eight glasses of water daily. I have some exercises which are helpful for constipation sufferers. If you wish them, send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

FLORENCE: Biting the lips is what coarsens and thickens them. It is a disfiguring habit, you must agree. There is no remedy other than forcing yourself to stop it. You'll have to exercise will power.

MRS. J.: To overcome dandruff, you must shampoo the hair often enough to keep the scalp clean. Once a week is not too often, if the dandruff is excessive. You may gradually lengthen the intervals. Apply the following preparation every two or three days: Sixty grains of sulphur mixed with one ounce of vaseline. Massage it into the scalp with the fingertips. For instructions on shampooing send stamped, addressed envelope for my booklet, "Care of the Hair."

FRANCES: To reduce your ankles, you have to become an expert kicker. You must be willing to kick hard. Suspend a pillow in the doorway on a level with your shoulders and kick. Gradually increase the height of the pillow. Send along a stamped, addressed envelope for additional exercises.

SALLY: I have a list of foods made up giving the calorie values of them. They are the ordinary foods most used, with a few of the fancy ones, too. You will get the information you wish from this booklet, so send along a stamped, addressed envelope for it, please.

MOLLY O.: A certain amount of oil in the hair is necessary to keep it in good condition. It gives the hair a glossy and well groomed look. Unless your hair is objectionably oily, don't use anything to remove the oil, for dry hair is unmanageable and without luster. Send for my booklet, "Care of the Hair." A stamped, addressed envelope is all that's required.

WORRIED: The texture of the skin of the face depends mostly upon the size of the pores. In skin of fine texture pores are not observable. The size of the fat glands and their pores varies in different individauals, just as the fineness and quantity of the hair varies. That is why some people suffer from blackheads and complexion ills, while others do not. Send stamped, addressed envelope for instructions on how to reduce the size of the pores.

Pastry Making Is an Art, and Its Greatest Master, Careme, Tells How to Go About It

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

ONE may be justifiably tempted to go to the greatest cook of all time, Carême, and to the greatest of modern cooks, Escoffier (now living in retirement on the Riviera, we hear), for treatises on pastry. Escoffier says "pastes," and makes the word exceedingly inclusive.

Anatole France, in one of his famous novels, says that the great Carême began his treatise on fancy dishes thus: "The fine arts number five: painting, music, poetry, sculpture, and architecture, the principal branch of which is pastry."

The illustrations in my own edition of Carême certainly bear out the idea that pastry making is a branch of architecture. The first picture is of a building with a belfry and bell, with a cocoanut tree at one side, and a sort of rock garden and plants. There is a fence, and the door of the building has exceedingly prominent hinges, a ring to pull it open b:, and a keyhole. It is not at all like the witch's gingerbread house, but between the imitation timbers many almonds are stuck into the paste.

Most of the other pictures in this book are of single dishes, but the cases for hot meat pies are as elaborately decorated with cut out bits of paste as any cake is decorated by a master in icing. One sees such casings for pies in England to this day, and the molds for baking them can be purchased there. Other buildings pictured are a Turkish mill (a windmill) and a Turkish cottage (with six sides and a balcony, etc.). These are made of confectioner's paste. The Dutch hermitage is something else again. Musical instruments, helmets, crowns, diadems, terrestrial globes, a gondola, a grotto, love wells, trophy, pedestals and pavilions and pediments, ruins of Athens, ruins of Palmyra, an ancient temple and directions for making them. Pastry making was architecture, but it is an art whose disappearance we may not mourn—but it has not all disappeared.

Along with these fantasticalities Carême gives us recipes for ham pies, and of hot pies of many sorts, with a filling of fish, or game, or poultry. He puts the apple into many sorts of crusts, and does what some domestic cooks of his day did, makes them into a hedgehog. He makes a pyramid crust for asparagus, and when it comes to making every sort of thing that can be called a paste he does or did, and much of the work was of the most refined type.

Carême, in his book, "The Royal Parisian Pastrycook and Confectioner"—or in the translation edited by John Porter, who added to his name this: "Formerly cook of the Marquis Camden, subsequently at the United Service and Travelers' clubs, and now at the Oriental"—does not begin in the way Anatole France says, but the first part ("Of Paste in General") begins:

"The first grand object for our consideration is the proper method of making paste; for according to our skill in that important branch of the pastry cook's art will the success of our future operations mainly depend. Whenever the paste happens to be ill-prepared its bad effects will invariably appear in the baking." No truer word than this was ever written about pastry.

The rest of the paragraph reads: "If, even by chance, the color should turn out tolerably well, it will still be highly unsatisfactory to competent judges; in short, paste thus made will always be heavy, have an unpleasant flavor, and, above all, be very indigestible; and, indeed, it is owing to the general ignorance that prevails respecting its proper amalgamation that good pastry is so rarely made, and that the number of good family pastry cooks is so small."

Proper Amalgamation of Pastes.

There is the important thing, "proper amalgamation." How to get people to understand that matter, while constantly warning them to handle the paste as little as possible, is the problem. But one sound amalgamating squeeze, and then few more will do the work, and the handling has been slight.

There is so much that is fine in the next paragraph in "The Royal Parisian Pastry Cook" that we must quote it: "It is much more easy to bake pastry than to make it: the oven requires care, constant attention, and practice, it is true; but the art of making paste is quite another thing—an art that admits of no mediocrity: a good memory, taste, practice, and dexterity being absolutey necessary in that branch of the business; for it is really from the manner of mixing the various ingredients of which it is composed that it acquires its good or bad quality. This fact is unquestionable; and I can assure my readers that an industrious, clever, and enterprising young man, who has had the advantage of working in our best shops, will soon be able to fill the situation of pastry cook in a family, although he may never have attended much to the oven; for his pastry being well made, it only requires a hot oven and attention. Such, however, is not the case with one who has inconsiderately preferred the oven to the paste board; for although he may be a good baker, yet being a bad maker of paste he cannot expect to succeed in a situation where each branch of the business must devolve on one and the same person."

Cleanliness and Order.

The first recipe given in Carême's book is for puff paste and it, with comments, covers almost three pages. But just before this and after the paragraph just quoted there is this: "Everybody knows that those who have to prepare elegant viands must pay the most scrupulous attention to cleanliness and order. In a pastry cook these requisites are absolutely indispensable." These requisites are just as vital to plain home made pie making as to the professional's work.

Why Pastry Crawls.

What a time I had the first time I tried to roll out a pie crust, especially that for the top or cover. I was alone in a big house and adventuresome and eager to please. That crust would crawl back to half what the size it should be, and then when I had it on the pie, and it had touched the filling of mince meat, so that it could not be taken off and rolled any more, it pulled out where I had it nicely tucked in, and the edge of the pie when baked showed that there had been ample openings for the steam to escape, even though I had also tried to make a spraylike and ornamental exit in the middle of that top crust. My nice slits ultimately looked like pig's eyes, and of all the raggedy pies that was the worst. I was 15, and like many a woman much older, I thought I was through with pie making, forgetting that if you do not first succeed you should try, try again.

Escoffier on Kneading Paste.

In the first recipe given by Escoffier under "The Pastes," and one labelled "Ordinary Short Paste," he gives us the reason why pastes crawl. This recipe reads: "Sift one pound of flour over the mixing board; make a hollow in its midst, and put therein one-sixth ounce of salt, and one-third pint of cold water, and one-half pound of butter, well softened—especially in winter. Mix the flour gradually with the butter and the water, mass the whole a moment or two, and knead it twice. Then roll it up in a ball; wrap it in a piece of linen that its surface may not dry, and put it aside in a cool place. Remarks: A kneaded paste should be prepared either one day, or at least a few hours, in advance, in order that it may lose that elasticity which it acquires from kneading. Pastes, after they have rested a while, are much more easily treated, and bake a much more definite and lighter color, than those that are used as soon as they are prepared."

That word "mass" in the above recipe is an important one to note, whether we want to do the right thing in binding our ingredients for a pie crust or for a cookie. In a sense it is to squeeze, or ball, the paste so that the kneading can be right, but after the above recipe Escoffier has "The Kneading of Pastes," and says: "The object of kneading paste is to combine the ingredients of which it is composed thoroughly, and also to smooth it. Proceed as follows: When the paste is mixed, roll it into a mass, put it in front of one, then press away from one, little by little, between the board and the palm of the hand. For the paste to be perfectly smooth, it ought to be treated twice in this way."

A raised bread dough can be rolled out as soon as it has risen sufficiently, after the first kneading, and attractive crusts can be made with it, but if you try to roll it out right after any kneading you will have a hard time.

Raised Pie Crust.

We have had an idea that the use of baking powder in pie crust was quite modern, but in "The Temperance Cook Book," printed in Ohio in 1877, there is a recipe for "Raised Pie Crust" which reads: "To one pint of sifted flour add one even teaspoonful of Churchill's baking powder, and sweet cream enough to wet the flour, leaving the crust a little stifr. This is enough for two pies." Sour cream pastries are also good to use when the making of a regulation crust has not been mastered.

Pumpkin Pie Filling.

The pumpkin and squash pies belong essentially to autumn. The pumpkin has lost some or most of its former popularity because the pulp of this gourd is insipid unless it is cooked long and well. Wash and cut up a pumpkin into convenient pieces for paring, then pare pieces and cut them into sections an inch or so square. Put them into the top of a large double boiler without any water and cook gently until the pumpkin is dark and looks rather dry, then put through a sieve. So cooked it will swell in hot milk, and so fewer eggs may be used for a pie with it or none at all. Two cups and a half of filling is needed for one nine inch wide pie. The proportions of hot milk and pumpkin may vary. One cup of pumpkin and one and a half cups of milk will be all right unless the pumpkin is exceedingly dry. Then use less of it. If part of the milk is cream the pie will be superior. Use besides this two eggs and from one-half cup to three-fourths cup of sugar—to taste—a little salt, and spices to suit, but one might as well have a potato or a carrot foundation if so much spice is used to kill the taste of the pumpkin, which is somewhat caramelized by long cooking. One-fourth teaspoon of cinnamon and a few grates of nutmeg will not obliterate pumpkin flavor. Make the crust, fill partly, and add the rest of the filling when the pie is in the oven. The oven may be hot at first, but finally not so hot that the filling will boil. If it boils the pie will be watery, like any custard.

One Crust.

For a small deep pie, with a fluted wall of crust, the following is sufficient: three-fourths cup sifted pastry flour, one tablespoon each of sweet butter and lard, a bit of salt and enough ice water to make a soft dough that will roll out thin, three or four tablespoons. Chop the shortening into the flour with a biscuit cutter, then make into a cone and indent. Put water in this indentation, so wetting only part of the mixture. Work the rest into it quickly and lightly, and mass into a ball with the hands. Let it stand on ice for at least fifteen minutes before trying to roll it.

Squash Pie Filling.

Put two cups of mashed and rather dry Hubbard squash through a fine sieve, add a half teaspoon of cinnamon, a quarter teaspoon of ginger, a half teaspoon of salt, or a little more, to taste: a little grated nutmeg, and from one-half to one cup of sugar, according to taste. Mix thoroughly. Scald one pint of milk, adding to it while it is hot one or two tablespoons of butter. Add the milk to the seasoned squash, and when the whole has cooled add two well beaten eggs. Pour this filling into a deep pie tin, lined and walled with crust, or with a pinched up edge. Add the last of the filling when the pie is in the oven because the pie is best if the filling comes almost to the top of the built up wall. Bake at least forty-five minutes, starting with a hot oven, but lower the heat before the filling can boil. Pumpkin pie can be made by this same recipe, but more milk is usually required than when the squash is used.

Crustless Pies.

Crustless pies can be made with pumpkin, chocolate, and so forth, but the following furnishes a good model, and we never tire of mentioning the fact that it came to us labeled, "A pie intelligent enough to make its own crust": Three eggs, three-fourths cup sugar, a little salt, one-half cup graham flour, two cups milk, one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon, one tabespoon cocoanut. Separate the whites of two eggs from the yolks and use them for a meringue. Beat the yolks and the other egg in a mixing bowl. Add one-half cup sugar, a small pinch of salt, and one-half cup graham flour, and mix well. Then add the two cups of milk and stir well. Butter a pie pan and pour in the mixture, then sprinkle with a little cinnamon and bake twenty-five minutes. Beat the two whites of eggs with two tablespoons of sugar, put over the baked pie, sprinkle with cocoanut, and brown. Of course, the latter ingredient is not essential.

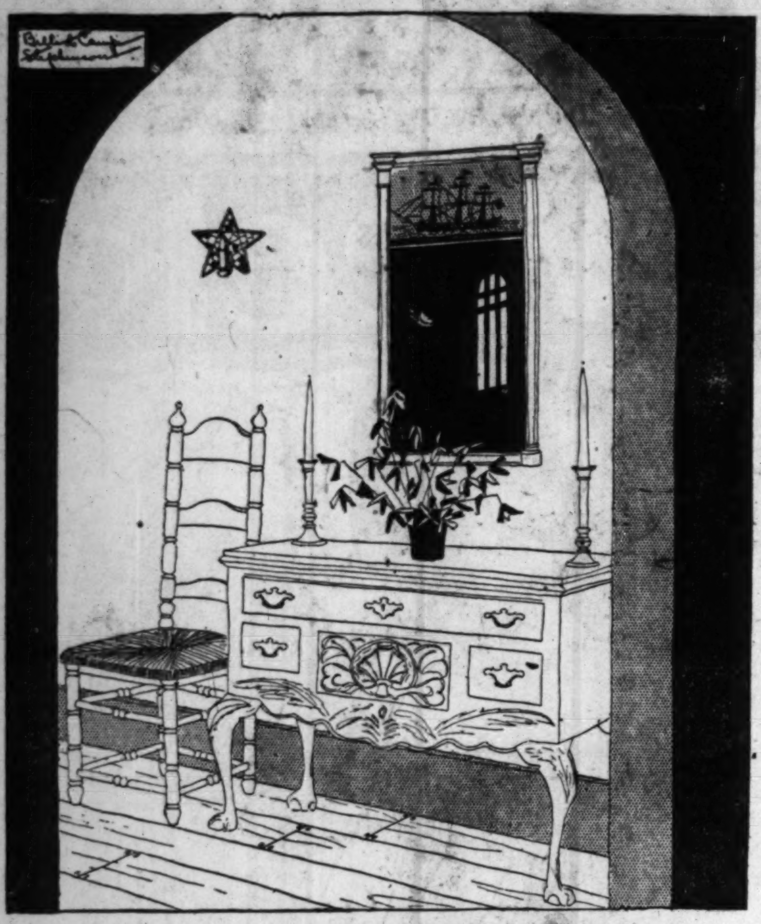
The Home Harmonious



A mahogany lowboy lends interest to this hall.

This 17th Century New England Home Is a Perfect Example of the Charm of Early American Furnishings

THE early American style of furnishing is having a widespread revival in practically all parts of the country. In some sections this "revival" has been enjoyed for many years, while in others it is only now reaching its height. Many of us, of course, can afford neither time [for it takes a deal of searching and shopping about] nor money to furnish our homes completely with real, old pieces of early American furniture. However, some of our most reliable manufacturers are making a specialty today of producing copies of authentic pieces, well within the means of limited pocketbooks. After a study of the actual pieces, either in themselves or through books and magazines, it is possible for us, with these reproductions, to attain the effect of an early American interior, with all of its graceful charm and color.

A truly lovely example, by which we might pattern, is a little New England house built in the seventeenth century! It has been kept in repair lovingly by generations of the same family to whom it has always belonged, and is delightfully furnished throughout with early colonial furniture. In the small entrance hall, shown in today's illustration, the walls and woodwork are old ivory. A carved mahogany lowboy and a pair of rush bottom, ladder back chairs are the only furnishings. On the lowboy is a deep, sapphire blue glass vase, filled with flowers, in season, from the little New England garden. A pair of pewter candlesticks is fitted with ivory candles. Above the lowboy hangs a mirror in a dignified old gold frame, with the upper panel filled by a painting of a ship which belonged to one of the former owners of the house. Over each ladder back chair is a star-shaped, mirrored sconce, brought down from olden days, but fitted with an electric candle to meet modern requirements. The center light, too, placed close to the ceiling, is star-shaped, of leaded glass. An interesting feature is the wide plank floor, put together by means of wooden pegs instead of nails.

In the living room the woodwork and wainscoting are ivory. Unusually effective is a pale gray wall paper, marked off into large diamonds by deeper gray and jade green lines. In the center of each diamond a small, old fashioned scenic motif is painted. At the windows are ivory net glass curtains with draperies of changeable jade green and gold taffeta, lined with ivory sateen and finished with narrow gold colored upholsterer's fringe. These draperies hang to the floor in soft, lustrous folds from beneath brass cornices, and they are caught back, just above the sill, by large brass knobs. Between two windows is an old fashioned sofa, done in deep green cut velvet. Two extra cushions on this sofa are covered with striped silk, in gold and green, separated by hairlines of black.

In one corner of the room is a large wing chair, done in green glazed chintz, with little sprigs of flowers scattered all over it. It has a table beside it on which a brass candlestick with a jade green candle, a brass box for cigarets, and a set of brass ash trays are kept. Another corner harbors a lovely old grandfather clock and a comfortable arm chair. A deep green carpet is supplemented by colorful hooked rugs.

Particularly pleasing and restful is the main bedroom. Woodwork is painted ivory. Above the wainscoting is a wall paper in wide stripes of ivory and gray, with floral motifs set in blue medallions on the ivory stripes. Ivory dotted net glass curtains reach to the sill, while draperies of French blue taffeta, lined with ivory sateen and finished with narrow ivory and blue upholsterers' fringe, hang to the floor from beneath full valances of the same. They are caught back above the sill by means of taffeta cuffs. A four post bed and a night stand, a Governor Winthrop desk with a ladder back chair, a lowboy with a hanging mirror above it, a commodious chest-on-chest, and a rush bottom rocker, are all made of old maple. The bed has a tester valance and a deep flounced cover of the dotted net, over blue taffeta. Mouse gray wool chenille rugs are used.

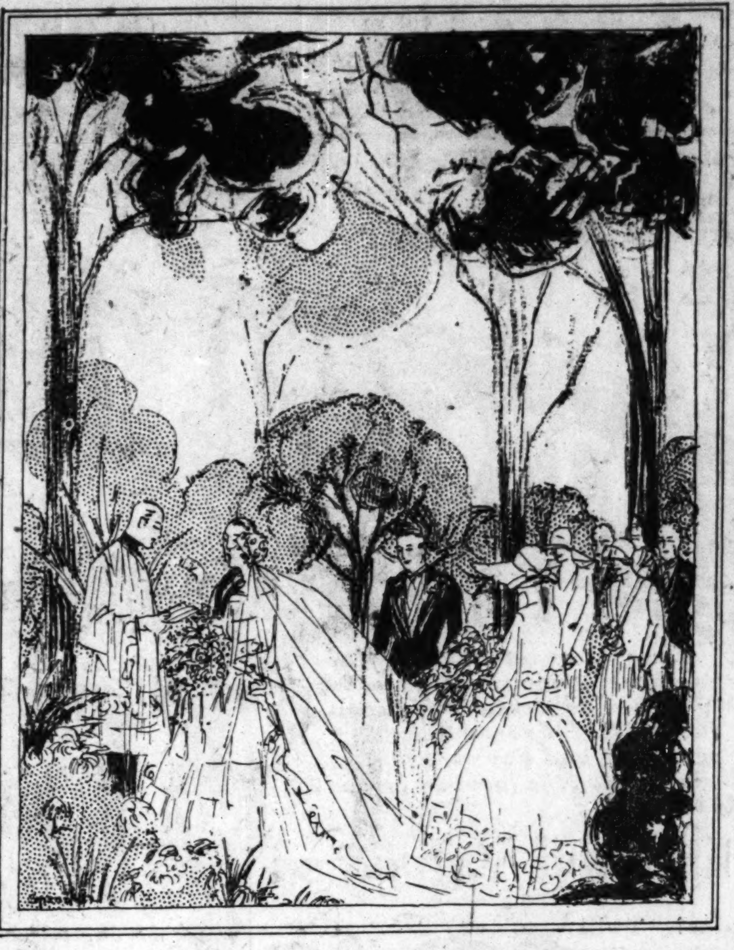
Another bedroom has walnut woodwork, with two toned gray paper. Square meshed net glass curtains are used, with draperies of flowered glazed chintz. These are lined with ecru sateen, and finished with dull rose colored upholsterers' fringe. They are topped by walnut cornices and hang straight to the floor. The furniture is all maple. On the bed is a spread of unbleached muslin, decorated with candlewick embroidery in dull rose.

A large wing chair, placed near one of the windows, is upholstered in glazed chintz matching the draperies. A little round table beside it holds a glass lamp with a dull rose accordion plaited shade. A spinet desk is accompanied by a Windsor chair. Hooked rugs lend a decorative note which successfully completes the ensemble—a part of the feeling of early Americanism which pervades the entire house.

The Autumn Bride and Her Wedding

By Persis Standish

Fall, with Its Gorgeous Colors, Seems Ideal Season for Marriages



THE fall brides are feeling sorry for themselves and write to know what they may wear and what flowers will make their weddings look as pretty as the June ones. I do not share their feeling, because I love autumn much more than spring. Like A. E. W. Mason, the novelist, I am of the opinion that "Spring promises more than summer can possibly give," and so it seems like a false season—an inept, jejune season all flowing golden hair and clumsy feet, sometimes in mud, sometimes in snow, sometimes in daffodils.

Autumn is the season of beautiful fruition, a sophisticated, polite season, frank yet flattering, making the most of her defects and so transforming them into graces. For the bride autumn is the ideal season and I can prove it. In the first place, no autumn bride need fear that terror of all women, a shiny nose. No autumn bride need melt or suffocate. Next, instead of the sentimental pinks and greens of spring she can have the gorgeous reds and golds for her decorations. What is there more beautiful than bronzed oak leaves in combination with bright orange and yellow chrysanthemums?

Decorations Can Be Lovely.

There is nothing lovelier than red roses and the bronzed leaves, or than the little bronzed chrysanthemums and the big purple and yellow asters. Another beautiful combination is bittersweet and bright leaves.

If a bride wishes to keep the church decorations all white and gold, there are many gold leaves to combine with asters, and there are chrysanthemums of gold and white.

As for the bridal gowns, after the first of September, when the danger of tarnishing from the heat is over, nothing could be lovelier than the bridal gown of silver cloth and silver lace. Or of silver cloth with a white chiffon over dress. Silver tulle can be used, too, in combination with silver lace. And silver slippers may be worn by the whole bridal party.

As for the bridesmaids' gowns, nothing could be more effective than to carry out the chrysanthemum colors in chiffons, trimmed with velvet. Various shades of pale yellow ranging into gold and orange look beautiful, especially in the dark wood background of that which most churches possess. Lavenders and deeper shades of rose, too, can be combined with the autumn shades effectively. Against the background of autumn leaves a gown of pale green is most lovely for the matron or maid of honor.

Getting Out the Invitations.

Having encouraged the autumn bride a bit, I hope, we will go back to the question of wedding invitations. They should be issued in the name of the bride's parents, if she has any. If not, in the name of her nearest of kin, preferably one who is married. The two families, that is the bride's mother and the groom's mother, should both make a list of their friends and then edit them together so that there will be no duplication. The invitations should go out three weeks before the wedding—no sooner and no later.

If there is to be a reception or a breakfast a card of invitation for this should be enclosed to those who are to be invited and not enclosed to those who are invited only to the church.

A wedding invitation to the church alone does not need a response; an invitation to a wedding reception needs an immediate response so that it is never necessary to put R. S. V. P. on wedding invitations.

A wedding invitation to the church ceremony does not require that the recipient send a present. An invitation to the reception does. Wedding presents should be sent any time after the announcement of the engagement up to the day of the wedding. They are always sent to the bride and can be anything for the home.

The proper dress for wedding guests depends entirely upon whether they are included in the invitation to the reception or not. If not, street attire is proper for all day time weddings and even for evening weddings, since street attire is always proper in church.

When Big Weddings Are Taboo.

If the bride has been married before, of course, she never has a big wedding, and therefore does not send out formal invitations. She is married in church, if she so wishes, but only in the presence of her family and close friends and the groom's family, of course. She never wears a veil. If she wants she may wear a gown of pale color and a hat to match, but she must not wear white. Nor should she wear lavender.

The reception should likewise be confined to her immediate family, and the groom's family, and a few intimate friends. After the wedding she does just what everybody else who is married quietly should do. She sends out announcements of her marriage, or rather her mother and father send them out, but of course her married name is used. These should be sent to all friends and to acquaintances, also. They should, if possible, be mailed the day of the wedding.

The better stationers will advise you what type and styles of engraving are in vogue this season, as well as the stationery and size of the card to be inclosed in the case of a reception or breakfast. The type of engraving is always optional.

It's a Groom's World.

All that has been said of the second marriage of a woman does not apply to the second or even the third marriage of a man. He may have all the pomp and ceremony in the world, even though he has been married three times, if the girl he is marrying has the nerve to take him down the candle lit distance of the church after she hears about his former ventures.

The bride, you see, decides about what sort of a wedding the wedding is to be, and she may do her worst and a poor man must grin a selfless grin and bear it. He can console himself by thinking that it is the only time probably that he will have to humor his wife about that particular thing. And also he can console himself that papa has to pay, this once. For the expenses of a groom are confined to the fee for the minister (which should be a great deal larger than it is), and the flowers for the bride and her maids, if he cares to furnish them—the boutonnieres for his best man and ushers, their gloves and cravats. The carriages from the church and those that take him and the ushers to the church are paid for by the groom, also the wedding ring, of course, and a handsome present of jewelry for his bride are other expenses, if he can afford it. If he cannot afford an elaborate gift, a simple but tasteful one, which will be cherished just as much, may be given. The groom should also give some little gift to his best man and ushers to remember the event by.

Persis Standish will answer questions of all kinds on etiquette, manners, and politeness. Self-addressed, stamped envelopes must accompany each request for information. Send your letters to Persis Standish, Sunday Department, Chicago Tribune.

Father Pays the Bills.

The bride's family always pays for the wedding and the reception and everything connected with it. The bride, if she is wealthy, even goes so far as to present her maids and her matron of honor with their gowns and hats. It is never right for a groom to pay for the wedding, even though he be Prince Charming and is marrying Cinderella.

A bride must be married according to her circumstances, with as much taste as possible, but never with show or pomp that she cannot and should not afford. Simple weddings are always the loveliest, and loveliest of all the simple weddings are the country ones.

NOTE: Next Sunday Persis Standish will discuss correct dress for men at weddings.

DONALD OGDEN STEWART

leading American humorist

now writing for The Sunday Tribune

His articles will be illustrated by

GAAR WILLIAMS

HERE'S where every one gets a laughing jag every week. Donald Ogden Stewart, the funniest writer in America, is writing a series of sidesplitters for Tribune readers under the title "THE OTHER DAY." His first article appears in the Rotogravure Magazine Section of next Sunday's Tribune. Stewart is young, Yale, and newly married. He is the author of five of the funniest books ever written—"A Parody Outline of History," "Perfect Behavior," "Aunt Polly's Story of Mankind," "The Crazy Fool," and "Mr. and Mrs. Haddock Abroad." He has written scores of magazine articles, a movie or two, and he's now collaborating on a stage play. In his new Tribune articles Stewart surpasses all his previous laughing successes. His spontaneous hilarity has full play under the general title of "The Other Day." Messenger boys with cutaway coats and engraved gold teeth receive his grave consideration, and wedding guests with tattooed backs are not beneath his notice. His genial satire pierces the shell of sophistication. And here's more good news! Gaar Williams, the famous Tribune cartoonist, is illustrating Stewart's articles. His drawings will put the finishing touch on one of the best features The Chicago Tribune has ever offered. Don't fail to read Stewart's first article, "THE OTHER DAY," in Sunday's Tribune.

On the Relative Value of Clothes

by Doris Blake

Showing That a Dress Complex Unchecked Is Apt to Mar One's Perspective of the Scheme of Things.

IS the popular girl at the party, seashore, or dance the girl with the most luxurious wardrobe? Is she the young woman who comes fresh from the hands of the marcel operator, the manicurist, and the masseuse?

Our observation has not been such. We have seen some of the best dressed girls draped pitifully against the paneled wall or lounge for heartbreaking stretches of time, while some merry person in an inexpensive frock, with a home grown beauty look about her, has half a dozen young men begging for the next dance.

The question arises because of a letter from Betty. Betty confides that she receives numerous invitations for parties, dances, dinners, and so on, but has to decline them, as she never feels she is adequately outfitted for the evening. Some of the nicest young men in the large organization where she is employed have asked her out. In fact, she says, she will go so far as to say they beg her to accompany them. But she does not care to go, because she never looks dressed up and cannot feel at ease unless she is as well dressed as any other girl.

She Wilts in the Evening.

Betty says she has good clothes and pretty ones for daytime wear. But unless her hair is all curled up and she has had sufficient rest she looks terrible stepping out in the evening. She cannot keep powder on her nose, for some reason, and her hair gets so straight it looks awful.

"I am considered good looking," she explains, "but that is because no one ever sees me not dressed up and powdered. The first part of the evening I may look fine, but toward the close I look wilted. It isn't because I have little rest, as I do not begin to accept all the invitations that are offered me. Why is it that at parties I cannot be myself and enjoy myself as others do? Don't tell me I am thinking too much about myself."

There isn't anything else I can tell Betty, is there? She is thinking too much about herself, and she needs some one to tell her so. And I'm going to be that some one.

Clothes Complex Is Foolish.

I am told by other young women that Betty's is not an unusual frame of mind. There are any number of parallel cases of girls pleading other engagements rather than go in a dress sure to be outshone by those of richer girls—or by those of reckless girls trying to live up to rich girls' standards.

How foolish to let slide these golden opportunities of youth when dress—that is, expensive dress—means so little to the average man that he does not know whether what you wear cost $25 or $250.

It would be fallacious to suggest that becoming and suitable dress is a negligible factor. On the contrary, to become popular and remain so, a girl must make herself look just as pretty as she can. But that does not involve extravagance. One party frock has seen thousands of girls through a season of parties and dances and carried them to victory as represented by a sparkler for the third finger, left. A girl who can afford good clothes and pretty ones for work, with a bit of judicious planning, can stretch the clothes budget to cover one gown for more formal occasions.

She can do her own manicuring, as thousands of them do. She can carry her vanity and powder her nose as often as it need it, since rules against public application of powder have been overruled by the overwhelming majority addicted to this feminine conceit. If hair will not stay curled, it can be trained to look quite charming in straight lines.

Learn to Forget Self.

When you go with a young man, if you really want to have a good time, train your mind on him and not on yourself. You might wear the same dress a dozen times or more, and if some one asked him what color it was he'd say it was pink when it was nothing of the sort. It is enough that you tell him in glances, if not in words, that he is looking particularly fit this evening.

Clothes consciousness is as devastating a quality as self-consciousness. Youth has so much beauty in its own right that is needs no reënforcement with expensive dress creations. That may be necessary to the older girl who let her earlier opportunities go by unheeded. But even she will gain nothing by expensive wrappings if the spirit behind them isn't tuned to the occasion.

Those whose thoughts are continually on their appearance and the impression they are creating are vain, and painfully so. They are not good company. They are not popular. And the more they cultivate the vicious habit of constantly thinking of self the less courted their company becomes.

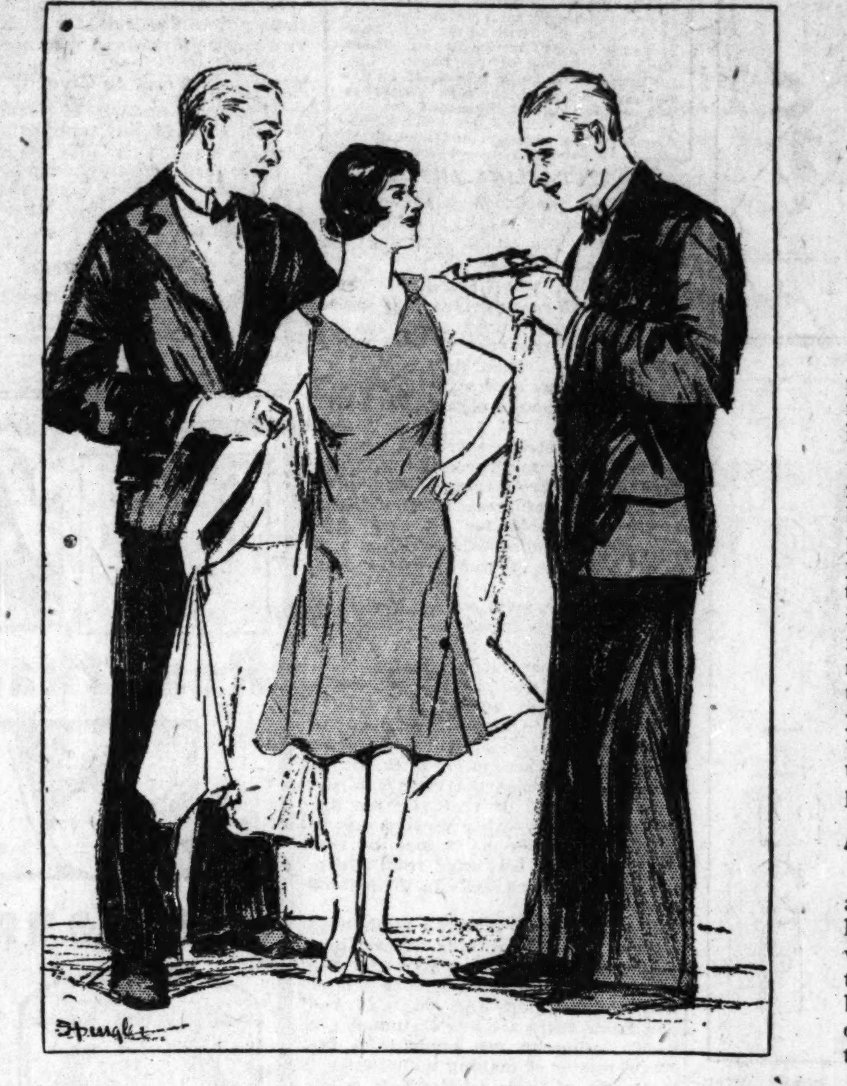
Natural Girl Is Popular.

There is apt to be given out the impression by the girl who persistently refuses invitations on one excuse or another that she is queer, or upstage, or has a secret love affair of some kind. When this gets about, young men do not hang around or argue or plead for her company.

The point I wish to make for the benefit of Betty and her sisters perpetually harried by their appearance is that the popular girl is seldom the best dressed girl. She doesn't spoil a minute of her own fun or that of others by caring whether others approve of her style or not. The fact that some other girl can afford better clothes than she isn't going to interfere with her enjoyment of life. And she gets away with it for the simple reason that she carries a smile on her lips and the light of fun loving adventure in her eyes—an expression of sheer natural charm never seen on the face of the girl contemplating, worrying, and wondering about herself.



Answers to Queries—by Doris Black

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a boy whom I have known for years, but I would care for him a lot more if he would take more pains with himself. I am not squeamish, but I do dislike a sloppy appearance, dirty fingernails, mussed hair, etc. How can I tell him this without hurting his feelings?

"June."

It is a bit difficult to let him know, June, but certainly some one ought to do it, for a slovenly appearance is a great detraction in business as well as in social life. Perhaps by letting him see you greatly admire a well groomed person and by emphasizing this, you can convey your criticism to him gently.

Just Be Pleasant.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 17, considered good looking, and know a young man about the same age. I met him about two weeks ago at a party. I love him, but do not know if he loves me. He has not asked me out, but when we meet he seems most pleasant. What would you advise me to do, as I am anxious to know if he loves me? "Dark Eyes."

Dark Eyes, they usually don't fall in love on such short notice, but if you wish to make an impression on him you have it in your power to do it, don't you think? The thing for you to do is to be pleasant, cheerful, and friendly when you meet him, but never give him the least cause to think you forward. If he gives you the proper encouragement invite him to your home. Or, some time, when you are having a little party, ask him.

Bashful.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 19 and in love with a girl I have known for some time, but with whom I am a bit timid. I'd like to ask her to go places with me, but she seems cold and standoffish, and I can't seem to get up the nerve. Can you help me?

"Tom."

Tom, you know the old saying about "faint heart never winning fair lady"? Well, it still holds good. Maybe she is timid, too, and so appears to be cold. Better come right out, next time you see her and ask her to go to the movies, or to dance. At least, you will have made the effort.

For His Birthday.

"Dear Miss Blake: Will you please tell me what I can give to a boy who has been especially nice to me? His birthday comes soon.

"Molly."

Give him a book, a fountain pen, a leather picture frame, or something for his desk, Molly. Make it quite simple and not too expensive.

Better Be Frank.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am engaged to a boy and have been for two years. Lately he seems not to care for me as much as he has. I think I must have offended him in a conversation we had recently, but I'm not sure, and I don't feel like alluding to it. What can I do? Gertrude."

There is but one thing to do, I think, Gertrude, and that is to be perfectly frank and talk it over with him. Better to apologize, if you are in error, than to have this rift get larger and larger and perhaps end in a broken engagement.

From a Distance.

"Dear Miss Blake. I see a girl on the elevated every morning as I go to work. She gets off at the same station, too. She is awfully pretty, and I'd like to speak to her. Would it be all right for me to do it? Larry."

No, Larry. It's too bad, but convention says you cannot introduce yourself to a stranger in that fashion. Unless you have a friend in common I am afraid you will have to go on admiring her from a distance.

Offended Her.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 17 and am in love with a girl just my age. I offended her a month ago and she has not spoken to me since. Is it too late to say I'm sorry? I didn't want to at first, but now I wish I had. Jim."

No harm in trying, Jim. But a month is a little long, don't you think, to let the matter go without having tried to rectify it?

Differences in Ages.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 22 and love a man who is 35. Is that too great a difference in our ages? Helene."

Not necessarily. It all depends on the individual, and not knowing either you or your friend I cannot well advise you. I am sorry.

Go Slow on Photos.

"Dear Miss Blake: Is it all right to give my photograph to a boy I met this summer? I have only seen him once since, and he does not live in the same town as I do, but I'd like to know him better. We correspond. Nancy T."

I would go slow on the picture business, Nancy. Write to each other if you want to, but wait until you know him very well, indeed, before you give him your photograph.

He's a Silent Chap.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 21 and love a girl a little older than I am. The trouble with me is I am a silent sort of chap and am not much good in company. She likes gay, talkative people. What can I do? Silent Jake."

Do? Why try to adapt yourself to her likes. You know what they are. Now all you have to do, Jim, is to try to be a little more genial and pleasant. It will help you with all girls, not merely with this one, for no one likes a mute companion.

How to Order Clotilde Patterns.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin [coin preferred]; wrap it carefully for each number, and address your order to Clotilde, CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE.

Note—Clotilde patterns are made in New York exclusively for THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE. They are perfect in fit, up to date in style, and the easiest of all patterns to use.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

THE lines of pattern No. 2741 are undeniably good, and while becoming to slender figures, will be an aid in making a full one look slight. The back and front are each cut in one piece from neck to hem, and at the sides of both pieces there are extensions that form plaits after the seams have been finished. These plaits give fullness and do not take away from the long line effect. The dress is cut in a deep "V" in the center front and filled in with a vestee. The neck is finished with a graceful shawl collar tied in a four-in-hand knot at the end of the opening and finished with long ends. The sleeves are long and close fitting, and the pattern is perforated for shorter length ones, if they are preferred. The dress measures at the bottom, for size 36, about 1¾ yards.

Faille crêpe, printed georgette crêpe, flat crêpe, or crêpe de chine would be suitable materials, using a contrasting color for the vest, collar, and cuffs.

Pattern No. 2051 is for a pretty apron. It is cut in one piece, and the bottom of the waist in the back extends out a little at each side and finishes in a rounded edge. A buttonhole is worked in each edge and these ends button on each side of the front. The apron is slashed each side of the front at the waistline, and this fullness is disposed of in the same manner as is done on the one piece dresses. A large patch pocket on the right side of the apron adds to its convenience.

One of the strongest and best finishes for apron edges is rick-rack braid. The apron edges are faced or hemmed, and then the braid is basted on the wrong side of the apron, so that the points on one side extend beyond the apron edges. It is then stitched in place, stitching close to the edge of the apron, and then about one-quarter inch inside.

Sateen, percale, gingham or chambray are suitable materials, and a binding of a contrasting color makes a pretty and serviceable finish for all edges.

Pattern No. 2682 is for a princess frock, always a becoming fashion for straight and slender figures. This dress is cut in two pieces, front and back, and the pattern provides long or short sleeves.

The dress is slashed down from the neck in the center front, underfaced and rolled with the collar and tie. Collar and tie are cut in one piece. Before attaching to the neck of the dress, measure the exact number of inches around the neck of the dress to which the collar is to be sewed. Then fold the collar and tie together in the middle and mark with a basting thread the correct distance each side of the middle. Then sew the tie together on the wrong side at each end, beginning at the point where the collar ends and the tie begins. Clip at these points to a seam's depth, then turn right side out. Sew the collar to the neck of the dress in a wrong side seam, and hem the other edge down over the stitching. If this has been perfectly done it will look like one continuous seam.

The dress flares gracefully towards the bottom, and measures there, for size 36, about two yards. A shield fills in the deep front opening, and if a contrasting material or color is used for collar, cuffs and shield, the effect will be pleasing.

Dogwood brown flat crêpe with a checked crêpe de chine in the same shade for vest, collar and cuffs will be stunning.

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friends in deed and the friends in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail, a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

FORESTALLING MISERY.

DIDN'T the brisk days set you thinking of fall and winter, and didn't you start planning for the coming season?

That means you thought of warm clothing, both new clothing that would be needed and clothes you had put away during the summer that must be overhauled. Then there's old furniture and rugs you want to replace—especially if you're planning to move, this fall.

And undoubtedly there's a lot you don't want to use this year, but you don't like to throw things away when they have usefulness left in them. And you needn't, for all these discards will be more valuable than you could imagine to some poor family in Chicago.

Clothing for men, women and children is needed desperately—and now is the time to give it, before long spells of cold weather have brought colds and exhausted the strength of people who have been unable to provide against winter. Blankets, rugs, quilts, comforters—every one given now is worth two or three given later. Hangings and draperies that won't fit the new apartment, or that you are discarding for any other reason, are almost as valuable as a load of coal for keeping the cold wind from sweeping through the cracks in dilapidated buildings.

It's just a case of being forehanded with winter. Everything we give now prevents sickness and misery later and means some family will face winter with renewed hope and courage. And you know there are lots of things you aren't going to use again. So it's just a matter of making up your mind to dispose of these articles now, when they'll be able to forestall trouble, instead of later, when we'll have to do much more, after cold and winter have brought sickness and complete destitution.

Write today, letting me know what you can give, and I'll put everything to work saving lives in Chicago before the week is out.

You Can Help.

"My sister-in-law is a girl extremely large for her age. Her parents are destitute, the mother washing for her living. The girl is trying to get through high school. You know how dear memories of happy high school days can be, and you can realize she will be deprived of many of these if she doesn't obtain some sort of a party dress. The only way in which I can help her is by helping her to remodel her clothes, and if one of your readers can spare a dress, size 40 or 42, I will get it to fit her. Anything in the line of school clothing will be such a godsend. D. S."

Here is a fine chance for you to make a young girl happy. We will be glad to give you her address.

For a Student.

"I intend to attend high school soon and will be in need of technical books and drafting instruments. I cannot afford to buy them. Will you help me through your column? J. W. A."

This is indeed a commendable request and one which, I am sure, will soon be answered.

Child Needs a Bicycle.

"I wonder if anyone has a bicycle they no longer want. I live out in the country and my mother and father are too much in debt to buy me one. We live over two miles from the car line and from the stores. N. D."

Have you the much needed bicycle for this child?

Typewriter Is Needed.

"I am a girl, 15, and am going to high school. I need a typewriter to practice on but my parents cannot afford to buy one for me. I wish there was some one who could let me use one. I would take good care of it. "A. M."

Is your typewriter "resting?" Perhaps you can spare it for a month or two and help this girl who needs one.

Trees to Give.

"I have a number of young trees I will give to any one calling for them. M. E. T."

There are probably countless garden lovers who will appreciate this offer. If you wish to have them, please write in.

Twins Need Beds.

"I have twins a year and a half old and only two small buggies for them to sleep in. Do you suppose any of your readers has a twin buggy or bed for my babies? There are eight children in my family and all the income we have goes for food and rent. I would be glad to get anything. MRS. W."

Can some kind person fill the want of this mother?

Blankets Needed.

"With winter coming on, I wonder if some one has a feather mattress or blankets they don't need. I would gladly have some one call for them. "MRS. F. K."

Can you answer this appeal?

Scout Suit.

"Several weeks ago a woman asked for a Scout suit for a boy aged 13. I have one to give her, if her request has not yet been answered. "MRS. H. E. P."

Her request has been answered. Does any one else want the Scout suit Mrs. H. E. P. is offering?

Why Blonde Hair Requires a Special Shampoo

Unless blonde hair is given special care, it is sure to darken and lose beauty with age. But Blondex, the new shampoo for blonde hair only, prevents light hair from darkening and keeps it beautifully attractive—always! Also brings back the true golden beauty to even the most faded or darkened blonde hair. Leaves hair wonderfully soft, silky, fluffy. Highly beneficial to hair and scalp. Recommended for children's hair. Not a dye. At all good dealers.

MY GREATEST THRILL

Write and tell us about the greatest thrill you ever experienced, and if we print your letter we'll pay you $1. Make your letters short and snappy. Address them to "Greatest Thrill" Editor, The Chicago Tribune.

In a Hearse.

I think I got my greatest thrill one day when my mother and I accepted an invitation to go riding with some friends in their new car. We had driven about thirty miles in the country when the driver, who had gone about half way up a steep hill, killed his engine. To our horror and dismay the car started backwards down hill. Missing the bridge, it shot over the thirty foot embankment to the creek below.

When the rescue party arrived, they found mother the only one seriously injured. We took her to the nearest house and telephoned to our home town for a doctor and an ambulance. As no ambulance could be secured for the trip, they brought a hearse fitted up with a cot.

My mother, who was too badly injured to notice the conveyance, insisted that I ride with her. I cannot describe the awful thrill I got out of my first ride in a hearse, over thirty miles of rough road. L. A.

Playing with a Snake.

We were living in the Mojave desert. Daddy had fenced off a space back of the house for baby to play in. One morning I found the gate open; baby, then about 2 years old, had wandered off into the open desert. I saw him behind some greasewood bushes, busily working in the sand.

I went to see what he was doing, and there curled up in a dent in the sand was a big rattler asleep. Baby was gathering sticks and building a fence around it!

I had more than a thrill that day.

J. H.

On a Roller Coaster.

My greatest thrill occurred in an amusement park in the east. I had gotten on a roller coaster and it was just rolling away from the platform when the coaster which had gone before us fell off the track while rounding one of the last curves. It fell about 100 feet, killing one man and injuring several. It need not be said that the ride, which was thrilling enough any way, was not more thrilling with the terrible thought of what might again happen when we rounded that curve. J. P.

In His Sleep.

My greatest thrill would make a good movie picture. It happened in a big hotel after a long auto trip. My husband had been driving steadily for days and was somewhat "nerved" from it. This particular night we had a room on the tenth floor. About an hour after we had retired I was awakened by shouts from my husband. Imagine how my blood curdled when I saw him leaning out of the window and yelling, "I can't shift those gears!"

I rushed madly to him and found he was asleep. Had he fallen out I am sure there would have been a suicide verdict. Z. S.

Winning a Scholarship.

My greatest thrill came one day when I received a letter telling me my 10 year old daughter won a year's free scholarship for violin at a college of music. M. S.

Dropping Through the Air.

One Sunday afternoon I was invited to go up in an airplane. The rest of the family, having been up the Sunday before, explained to me that the only sensation was in the descent. We asked the pilot to take us over the lake, although he advised us not to take that direction.

While 2,000 feet up we struck air pockets and dropped and dropped. The coming down was no sensation whatever compared to this. I can truly say this is the greatest thrill I have experienced. C. R. H.

Near the Falls.

I experienced my greatest thrill when a girl friend and I were rowing a boat down a river. Both of us were ignorant of the dangers of the river and so rowed blissfully along. All the while I was conscious of a slight roaring sound. This sound did not bother me at first, but when it started to get louder and louder I turned around to see if anything in front of us was causing it. The sight, as I turned around, fairly stopped my heart, as there in front of us and getting steadily closer, because we were carried by the rather swift current of the river, was a waterfall.

I knew the only thing to do to save ourselves would be to row for one side of the river, where the current was slower, and this I did with all my might.

The falls were only two feet away when we finally and exhaustedly got out of immediate danger and were relieved to see some boys on the nearest bank throw a rope to us and pull us into the shore.

We surely had a narrow escape and it was my greatest thrill. M. E. A.

Several years ago, while visiting in Michigan, a crowd of young folks took the boat across a small lake where there was good swimming and boating. In connection with the bathhouse was a place where you might have your photograph taken. After spending a lovely day swimming we left at 5 p. m. and took the boat back across the lake.

We had gotten out only about half a mile when we heard a terrible explosion. We all looked around from the spot we had left, and saw the bathhouse all in flames. Had we remained there about fifteen minutes more we all would have been killed or badly burned.

We later learned that some chemicals from the photographer's studio became ignited in some way, which caused the explosion. H. M. T.

A Lucky Recovery.

It really happened the other day. Returning from a Labor day visit, much to my sorrow, I missed a ring, quite valuable in that it was a gift and came from Mexico. I could only remember one place where I could have left it, and that was in the washroom of the chair car on which I returned. I called the passenger division of the line and nothing had been reported found. I reluctantly gave it up for lost.

Just the other day I bid a fond farewell to a friend at the station, and while waiting for the train to pull out I casually mentioned my loss to the conductor. He immediately informed me that the train on which I came in the week previous was about due to arrive, in fact, was just coming in across the tracks, and suggested I see the porter. With one leap and a bound I fairly flew across. I only had a few minutes to spare. There was the same porter already on the platform, and I managed coherently to inquire about the ring. I couldn't breathe, for, think of it, he told me where to call to get it. And it was delivered to me this morning by a messenger from the railroad office.

L. M. B.

An Ugly Scare.

I was 8. One day I sat reading in the dining room window of our house in the country. A peculiar hissing sound made me glance away from my book, and I saw, hovering over my knee and almost touching me, the head of a snake. Its six foot body was festooned over the window sill and along the water pipe outside. Ugh! It turned out to be a perfectly harmless "cow snake," but to this day the recollection sends the cold chills speeding up and down my spinal colyum. L. M.

$5 Apiece for Bright Sayings

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

When school first started and all the little children were passing by I noticed Edgar remained behind with his new dog, and when I asked him if he was not going to school with the others he proudly replied, "No, I'm not going just yet. I'm big enough, but I'm not old enough yet." M. G. G.

Across the street from me lives a little boy who is much afraid of lightning. One night not so long ago, when the lightning seemed more fierce than usual, he became afraid and, being timid, he did not want his mother to think he was afraid, so he said, "Mamma, if you are afraid, I'll get in bed with you." A. F.

One day during Harvey's second year in school his mother started up town at the same time he started to school and walked as far as the schoolhouse with him, kissing him good-by when she left him there.

A few days later she was going up town again at the same time he was to leave for school, so told him to wait and she would walk with him. He made several futile efforts to get out the door and away, but each time she called him back, asking him what his hurry was. After about the third trial for escape he stood by her, twirling his cap around nervously, and said: "Well, mother—I—well, mother, I just wondered, if you wanted to kiss me good-by, if you'd just as soon do it before we start out."

ISN'T IT ODD

by William Atherton Du Puy

ISN'T it odd that wasps should have known how to manufacture paper for millions of years before man did and should have worked at it through the ages under the very nose of man without ever being noticed?

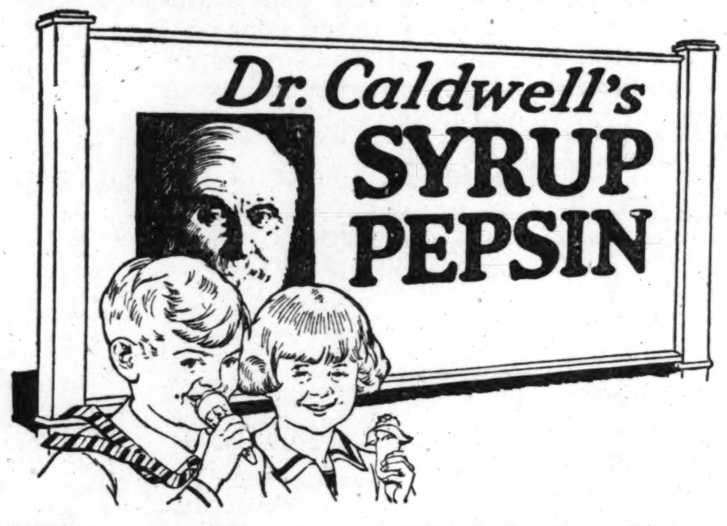
The wasp's nest that hangs under the eaves is made of paper of just the same quality as that which comes to the door bearing the morning news. It is wood fiber paper. To make it the wasp has gone to some fence rail, or to some tree broken by the wind, where the fiber is exposed. It has ripped off these individual fibers, has chewed them up, moistened them, converted them into wood pulp. Then it has taken this wood pulp and modeled it into the thin walls of the cells of its house.

The paper manufacturer takes whole logs of wood, grinds them up so as to separate the fibers, reduces them to a pulp, mixes them with water. He has exactly the same material as has the wasp. This man manufacturer then runs this pulp, diluted with water, out on a screen. The water leaks through and the pulp makes a sheet of paper.

Man might have learned to make paper from the wasp but he did not. The Chinese first produced it from mulberry bark. They had been closely associated with the mulberry tree through the centuries because one of the first of domesticated animals, the silkworm, lived on its leaves.

The bald-faced hornet builds one of the most elaborate paper houses of all the wasps. It hangs by a paper stem to the limb of a tree. An umbrella-like roof begins to appear and beneath this the cells that are the nursery cribs. These grow into an elaborate layer of cells half a foot across. The umbrella has been widened to cover them. The population increases and a second layer of cells is put below the first. A third, a fourth, a sixth appears. The nest has grown to be a foot or so long.

A waterproof umbrella is extended down the sides. It becomes an elaborate envelope. It is built in layers with air chambers between. The principle of the thermos bottle is used to maintain an even temperature in the home. It is doubtful if man, with all his skill, has made anything of paper that better serves a complicated purpose.



How to Keep a Child Healthy

A GENERATION ago parents thought that sickness was a part of a child's life, but we know better now. The secret is in the mother watching that elimination occurs regularly two or three times a day.

A Substitute for Physics

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientific compound of Egyptian Senna with pepsin and suitable aromatics. The formula is on every package. You will find you do not have to force children to take it, and it is much better for them than castor oil, calomel or coal tar drugs like phenolphthalein even if covered with sugar or chocolate. Syrup Pepsin is mild and gentle in action and your child will have an easy passage without griping or straining. It does not contain narcotics, and you can give it with absolute safety to a nursing infant.

"Magic" in a Teaspoonful

Every store that sells medicines sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and the cost is less than a cent a dose. Give half a teaspoonful to any ailing baby or child at night when you put it to bed and you will find a happy, laughing youngster in the morning. Take Syrup Pepsin yourself when constipated, and give it to any member of the family, young or old, for any ailment due to constipation, such as biliousness, headache, lack of appetite, sleeplessness, bad breath, cankers, fever sores, indigestion, and to break up fevers and colds. Stop that first sneeze or sniffle and you will have a healthy winter.

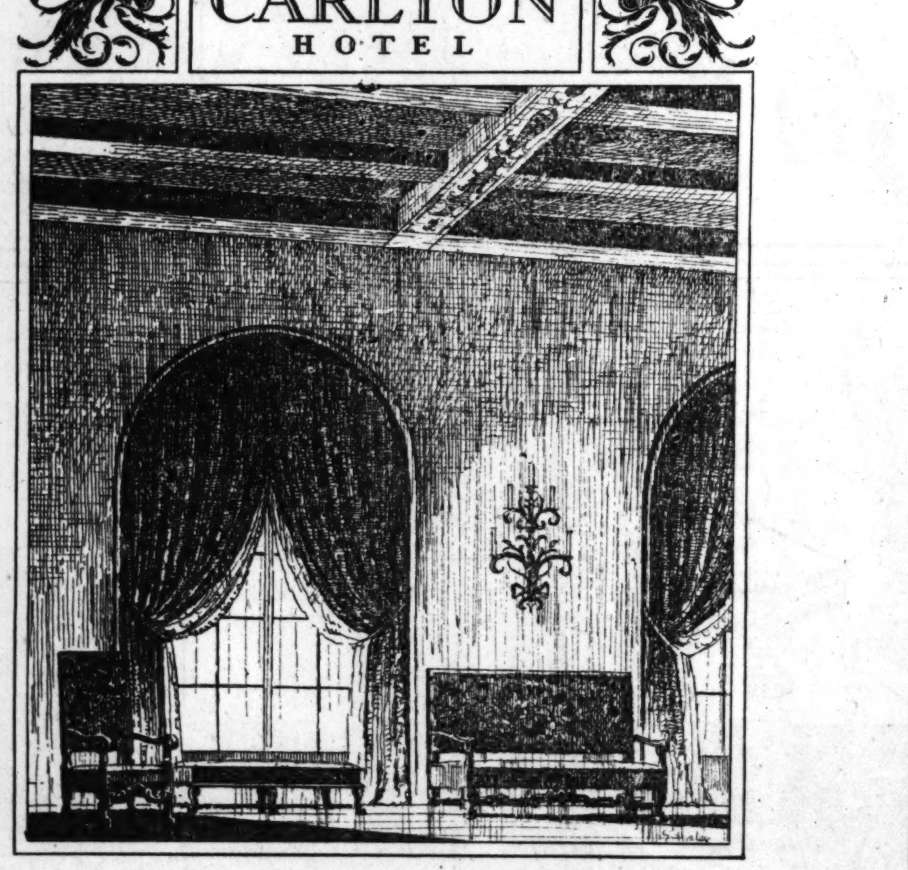
CARLTON HOTEL



Where Europe and America meet in Washington

WITHIN sight of the White House, in the exclusive residential district, is an hotel inspired by European ideals of personal service, built and furnished largely with imported materials, but equipped with all the mechanical conveniences that have made the American hotel famous the world over. Here the international traveler is at home, with a European staff at his command speaking all modern languages. Like the hotels abroad that are chosen by the aristocracy en voyage, it is small. Thus is preserved the individual, even personal relationship between the guest and those who serve him during his stay.

Most of the rooms are arranged in suites suitable for families, for diplomatic missions, for touring nobility and royalty. It is recommended that you reserve your accommodations in advance. You thereby will be spared all doubt as to your comfort in Washington, and on arrival will be taken directly to your rooms, where a clerk will register you individually.

Symphony Concerts Here and in Europe

By Edward Moore.

HOW much music is a community able to absorb? As this is the time of year when, as Mrs. Malaprop used to observe, we need not anticipate the past but our retrospections can be of the future, it is a better time to consider the point than when the musical season is under way. Probably the answer is that a proper amount is less than the given community is called upon to absorb.

During Manager Herbert M. Johnson's recent trip to Europe he collected some statistics from other cities on the season just closed. "In Paris," he says, "the opera and operetta performances numbered 1,638; symphony orchestra concerts, 462; piano recitals, 204; song recitals, 63; violin recitals, 73; cello, harp, organ, and miscellaneous recitals, 72; chamber music recitals, 73; choral concerts, 42; and joint recitals, 767; a total of 3,394 ambitious musical offerings.

"New York, with Brooklyn's musical activities embraced in its schedule, listed approximately 1,200 events. Of these, 283 were opera, in character ranging through good, bad, and indifferent, for New York has many experimental operatic undertakings in the course of a year. While I have not seen any compilation of Chicago data, I have no doubt that our musical activities will not have exceeded [illegible] per cent of those enjoyed by Paris during the same term—and it must be remembered that at present musical interest in Paris is not up to normal."

Mr. Johnson's estimate of Chicago is probably accurate. Count the Civic Opera for twelve weeks and Ravinia for ten and one-half more—say 180 performances for the two; the Chicago Symphony orchestra, 116 concerts; recitals, choral concerts, and other events, though excluding studio recitals and similar hopeful but fledgling activities, between 300 and 400.

Presentation the Important Thing.

The point, however, is not so much how much music is spread before the public, but what music is presented and how well it is done. In this connection I happened, not long ago, to find some remarks by Richard Aldrich in the New York Times bearing down caustically on the orchestral music furnished his city, looking enviously at the vitality of the programs played by Sir Henry Wood in the Queen's Hall Proms in London, waxing ironic at the conductors in New York, and, incidentally, singling out Walter Damrosch there and Frederick Stock here as being the only ones to forward the comprehension of the modern British composers.

In a pained tone Mr. Aldrich inquires—and answers:

"Are the hard worked and highly paid galaxy of foreign conductors who furnish orchestral music to New York devoting sleepless nights and laborious days to reading and pondering new and unfamiliar orchestral compositions for the coming New York season, giving special thought and attention to the strong, vital, and frequently powerful music of the contemporaneous English school?

"They are not.

"They are taking well earned and much needed rest in various summer resorts in Europe. Such attention as they are giving to their New York programs is devoted to plotting [illegible] brilliant, and entirely original combinations of Beethoven's third 'Lenore' overture (never letting the other two cross their vision); of several of his symphonies, with special emphasis on the Fifth; of Tschaikowsky's Sixth and doubtless his Fifth symphony; of Dvorak's 'New World' symphony; of Franck's symphony; of Brahms' First and Fourth symphonies; of Liszt's symphonic poem, 'Les Preludes'; of Strauss' 'Tod und Verklärung,' 'Don Juan,' and 'Till Eulenspiegel' and perhaps one or two others of the symphonic poems; of Weber's overtures to 'Euryanthe' and 'Oberon' and perhaps 'Der Freischütz'; of Wagner's several overtures, with special emphasis on that to 'Tannhäuser'; plotting also, perchance, how they can slip in one or more of Mahler's, one or more of Bruckner's symphonies; arranging how they can fit into these performances of Beethoven's E flat piano concerto, Schumann's, Liszt's in E flat, Tschaikowsky's in B flat minor, and Beethoven's, Mendelssohn's, and Tschaikowsky's violin concertos, possibly also Brahms'. This done, the worst is over; a few items from Debussy, a few from Stravinsky, and one or two others by the most radical of the moderns to prove their sympathy and alertness toward the contemporaneous movement, and the job is done."

Why Gotham Welcomes Stokowski.

These are the words of real, unfeigned distress, and they strike a flame of sympathy in the heart of one who has similarly suffered. They also give a satisfactory explanation for the tone of jubilation arising in the Gotham news sheets whenever Leopold Stokowski brings his Philadelphia orchestra to town, for Mr. Stokowski not only approves of the new works but employs superb showmanship when he conducts them.

In Chicago, however, acute boredom rises seldom at the orchestral concerts and most frequently in recitals. I should hate to have to estimate how many times I have been obliged to listen to Beethoven's "Appassionata" Sonata from the pianists or Bach's Chaconne from the violinists or how many times I have fled to the street when a richly dressed soprano began a song dealing with the conversation and mental processes of a cuckoo.

Opera, of course, is a bit different. Here the public indicates plainly at the box office what it wants, and it wants the old things. As long as people are willing to pay to hear the soprano cavortings of young Lucy of Lammermoor in what is popularly supposed to be a scene of insanity so long will impresarios continue to present them, and so long will critics continue to tear their hair in an effort to find words about them that were not worn out many long years ago.

No Place for Boredom.

But when Mr. Stock takes a deft grasp of the baton and starts a performance of Williams' "London" Symphony, or Holst's "The Planets," or Respighi's "Pini di Roma," or Stravinsky's "Le Sacre de Printemps" the case is different. Here is a man of broad sympathies and great endowments, who detests the very idea of standing pat in music, who regards the pursuit and capture of a worthy new orchestral work with the same eye-sparkling enthusiasm that an ordinary man does the pursuit and capture of a thirty-five pound muskallonge. In the presence of that sort of a vital personality boredom promptly flees over the horizon.

For it is the personality of the man quite as much as the works he plays that has made him stick as the head of the orchestra for nearly twenty-two years, each year a little more admired and honored than he was the year before. Even when he has to play the timewern pieces, as, of course, he is obliged to, he puts in days and nights of planning how to get new interest into them. Once he devoted his summer vacation time to making a complete new orchestration of Schumann's "Rhenish" Symphony. It was 150 pages long, and if you do not think that is a job just sit down and try the mere mechanical labor of copying 150 pages of manuscript. But at the end he had a new piece that was worth while.

The personal touch makes an enormous difference everywhere in music. Looking back at the Ravinia season just closed, the high spot was, without doubt, that company's performance of "L'Amore dei Tre Re." It is no particular novelty; it was first made public hereabouts in 1914, and many a soprano, tenor, baritone, and bass, not to mention conductor, has had a whirl at it. But there were thrills in it from the rising of the curtain in the first act to the going down of the same in the third. It was a high mark not only for

SMART AND SNAPPY—CONNIE'S NEW FILM

"THE DUCHESS OF BUFFALO."

Produced by United Artists Directed by Sidney A. Franklin.
Presented at the Chicago Theater NEXT WEEK.

THE CAST.

Marian Duncan	Constance Talmadge
Count Orloff	Tullio Carminati
Grand Duke Gregory	Edward Martindel
Grand Duchess Olga	Rosa Dione
Inn Keeper	Chester Conklin

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD morning!

Also good news for Tom, Dick, and Will'um—Connie's got a brand new fillum!

Not that Cytherea and Mary Jane are going to pull long faces, at all, over having to read about Miss Talmadge's new feature. Norma's little sister has just as many feminine as masculine adorers. But the byes are a bit more ardent, which is the why of giving them special mention.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE makes a sparkling "Duchess."

The duchess isn't a duchess, at all. But she IS from Buffalo. Miss Marian Duncan of Buffalo, she is and her specialty is dancing. Her twinkling toes have put kick into the soul of many a butter and egg man, and by them and others of their ilk she has been nick-named "The Duchess."

Word of the exceptional furor her appearances cause in New York filters over to Russia, and such flattering inducements are offered the lady to bring her many charms to them furrin shores that she forthwith says good-by to old Broadway and hies her over the bounding main to the land where the reds and the royalists grow.

Here she becomes quite as much the vogue as she was in Manhattan. It's not long before she has the entire male population of St. Petersburg running around in circles, including His Highness the Grand Duke Gregory (you call a Grand Duke, "Highness" don't you? Or is it "Grace"? And does it matter?)—and Count Orloff, who is on the Grand Duke's staff.

The Grand Duke Has Flair.

The Grand Duke is a vurr' gorgeous personage in, I should say, his early sixties. He is tall, imposing, smartly bearded, and O, a gay, gay hound, indeed. One gathers, from his confident pursuit of Marian, that the experience of being turned down by a fair lady upon whom he has set the honor of his affections has never been his.

With all the assurance in the world he orders diamond gewgaws for her from the court jeweler and commands rendezvous with her popular self.

Of course Marian, being human, is flattered, as who wouldn't be? But, being used to attention, she is not TOO flattered and lets her beaming eye stray whithersoever it willst with the result that it lights one day on a tall and graceful cavalier, who is the aforementioned Count Orloff.

She looks, he looks, they both look. She loves, he loves, they both love.

He says, "Will you marry me?"

She replies, "I certainly will!"

WHEREAT—it being the custom in that country for an officer on the Grand Duke's staff to ask permission of the marster when one is about to wed—Count Orloff, just full to bubbling over with happiness, asks and receives audience with G. D. Gregory, and a conversation something like this ensues:

* * *

A Bit of a Surprise.

"Good morning, sir!"

"Good morning, good morning, my young friend, and what can I do for you this fine morning?"

"Ah, Highness, you'd be surprised!"

"Surprised! Ah HAH! Surprises—I lovvem! And what, Count Orloff, might this surprise of yours be?"

"Sir, with your kind consent, I am about to be married."

"Married! My dear boy, than which what could be sweeter! Why of course you have my consent, and a vacation, and a bonus, and a blessing and—but what is the lady's name?"

Count Orloff, swelling with pride: "Marian Duncan."

Grand Duke: "WOT!"

Count Orloff, much pleased with the sensation he seems to be causing: "Marian Duncan, the well known actress, Marian Duncan, you know!"

Grand Duke: "Ah ha and ah hum. Ah hum and ah ha, and on second thought, Count Orloff, while I deeply regret to change my mind and consequently yours, I feel that such a union would be inadvisable and hereby do withdraw my consent."

What follows is better left to the imagination, for it is sad to dwell on sadness and disappointment such as Count Orloff displays. Sadder to learn of his rebellion and that he is ordered cast into prison by the Grand Duke Gregory. (But he gets out. Almost immediately.)

Then all of this happens. Marian's show is scheduled for another town and she starts for there. Orloff, escaping, hurries after to tell her of their plight. The Grand Duke plans to follow his fair enchantress (who would joyfully see him hung) AND the Grand Duchess Olga, who is nobody's sleeping beauty and who has been cognizant for quite some time of her husband's penchant for the "Duchess" orders the help to wire for rooms for herself and suite in the town inn and prepares to play lady deteckative.

The Whole Town Turns Out.

WELL—Marian arrives accompanied by her maid and the Count and is astonished by the warmth of her reception. The town turns out to greet her. The innkeeper nearly bows himself in two. Willy nilly Miss Duncan must walk over stylish carpets flower-strewn—to a suite of such magnificence that she is staggered.

Her endeavors to discover the why and the wherefores of all this are nipped in the bud. Neither she, the Count, nor the maid can get a word in edgewise and Marian is completely in the dark until, suddenly guns are fired and somebody says something or other that lets her know the truth of the matter which is—she is suspected by the town fathers et al. of being the grand duchess.

Some predicament for a little actress, isn't it? And for an escaped prisoner who knows that death is the penalty for escape, some predicament plus. Yes, yes, go on, says the gentle reader.

All right, I am here to tell you that the Grand Duke and the Grand Duchess unbeknowst to each other, turn up at this inn where Marian of Buffalo is being toasted as Olga of Russia. And there is Orloff!

When the Grand Duke discovers Marian's fix he is highly elated. Now, he thinks he has her just where he wants her. He repairs (as Laura Jean Libbey and Elinor Glyn would say) to her boudoir—this being quite all right with everybody, as in this boudoir the Duchess Olga is supposed to be—and is being pretty cocky when——

Should I tell you what happens then?

No—but I just want you to know that certain valorous and gentlemanly actions on the part of Count Orloff, and some succeeding good sportsmanship on that of the Grand Duke, clears the skies for everybody. The ending is a happy one.

"The Duchess of Buffalo" is smart, snappy, and intelligently produced. The players who support Miss Talmadge are of the first water and that young lady herself acquits herself in a manner that will delight the souls of those who admire her.

See you tomorrow!

Reflections on War

By H. L. Mencken.

THE pacifists who now rant in the Open Forums and suffragette magazines all seem to ground their case on the thesis that the people of the United States naturally abhor war and shrink from its horrors as an I. W. W. shrinks from soap. The notion, it seems to me, has a flavor of apple sauce. It would be far more accurate, though plainly not the whole truth, to say that they delight in war, and enjoy its gaudy uproar as a country boy enjoys circus day. Were they unhappy during the late heroic crusade for democracy? Then so is a Methodist unhappy at a revival.

There was, to be sure, a minority of Americans who found war unpleasant, but they never ran to as much as one per cent of the population, and most of them have learned to enjoy it vastly in retrospect, however much it may have fevered them while it was going on. I allude, obviously, to the young gentlemen who were assisted into the trenches by the draft. The records show, I believe, that fully 75 per cent of them tried, by one dodge or another, to avoid service. But that is not saying that they disliked war, once they had got into it. On the contrary, a great many of them enjoyed it immensely and are among the most ardent warlocks now in practice among us.

To a young man, indeed, war is far more pleasant than unpleasant, especially if he be of simple mind—which is to say, especially if he be the normal infant of his species. The highly sophisticated youth, accustomed to ease and civilized society, finds it gross and filthy, but certainly those objections to it do not rest heavily upon the mind of a yokel from the cow belt or a youngster from a city slum. As poor men go in this world, soldiers are well fed and well clothed, and have very little work to do. Is the discipline irksome? Then certainly it is not half so irksome as the discipline of the rolling mill, the tannery, the flivver factory, or the run-down farm. Is it even as irksome as the discipline of the office? I doubt it.

During the war I had occasion to make a journey in western Pennsylvania, in the coal region. At the bottoms of the naked, frowning hills, alongside the railroad track, ran the straggling villages of the miners. The houses, on a winter day, looked extraordinarily forlorn and forbidding. Most of them stood up from the cinders on absurd stilts, and all of them were without paint. Wretched children played about their doors, waving their hands as the train rushed by. Slatternly women gaped from the windows. Sometimes there was a senile cow in a grassless yard. Every such house, absolutely without exception, flew a service flag. The draft got all the miners' boys.

But did it work any oppression upon them? Plainly it did not. It took them out of filth and introduced them to the bracing, highly agreeable feeling of being clean. It made them acquainted with clean food, decently cooked. It converted them into travelers, grandly seeing the world. It taught them the elements of decent manners. In brief, it civilized them—and if, in the course of that business, it civilized some of them to death, then surely the gain was worth the loss. The dead are remembered as heroes. The living have glorious memories, some of them authentic, and are at least a shade less degraded and miserable than they were.

The effect of war upon such young men, in fact, is mainly excellent, though their employers, when they get back, probably don't think so. They may be doomed to slavery, but they have at all events got some spirit of revolt in their blood. Some of them, perhaps, unable to return to the brutal routine of their fathers, take to the high road and engage the Polizei; many more go in for bootlegging, or some other such spacious, stimulating science. Moralists deplore the change, but moralists are seldom as wise as they look. Try to imagine a race so broken to the yoke that it no longer produced highwaymen! God help the United States if it ever comes to that.

But it is the general population, not the soldiers, that gets the most fun out of war. Who will forget the way the gals of this imperial republic, and especially the fat and faded ones, reacted to the late crusade? I can see them yet, prancing around in their pretty costumes, hobnobbing legally with the handsome conscripts, and keeping their weather eyes upon the even handsomer lieutenants, captains, majors, colonels—yes, and generals. The war got many such gal a husband, and even those who missed husbands at least enjoyed the thrills of an open and hearty chase, with all the usual rules suspended.

The Babbitts of the land got even more out of it than the fair. The years between 1916 and 1920, in fact, were their golden age, and they will never see another such until there is another war. Men of mark were made overnight, and hundreds of thousands of them survive, in all the far-flung towns of the realm, as men of vision. Congress is full of such fiery stay at homes today, and some of them are in places still higher. The demand for patriotic speakers in the movie parlors was insatiable, and every novice who got through his four minutes without fainting was practically sure of fame—at least, locally.

Moreover, the business paid. A few stimulating yells, to the applause of the commonalty—and the rest of the day was free for enlightened self-interest. I used to travel a good deal in those days, and so had to listen to the gabble of these idealists in the Pullman smokers. Their air was that of men who had struck it rich. They talked in large figures, and smoked large cigars. They were crusaders shinning up the walls of a new and glittering Jerusalem, and every ten seconds they were showered with gold. Some of them, later on, went to jail, and many more went broke. But the majority hung on to their just and righteous rewards. They constitute the backbone of the right thinking, conservative bloc today, and are unanimously in favor of another war, if necessary, to put down bolshevism.

It is hard, indeed, to recall a class of Americans to whom the late war was unpleasant. There were, of course, mothers at home who watched and waited and feared and hoped, and some of them, alas, hoped in vain—but they were fewer than the soldiers, and nothing much was heard from them. If they had made any protest there would have been four-minute men to caution them sharply, and teach them the high privileges of patriotism. No other class showed any sign of discontent. The jobholders were safe, busy, and happy. The honest workingman saw his wages multiply like magic, and bought himself a phonograph, a still, and a tin Lizzie. The banker prepared for a killing in Liberty bonds. The publicist had an audience at last, rounded up to hear him, and forbidden to escape.

It is thus nonsense, and perhaps even libel, to say that the American people detest war. If they detest it, then they are idiots. Life was never so pleasant in America as it was during those three years. There was a gaudy show going on all the time, and parts in it for every one. Even the pacifists themselves, going grandly to jail, enjoyed themselves immensely. It was not the publicity that delighted and soothed them, but the inward thrill. For the first time in a generation they were able to do something dramatic and satisfying for the Holy Cause. No prohibitionist was ever happier, spying through a knothole at his neighbor.

My belief is that the next war will be just as merry. The United States is now so populous and so powerful that no enemy nation, or combination of enemy nations, could hope to tackle it head on. Our next ten or twelve wars will all be fought on foreign soil, and in a safe and sanitary manner. No despot's heel will ever mark these virtuous shores in our time. War, to the soldiers told off to fight it, will be a junket, a picnic, a free foreign excursion—and to the heroes nominated to keep the home fires burning it will be a thrilling and magnificent show, with the spectators well paid for their applause. I believe that these facts are obvious to most Americans. And so believing, I am convinced that it is a gross slander upon their common sense to argue that they are pacifists at heart. But are they stayed by God's command, issued through His agents, the rev. clergy? Well, go read again what the rev. clergy had to say in 1917.

BROADWAY GETS A SQUINT AT ITSELF

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Broadway had its first chance to cheer, the other night. A play came into the Broadhurst theater called "Broadway," which is so true a transcript of night club life in the wet forties that the Broadway alumni fairly marveled at its completeness and thrilled with the soundness of its drama.

There is nothing pretty about it, but neither is there anything phoney. It is such a hit as was Maxwell Anderson's tramp play, "Outside Looking In," just about this time last season. A bigger hit, because it is a bigger play in a bigger theater. But the same kind of hit in that one important class of playgoers will recoil from it and frankly confess that they take little pleasure in the romances of bootleggers, hijackers, and painted gals, just as they have recoiled from other vital but ugly dramatic expressions of the time, including the Maxwell play.

Those who take their drama neat, however, will admit an admiration for the perfect job of staging that the authors, Philip Dunning and George Abbott, have done with "Broadway."

Back Stage at a Night Club.

All three acts take place in a private party room just off the floor of the Paradise Night club. Here the six girls of the pony chorus and the "hoofer" who leads them do their rehearsing and such quick changes of costume as do not permit them to go upstairs to the dressing rooms. Here the story is told and enacted of the night Steve Crandall, the bootlegger who supplies the place with its liquor, "bumped off" "Scar" Edwards, his chief competitor, who had come to demand an accounting for a job of hijacking the Crandall gang had perpetrated the night before, when they literally lifted a truckload of stuff straight from the ships off the Edwards route and planted it in a Crandall cache.

Dan McCorn, a suave "dick" if ever there was one, was in the audience that night and naturally, when Edwards' body was discovered outside, he stuck around. Which interfered considerably with Crandall's plan to give a party for "Billie" Moore, a new kid in the chorus, and take her for a spin through the park afterward.

"Billie," it happens, is the pal of the "hoofer." [I trust, patient reader, that you know your Broadway, at least from afar, and that these terms we commonly use around the square are not too obscure to you.] "Billie" is the pal of the hoofer, who is helping her to work up her routine so she can join him in a dancing act that will knock the big time guys practically cuckoo. She is a good kid, and she has a sick mother in Jersey, which seems to be in her favor, however painful it may be to mother. And the hoofer, Roy Lane, is determined to save her from Crandall if he has to choke her and drag her right past the doors of Paradise.

Complications Set In.

And so it happens that McCorn suspects Crandall, gathering his evidence little by little; that Crandall and Lane get into a squabble over "Billie," during which Crandall pulls the same gat he used on Edwards and plants it on Lane, and that McCorn arrests Lane for having the gun in his possession.

"Don't you know nothing about the Sullivan act?" demands the detective, referring to the law which sends a man to the penitentiary for carrying firearms without a permit.

"The Sullivan act?" repeats the mystified hoofer. "What time does it play?"

They drag Lane away cursing at the end of the second act, but he comes back in the third and the audience receives him with cheers. Partly, I assume, because he is out of jail in the play, but mostly because he has been so unusually good, as a young actor named Lee Tracy plays him, that the crowd feels he is entitled to an extra hand.

In the end the vengeance of Edwards' gal does for Crandall, and "Billie" Moore comes to see that a poor but honest hoofer is a better sort for a girl with a sick mother to tie to than a bootlegger who is constantly in trouble.

The staging of this colorful drama is, as said, as near perfect as such things can be. The detail of the offstage music, the entrances and exits of the entertainers, the dishing of the dirt in the higher circles of the night club set, the disguising of all the gun boys in dinner jackets—the thing is amazingly complete. The casting, too, is equally striking, with practically every character scoring because of the actor's fitness for the rôle assigned him. Young Tracy was little known; before he played this actor egomaniac he was the inventive brother in "The Showoff." Now he is the talk of the town, and will continue so, probably, as long as "Broadway" lasts, which is likely to be till spring. Sylvia Field plays the good girl from Jersey. Robert Glecker is the chief of the bootleggers, and Thomas Jackson the detective.

"Just Life" Is a Bit Weepy.

There is intense suffering inspired by Marjorie Rambeau's performance in a drama by John Bowie called "Just Life." Some of it in the audience, but most of it in the drama. Consider, for instance, the plight of the heroine on the occasion of her unexpected return from Europe. She has been, in her day, "the mocking bird of the century." She has sung at Covent Garden and played croquet with kings and things at Buckingham palace. She has sung at La Scala, in Vienna, Paris—everywhere. And then, one fatal night, she lost her voice and retired to a simple social life on Park avenue, New York, living only for her home, her daughter, and her pearls.

Came the crash. Her husband faced prosecution as a forger and a cheat. And she sold the pearls to save him. Then she went back to singing—in the cheaper concert halls of Europe—and sent her money home each week. And now she is back, just as a little family surprise, and what does she find?

She finds her husband wrapped in the arms of his seductive secretary, and her daughter about to elope with a boy whom she has been forbidden to see. And not more than half an act later, when she has just put on her black velvet gown for a family birthday party, she learns her husband is also about to become the father of his secretary's child.

What shall she do? What can she do? Well, reasons Marjorie, if it were an opera she would probably kill herself. If it were a drama she might kill her husband or the secretary, or both. But seeing that it is "Just Life," she thinks she will go to Rome and resume her operatic career.

Probably Doomed to Die.

A pretty sad affair, this play, with Miss Rambeau helping it not at all by the stilted and theatrical type of performance she can give when her material is of that character and her direction is poor. And no one in the cast can help her much, though there are competent performances by Boyd Marshall, Mitzi's actor-husband; Clyde Fillmore, Vivian Tobin, and Lea Penman.

Lest, however, I do young Mr. Bowie, whose first play, "Just Life," is said to be, too great injustice, I must add that his play often misses being bad enough to be funny. And frequently his lines have merit. For instance, when Miss Rambeau discovers her play husband and his secretary forming an interlocking directorship, the husband arises somewhat flustering and presents the young woman to his wife.

"This," says he, "is Miss Hier."

"Did you say 'Miss' or 'for'?" queries Miss Rambeau with a world of meaning.

Twenty-nine Started and Six Failed.

The competition in plays grows apace and the weaklings will soon begin to fall. Up until last week I counted twenty-nine plays that had opened, and only six had closed. Thus twenty-three of the newcomers were hanging on by the grace of their backers' bank rolls and because they had guaranteed the theater owners a certain number of weeks.

This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

WORD about some of the stars in the final week of September is something like this: Miss Barrymore was to have gone into "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," and is to go into a new piece by W. Somerset Maugham named "The Constant Wife." . . . Her inconstancy in the matter is matched by that of Miss June Walker, who, having originated the rôle of Lorelei in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," is eager to forsake it in favor of the part of Tessa in "The Constant Nymph,"—although she will be seen in the first New-York performances of Miss Loos' amusing piece. . . . Mrs. Fiske is going to run about the country in Ibsen's "Ghosts," but is said to be on the look-out for a new play: this despite that "Ghosts" means only four other actors to haul and to pay, and but one set of scenery to carry and to transfer. . . . Miss Grace George, having tried out in mid-Summer in Philadelphia (where mid-Summer is always worse than in any other place, it seems) a play that appeared to her to be no good after she acted in it, is doing nothing save reading manuscripts, in the hope of finding another play she may regard worth the expenditure of a try-out. . . . Miss Jane Cowl, who has been acting in London in "Easy Virtue," has changed her mind about appearing there as Juliet, and is coming home—to tour, probably, in "Easy Virtue." . . . Miss Ruth Chatterton is acting Iris in a Pacific Coast cast of "The Green Hat." . . . Miss Katharine Cornell, so immersed throughout last season in the rôle of Iris that the New-York critics actually overlooked her existence after a week or two of Mr. Arlen's twaddle, expects to go with Mr. Belasco for a new piece named "The Desert." . . . Miss Lynne Fontanne is to continue with the Theater Guild of New-York, having emerged successfully from an operation that took her for a fortnight or so out of the cast of "At Mrs. Beam's." . . . Miss Billie Burke is again to come out of domestic retirement as Mrs. F. Ziegfeld, and is to perform in Frederick Lonsdale's new comedy named "On Approval." . . . Miss Ina Claire, who was dancing in the Chicago cabarets when Miss Burke was in her early seasons as a pro-forma star, is to continue in Mr. Lonsdale's comedy named "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," wherein she acted all last season in New-York. . . . And there, as Henry James used to say, you are!

Word About the Men, Also.

That John Drew will act no more was the subject of formal announcement by him months ago. . . . Otis Skinner, who was Mr. Drew's associate in the storied days of Augustin Daly's management, is taking from storage an old conveyance, "The Honor of the Family," and making it ready for a tour whose advantages include his popularity, a brief cast, a known title, and a rôle for the star that is still within his easy resources. . . . Lionel Barrymore, so far as is known, will abide by the films. . . . John Barrymore, s. f. a. i. k., will do likewise. . . . William Courtney is in "Twelve Miles Out," and is expected to remain in it for Chicago, where he is popular. . . . George Arliss will stick to "Old English," in which more than nine playgoers in ten regard him as nothing less than great. . . . David Warfield will do nothing until he reaches the end of his grief about Shylock. . . . Louis Mann is in a piece named "We Americans." . . . Lew Fields is in a song-and-dance show, "The Wild Rose," based on "Hawthorne of the U. S. A.," in which Douglas Fairbanks performed in Chicago back in 1913. . . . Joseph Santley is in the same piece. . . . Francis Wilson is in retirement, but ready to emerge if a solvent and responsible manager will risk the funds for a revival of "Rip Van Winkle." . . . De Wolf Hopper is in idleness, and apparently at a loose-end. . . . Lynne Overman is making ready to act the principal man's part in the farce popular ten years ago as "Nothing But the Truth." . . . Holbrook Blinn is going into a piece by Molnar named "A Play in the Palace." . . . Willard Mack (who, Mr. Belasco avers, is "another Warfield") is to be in a piece of his own making and Mr. Belasco's remaking, called "Just You, Sue!" . . . Richard Bennett is expected to be in a work by Samuel Shipman named "The Creole." . . . W. C. Fields, who was so funny in the most recent Ziegfeld Follies shown here, is remaining in the movies, where his pay is immense. . . . Jack Buchanan, whose clothing caught the fancy of the snappy boys who saw him in the Charlot Revue, is making ready to wear other clothes in "Sunny" in London. . . . McIntyre and Heath are to visit the smaller places in a show compounded of stuff from the Greenwich Village Follies of other years. . . . Eddie Cantor is to be again in "Kid Boots," and Al Jolson in "Big Boy." . . . Ernest Truex is to act in London in "The Fall-Guy," and return in the Winter in the expectation of acting here in "Behold This Dreamer!" . . . And Robert Mantell, 'tis told, is again to railroad from-place-to-place in his ragged répertoire.

Miscellany.

Miss Eva Le Gallienne, who has hired a theater in New-York and is going to try to sell what she thinks are high-brow plays at a dollar-fifty for the best seats, has bought a piece named "Miss Faust," by Miss Rita Wellman, one of whose works, "The Gentile Wife," was staged some time since with Miss Emily Stevens in the principal rôle. . . . For the information of those who know New-York regionally, it is explained that the theater is down in Fourteenth Street, has been known for decades by the name of that thoroughfare, and is as far from the so-called Rialto as the old Haymarket is from Clark and Randolph.

Walker Whiteside, who seems never to tire, has resumed performing in "The Arabian," the rug-display wherein he held forth last season for some weeks in the Studebaker.

Wallace Eddinger, here for weeks in "Close Quarters" and "Divorçons!" is to be with Miss Billie Burke in Frederick Lonsdale's "On Approval." So also is Hugh Wakefield, an English player credited with having been good in "Service for Two," a recent New-York flivver.

And two of Mr. Eddinger's associates in "Close Quarters" and "Divorçons!" Bruce McRae and Geoffrey Kerr, are returning next week with Miss Fay Bainter in "First Love."

Miss Katherine Alexander, who lacks for Chicago the identity she has been acquiring in New-York, is to have the principal feminine part in a new piece by Owen Davis, "Gentle Grafters." So far as I know, the play has nothing to do with the tales of O. Henry in the volume named "The Gentle Grafter."

The second season of the Goodman Memorial Theater will be started October 13 with "Why Not?" a comedy by Jesse Lynch Williams, who is known in Chicago as a playwright for a farce named "Why Marry?" (An earnest historian has dug out the information that "Why Marry?" took the Pulitzer prize in 1917.) . . . The schedule of the "professional" actors in the Goodman for this season is Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights and Saturday afternoon.

Comic news is that William Slavens McNutt, the tale-teller, and Thomas Mitchell, an actor-playwright, are joined in writing a play "about Chicago gunmen." . . . The fun is that a Chicago gunman is indistinguishable as a type from a New-York, a Boston, or a Topeka gunman. One gunman is as much like another gunman as Giroflé is like Girofla, as William Gibbs McAdoo is like Senator Walsh, or as a Prohibition agent is like a porch-climber.

Odds-and-Ends of Stage-News

DEFINITE dates other than those given in the list of incoming plays in this issue are lacking as to future attractions for the Chicago theaters; but there is emphasis on the coming of "Queen-High," "Twelve Miles Out," "Young Woodley" (with Glenn Hunter), "Princess Flavia" (November 5 is indicated for this, but not, seemingly, certain), and Miss Ina Claire in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney."

And it is told that James Dale has succeeded A. E. Matthews in Miss Claire's support in that comedy, and that Roland Young retains the rôle he acted in the long New-York run. . . . Mr. Matthews is a good English actor. He was here three years ago in "Spring Cleaning."

"The Adorable Liar," "Kept," and "No Trespassing!" were taken from the stage in New-York last night, and, I assume, tossed into one or another of the rivers which help to make that town an island. . . . The Ziegfeld Revue also was taken off; but it is to be sent on tour as the Ziegfeld Follies.

New in Manhattan.

These are the new things listed for the week in the New-York theaters:

"The Woman-Dispute," adapted by Denison Clift from a French original, with Lowell Sherman, Miss Anna Harding, Louis Calhern, and Crane Wilbur. . . . This piece, since first mentioned as a new conveyance for the vague talents of the gaudy Mr. Sherman, has been known as "A Woman Disputed Among Men," "The Prisoner," and "The Eternal Sin."

"The Judge's Husband": the play of his own writing in which William Hodge acted through some weeks last season in the Adelphi and the La Salle. It was pretty bad then.

"The Captive," an adaptation for the American stage by Arthur Hornblow (jr.) of Edouard Bourdet's French piece named "La Prisonnière," with Miss Helen Menken, Basil Rathbone, Arthur Wontner, Norman Trevor, and Miss Ann Andrews. . . . The play has recently been the subject of much discussion and controversy in Paris and other Continental cities because of its theme—a woman cursed as a Lesbian. Commercially, the American venture with the play is of interest because the impresario is charging five dollars apiece for the best seats.

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes": the comic piece made by Miss Anita Loos and John Emerson on a basis of the former's delightful memoranda on the gimme-girls, with Miss June Walker, Frank Morgan, G. P. Huntley, and others who were in the cast when in May the play was made known in Chicago.

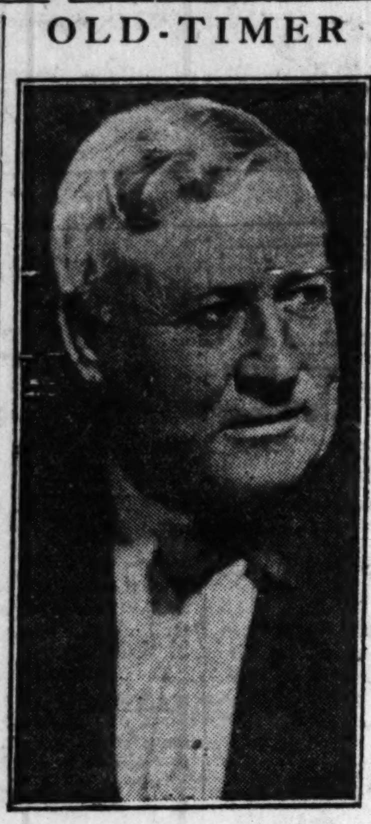
"The Shelf," by Dorrance Davis, with Miss Frances Starr, Arthur Byron, and Donald Meek. . . . A farce by the author, "Early to Bed," was among the bad plays shown in Chicago two years ago this month.

"Happy-Go-Lucky," by Miss Helena Phillips Evans and Lucien Denni, with Taylor Holmes and Miss Lina Abarbanell. This is a song-and-dance piece, and is not a derivative of the play of like name by Ian Hay Beith shown in 1921 with O. P. Heggie in the Playhouse. . . . Some time is passed since Miss Abarbanell's name was last displayed in the activities of the theater; but she is well remembered in Chicago for her appearances, nineteen years ago, in "The Merry Widow" and, later, in "Madame Sherry."

"The Immortal Thief," by Tom Barry, with Walter Hampden. . . . When first announced, the title was "The Eternal Thief." Mr. Hampden's rôle is understood to be that of the Nazarene.

F. D.

OLD-TIMER



ARTHUR DEAGON

He dates far back in the annals of Chicago's theatricals—back, some of the statisticians aver, to the nights when the Castle-Square venture was "hot" in the Studebaker. . . . Mr. Deagon was Cecil Lean's successor in "The Time, the Place, and the Girl" on tour. He was here in 1923 in "Little Nellie Kelly," and again last season when "Rose-Marie" was sung for a night or two in the Auditorium. He's now in "The Vagabond King."

Symphony Concerts Here and in Europe

By Edward Moore.

Ravinia in the summer of 1926 but for a lifetime of opera anywhere.

The formula for evolving that kind of a performance is so simple that it is strange more people do not think of adopting it. All that you have to do is to get the right kind of a work, the right kind of people to interpret it, the right amount of rehearsals to learn it, and serve hot with a liberal touch of eager enthusiasm. But, when you come to think of it, that is a rather different matter from serving two or three hours of mere music.

At the time this is written Mr. Stock has not announced what new works he has found during the summer and planned to play during the winter. Usually he has a highly creditable collection. There have been years when his trophies of the chase were more than those of any other conductor in America, even more than the combined collections of any half dozen of them put together. His rule of conduct in such matters works well. He plays what he likes and what he thinks is worth playing. If his audiences do not like it as well as he they seldom fail to be interested. You will seldom hear them admit they are bored.

Plays Listed For Chicago

Tonight:

"My Country" in the La Salle.—A piece from New-York about the United States as a melting-pot. William J. Perlman wrote it. Miss Louise Randolph, Miss Erin O'Brien-Moore, Miss Marguerite Mosier, Lee Kohlmar, and George Farren are well-knowns named by the management as of the cast. 'Tis said that O. P. Heggie also is in it: if so, the management is holding out on THE TRIBUNE.

Monday, October 4:

George Jessel in "The Jazz-Singer" in the Harris.—A new star in a piece that went through a long run last season in New-York. The play is by Samson Raphaelson, and is a dramatization of his story named "The Day of Atonement."

"Alias the Deacon" in the Studebaker.—A play about a likable card-sharp by John B. Hymer and Le Roy Clemens, with Berton Churchill. The piece was taken through a run of months in New-York.

Miss Fay Bainter in "First Love" in the Selwyn.—The actress so popular in "East Is West" in something new and, it is said, comical.

Sunday, October 10:

"Tip-Toes," with Miss Queenie Smith, in the Illinois.—A song-and-dance play with music by George Gershwin that ran five months last season in New York. Miss Smith is remembered here for her participation in 1925 in a piece named "Be Yourself!"

"Stylish Stouts" in the Adelphi.—A comic play about which good report has been received from places where it has been performed. Lou Holtz, remembered here as a blacked-up singer of soiled stanzas in George White's Scandals, is of the cast.

Monday, October 11:

The Marx Brothers in "The Cocoanuts" in the Erlanger (now the Palace Music-Hall).—The buffoons who made good in the nonsense named "I'll Say She Is!" in a merry show by George S. Kaufman, with tunes by Irving Berlin. This diversion was in high favor throughout last season in New-York.

Sunday, October 17:

Earl Carroll's Vanities in the Olympic.—Last Winter's issue, the fourth, of the show bearing this title. Frank Tinney and Joe Cook are to be in it.

Sunday, October 24:

The Greenwich Village Follies in the Apollo.—Last season's New-York issue of this annual for an engagement into holiday-time, it is planned.

THEATER

"They All Want Something" is the name of a play made by Courtenay Savage from E. J. Rath's novel of "The Dark Chapter." . . . Another dramatization of this tale was tried out and found lacking some time since by Glenn Hunter.

Miss Anne Nichols is about to risk some more of her earnings from "Abie's Irish Rose" on a piece named "Howdy, King!" by Mark Swan whose most recent contribution to the drama in Chicago was "Nobody's Wife," an awful thing of last season.

Mr. Ziegfeld now says he will have a new Follies ready for New-York about December 1, when he hopes to dedicate with it the new theater that is to bear his name.

J. M. Kerrigan, William Norris, and Miss Winifred Lenihan are to be in "White Wings," a piece by Philip Barry soon to be shown in New-York by Winthrop Ames. . . . Miss Lenihan is the young actress who, after performing the title-rôle of Shaw's "Saint Joan" in its New-York run, undertook to direct the Theater Guild's school of acting there. You have the fun of this only if you happened to see Miss Lenihan as Joan.

And it seems that Mr. Ames is to make "The Pirates of Penzance" the subject of his next endeavor in the restoration of Gilbert and Sullivan to American circulation and appreciation, and after that "The Mikado."

IN TONIGHT'S NEW PLAY

MISS ERIN O'BRIEN-MOORE

MISS O'BRIEN-MOORE returns to Chicago today to act in "My Country," which is said to be philosophical and optimistic as to the melting-pot notion of this United States; and, so, here may be discerned by those looking for such things a measure of symbolism in the fact that an actress with two-thirds of her name should have the part of an Italian girl. . . . Miss O'Brien-Moore was here in 1924, in the Great Northern, with Basil Sydney in "Peer Gynt," "The Devil's Disciple," and "He Who Gets Slapped."

Broadway Gets a Squint at Itself

By Burns Mantle.

Curious how the showman's confidence frequently leads him astray. The Jacob Oppenheimer who produced "Just Life," for example, is himself the lessee of the Lyric theater and familiar with the uncertainties of the play producing game. And yet, because he wanted a more intimate house for Miss Rambeau's drama he agreed, by report, to pay the owners of the Henry Miller theater $4,500 a week for it for three weeks.

A Foolish Play.

We have another one called "Kept," which crept quietly into the Comedy last week and gave every evidence of being ready to turn around and creep right out again the minute its guarantor's back was turned.

The story is not the thing you might expect. The kept lady of the title is a motherly soul, who, in her years of defeat, has gone to the old ladies' home. Wandering afield one day, she comes upon a drunken boy in an automobile accident, helps him back to sobriety, and accepts a job as his adopted mother.

Two months later he turns rat again, as he always does when he drinks, and throws her out of his apartment while his mistress stands by and shouts after her that she is one kept woman who did not make good. And then he sobers up and pleads his way back to her forgiveness. A foolish play that breaks in a dozen places. Not even Minnie Dupree could save it the contempt of the audience I sat with.

The Voice of the Movie Fan

If you want to see your letters in print, please write on one side of the paper only. If you desire personal answer, inclose stamped and self-addressed envelope.

About the Vitaphone.

Dear Miss Tinée: As for comment from one who has witnessed the Vitaphone production at McVicker's theater, mine is that, barring [in a layman's humble opinion], two or three technical faults, its best commentory is the production itself. It must be seen and heard to be understood and appreciated. It speaks in volumes of the future fate of the "silent" drama.

Unfortunately, it is being given in too small a place to provide adequate perspective and screen space for a symphony orchestra of 107 musicians. It is a technical mistake, I think, to present these players in sectional "closeups" from lack of screen space. Justice to the Vitaphone requires space and perspective ample for presentation in true lifelike proportions, as such would appear on the actual stage or concert hall. In other respects the playing of the Tannhauser overture by the New York Philharmonic orchestra was musically perfect. Timber of the various instruments, tone balance, and the visible performance by this superb orchestra, all were absolutely true to life.

Fault No. 2 is Marian Talley. As a song bird she painfully showed that she is still a fledgling, and, if anything, more in the promise than in the performance. Certain facial grimaces in singing, not to mention an inadequate vocal equipment, tell the story. Artistically speaking, this number might well have been omitted. Mechanically speaking it should have been.

Apart from these two or three minor short comings, easily remedied, the Vitaphone presentation struck me as a wonderful thing—the biggest jump ahead in the movie-musico-dramatic world since moviedom began, thirty years ago. The extent of possibilities opened up by this synchronized triumvirate is simply stunning, even to try to conceive. W. A. R.

And Still Another.

Mae Dear: Just another "Lloyd Hughes fan" coming to his defense! M. L., shame on you! Why pick on poor little Lloyd? There are plenty of poor actors in the business to receive that criticism!

I think Lloyd is ducky. His playing in "Pals First" was dandy. Mae, make them stop criticising our really good actors and actresses.

Saw "The Volga Boatman," and liked it immensely.

I like your reviews, Mae. More power to you! Also if M. L. will send her address I'll send her a dime with which she may buy rope enough to hang herself. Criticising Lloyd Hughes. Nevertheless, hasta la vista, Mae. Adios.

RUTHIE C.

Editor's note: I can't make 'em do anything. Maybe you can. Thanks for the pleasant words.

A Letter from Iowa.

Dear Mae: I agree entirely with S. A. K., in regard to my favorite, Lloyd Hughes. I think he is a splendid actor and a keen looker and I don't see why people like "M. L." have to pick on him, do you?

If they want to razz some one, let them pick on some of those old wrinkled papas who try to play the parts of lovers.

I enjoy reading your articles even if I don't get the chance to see many of the pictures in this small town. I certainly do envy your job. Not for the brickbats or bouquets you receive, but for the fun of seeing so many pictures. Wistfully yours, S. I. S.

Editor's Note: It IS a nice job, S. I. S.

THEY'RE MAKING FUN HERE.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

MOTION PICTURES DOWNTOWN

The Tribune Says

"Vitaphone is a wonder! . . . Every word formed by the lips of Will Hays falls as formed from—well, the lips of the Vitaphone. A second's pause on his part—and the Vitaphone is silent, to proceed, hand in glove with him, when he proceeds. And so it is throughout the program . . . perfect synchronization . . . quite as perfect in the case of the entire New York Philharmonic Orchestra as it is in individual representation.

Mr. Barrymore is magnificent throughout, gorgeous in all his moods . . . A fascinating character, whether ardent, evil or impudent. . . . Mary Astor is perfectly adorable . . . Estelle Taylor makes a luscious and sinister Lucretia."—Mae Tinee, Tribune.

Tolstoy at Work on Russian Film

By Rosalind Shaffer

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—Now that Count Ilya Tolstoy, son of Leo Tolstoy, famous Russian novelist and philosopher, has received the formal salt and bread welcome from his countrymen in Hollywood he may be found daily over at the Inspiration studios hard at work. Edwin Carewe is producing "Resurrections," one of Leo Tolstoy's most famous novels, and Count Ilya is assisting with the film presentation of his father's book.

Tolstoy has had other moving picture adventures before this one of which he will tell with enthusiasm shining in his clear blue eyes. During the early part of the war he made a film in Russia in one of the native villages adjoining one of his father's large estates. The total production cost was just $500. The picture was two reels long and had three real honest to goodness actors in it. The leading man got $50 as his wages for the entire production.

A Real Russian Film.

Peasants on the lands of the Tolstoys played the extra rôles and minor parts, and no sets were built, but actual locations were used. Because the story was of the adventures of an angel on earth the film was a total flop in Russia, where religious notions are all against showing an angel in a picture.

Carewe was anxious to secure this film with the idea of using some of it as a prologue for the new film "Resurrection," as it is practically the only authentic picture of czarist Russia as it really was—peasants, customs, costumes, homes and landscape.

Tolstoy wired to New York, where it was being shown to producers, to have his brain child sent west, but when the film receptacle arrived it was empty. So perished the last of the real Russian pictures.

Tolstoy says that the much famed "Volga Boatman" is an excellent example of an American producer's idea of Russia, but is preposterous and is bolshevik propaganda. "Siberia" came in for similar comment as totally un-Russian. Tolstoy did not like the naked blacksmith portrayed by Kosloff in "The Volga Boatman." He says blouses are customary in his country.

The leonine head of Count Ilya Tolstoy is set off by a set of long full white whiskers and beard which make him the admiration of all the professional beard raisers of Hollywood. His large frame and impressive yet modest bearing, however, set him off from the crowd on the boulevard.

The count tells that he is one of the seven sons of the old count, and that he alone of his brothers had the leaning towards writing, in which his father encouraged him.

He never seriously attempted to become a novelist, as he felt he lived in too great a shadow—that of his father's fame. Under his present arrangement with Carewe, he will assist in adapting to the screen the great works his father wrote, and his knowledge of Russian life and customs will be used in seeing that the stories are presented realistically. There will be no more shirtless blacksmiths.

Notes of Films and Players.

Reports of the engagement of John Gilbert and Greta Garbo continue to be bruited about. No one will confirm them, but every one is looking expectant.

After Douglas Fairbanks got back to Hollywood from his trip he seized his first opportunity to dash over to the Pickford-Fairbanks studio to see how things were going. His big St. Bernard dog spotted him from a distance and catapulted himself at Doug with all the weight of his body. He knocked Doug smack on his back and then proceeded to stand on top of him and enthusiastically lather his features with his big tongue. It was with some difficulty that Fairbanks disengaged himself.

Another canine bearing him enthusiastic greetings at the lot was "Rooney," a cur pup that Doug picked up while Mary was making "Little Annie Rooney" and promptly named for the picture. "Rooney" is said to be the smartest thing in the form of a dog that ever lived. When Doug had freed himself from the St. Bernard's effusion "Rooney" came scurrying up with his football. The dog has a football Doug got him with a tab of leather at one end for the dog to grab it by and whenever Doug has time he kicks the ball and "Rooney" chases it. Doug's absence in Europe didn't make the two dogs forget him—not by a good deal.

Another variety of archery besides the gentle work of the Hollywood Cupid is being started in these parts. Reginald Denny is gathering initiates for instruction in the use of the long bow, and archery courses are springing up in the grounds of large estates hereabouts. Denny holds the record, they tell, after piercing two inch planks at a distance of one hundred yards.

Marc MacDermott is free to tell the world what a beautiful corpse he will make. Out at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio he plays the villain in "The Mysterious Island" and is killed and shown in his coffin. So that Marc would not have the dubious enjoyment of posing in a coffin all day, the studio made a wax copy of his features and fixed it all up pretty in the coffin. Marc thinks the likeness is really a little flattering.

Clara Bow has now added to the laurels of the redheaded girls by annexing her fourth fiancé in the person of Victor Fleming, her director on the picture "Wings," which is being filmed in Texas. Miss Bow was engaged first to Douglas Keith, then Gilbert Rowland, then the notable affair with Robert Savage, who cut his wrists to stir her cold heart, and now to Victor Fleming. "Nobody Knows What a Redheaded Mama Will Do" is more than a song title with Clara—it is an ambition.

Laskys are going around bragging about a strong man they have in "The Eagle of the Sea," who plays the rôle of a pirate. He is named John Northpool and is guaranteed to tear a telephone directory in two and break a steel horseshoe in his bare hands in fifty seconds. No one has yet figured how they are going to work the telephone directory into the story, which is of the time of Jean Lafitte, the French pirate from New Orleans.

RECRUIT

MRS. PARK BENJAMIN (JR.)

She's in "Sweetheart-Time," is a new-comer to the stage, and is described by the press-agent of the show as "prominent in New-York's Four Hundred." As the press-agent, himself, is a New-Yorker, somebody's been kidding him: New-York hasn't had a Four Hundred since July 1, 1919, when war-time Prohibition took life. . . . Mrs. Benjamin isn't, however, without an identity apart from what she takes out of "Sweetheart-Time": she and the late Enrico Caruso married into the same New-York family.

Syncopation and Jazz Not Identical

By Ruth Russell.

TOGETHER with a copy of her new opera, "The Chilkoot Maiden," Eleanor Everest Freer contributed to THE TRIBUNE music department this week a short essay concerned with her scorn for so-called jazz music.

"Should present day composers—Carpenter, Sowerby, Debussy—choose to write in the jazz idiom, that is their prerogative, but this must not be called strictly American music," Mrs. Freer wrote. "The musical classics contain syncopation [Wagner, Brahms, Schumann and others], but their music is not jazz. In my opera you will find syncopation used, but no one can call it jazz. And my music IS American. Jazz can be played in a masterly manner, but it remains a jungle and I hear on all sides, 'We are tired of it!'"

Olin Downes in the New York Times has this to say of the Vitaphone this week: "It is the realization of a concept that musicians and moving picture producers long have cherished—the moment when sound and visible movement could be synchronized. There have been many experiments in this direction. The Vitaphone is the successful experiment which makes a dream a fact and its possibilities for the future of music are extremely important."

Jacob Sonnenklar, tenor, recently from Vienna, and Dorothy Herman Blum, soprano, will sing at a concert given by the Anshe Emes sisterhood at their temple, Pine Grove avenue and Grace street, today at 8:30 p. m. for the benefit of the building fund. Mrs. H. Callner is chairman of the concert and Mrs. Samuel Phillipson is president of the sisterhood.

Compositions of Vice President Dawes are included on the programs of the United States Marine band, which gives the first of a series of four concerts, Oct. 13, in Medinah temple under the guarantee of the Lions clubs of Cook county.

MARKS BROS GRANADA

SHERIDAN AT DEVON

Begining Monday

THE LITTLE BOY WITH THE GREAT BIG TIE

BENNY MEROFF

And Those 25 Jazz Mad Pepsters of His Just Syncopate 'Till You Just CAN'T Keep Still.

Benny is America's most versatile conductor—he plays, he dances, he wisecracks—why, man alive, he does everything!!

Betty Ouimet, the ten year old protege of Benny's who nearly raised the roof off the house last week with the applause she received, will be here again for your entertainment—Doree Leslie and Barrett Greenwood in addition to an entirely new program.

JACK HASKELL'S "The Maid of the Mist"

The genius Marks Bros. imported from Europe has created a production that easily surpasses current musical comedies all over the country. Its lavishness will make you gasp with surprise.

This stupendous spectacle has every other stage presentation beaten off the map. It is a story in two scenes based on an old Indian legend about the spirit of Niagara.

See the real Indians of the Sac and Fox tribes perform their native ritual and magic rites on the stage.

Clark Robinson excels himself with his exquisite settings depicting Indian haunts.

"The BELLE of BROADWAY"

Betty Compson

Is the star of this story, which is the season's best tale of a girl who risked all for love and lost. It reaches the human side of stage life. Betty Compson was never more adorable and entrancing than in this beautiful piece. Remember this Theater can easily be reached by the 'L' the bus or the surface lines. Get here before 2:30 and enjoy our de luxe performance. Matinee Prices: Daily up to 6:30 Adults 30c, Children 15c; after 6:30: Adults 50c, Children 25c. Saturday Evenings, after 6:30 P. M. and Sundays and Holidays: Adults 60c, Children 25c.

Last times Today

Benny Meroff in Jack Haskell's super production

"EASTERN NIGHTS"

If you miss this gorgeous presentation with the Granada chorus of 75 beautiful girls you will regret it for the rest of your life and we don't mean maybe!

"The Lily"

Watching Pajama Parade at the Lido

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIDO, Venice. — [Special Correspondence.]—Here where Milady either meets you in her pyjamas or she isn't a lady, the American girl has come into her own, or at least one hopes it is her own, in the international competition of being smart, winsome and alluring.

For in the Excelsior pyjama parade it is her costumes that are the most attractive, and—if pyjamas are capable of possessing this quality—the most daring. Her figure is the most sylphlike, and in the art of suggesting the boudoir in theory, rather than fact, she excels.

The old pale pink bedroom pyjamas she leaves to her foreign sisters and selects for herself something in a black background with futuristic colors and patterns with sandals and silk turban to match.

The old sultans of Turkey in their palmiest days never saw such an array of pyjama beauties dancing to their phonographs on the beach before their individual bathhouses.

Some Charming Americans.

Among the Americans especially remarked were Lila Emery; Lady Northesk, née Jessica Brown; Countess Farasso, née Dorothy Taylor; Countess Zappola, Mary Corday, Mrs. Cole Porter, Lady Mendel, née Elsie de Wolf, and Melissa Reid, niece of Princess Rospignliosi, née Maria Reid of New Orleans.

Blanche Vogel's costume was particularly noted. The pajama suit was of chartreuse colored satin with gold tissue jumper and gold sandals.

Life at the Lido livened up a bit at the arrival of Princess Rospignliosi, whose gay parties include the Lido's most distinguished visitors and the new professional tennis player, Suzanne Lenglen, and Count Salm. Suzanne's debut into professional ranks was greeted at the dock with a jazz band and most of the guests at the Excelsior. And Count Salm, although his arrival was also announced, was lost in the shuffle.

In the Public Eye.

Salm's moment came later. Ignoring the official costume, the erstwhile husband of Millicent Rogers, clad in a gorgeous silk dressing robe of red, green, and black over his white trousers and tennis shirt, sauntered into the lobby of the Excelsior, followed at a respectful distance by several Americans. He stretched himself out on a long, cushioned chair, toyed with his tennis racquet as he talked to two male friends, and soon the other chairs near by were occupied by daintily pajamaed sirens.

But perhaps the brightest spot in the entire Lido, despite the direct sun overhead, was M. Antoine, the well known coiffure de Paris, who appeared in orange silk pyjamas, over which he wore a vermillion bath wrap, lined in gray, and a pair of the most red slippers possible.

In the bar, where the smart crowd does a lot of crowding in the afternoon, evening, night and sometimes just before breakfast, one sees the familiar pyjamas. Perhaps the most angelic picture seen in the bar this season was that of Lady Diana Duff Cooper, miraculously balancing herself on a high stool. The voluminous taffeta skirts of her robe de style spread out upon both sides like wings as she innocently sipped her beverage and conversed with friends.

SINGS TODAY

Miss Kathryn Baird, heralded as Canada's most beautiful singer, will be heard as soloist with Princess Pat's band at the Studebaker theater this afternoon.

More Letters from Film Fans

No Eggs This Time.

Dear Miss Tinée: Here I am again. But not with rotten eggs this time.

I have just seen "The Reckless Lady," which I have enjoyed so much. Belle Bennett was just dandy, and so was Lois Moran. And if Ben Lyon wasn't the most lovable beau, I'll be darned.

All was fine except Lowell Sherman. His makeup was so noticeable. Haven't you noticed his lips and eyes, Miss Tinée? To me he looked like a perfect clown, and not a Count Feodor. I wish you could tell those producers to have a heart and choose somebody who would resemble a count. (This isn't saying that Mr. Sherman resembles a clown, but with that makeup he does.) Otherwise, everything is O. K. and three cheers for the players.

I don't quite remember your opinion on this picture, Mae, but I am sure you had a good word for it (or I am all wrong). Your fan, BIBBS.

Editor's note—Right as usual—and come again, Bibbs.

Weary of Mother-in-Law Comedies.

My Dear Miss Mae Tinée: Appreciating the importance of your judgment, I am writing to voice a protest against the various mother-in-law comedies. The last one I saw was disgustingly silly, as usual. None seemed to enjoy it. Why are they imposed on the public?

Besides, after all, a mother-in-law is a mother. MRS. A. N.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

No Hope.

Weary Willie had become ragged and dirty through his long, hard winter. He resolved he would ask for some clothing instead of food at the next house to which he came.

He came to a doctor's office and rapped. A young woman came to the door and Weary Willie asked, "My good ma'am, has the doctor some old trousers that he could give me?"

The young woman replied: "I'm the doctor." J. E. K.

Quite Simple.

Splash: "Where do you get your auto accessories?"

Spatter: "O, I just honk my horn at them and smile and open the door and they just hop in!" E. C. H.

Yes, but——

Younk niece—Aunty, did a man ever propose to you?

Aunty—Yes, year, once, over the telephone, but he had the wrong number. E. K.

Mistaken Kindness.

"I know tomorrow is your birthday, dear," wrote a young man, "and I shall send you some roses, one for every year of your sweet life."

When the florist saw the order for the flowers he said, "Mr. Smiley is a good customer of ours. Just put in an extra half dozen of those roses." P. C.

System of Her Own.

Landlady—Do you turn my mattress every morning?

Bridget—No, madam, every other morning, and then I turn it twice. F. C. F.

Exit the Stove.

Mary Ann—Please mum, the gasoline stove has gone out.

Mistress—Well, light it again.

Kindness on His Part.

Shocked Old Lady—What! Willie Jones—and fishing on Sunday! I'm surprised.

Willie—Naw, I ain't fishin' nuther. I'm only teaching this here worm to swim. A. M. G.

Correcting Him.

Traffic cop—What's your name?"

Truck driver—"It's on the side of me wagon.

Cop (trying to read name)—It's obliterated.

Truck driver—You're a liar. It's O'Brien. A. M. G.

Just Jealousy.

"Why did the foreman sack you yesterday?"

"Well," was the reply, "a foreman is one who stands around and watches his gang work."

"I know, but what's that got to do with it?"

"Why, he got jealous of me! People thought I was the foreman." MRS. F. G.

And It Knows.

Young Husband—It seems to me, my dear, that there is something wrong with this cake.

The Bride [smiling triumphantly]—That shows what you know about it The cookery book says it's perfectly delicious. A. C.

That's Why.

Employer—"Why are you lighting the lantern?"

Hired Man—"I am going to see my gal."

Employer—"When I went to see my girl, I never took a lantern."

Hired Man—"Yes, an' see what you got." G. I. S.

My Most Embarrassing Moment

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moment, The Tribune, Chicago. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

She Wanted a Ride.

One hot July afternoon I was walking home, wishing someone would give me a lift. Grand, the screech of brakes, and a car stopped a few yards ahead of me. It belonged to the owner of a grocery store which we patronized. He turned and smilingly beckoned.

Thinking he intended to give me the much wished for ride, I hurried over and got in, saying how lovely it was of him when I saw him turning around farther, and then I saw four men running toward the car. They piled in and I saw immediately they were old friends of Mr.——— and he had evidently stopped for them. Embarrassed? H. L.

Lo and Behold!

I bought some curtain material and when I brought it home it was nice enough to make a dress of, so I did.

Wearing it to our monthly "klatch," I accepted the many compliments paid me on my dress and in answer to inquiries, I informed the girls that I had paid a steep price for the goods!

Imagine my embarrassment when we walked into the hostess' kitchen to find she had curtains of the same goods and she sweetly informed us she got enough for both windows for two dollars. But of course hers was purchased at a bargain sale! M. V.

An Oversight.

My most embarrassing moment came shortly after a recent birthday. A close friend of mine presented me with a book on a rather deep (as well as dull) subject. I put it aside, barely glancing at its pages. About a month later this friend dropped in for a visit. During this visit his eyes happened to rest on the book. He picked it up and remarked, "I imagine you were interested in this book."

I, not wishing to hurt his feelings, replied: "Yes, it was most interesting."

He looked at me curiously and then I noticed that I had forgotten to cut the pages. C. J. C.

Talking to Him.

Last winter, while skating, a good looking boy came up and asked me to skate with him. I did so, and during the time we were skating I found he lived in the same neighborhood I did. I began to ask him if he knew several persons I did, and as it happened he didn't. I began to give sketches of them.

Now there was a boy of whom I had heard several stories, but had never seen, and I was anxious to meet him, so just for the fun of it I said, "Do you know J—— M——?" and before he could answer I began to tell him how good looking this boy was and how anxious I was to meet him, etc. This boy finally spoke up and said, "Why, I'm J—— M——, and those stories you've heard are only about one-fourth true"

That was my most embarrassing moment. M. E.

Out of the Quiet.

After purchasing an alarm clock I entered a large theater.

Due to the recent musicians' strike it was exceedingly quiet.

To my horror my alarm clock went off so loudly that it attracted the attention of the whole audience, who thought at first it was a bomb getting ready to explode.

Imagine my embarrassment when I was forced to explain that it was only my noisy alarm. M. H.

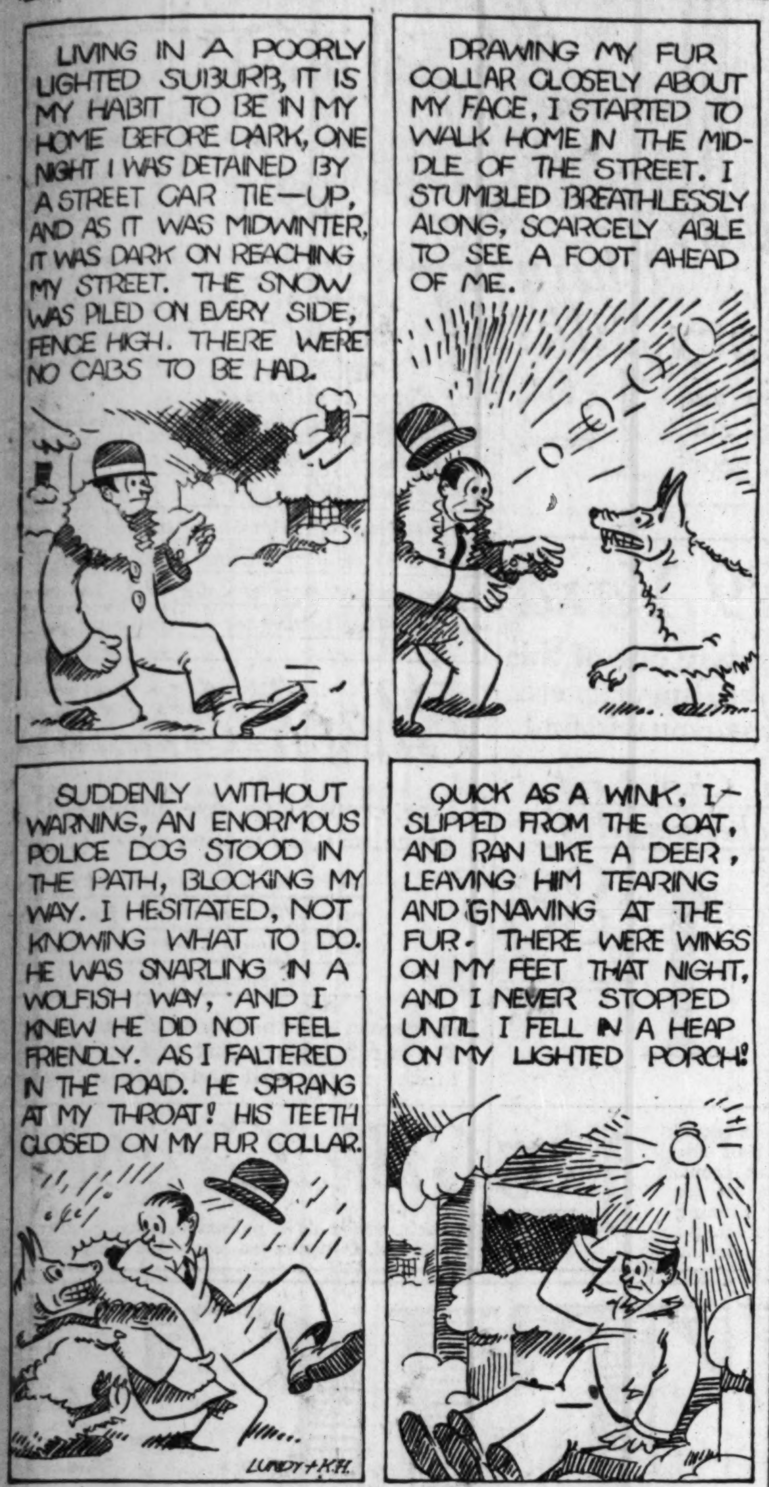
MY GREATEST THRILL



LIVING IN A POORLY LIGHTED SUBURB, IT IS MY HABIT TO BE IN MY HOME BEFORE DARK, ONE NIGHT I WAS DETAINED BY A STREET CAR TIE—UP, AND AS IT WAS MIDWINTER, IT WAS DARK ON REACHING MY STREET. THE SNOW WAS PILED ON EVERY SIDE, FENCE HIGH. THERE WERE NO CABS TO BE HAD.
DRAWING MY FUR COLLAR CLOSELY ABOUT MY FACE, I STARTED TO WALK HOME IN THE MIDDLE OF THE STREET. I STUMBLED BREATHLESSLY ALONG, SCARCELY ABLE TO SEE A FOOT AHEAD OF ME.
SUDDENLY WITHOUT WARNING, AN ENORMOUS POLICE DOG STOOD IN THE PATH, BLOCKING MY WAY. I HESITATED, NOT KNOWING WHAT TO DO. HE WAS SNARLING IN A WOLFISH WAY, AND I KNEW HE DID NOT FEEL FRIENDLY. AS I FALTERED IN THE ROAD. HE SPRANG AT MY THROAT! HIS TEETH CLOSED ON MY FUR COLLAR.
QUICK AS A WINK, I SLIPPED FROM THE COAT, AND RAN LIKE A DEER, LEAVING HIM TEARING AND GNAWING AT THE FUR. THERE WERE WINGS ON MY FEET THAT NIGHT, AND I NEVER STOPPED UNTIL I FELL IN A HEAP ON MY LIGHTED PORCH!
LUNDY + K.H.

Chat from Filmland

Hollywood, Cal.

Hollywood is busily engaged wisecracking the Chaplins. Charlie has had another spell of enthusiastic organ playing on the big pipe organ in his Beverly Hills home and Lita has just recently gone to the Hollywood hospital with an attack of acute ear trouble.

School has opened for the movie children and out at Universal the number of children in the studio school is rather large. Besides Betsy Anne Hisle, playing Little Eva in 'Uncle Tom's Cabin," Lassie Lou Ahern, who plays little Henry; Mona Ray, who is Topsy, and then Jackie Morgan, who plays little Chester in the Gump comedies, there are fifteen others who play lesser rôles around the lot, and they all attend the studio school.

Patsy Ruth Miller and her family, including her father, Oscar Miller, former editor of St. Louis; her mother and her little brother, Winston, is making a baseball trip of the United States. The final St. Louis-New York games of the National league were to be taken in in New York first, then the first three games of the world series. Then on west to St. Louis for more world series games and then back to Hollywood. Following her parents' footsteps, Pat began throwing pop bottles at the age of 2 and is one of the best cash customers at the local, Wrigley baseball field.

U. S. HOUSEWIVES RESUME RADIO COOKING LESSONS

Betty Crocker's School to Open Next Monday.

Half a million housewives in the United States and Canada will tune in their radio sets on one of thirteen large broadcasting stations from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast next week when Betty Crocker, nationally known home service specialist, resumes her radio talks.

Three times a week, Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, Miss Crocker will attempt to give new ideas to old cooks and old ideas to new cooks. Mondays and Wednesdays her talks will deal with general household problems, including the preparation of food, proper menus, and other suggestions which she hopes will be of interest to the woman in the home. The Friday sessions will be devoted to her radio cooking school, which last year was declared to be the largest school in history in the number of registrants.

WHT to Broadcast.

The stations from which Miss Crocker will broadcast this year are as follows: WEEI, Boston; WEAF, New York; WGR, Buffalo; WFI, Philadelphia; KDKA, Pittsburgh; WTAM, Cleveland; WWJ, Detroit; WHT, Chicago; KSD, St. Louis; WCCO, Minneapolis-St. Paul; WDAF, Kansas City; KFI, Los Angeles; KPO, San Francisco. Her talks will go on the air at approximately 10:45 a. m.

This is the third year in which Miss Betty Crocker has discussed culinary problems with American housewives over the air. Three years ago she broadcast her home service talks from WCCO.

So great was the interest shown that last year arrangements were made to send out these talks three times a week from a chain of stations extending from Boston to Los Angeles. This year Miss Crocker will use practically the same chain of broadcasters for her series with the addition of KPO, San Francisco, on the Pacific coast.

One change has been made since last year in the manner in which the cooking school will be conducted. Three separate and distinct schools were conducted last year, and to qualify for graduation in any one of the schools it was necessary that a housewife report on all of the lessons. This year but one school will be included in the 25 weeks of the series, the lessons to go on the air each Friday morning. To graduate and receive a diploma it is necessary only that the listener report on any ten of the Friday lessons broadcast during the season.

Listeners Everywhere.

Listeners to Miss Crocker's talks and pupils in her cooking schools last year included residents from nearly every state in the Union, ranging from a lumber camp in the Cascade mountains of Oregon to a lighthouse nine miles out from the coast of Maine.

Every week thousands of women wrote letters to her telling of the assistance her talks had been to them in their work or suggesting favorite recipes of their own which they wished to have her include. This latter phase built up what might have been termed a national exchange of cooking recipes whereby Mrs. Los Angeles was able to enjoy the same dish of baked beans that Mrs. Boston's family had eaten for years, and Mrs. New York was able to experiment with some of the better known Scandinavian dishes so popular in the vicinity of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

September in Radio History

1897.—During September apparatus was erected at Bath, England, and signals received from Salisbury, 34 miles distant.

1899.—The international yacht races were reported by wireless telegraphy.

1918.—Messages transmitted from Carnarvon were received in Sydney, 12,000 miles away. Cable confirmations of these messages were sent forward at the same time, but were received hours later.

1921.—The American Radio Relay league held its first annual convention in Chicago.

1921.—The initial licenses for broadcasting stations in the United States were issued in September of this year.

1924.—England put a nightingale's song on air.

1925.—U. S. navy high frequency messages heard half around the world.

1925.—London programs relayed to New York and eastern cities. "Big Ben" plainly heard.

G. E. EMPLOYS 15 TRANSMITTERS IN RESEARCH WORK

But They Are Not All Used Together.

Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Fifteen radio licenses have been issued to the General Electric company by the department of commerce, to assist engineers of that company in their comprehensive inquiry into the mysteries of radio transmission.

To the average listener fifteen radio licenses sound like a lot of interference and there might be some atmospheric difficulties in the vicinity of Schenectady if all the transmitters represented by the fifteen licenses were on the air at the same time with voice and code. This is not the case, however, as rarely more than six transmitters are working at once and these are so widely spaced that there is no chance of one transmitter encroaching on the air lane of another.

On every continent engineers and investigators are striving to reveal some of the secrets of the art, but nowhere are more men engaged in radio research than in Schenectady. The fifteen licenses are used to cover a wide range of wave lengths and widely different types of transmitters. From time to time propagation tests are made, sometimes with the cooperation of listeners in general, but more often with the assistance of field representatives who travel in different directions from the transmitter and make measurements on quality and volume at varying distance, both on land and sea.

The licenses issued to the General Electric company and the wave lengths for which they are issued are: 2XAW, 3 to 20 meters, 2XO, 2XAF and 2XAD, 10 to 50 meters; 2XH, 2XK and 2XAC, 50 to 150 meters; 2XAK and 2XAZ, 100 to 200 meters; 2XAG [50 kilowatts], 380 meters; 2XAH, 1,000 to 4,000 meters; 2XI, general experimental license; 2XAM, 110 meters; 2XAE, 110 meters. The fifteenth is for broadcasting purposes and is best known to the average radio fan. This is WGY, licensed for 379.5 meters.

KNX, Coast Station, Claims Record in Use of Tube

Los Angeles, Sept. 25.—[Special.]—KNX is believed to have established a world's record for the use of a No. 212-A tube in transmitting hours. This tube was used for 8,175 hours.

100 STATIONS TO HELP UNCLE SAM REACH FARMERS

Approximately 100 broadcasting stations, representing every section of the country, will lend their facilities regularly to the United States department of agriculture starting Oct. 4.

The new government farm programs, which cover a wide scope of interest, are to be brief digests of the most timely, pertinent facts woven into story form, carefully adapted to radio presentation.

The fall and winter broadcasting schedule of the radio service includes twenty special program features each week, covering the full range of interests reached by all bureaus of the department.

School from 25 Stations.

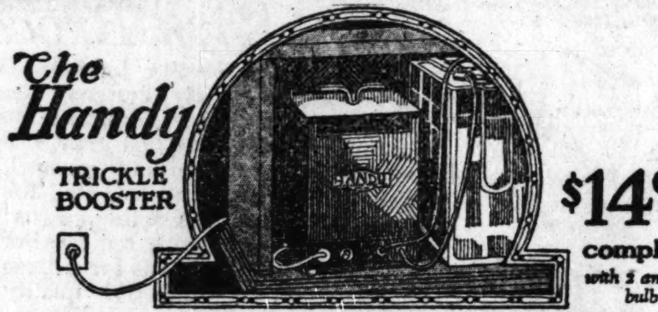
The United States Radio Farm school, which has already brought requests for a half million enrollment cards, will be conducted from twenty-five stations. Lessons take the form of experience talks and imaginary inspection tours. Radio "schoolmasters" at the respective stations will conduct classes. Material furnished by the department of agriculture will be dramatized in such form as to attract and maintain interest through the courses. Printed lessons are mailed to all enrollment students.

Another outstanding service to be released from forty stations is the noonday flashes. This porgram will enable a million farmers to listen in daily to both sides of an intelligent, interesting, telephone conversation between a county agent and farmer, who will discuss timely problems.

Aunt Sammy on Air.

"Aunt Sammy," a new radio friend and neighbor, will be heard from thirty stations. Uncle Sam's sister, who is the official radio representative of the bureau of home economics of the department of agriculture, has a sense of humor and is the friendly sort. She knows all the new wrinkles and fine points in housekeeping and will tell about them in a style all her own.

Special farm features to be scheduled this fall and winter from 50 stations include "A Weekly Letter to Dad," which the son at college writes home telling the folks the high spots in his studies of agriculture which he believes might well be put into practice on the home place; "Autobiographies of Infamous Bugs and Rodents," a ten minute specialty about "pests that are bothering now," as told by the insects and rodents themselves; "Chats by the Weather Man," "Primer for Town Farmers," "An Interview with the Agricultural Economist," and a weekly "Farm News Digest."



The Handy
TRICKLE BOOSTER

$14.00 complete with 2 ampere bulb

Solves the "A" Power Problem

A remarkable new invention by Interstate. Unlike all others. Welcomed by radio owners everywhere.

Here at last is the solution to the "A" power problem—a single, simple, compact unit which when plugged into the ordinary house lighting AC current and connected to any radio storage battery, gives a permanent, thoroughly satisfactory supply of radio electrical energy. This new invention operates as a trickle charger, keeping "A" storage battery up to capacity under ordinary service conditions. But, unlike the ordinary trickle chargers as developed today, the HANDY Trickle Booster can also be operated as a fast rate charger to quickly bring "A" batteries up to full strength should they become weakened under unusually heavy service. Just a simple throw of the toggle switch and the rate of charge is instantly changed from one-half ampere to 2½ amperes. This one exclusive feature insures positive freedom from irritation and disappointment over weak or lost radio reception due to weakened condition of batteries.

By merely flipping the small toggle switch the Handy is instantly changed from a trickle charger to a fast rate charger, or back again.

Recommended by Battery Manufacturers

The HANDY Trickle Booster is the latest development of modern science to meet the popular demand for an "A" power unit which will contain a fast rate charger as well as a trickle charger as a means of automatically replenishing "A" storage battery current. There are no moving parts to wear and get out of order—no chemicals to spill and ruin rugs or furniture. It is absolutely noiseless in operation. It requires no attention. All connections to battery and light sockets are permanent. No connections need ever be changed.

The HANDY Trickle Booster fits in any radio cabinet which has provision for an "A" power unit. Size is 5"x5½"x7½". Weight only 9½ pounds. Encased in all metal container beautifully finished in Duco Brewster Green. Attractive to the eye—essential to the set—economical in price. Sold on a guarantee of entire satisfaction.

"Realistic!"

KELLOGG
Flawless Reproduction
Radio

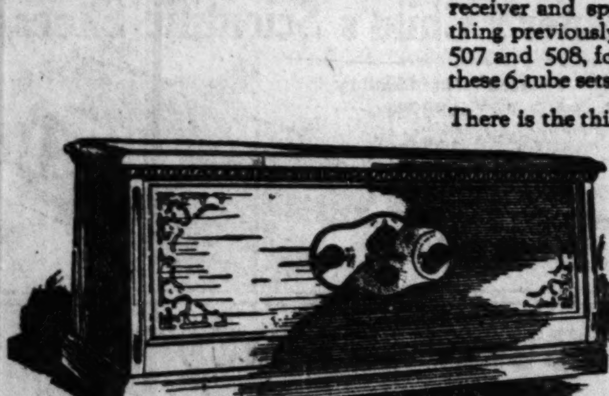
Licensed under application for letters patent of Radio Frequency Laboratories, Inc. (R. F. L.)

Reproduction so perfect that it holds you—thrills you—with its warm, living realism! That's Kellogg Radio. Full, round volume on the low notes—clear, sharp fidelity on the high. Music that is complete in every overtone and harmonic—those elements that must be present if you are to have the feeling that an artist is "right in the room."

Kellogg, master builder of telephones for 29 years, has applied its vast experience to Radio and produced both a receiver and speaker that are distinct advances over anything previously known. You should see and hear Models 507 and 508, for, besides reproduction, Kellogg builds into these 6-tube sets other qualities for which you have searched.

There is the third stage of radio frequency that means satisfactory range and selectivity. Freedom from interference from local stations is assured by thorough shielding. Four circuits are controlled in exact unison with a single knob.

More important than any of these is the exclusive Kellogg system—Inductive Tuning—which gives equal sensitivity, for the first time, at all wave lengths—200, 310, 425, 550 meters!



Either table model 507 or console 508 will appeal to those whose sense of refinement demands furniture of quiet line and dignified workmanship. Matched walnut, carefully selected, has been given the justly popular dull, smooth finish that is easily cared for and does not easily mar.

The loud speaker in Model 508 has a 44-inch horn, carefully moulded in a new material, which brings out the accompaniments of bass viol and large saxaphone in their correct relationship with the melody-carrying violins, cornets and piano. The realism will convince you that Radio is now in a new era of its development.

ANNA CASE AND SPALDING OPEN BIG SERIES OCT. 3

Chain of 15 Stations Will Broadcast Programs.

Anna Case, famed soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, and Albert Spalding, concert violinist, will lead the long procession of nationally famous grand opera and concert artists whom A. Atwater Kent has engaged for his series of weekly radio concerts this season.

These two artists will open the series next Sunday, broadcasting over a network of fifteen stations, including W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel. They will be followed on succeeding Sunday evenings by such internationally known stars as Frances Alda, Lucrezia Bori, Ernestine Schumann-Heink, Frieda Hempel, Josef Hofmann, Edward Johnson, Maria Kurenko, Louise Homer, Reinald Werrenrath, Margaret Matzenauer, Mary Lewis, Rosa Ponselle, Charles Hackett, and others yet to be announced.

Metropolitan Opera Agrees.

The enlistment of these top-liners of the music world has been made possible through a special arrangement with the Metropolitan Opera company permitting broadcasting by world famous opera stars not heretofore available to radio.

Announcement of the opening of the big Sunday evening series comes on the eve of the last of the summer radio programs conducted by Allen McQuhae, the Irish tenor. The success of this and other summer radio concerts has led to predictions of revolutionary changes in the concert world, which has heretofore enjoyed strictly seasonal popularity.

The futility of trying to assemble audiences in concert halls during the summer months has heretofore determined the time when the concert season opened and closed. Radio now follows the music lover no matter where or when he goes and brings him the finest concert music.

Many Stations Broadcast.

Tonight, when Allen McQuhae has sung "The Lord Is My Light," "Autumn Leaves," "Caucasian Sketches," "Ballymore Ballad," "Nora O'Neal," and others, he will for a time bid good-by to an audience of millions of listeners scattered thousands of miles apart over half of the United States.

The stations in addition to W-G-N that will broadcast the series of Sunday evening concerts are as follows: WEAF, New York; WJAR, Providence; WEEI, Boston; WSAI, Cincinnati; WRC, Washington; WCCO, Minneapolis-St. Paul; WTAM, Cleveland; WFI, Philadelphia; WCAE, Pittsburgh; WGR, Buffalo; WOC, Davenport; WTAG, Worcester; KSD, St. Louis; WWJ, Detroit.

SPANISH music will be presented tonight at 9 o'clock in "Our Music Room" on W-G-N, the CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel. An interesting program, comprising the works of many composers, is to be given. Following are some of the instrumental numbers: "Intermezzo," by Granados; "Espana Rhapsody," by Chabrier; "Serenade Espagnole," by Albeniz; and "La Gitana," by Kreisler. The vocal selections will include: "El Pano Moruno," by De Falla; "Seguidilla Murciana," by De Falla; and "The Vagabond's Song," by Manaco. The vocal soloists for tonight are Mark Love, basso, and Gilbert Ford, tenor.

The choir of the Irving Park Lutheran church will present an hour's program commencing at 3 o'clock. Harry Carlson is director of the choir. The program will consist largely of religious music. Some of the selections follow: "Ave Maris Stella," by Grieg; "Goin' Home," by Dvorak; "Listen to the Lambs," by Dett; "Cherubim Song," by Bortmanski; "Bless the Lord Oh My Soul," by Ivannoff; "Swedish Wedding March," by Sodermann; "Praise Ye the Lord in Heaven," by Arensky; and "Sons of Men," by Cadman.

The Coon-Sanders Nighthawks, one of the most popular orchestras in radio, will be on the air at 10:30 o'clock tonight in a half hour broadcast from the Blackhawk café. They will offer several groups of numbers. The Nighthawks' program will bring tonight's schedule to a close.

The Lyon & Healy program this afternoon is to be presented by Ruth Metcalfe, contralto, and Dorothy Bell, harpist. These two artists will be on the air an hour starting at 2 o'clock. Miss Metcalfe's program will be composed of several classical numbers, among them: "A Swan" and "A Dream," by Grieg; "Lilacs," by Rachmaninoff, and "Song of the Open," by La Forge. Miss Bell's selections will include "Marche Solennelle," by Gounod; "Romance," by Matthews, and "Minuet," by Hasselman.

Listeners fond of old time favorite songs will find several of this type in "The Million Sing" at 7 o'clock this evening. Such selections as "The Harp That Once Through Tara's Halls," "Loch Lomond," "The Blue Bells of Scotland," "Killarney," "Softly Now the Light of Day," and "America" will be presented. Twenty minutes are devoted to "The Million Sing" each Sunday evening.

The 10 o'clock hour tonight will begin with the premier comedians Sam 'n' Henry, who will take over the microphone for ten minutes. The dialogue of these two boys from Birmingham is one of the leading features of each night's W-G-N program.

U. S. YOUTH WINS WORLD TITLE AS RADIO BUILDER

New York, Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The world's championship trophy for skill in building radio receivers, among amateur wireless enthusiasts, was won by John Harrison Hartley of New York, a 16 year old boy, according to an announcement from the Radio World's fair in New Madison Square Garden.

It was the greatest contest of its kind ever conducted and rivalry was intense between the receivers built by the English and American competitors, who dominated the contest.

England captured one first prize in the series of contests for home-constructed receivers, William Tricker of Andover capturing honors for his two-tube set in the contest for persons over sixteen years of age. Only one Chicago boy broke into the prize lists John Neis, winning second prize in the freak set contest.

ANNOUNCER TO GO ON STAGE.

It is reported that Graham McNamee, the announcer, is contemplating making personal appearances throughout the country. McNamee formerly made his living as a singer.

WLIB PROGRAM

Leon Lichtenfeld, cellist; Tommy Coates, baritone, and Herbert Johnson, pianist, will give their regular Sunday program at 5 o'clock this evening on WLIB, the Liberty Weekly station on the Drake hotel. Each of these artists will present groups of classical, operatic, and semi-classical selections. This program will run until 6 o'clock, at which hour the Blackstone string quintet, directed by Irving Margraff, will go on the air direct from the Blackstone hotel.

MUSICAL GEMS THIS WEEK FOR W-G-N LISTENERS

Coon-Sanders Orchestra Makes 1st Appearance

Among the leading musical features of the coming week from W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, will be the presentation of the third and fourth acts of the opera "Aida" by the W-G-N vocal group on Tuesday evening, between 9 and 10 o'clock. Last week the first and second acts were presented.

JOE SANDERS.
[Hixon Studio.]

"Aida" was selected to open the operatic program which W-G-N is planning for the fall. Upon its conclusion the vocal group will draw upon other classic operas for future material. Verdi's "Rigoletto" is scheduled to follow "Aida," the first two acts to be given on Tuesday, Oct. 5.

Coon-Sanders on Air.

The operas are presented in tabloid form, with the announcer telling the story and the vocal group inserting the principal arias, duets, and quartets. The choicest musical portions of the operas and accompaniment for the singers is provided by the W-G-N studio ensemble.

Perhaps surpassing "Aida" in popular interest will be the series of programs this week by the Coon-Sanders Nighthawks, broadcast direct from the Blackhawk café. This famous musical organization, headed by Joe Sanders and Carleton Coon, will go on the air tonight over W-G-N, between 10:30 and 11 o'clock, and will be heard each night next week, between 12 midnight and 1 o'clock, over Station WLIB. Coon and Sanders will cheer listeners with their snappy repartee between groups of dance selections.

Czecho-Slovakian Program.

On Friday evening, between 8:30 and 9:30 o'clock, the first of a series of three Czecho-Slovakian programs is to be presented over W-G-N. The Lyra, the foremost and largest Bohemian singing society in the United States, will go on the air in a group of Bohemian patriotic and folk songs. The society is composed of sixty voices. Anton J. Cermak, president of the board of county commissioners, is also to talk over W-G-N during this program.

The W-G-N vocal group on Saturday evening is to make a tabloid presentation of the famous comic opera, "The Merry Widow."

AUSTRALIAN FANS PAY $6.

Every owner of a receiving set in Australia pays an annual license fee of $6. Of this sum the government keeps $1 and the remainder is divided among the broadcasting stations.

Inside the Loud Speaker

By Quin A. Ryan, W-G-N Announcer

THE radio audience is perhaps too prone to criticize the radio announcers and impresarios for the ostensible lack of variety in their night after night offerings.

But who ever takes into consideration the ornery chore that confronts the radio man of changing his program daily? The announcer or director of the radio must present a new circus every evening and ordain it for all classes and conditions of listeners. A magazine editor has an entire week or month to compile a program of reading; a theatrical producer, even in the semi-movie houses, has a week or more to evolve a brand new show; and the best of our stage comedians need a new monologue only twice a year or so, and oftentimes seek no further for it than the college funny books.

The announcer, however, addresses as many folks in one evening as the comedian does in a year. Night after night the same audience, and the announcer must see to it that he does not stale. Day after day an original new show, and the audience must be entertained. Every evening has to contain something for every class of listener. There are as yet no specialized radio stations, offering programs of one nature exclusively, such as an all-jazz station, an all-classic station or an all-news station. Religious broadcasters are an exception.

So, when considering the sameness of many announcers' nightly harangues, remember that he has a job that is extraordinarily difficult, that of appearing every night in the week and of always saying something "new."

THE "ASK ME a Hard One Man" is at your disposal. He will answer any and all questions concerning the radio folks and their ways and means. Just address all queries to him in care of the motorman. Here he is:

Boy Aladdin. — Hal Totten, the WMAQ baseball announcer, was once a page in the New York aquarium. He is married and lives north somewhere. His motto is: Strive and succeed.

ASK ME A HARD ONE ENCYCLOPEDIA

H. T. F.—Wayne Myers is the announcer at WIBO. One of his sons, Capt. George Wellington Streeter, established quite a reputation as a mariner. His motto has always been: A rolling stone gathers no moss.

B. T. McC.—George Gubbins is the WGES announcer. He was educated in the grade schools and at the state university, and later took a correspondence course in big game hunting. From this he drifted into the radio profession. His motto is: A stitch in time saves nine.

Eli—As far as I know, no station has ever broadcast a cash register. Yes, come again.

Mabel—Ah, no, neither Correll nor Godsen is married. They both use snuff, because they like the prizes that come in the packages, and they spend their afternoons street car riding. Their motto is: Sink or swim.

Maroon.—Ford Rush, I understand, is in the hospital with appendicitis and Glenn is performing alone. Ford used to be an interpreter at cloak and suit conventions, and his motto is: Phil, the bootblack.

J. B. F.—Well, the only way I know of to acquire tickets for the Army-Navy game is to apply to Correll and Gosden. The boys tell me they have 100 tickets they will sell for regular prices and they offer them to the first comers. Their telephone number is Buckingham 0300.

A COMMON SOURCE of amusement to the radio director is the letter-writing clique organized by an aspiring entertainer. All of a sudden the sky becomes dark and the sun is obscured, and the radio director, looking up, finds an enormous flock of letters and postcards winging their way toward him. One by one they settle on his desk, ruffle their wings and squawk their story. "Have you ever heard Tom McGluck?" they all ask. "He's a marvelous singer [or story teller, as the case may be], and you're losing out by not getting in touch with him. His telephone number is Orange Juice 6666."

Or "Why haven't we ever heard Thomas McGluck from your station? He's a peacherino, and we'll never listen to you until you put him on. I think he lives at 6666 Orange Juice avenue."

Whereat the rado director stretches up to his full unpressed length, snatches a broom and sweeps the whole push of little press agent birdlings down the elevator shaft! It's a crool, crool world.

THOMAS A. EDISON, who has birthdays in the newspapers every once in a while, had a few well chosen phrases to utter last week on the subject of radio: "There isn't 10 per cent of the interest in radio that there was last week. It's a highly complicated machine in the hands of people who know nothing about it. No dealers have made any money out of it. It isn't a commercial machine, because it is complicated. It's awful—I don't see how they can listen to it."

My, my, maybe it's a plague, and we all ought to get vaccinated!

APPLAUSE CARDS seem to be vanishing. Applause cards, for the information of new radio devotees, were post cards issued free by advertisers for the use of listeners in commenting on broadcasters' programs. They were passed out by cigar stores, radio manufacturers and others, with one-half of the card covered with an advertisement and the other half with blank lines for the listeners' remarks. They were in great vogue in the early days of broadcasting, but they seem to be passing away.

HARK! WAS THAT the plunk of a football we just heard from the radio horn, or was it only static?

CHICAGO'S FIRST RADIO SHOW TO OPEN TOMORROW

Fans to Select the Most Popular Artist.

Three outstanding features of the official National Dealer's radio show to be held in Exhibitor's hall of the hotel Sherman starting tomorrow are expected to draw the interest of Chicago fans. High school lads and others bitten by the bug of radio engineering on the amateur scale are whetting their wits for something new to astound the public with in the contest for set builders; radio artists are waging a popularity canvass in advance for the big voting tournament to come off during the exposition, and dealers are polishing up at least 200 new models to catch the eyes of fans who want to hear the best during the season just opening.

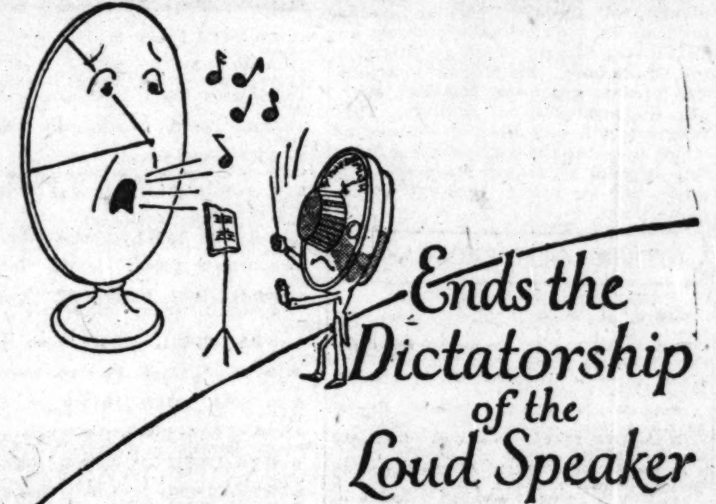
"It is impossible to forecast just what these new sets will be," said Milo E. Westbrooke, general manager of the show yesterday, "but from what dope has been sent me, I can safely predict that the emphasis will be on betterment of old ideas rather than departures into new general plans."

The popularity contest is open to all radio performers, and aside from awakening general competition in the studios it is calculated to give listeners a chance to see their ether idols as well as to express their appreciation of the entertainment sent out to them over the waves.

The open forum which will be a daily feature of the show will be open to every one, with no restrictions. Air piracy, it is thought, will come in for a generous portion of the time allotted to the free for all debate, but any number of questions relating in any way to radio will be brought up.

New York Girl Gets Prize for Best Radio Voice

New York, Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Rosaline Greene of Bay Shore, Long Island, former WGY star, is the winner of the perfect radio voice contest under the auspices of the Radio World's fair. Miss Greene graduated in June from the New York State College for Teachers, but may return to radio instead of teaching English and elocution, as she had planned.



Ends the Dictatorship of the Loud Speaker

LISPING loud speakers, horns with adenoids, cannot ruin programs for the owner of a Synchrophase. With its Colortone he controls the pitch and clarity of tone of voice or instrument, keeping them true and natural, independent of the loud speaker.

The Colortone also helps to subdue much of the scratchy static that is so annoying.

Other exclusive Grebe developments which make possible the unusually superior reception of the Synchrophase are:

Binocular Coils, which bring in any desired station and prevent the interference of others;

S-L-F Condensers, which make tuning, especially of low-wave stations, very simple and easy because there is no crowding, as stations are given equal spacing on the dials;

Low-Wave Extension Circuits, which make it possible to tune over one hundred stations not reached by other sets;

Flexible Unit Control, which gives a receiver of one, two or three-dial control, at your option.

Ask any Grebe dealer to demonstrate these Grebe developments, then compare the reception they give with that of other sets.

The whole family now gets those difficult stations — thanks to New Discovery
New MO-NOD-IC Receiver

Erla Omnitonic Cone Speaker

Erla "Triple-Life" tubes, including special power tubes

Until Now, many have lacked the "knack-of-radio" . . . Squeals, they got aplenty . . . just as the station was announced . . . Then they turned the set over to the "expert of the family." Thanks to a new discovery . . . all that is changed . . . Stations . . . new ones . . . come booming in . . . clear and crisp . . . no squeals or howls . . . selectivity razorlike . . . fuzziness and distortion . . . gone. The whole family gets those "difficult" stations now!

"This," you will say, "is unheard of." Before the new Erla "banished regeneration" it was . . . Now, a new principle makes regeneration obsolete. That is something worth while finding out about . . . a new principle in radio . . . new enjoyment, too, for all.

Scientists Discover New Principle

Scientists made a discovery. Erla engineers, collaborating with the distinguished staff of the Radio Frequency Laboratories, have done what they term "erasing regeneration" . . . the cause of squeals, howls and distortion. Manufacturers have often sought to eliminate it. But never succeeded except by sacrificing distance and volume—too great a penalty. Now regeneration is banished . . . but without loss. There is an actual gain in reception.

No wonder the new Erla (RFL) is considered a year ahead. Few now will be satisfied with old-fashioned receivers—especially when the improved Erla (RFL) may be purchased so very reasonably.

Beauty Unrivaled—Value Unapproached

Picture the Erla (RFL) DeLuxe Console in your home . . . an art object . . . a true "period" reproduction. Panels of quartered and matched burl walnut, hand-rubbed after the popular "antique" manner to a warm, dull glow . . . occupying no more space than a small table or floor lamp . . . a cabinet masterpiece . . . And the value of all models . . . you will find cannot be duplicated. Manufacture under one roof accomplishes these "one-profit" benefits for you. Just for your own protection you will want to see the new Erla (RFL) first. At stores listed below or demonstrated in your own home.

Erla HUM FREE "B" Eliminator

Price range of table cabinets $89.50-$95.50. Consoles $129.50-$146.50.

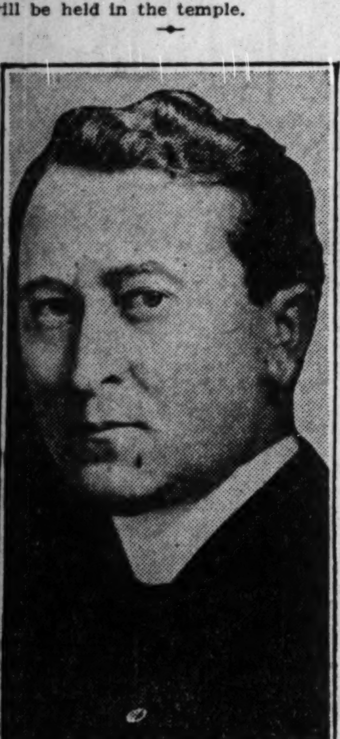
NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Ministers Unite in Meeting Tomorrow

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

THE first union ministers' meeting since the vacation season will be held tomorrow morning in the Chicago temple, Clark and Washington streets, at 10:30. The Rev. Charles L. Goodell of New York City, secretary of the commission on Evangelism of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, and the Rev. Charles E. Burton of New York City, secretary of the national council of Congregational churches will be the special speakers. The Rev. Joshua Stansfield, Oak Park, chairman of the commission on evangelism of the Chicago Church federation, will preside. The Rev. John Thompson of the Chicago temple will open with prayer and Homer Hammontree of the Moody Bible institute will lead the song service, beginning promptly at the hour announced. Evangelistic secretaries of other denominations will be introduced: The Rev. Charles E. Schaeffer, the Rev. J. W. Heininger, the Rev. George G. Mahy, and the Rev. H. F. Stillwell. The general subject will be, "A Coöperative Program of Evangelism."

Denominational luncheons will follow at the Morrison hotel at 12:30. The following will constitute the church groups: Baptist, Congregational, Disciples of Christ, Evangelical, Evangelical Synod, Lutheran, Methodist, Presbyterian, and one group in which the smaller denominations will meet together. The union meeting having been generally held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, special attention is called to the fact that owing to its larger size the meeting will be held in the temple.



THE VERY REV. MSGR. VICTOR PRIMEAU.
[French Brothers' Photo.]

One of the papal chamberlains appointed by Pope Pius XI. and announced last Tuesday at the seventeenth anniversary of his episcopacy by his eminence Cardinal Mundelein was the Very Rev. Msgr. Victor Primeau, pastor of St. Joseph's church, Manteno, Ill., and formerly assistant pastor of Notre Dame church, Chicago. Msgr. Primeau took a most active part in the Eucharistic congress in Chicago last June. He was chairman of the reception committee and secretary of the French section. He visited Montreal in the interest of the congress. Msgr. Primeau was born May 24, 1883, and ordained to the priesthood Dec. 22, 1906.

Dr. James M. Gray, president of the Moody Bible institute, North La Salle street and Chicago avenue, will begin today a series of Bible addresses open to the public on the subject, "The Beginning of Things," a comment on the book of Genesis. A choir of the institute will sing. The lectures will continue throughout the fall and winter.

The Rock River conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, comprising nearly 400 churches of northern Illinois, including those in Chicago, will meet Tuesday evening in the Embury church, Freeport, Ill. To induce an attendance by all the membership the pastor of the church, the Rev. W. L. Collin, and his congregation announced a complimentary chicken dinner. "The supposition being that out here where the west begins and the chickens grow fat and tender is the right place for such a dinner, we are determined to meet expectations," the invitation reads in effect.

Bishop W. O. Shepard will preside and Bishops E. H. Hughes and Frederick B. Fisher will be among the speakers. The laymen association will meet Friday in the Second Presbyterian church. The ministers' wives will be entertained at luncheon Monday, Oct. 4. Excursions are planned to Galena, Ill., to the church attended by President U. S. Grant and to the bird paradise at Baileyville, the home of the Rev. C. K. Carpenter. The churches of the various denominations in Freeport will be supplied next Sunday by members of the conference.

A novena in honor of the Little Flower is in progress at the Little Flower church, 1821 West 80th street. Friday will be the closing day, when roses of the Little Flower will be distributed following the giving of the papal blessing. Fathers McMahon, Shea, and Kelley are the preachers during the novena, which is expected to be a preparation for the dedication of the new church by his eminence Cardinal Mundelein on Oct. 17.

Bishop A. R. Clippinger will preach today at 10:15 at Zion church of the United Brethren in Christ at Gunnison street and Lawrence avenue and tonight will close the Ohio German conference, which has been in session there since Tuesday evening.

The Irving Park Lutheran church, the Rev. Joshua Oden, pastor, will hold rally day today. A procession with floats was a feature yesterday. The church will broadcast its services over WCFL this evening and onward. Walter E. Mee, executive secretary of the Chicago Church federation, will speak this morning at 9:15.

THE REV. JOHN R. HEYWORTH.

Newly carpeted, redecorated, the hardwood repolished, the Corinthian capitols on the stone columns of the main auditorium tinted with gold and silver leaf; the pastor's study, the gymnasium, and other smaller rooms repapered and painted, the New England Congregational church at North Dearborn avenue and Delaware place, will reopen today with special services morning and evening. The pastor, the Rev. John R. Heyworth, will be in general charge.

The morning speaker will be the Rev. Charles E. Burton, D. D., New York, general secretary of the National Council of Congregational Churches. The evening speakers will be the Rev. Russell M. Boynton, Bryn Mawr church; Dr. John R. Nichols, board of church extension, and Dr. John Timothy Stone, Fourth Presbyterian church.

Wednesday evening there will be a church dinner with Dr. Preston Bradley as the special speaker. Thursday evening will be athletic night. The church has spent $11,000 in its beautifying program. Plans are made to keep its religious and social activities abreast of its physical equipment.

The church was organized in 1853 and is the oldest of the Chicago Congregational churches retaining its original identity. The auditorium is one of the finest in the city. It has stones in its front walls from Scrooby Manor and Delft Haven, and near the pulpit platform a large baptismal font from Scrooby Manor, in which Elder Brewster baptised the children of Gov. Bradford more than 300 years ago. The original building was destroyed in the great fire of 1871 and a leaf from a partly burnt hymn book with the words on it: "Arise and Build" hangs framed on the wall.

Dr. Simon Peter Long, pastor of the Wicker Park Lutheran church, will begin at 4 o'clock next Sunday to broadcast from WGFL, wave length 491.5. Dr. Long has personally guaranteed the expense and so would appreciate help from any who believe the radio method of preaching will do good.

Tons of fresh fruit will form the decorations today at Sinai temple, 46th street and Grand boulevard, commemorating the Jewish festival of Succoth. The 750 children in the religious schools of the temple will each bring a basket of fruit. Later the fruit will be taken to hospitals, orphan homes, and other institutions. Poor families will also be remembered. On the platform also there will be erected a booth symbolic of the booths in which the Israelites dwelt during their exodus from Egypt to Canaan. Dr. L. L. Mann, rabbi, will speak on "Succoth Symbolism."

Dr. John Thompson, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church in the Chicago Temple, Clark and Washington streets, was unanimously invited to return as pastor for another year at a meeting in the temple last Wednesday. The First church will celebrate this morning at 10:45 the 95th anniversary of the organization of the church and the second anniversary of the Chicago temple. Dr. Thompson will preach. This evening at 8 Dr. Charles L. Goodell of New York, one of the best known ministers in America, will preach. Dr. Thompson furnishes the religious editorial today on THE TRIBUNE's editorial page on "Religion in Downtown Chicago." Another article could well be written on near downtown Chicago, meaning the circle of churches from Chicago avenue on the north, Twenty-third street on the south, and Ogden avenue and Ashland boulevard on the west.

A Bible conference of the Chicago Fundamental Ministers' union will be held tomorrow afternoon beginning at 3 and evening at the Lockwood Avenue Evangelical church, Byron street and Lockwood avenue, the Rev. F. W. Deutsch, pastor. The evening speakers will be the Rev. C. Richard of France and the Rev. W. H. Hockman of Moody Bible institute.

Dr. James W. Kramer, known after the parlance of "Billy" Sunday, as "Big Jim," will begin today at 11 o'clock an evangelistic campaign in the Temple Baptist church, Humboldt boulevard and Cortland street. Big Jim held a three weeks' meeting in Sing Sing prison and another meeting in Peekskill, N. Y., which so much interested the late President Theodore Roosevelt that Roosevelt wrote an article about him, in which he said, "When I hear him I feel like doing something great." M. E. Thompson, chairman of the publicity committee, secured the distribution of 15,000 posters in the community and tossed into all passing automobiles a copy of the gospel of St. John with an invitation on the cover.

It will be educational Sunday today at Bethel Lutheran church, 2101 North Humboldt boulevard. Prof. O. E. Brandt of St. Paul, Minn., will preach.

The Rt. Rev. A. F. Winnington-Ingram, Bishop of London of the Anglican church, will be in the United States this week, speaking at Ames and Iowa City, Ia., and will be in Chicago Oct. 4, where he is to be entertained by the church club, and will speak at the Sunday Evening club, Northwestern university and the University of Chicago. Dr. George Craig Stewart of Evanston is arranging for his itinerary, which will include a visit to the University of Illinois and to Lincoln's tomb at Springfield.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew of the Episcopal church will hold a conference at Taylor hall, Racine, Wis., beginning next Friday evening and continuing Saturday and Sunday. The subject discussed will be "Evangelism." The leader will be the Rev. J. A. Schaad of Augusta, Fla., missioner. The Rev. Duncan H. Browne, the Rev. Herbert W. Prince, the Rev. F. S. Fleming, Courtenay Barber, George K. Gibson and Leslie H. Allen are coöperating as a committee.

NO High School or College EDUCATION NEEDED —to earn $50 to $100 a week

Hundreds of COYNE ELECTRICAL SCHOOL graduates never had more than a Grammar School education, yet they're making $50 to $100 a week.

B. J. Rushka, with only a 4th grade education, graduated from COYNE. In his first job he was up against electricians of 8 to 20 years' experience, yet, according to his employers, "He showed them up." This was because he was trained at COYNE.

12 WEEKS' PRACTICAL TRAINING FITS YOU FOR BIG PAY

COYNE fits you to make good on a big-pay job immediately upon graduation. COYNE trains you by having you do the actual work on thousands of dollars of equipment. NO books to study; NO lessons to master; you learn by doing! COYNE gives you the practical training employers want.

Our Employment Department Secures 40-90 Positions a Week for Students

Demand for our graduates exceeds supply. Many COYNE graduates under 21 earn $50 to $60 weekly. Get into the big-paying Electrical profession.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Migrating Birds Are Winter Augury

By Mme. X.

THE autumnal equinox is passed and for the next six months our nights will be longer than our days. Even now, the Lake Forest newsboy, who each morning leaves the W. G. N. at the doors of Lake Forest's élite, makes many of his deliveries before daylight. The X. family paper lands with a whack at 5:30 a. m. This local distributor of the record of the world's happenings is the first mortal to be abroad in this neck of the woods, even getting ahead of that notoriously early bird, the milkman, by a full hour.

Already large flocks of martins darken the evening sky, sure harbingers of the approaching hegira of the feathered world. The squirrels in our garden, bushy tailed and busy, are harvesting their acorns most energetically. Fancy having to live on acorns all winter! It seems like a bitter and monotonous diet, but then perhaps the squirrels wouldn't care for our more varied provender.

It's a great thing to be able to turn your misfortunes to good account and by so doing route the gods of mischief who love to get us mortals into trouble. Arriving in town early last Monday morning without her spectacles or lorgnettes, the writer felt as if she had been deprived of a whole day until she bethought herself of that small but valuable collection of modern French pictures in a gallery in the Art institute known as the Helen Birch Bartlett room. Last June Mr. Atkins, the head of the Tait gallery in London, in answer to a query of Mrs. Arthur Ryerson's as to any recent acquisitions of French art of today, said: "Why does any one from Chicago come here to see modern French pictures when there is in the Birch-Bartlett room of the Chicago Art institute the most completely representative collection of its kind in this school of art?"

It was started by the late Mrs. Frederick C. Bartlett and her husband some years ago with a view to presenting it eventually to the Art institute. After Mrs. Bartlett's untimely death last autumn her husband and her father, Hugh T. Birch, immediately made of the collection a memorial of her rich and lovely life and gave it to the institute.

Sophisticated Paintings.

It is one of the most interesting of the smaller galleries that make the Institute so interesting. The largest canvas is that notable park scene, "Sunday on the Jatte Island," by George Sourat, on the east wall, a striking piece of work which attracted much comment when it first arrived here. On the south wall one of the well known moderns, Henri Rousseau, is represented by a coloful painting called "La Cascade," a creation of much design and many intricacies. Paul Gaugin, from the layman's point of view one of the most incomprehensible and baffling of the moderns, is here in his most characteristic moods, that which overtook him after a prolonged visit to the South Sea islands. The picture is entitled "Mahanga Noa Tua," and almost smites the observer with the heavy perfumes and fierce colors of those tropical regions. Pablo Picasso, Henri Matisse, and Vincent Van Gogh are all in evidence here in well chosen canvases that present them at their best.

Among the most vivid and captivating of these moderns is Ferdinand Hodler. He has two striking portraits, one of the sculptor, James Vincent, and one of a soldier whose forked red beard might have belonged to Henry Eighth of England, or to his French contemporary, Francis First. A strange, weird picture is one of Matisse's called "Le Guitarist," depicting an ancient specter of a man, either dead or in a trance, clasping a formidable guitar. It is decidedly powerful and draws the spectator back to it against his or her will.

There are many more canvases than these mentioned here, though the collection is small and choice. One gets from it a curiously stimulating reaction such as might come from being in the company of extremely sophisticated people, folk who had plumbed the heights and depths of life and in so doing had lost any belief in its glamour, illusions, traditions, sentimentalities. Baffled by the complexities of man's connection with the universe in the light of modern knowledge, what they seem to strive for is complete freedom from the shackles of the past, a chance to grow wings that will carry them far above the heights reached by any predecessors. At least, that is the way the thoughts of one student of the collection, who had forgotten her spectacles, felt after a twenty minutes' study of this gathering of moderns.

Helen Birch Bartlett.

The gallery perpetuates the name of one of the loveliest, most cultivated, and high souled daughters of Chicago. Helen Birch Bartlett was a rare personality. Her life, which was a short one as modern life allowances go, was rather set apart from that of most of the young women of her generation in Chicago. She gave much time to her music, becoming a delightful pianist and a composer of note. This talent she inherited from her mother, the late Mrs. Hugh T. Birch, who was a remarkable musician. Both ladies traveled much in Europe, and the younger one had comparatively few intimate friends in Chicago, her closest companion during her childhood and youth being Miss Catherine Eddy, now Mrs. Albert J.

Miss Margaret Quan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Quan of Evanston, is one of the season's debutantes. She is to be presented at a receptoin on Thanksgiving day.

The wedding of Miss Margaret Morsman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Morsman of the Chicago Beach hotel, to Harve J. Page, son of Mrs. J. Murray Page of 25 East Walton place, took place on Sept. 18.

Beveridge. They were alluring examples of what young girls might become who were not brought up in the sometimes indiscriminate companionship of their kind, such as is rather the custom today. Many a mother, with ideals in the matter of rearing her daughter, is withheld from putting them into practice by the fact that to do so would be to make the latter "queer," "odd," "different" from the others, and so gives up the attempt and turns her young, pliant offspring into the accepted mold, with the result that originality, purpose, quality are often lost in the process.

Not being either a bridge player or going in for sports left Helen Birch Bartlett more time to cultivate herself. She was a great reader, in both French and English, and had a fine taste for modern literature as well as for music and art. With all this high "culture" she was anything but pedantic, and was the most delightful companion in any company, no matter how gay and frivolous it might be. All her short life was radiant with the sunshine she created and shed about her. Perhaps the rest of us make a mistake in dwelling on the length of life. It is not so important how long we live as how we live and to what end.

On the way to the Helen Birch-Bartlett gallery I passed through one which had three striking portraits by that master of portraiture, Anders Zorn. Brilliant and salient they are. Two are likenesses of Chicagoites who are no longer living, William Butler Ogden, nephew and namesake of Chicago's first mayor, and his father's sister, Mrs. J. Young Scammon. The third canvas presents one of our fellow citizens well known both here and in Europe, Ira Nelson Morris.

Genius at Work.

Zorn was a remarkable man, a genius in painting, a man who might by some be considered as having thrown away his birthright. Born of Swedish peasant stock in the most famous of all the Sandinavian provinces, Dalarna, he became a citizen of the world and consorted on equal footing with the great and powerful of his time. He was a descendant of the vikings and followed some of their customs. They were mighty drinkers and he had inherited this quality from them. But no matter how much in his cups, he was, put a brush in his shaking hand and it became instantly as steady and sure as if he had not touched a drop.

The late Senator Medill McCormick engaged Mr. Zorn to paint a portrait of Mrs. McCormick's father, the famous statesman and political leader, Mark Hanna, no longer living. The portrait was to be a surprise for Mr. McCormick's wife. He watched the painter at work, at first with misgivings, as Zorn seemed always in a state of inebriation when he sat down to his easel. But as the work progressed the onlooker was reassured. That unsteady, flabby hand became firm and went at its task with perfect precision. The result was a great piece of work, a marvelous likeness, one instinct with life, as if the artist must have known his sitter, which was not the case. It now hangs on the wall of Mrs. McCormick's dining room at 1100 Lake Shore drive, unless it has been already removed to her Washington abode. For, alas for Chicago! she is going to shake the dust of this city from her feet and make her home in Washington. Her three children, Katrina, John, and Ruth Elizabeth, will grow up there in what is really the heart of the nation.

The Charles B. Pikes have taken Mrs. McCormick's apartment for the winter. For Chicago's gay world this is good news, as the Pikes are among the most genial and hospitable members of this cheerful set. They are again in their beautiful Lake Forest Italian villa, after spending the summer in Bar Harbor, where last year they bought, "right off the bat," Mrs. William Stotesbury's handsome house, lock, stock, and barrel—that is, with everything in it, except, probably, the Stotesbury wardrobes. The Pikes have already made a name for themselves in that exclusive community as delightful hosts and as highly desirable additions to the life of the island.

Hunting for Treasure.

That fashionable sport, the treasure hunt, which was born a few years ago in the fervid imaginations of some of England's smartest set, including Lady Diana Cooper [Diana Manners], Lady Lavery [Hazel Martyn of Chicago], and their ilk, has not gone out of favor with the English yet. A considerable number of this outfit makes it a practice to spend August and part of September at Venice, disporting themselves at the Lido, or frisking about the Piazza San Marco and up and down the moonlit canals.

To celebrate the arrival at Venice early in September of Miss Olga Lynn, a favorite in the gay set there, a treasure hunt was instituted, devised by the Baroness d'Erlanger, Henri Bernstein, Miss Elsa Maxwell and Cole Porter. [Some of us met the last named a decade or so ago at the John A. Carpenters, when he played his own compositions with scintillating brilliancy.] Others to partake in this Venetian night treasure hunt were Lady Diana Cooper, Lady Abdy, Lady Wimbourne, Lady Colebrooke, Lady Cunard, Lord Berners, Mr. and Mrs. Robin d'Erlanger, Mrs. Ruby Lindsay, and a string of lesser notabilities. The hunt was set in and around the Piazza San Marco, with that famous café, Florians, as a hub of the chase. This rendezvous, however, belongs not only to the smart English set but also to Italians and folk of many other nationalities.

When this troupe of "pretty people," mostly in evening dress, ran whooping in and out among the tables, shrieking and calling to each other, it disturbed the serenity of the regular habitués of other outlook in life. After enduring the hubbub for some time, the cosmopolitan crowd in the café began hissing violently until the police were called to still the incipient riot.

The men in the hunt, seeing the possibilties of unpleasant doings, besought Lady Abdy to stop the whole hectic route. It took some hard work to get the running, shouting mob of "our best people" to settle down to brioches and coffee at 1 o'clock in the morning. No one found the treasure, but Venice got its first lesson in treasure hunting. Perhaps, the next one will be so laid as not to offend the sensibilities of the surrounding public, or perhaps the latter will enter into the spirit of the affair and not call in the police to restrain the "mad English."

In the Wake of the Hurricane.

So many of Chicago's socially conspicuous folk spend a good part of their winters in Florida that it was inevitable that the recent West Indian hurricane, which did such widespread damage there, should have touched their possessions. I hate to think of the havoc wrought to the late James Deering's famous estate near Miami, a palace of dreams set in a garden that Kubla Hahn might have envied. Reassuring word has come from the Charles Deerings about the safety of their charming place a few miles to the south of Miami. Because of Mr. Deering's frail health they now spend the entire twelve months in their southern home.

The Albert B. Dicks are others of our fellow citizens who have a stake in Miami. Their sumptuous and delightful yacht, the Chieftain, was in

MRS. BENJAMIN I. HARTER.
[Drake Studio Photo.]

THE woman's auxiliary board of the Ravenswood hospital, of which Mrs. Benjamin I. Harter is president, will give a card party on Oct. 9 at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, the proceeds to go toward the hospital work sponsored by the board. Mrs. S. Johnston McNeill is chairman. The board also is giving a tea on Wednesday from 3 until 5 o'clock at the hospital for the patronesses of the card party.

The B. M. Z. Woman's club will inaugurate its season with its annual Succoth meeting tomorrow afternoon at the Old People's home. Mrs. Michael Flicht will be chairman of arrangements, Dr. Gerson B. Levi will speak, and there will be a program of music.

Mrs. Samuel A. Brown is president of the Cissna Park Woman's club, which has accomplished so much in the way of civic improvement that it was awarded first prize in a radio contest for being of service to its community. The establishment of a public library and encouragement of the planting of flowers and shrubs are among the major attainments of the club.

District Meetings to Open Club Season

WITH the beginning of the 1926-'27 season for women's club activities, the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs will intensify its efforts toward fulfilling the program as laid down by the new president, Mrs. Walter W. Seymour of Chicago.

Heavy work and responsibilities are in the offing for district and local clubs, and to perfect the synchronization of official dictum and local work, district county conferences are to be held beginning Oct. 6 and continuing through Oct. 22. The first conference will be held at Rockford for the Eleventh, Twelfth, and Thirteenth districts. Mrs. J. Marc Fowler of Chicago, first vice president, will have charge at this conference, and at the following one on Oct. 13, at Galesburg, when Districts Fourteen, Fifteen, and Sixteen will assemble for directions. District presidents and chairmen will assist Mrs. Fowler.

The plan of the directors, as told in the slogan they adopted, is to "carry the news of the federation to the counties of Illinois." Feeling that the greatest need of the state club work is closer touch with the individual clubs and the state organization, Mrs. Seymour has stressed the point of the mutual benefit of these meetings.

Meeting at Champaign.

On Oct. 20 at Champaign there will be a conference of the Seventeenth and Eighteenth districts, and the Twentieth and Twenty-first will meet on Oct. 18, two days earlier, in Springfield. Mrs. Mary A. Wall of Murphysboro, second vice president, will preside at these meetings.

Mrs. J. C. Hanna of Springfield, third vice president, will preside at the conference at Mount Vernon on Oct. 15, covering the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth districts, and on Oct. 22 at Belleville, covering the Twenty-second and Twenty-fifth districts.

These meetings are to convene, in each case, at 10 a. m., and there will be a welcome extended by the president of the local club, to be responded to by the presiding vice president. Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. George T. Palmer, former president and now director in the general federation, also will speak. District presidents will introduce their county chairmen, and there will be talks on club institutes and suggestions for better club machinery.

Luncheon will be followed by a short program and additional talks by junior members and a summing up of the program by the presiding officer.

Legislative Forums.

The Illinois joint legislative committee also is planning a series of five legislative forums to be held throughout the state from Oct. 25 to Oct. 29. The towns of meeting will be De Kalb, Peoria, Urbana, Springfield and Carbondale, which cover the districts over the state. Bulletins are to be sent to all clubs notifying them of the town and section at which their club shall be present.

The Illinois woman's joint legislative committee was formed about two years ago by the legislative committee of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. John T. Mason of Aurora, chairman, and has eleven state-wide member organizations: the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs; Illinois League of Women Voters, Illinois Council of Parent-Teacher associations; Illinois Women's Trade Union league, Illinois Graduate Nurses' association, Illinois Women's Democratic club, Young Women's Christian association, Illinois Federation of Colored Women's Clubs, Women's Bar Association of Illinois, Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Illinois State Teachers' association, representing a total of over 200,000 women.

The organization has an "outlook committee" of five members who present and recommend to the joint legislative committee bills which are of especial interest to women and children. When any bill is indorsed by five or more member organizations a subcommittee may be created to which may be added such local organizations as have like interest to work for this measure.

Active Subcommittees.

There are now seven subcommittees working for the following measures: Illinois child labor committee, Miss Anne Davis, vocational adviser of Chicago schools, chairman; maternity and infancy committee, Miss Mary Murphy, Chicago, chairman of child welfare for the General Federation of Women's Clubs, chairman; farm colony for women offenders, Mrs. William White, Chicago, chairman; women's eight hour day committee, chairman, Miss Agnes Nestor, president Chicago Women's Trade Union league; drivers' license committee, chairman, Mrs. Harold White, Chicago, who was delegate to national conferences on street and highway safety, called by Secretary Hoover; revision of election laws, chairman, Mrs. Mae Wood Simons, instructor of economics at Northwestern university; women on juries in Illinois committee, Miss Esther Dunshee, chairman, Chicago, who is national chairman on the legal status of women.

These chairmen of subcommittees form the program committee for the proposed five joint forums with Mrs. May Wood Simons as chairman. Local committees will be formed in the five sections of the state where forums are to be held by representatives of member organizations in that community, and time will be given on programs for the local committee to have speakers in opposition to any of these measures if there is any opposition in that section.

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans

THE new president and the many times president were chatting in a quiet corner of the federation rooms.

"I feel so green and inadequate," said the new president. "What are some of the things from your long experience that you would pass on to a new president—the practices to be emphasized, the pitfalls to be avoided?"

"Pitfalls"—the many times president caught at the word—"most of them can be avoided by a little study and fore thought. Take, for instance, the president who doesn't know parliamentary law, or the bylaws of her own club; she's surely courting trouble."

"I've been in a parliamentary law class for two years, and I helped frame our bylaws," reflected the new president. "I guess I'm safe there."

"As a presiding officer," the many times president went on, "a president should realize that it is her duty to find out the will of her club on matters that come up and not to try to influence the opinion of the membership by look, or word, or gesture."

"In other words, she mustn't smile when the side she favors scores a point or frown when it loses."

"She should try to bring out all sides of a question, and if there are opposing sides, to see to it that each one has equal opportunity to present its views."

"One of the best things that can be said about a president is that she is always fair," opinioned the new president.

"Another is that she doesn't play favorites," added the many times president. "You know, by pushing friends when they are not entitled to it, or out of line. Poise, also, is a most important attribute of a president—the power to keep control under stress."

"Yes," the new president swung in, "a president who loses control of her temper loses control of the situation, beside making a poor spectacle of herself."

"There's just one more pitfall I'd mention," resumed the many times president, "that's the tendency of some presidents to discuss, rather unkindly, one member with another, or with their fellow officers. Such talk so often has a way of getting to the member discussed, and seldom in the original form."

"It all sounds a lot," commented the new president, then she fingered out the principal points: "Fit yourself for your job; be fair to your membership; keep control of your temper and your tongue."

Question.

In what way is it to the advantage of a club to be incorporated under the laws of the state? What steps must be taken to incorporate?

MRS. C. H. N.

Reply.

A club that is not incorporated cannot hold property, receive legacies, make binding contracts, sue or be sued.

After your club has organized and voted to incorporate, write to the secretary of state for the blank he furnishes for that purpose. This has to be filled out and be sworn to before a notary.

Question.

Is it right for a woman to be put on the board of a club when she has never served on a committee?

M. F. C.

Reply.

A woman who hasn't had committee experience shouldn't want to go on a board.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

summer storage some distance up the river. It had just been put in complete order for the coming winter cruise, and lay under the shelter of a vast steel ribbed shed. The hurricane, according to a roundabout and not very coherent report, caused the roof to collapse and pretty completely smashed the upper works of the natty craft. The Dicks have spent many winters on the Chieftain, cruising up and down the tranquil inner waters of both the east and west coast of Florida. They have even gone as far south as Cuba in their yacht, and as far north as Charleston, S. C., though the trig little craft is not built for the high seas.

It is commodious and luxurious, however, and a trip on her is a delightful and unique experience. She only travels by day and at night lies up in some one of the tranquil bayous that lie between the mainland and the outer fringe of islands. The utter stillness of those nights is something to think on if one is trying to achieve slumber on such a highway as West Westminster avenue, Lake Forest, where motor cars shoot by at all hours of the night, or on East Walton place, one block west of the Drake hotel, where the vociferous night life only ends with the dawn. The veriest insomniac would drift into sleep on board the Chieftain off Long Key.

The Work of Two Clever Women.

During this last cheerful summer, when the rest of their kind were playing golf, or tennis or bridge in and around Lake Forest, two clever and gifted women, who were spending the summer in that shrine of many arts, the Arthur Aldises' place, were busy creating images, or turning into solid form the visions of their inward eyes, the dreams of their lively fancies. They were Mrs. Tennessee Anderson and Mrs. Lucille Swan. They dwelt in the Hayloft, a poetic abode that looks out over the Aldis gardens, and there wrought their works of art. The fruit of their labors was shown at a tea Mrs. Tiffany Blake gave in her father's (Albert M. Day's) house last Tuesday afternoon. There were eighteen pieces, bas-reliefs and statues, or statuettes, as there was nothing large in the showing. It was an interesting collection, as it was infused with the most modern spirit. The modern spirit is not dedicated to the photographic but to the impressionistic. There was an "Impression of Robert Eskridge," which was an exceedingly clever rendering of his personality as it is felt by Mrs. Anderson. Though but a figurine, long, lean and infused with vitality, it certainly does express the character of this interesting young artist from Virginia. Some of the other of Mrs. Anderson's plastic portraits are as full of individuality as any newspaper cartoon, which is saying that they are anything but conventional.

MISS GEORGIA ELLA GRIDER.
[Gibson Studio Photo.]

The engagement of Miss Georgia Ella Grider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Dexter Grider of 4137 Jackson boulevard, to Thomas Joseph Galligan, son of Mrs. Andrew Galligan, is announced.

An Unusual Flavor.

Her summer partner, Mrs. Swan, has a suaver view of the human form divine, but her work is also of an original and interesting flavor. She shows the influence of Chinese art in the statuettes of two horses that, though small, give the effect of massivity and strength. One of the things I remember best is a plaster sketch of hers for an overmantel bas-relief, designed for a nautical bachelor. It depicts sails in motion and a foreground of figures. It is extremely spirited. She has also a delightful design for a fountain, in a sweeping, graceful figure of a woman.

It was an interesting showing, manifesting as it did the deep hold modern ideas have on artists of every nation. They are all seeking for truth, and their first step is to destroy or abandon what they conceive as error. It is a valiant crusade, and not an easy one. Pioneers of any kind have to cut their way through a dense undergrowth with the entire world a pack on their backs. Blind, deaf, lame, slow in understanding, the rest of us seldom see even a few feet of the way upward, but hang back, looking always any way but forward or up. In our ignorance we frequently snigger at what we don't understand. But, somehow, this old world does make its slow way on out of the dark of the ooze age to some dazzling future that lies just beyond the horizon. We may not appreciate our leaders until too late, but blindly we follow.

Ten Minutes for Health.

If we could acquire wealth by giving ten cents a day, six in the morning and four at night, wouldn't we all rush to do it? But here comes Robert Mooney, one of Chicago's well known and popular bachelors, and tells us in a little booklet how to acquire that even more desirable boon, health, by giving ten minutes a day to it, six in the morning and four at night, and I'm willing to bet that lots of people will fail to take adavantage of his wise counsel. He who has health can either gain wealth or happily forego it. Between the two health is much the more precious possession.

His title page and cover both read, "How to Be Healthy, Trim and Strong on Ten Minutes a Day at Home Without Apparatus or Gymnasium." It is a long title for a book, but it tells it all. Just follow his directions and ahead of you, fruit of your endeavors, lies a slim, strong body and a clear mind. You begin your day by wiggling and flexing every part of you from the top of your head to the sole of your feet, and add a few fine touches in the same line for four minutes at night. That is all, but how much it is! Try it!

I wonder how much longer the gardens in this part of the land will yield their fruits and flowers to the Plant, Flower and Fruit guild to distribute to the fruitless and flowerless? Keep up the good work until the last blossom is picked. Those who have flowers for the picking have no idea of the exquisite joy they bring in homes that usually know them not.

NEWS OF NEWYORK SOCIETY

Early Opera Will Open Social Season

By Dolly Madison.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Social activities this season are to commence almost two weeks in advance of other years, for the opening night of the opera, true measure of the season, will fall on the first day of November, rather than on the 11th, 12th, or 13th, as in former years. On that day, which, true to form, probably will be wet and dismal, the huge pile in Broadway, between 39th and 40th streets, will once again throw wide its doors for the reception of society and ordinary lovers of music. Then again the circular corridors will be thronged with strolling opera-goers and the young man new to society will look vainly for the lovely girl that romance attributes to all opera houses.

Certainly, as in other years, there will be an outpouring of ancient dames de société who make no other public appearance the whole year 'round. There will be exhibitions of jewels in ancient settings, and even old-fashioned pearl dog collars on wrinkled necks. The 'diamond horseshoe' will blaze with gems and imported beauty; white shoulders will gleam against backgrounds of velvet and the black of the men's full dress. Lorgnettes will rise and fall, the violins scrape, the galleries howl their appreciation, and once more the season will be in full swing.

Opera Uptown.

But not more than once again will the scene take place in the Metropolitan. New York, as rapidly changing architecturally and structurally as any boom town, is exchanging its ancient hall of song for a new site farther uptown. Work on the new opera house in 57th street is due to start next spring, and plans call for the season after this to be the last of opera in the old Metropolitan.

Sic transit—et cætera. If the removing of the opera from the Metropolitan has the same effect as the removing of the horse show from old Madison Square to the Squadron A armory, then the social standing of the opera is bound to decline. The horse show that once was the gathering place of the haut-monde is today not even a shadow of its former colorful self. It is to be hoped that the opera will not suffer as much by its change of abode, though there are certainly many people in society who have continued to attend opera merely from sheer force of social habit, and, with it gone from its traditional seat, they may no longer do so.

Changes at Sandy Point.

Moses Taylor, who purchased Sandy Point farm following Reggie Vanderbilt's death, has decided to demolish the main residence. Thus the scene of many a notable party will pass from sight, if not from memory. Newport, however, is not giving itself up to thoughts of melancholy. The Queen City of Rhode Island still continues to hold its devotees, the more so as the weather at present is more lovely than ever.

Mrs. William K. Dick, the former Mrs. John Jacob Astor, is to return to New York at the end of this week with her young son, John Jacob Astor. Another noteworthy resident of Newport at present is Mrs. Frederick Cameron Church, the former Muriel Vanderbilt, who is establishing a stable of horses at Dudley place. Included in her stable is Fortitude, the famous stallion bought by Mrs. Church at the disposal sale of the Reginald Vanderbilt stable. Mrs. Church, together with Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt, the former Emily Davies, has been riding her own entries in the local horse shows.

Amid much coming and going, entertaining still continues strong. Certain of the older matrons and their consorts are holding forth in hospitable style. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, and Mr. Moses Taylor have all entertained this last week.

At Honeysuckle Lodge the T. Suffern Tailers are still keeping open house, while Mrs. Edson Bradley at Seaview Terrace, Mrs. Henry Clews at The Rocks, and Mrs. Cornelius Tangeman are also active as hostesses. The George Tuttle Brokaws are to give a dinner tomorrow at Beachmound as a farewell for Col. and Mrs. Samuel Shartle, who are leaving for Panama, where Col. Shartle has been assigned to duty.

Life in Town.

New York proper revives but slowly after the heat and desertedness of the summer. With racing over at Belmont, the spasmodic polo at Meadowbrook is all that appeals to the townite, though the open championships in October will bring out every last representative of the smart world. About the hotels and restaurants the colorful personalities are making themselves visible again. Lady Astor, having rested as much as possible in the bosom of the country, returned to New York this week and gave a luncheon party at the Ritz.

On Park avenue, as well, luncheons have been popular this last week. Mrs. Sydney Jones Colford and her daughter, Mrs. Harry C. Cushing III., were at Sherry's as were Mrs. John Wanamaker and Mrs. Marshall Field, who had as her guest, Mrs. R. Thornton Wilson.

Not even marriage can change habit. The Gerrys are arriving at Lake Delaware, N. Y., where they have arrived punctually every year to stay a month, for more years than one dares remember.

When one mentions Mrs. Francis S. E. Drury, it takes a little time before memory insists that Mrs. Drury is no other than Mabel Gerry. So used to Mabel as "Miss" was society that it still thinks of her as the energetic Miss Gerry and not as Mrs. Drury. But there still remains Angelica Gerry as the spinster sister, and she is upholding the honors well. To mention the former Mabel Gerry recalls that she was exceedingly popular as a hostess in London some two or three years ago, where her receptions were attended not only by the prince of Wales but by all the prominent Americans in London, in which they differed greatly from the average American reception in the British capital. Returning nimrods from the wilds of Scotland were wont to descend upon the Gerry representative with devout thanks.

KNOW YOUR BODY.

"Make to yourself a perfect body," such was Henry Thoreau's best advice to all persons. In any line, greatest success is only possible if you have health and physical perfection. Scientific and corrective gymnastics, fitting every need of your body, will overcome defects, add or reduce weight, develop the body, which is a tool, not a handicap to the brain. After 20 years' experience I can positively help you. DR. ANDREW A. GOUR, 39 S. State-st. Phone Dearborn 4936.

A SALESMAN

Who Recognizes the Advantage of Selling on a Commission Basis.

We are not looking for the safety type of salesman who wants to be guaranteed against himself, because we would be afraid to hire him for the reason that he knows himself better than we know him.

We have no $25,000 jobs for salesmen. No salesman can become one of our executives in a month. We are not looking for the quick, slick, clean-up salesmen. We do not sell real estate, books, insurance, etc.

We do have average salesmen earning $11,000. We do promote salesmen with sales records to executives. We are looking for two men with specialty selling experience for Central West territories.

Let's get down to "brass tacks." We only want to interview salesmen who are sincere in their desire to make a permanent connection.

Remember, no quick clean-up here, but an opportunity which you will immediately recognize after talking it over with us.

When you write us tell us what kind of selling you have been doing for the last five years. Also tell us your age and something of your ambitions. We will arrange for an appointment. Address C N 600, Tribune.

A BIG OPPORTUNITY.

The new and very attractive addition to our product provides an opening for 4 salesmen in Chicago, one in Peoria and one in Rockford.

We manufacture products of unusual merit, sold to Restaurants, Confectioneries and Drug Stores, Roadhouses, Theaters and other places of business. We have been in business over 30 years and are rated AAA plus. Our products earn large profits and are sold on that basis.

An advertising campaign has been going on in this territory for 30 days and we have direct leads for the right man to open up with.

Undertaking our sales work has proven an opportunity for many good men to make substantial incomes. Ten thousand dollars per year is not unusual. Equal opportunity offered if you are the right man. Commissions per sale are large.

You may be the very man we want and ours may be the opening you are looking for. An interview will decide.

CALL MR. W. C. ABBOTT,
Sherman Hotel.
Monday, 9-12 and 2-5.

A SALESMAN.

To some men this ad will mean $100 to $300 per week, to others financial independence, to others it may go right over their heads. We have several openings, due to recent promotions, for men with "sales sense," not afraid to use it. A real future where you can have for yourself and family all the better things in life. This is no dream, but is for you. Come see me and let me introduce you to the men who answered this ad a year ago and who now have all the things this ad promises you. Do not let anything stop you from talking this over with me.

SALARIED MEN TO LEARN SELLING.

Each year we train a number of men for city sales positions. We prefer men who have been inside workers earning from $30 to $40 per week and who have a desire to become salesmen.

We are one of the largest corporations in our line of business in Chicago—our business is not seasonable and for this reason the earnings of our men average high throughout the year.

Our training is thorough and we pay a $35 weekly drawing account to men during the training period—our experienced men earn from $75 to $100 per week.

If you are an earnest worker over 25 years old with a common school education and ambitious to get away from the grind of inside work with its very limited future and with its time clock and small pay, then answer this ad and tell us something about yourself and a personal interview will be arranged. SALARIED MEN TO LEARN SELLING.

Each year we train a number of men for city sales positions. We prefer men who have been inside workers earning from $30 to $40 per week and who have a desire to become salesmen.

We are one of the largest corporations in our line of business in Chicago—our business is not seasonable and for this reason the earnings of our men average high throughout the year.

Our training is thorough and we pay a $35 weekly drawing account to men during the training period—our experienced men earn from $75 to $100 per week.

If you are an earnest worker over 25 years old with a common school education and ambitious to get away from the grind of inside work with its very limited future and with its time clock and small pay, then answer this ad and tell us something about yourself and a personal interview will be arranged. LOCATION 6831-33 CRANDON-AV., WITH 60 FEET OF FRONTAGE.

We have built 2 million dollars worth of high class apartments on the South Side in four years. The finest, largest and most expensive of them all are the 3 apartments at 6831 Crandon-av. They are the last word in high grade construction.

Don't take our word for this, but come out and inspect them. Architect, builders, renters, buyers, all express themselves in the same way. Modeled after a $1,000 per mo. apt. in New York. Nothing like it in Chicago. Rental value $325 per mo. [garages]. Will rent or sell on co-operative plan.

Live in Streeterville

Douglas Brougham Lived the Leisurely Life Befitting a Gentleman

Douglas Brougham, in the flapperless nineties, lived north of the river, away from the hectic clatter of traffic. He tarried over a savory breakfast, then drove—or, if he chose, walked—leisurely to his office, and as leisurely returned.

Streeterville today is the home of those who prefer to make a rite of breakfast; its central location makes this possible.

1120
Lake Shore Drive
CORNER OF ELM-ST.

The apartments in this building are spacious, exceptionally well lighted and ventilated and have every modern convenience for enjoyable living.

The total monthly operating cost of a five room apartment under our 100% co-operative plan is as low as $117.84; and in the seven room apartment as low as $169.40.

There is only one Lake Shore-dr. and it is unquestionably the finest location for residential purposes in Chicago. Its convenience and beauty have made it Chicago's fashion center and one of Chicago's most attractive real estate investments.

THINK THIS OVER:

1. THE BUILDING IS ON A CORNER. There is no other lot on Lake Shore-dr. available unless one wrecks an expensive mansion.

2. THE LAND VALUE of the lot at 1120 Lake Shore-dr. HAS INCREASED 30% since we first offered these apartments to the public, but we are still offering them at the original price.

3. OVER 80% OF THE APARTMENTS ARE SOLD. The building is a thoroughly successful 100% co-operative project right now.

4. ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE. The names of the group of owners who will be your neighbors are available to you.

5. THE BUILDING IS CONSERVATIVELY FINANCED—it has only one loan owned by the New York Life Insurance Company.

6. A FEW APARTMENTS ARE STILL AVAILABLE.

The equities range from $12,800 up. You may purchase an apartment in this building with as little as $4,500, paying the remainder out of income rather than capital. This is the time to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity.

PLANS, SPECIFICATIONS AND SCHEDULED PRICES WILL BE SUPPLIED UPON REQUEST.

Why not come with your family to the building and see these delightful apartments? There is no urge to buy—just courteous attention when you require it.

THE AQUITANIA
Unfurnished Apts.
ON THE LAKE SHORE
At 5000 North.

The beautiful, fifteen story Aquitania, standing majestically on the shore of Lake Michigan, has been planned and designed for people who desire a city apartment home of luxury, comfort, and distinctive individuality.

While the Aquitania contains apartments of from three to six rooms, there are only a limited number of four room suites available for immediate and October 1st possession.

These delightful four room apartments are unusually spacious. They comprise a living room, dining room, bedroom, kitchen, butler's pantry, gallery hall, bath and from two to four closets of exceptionally large dimensions.

For those requiring only four rooms and who are accustomed to the finer things of life, these richly finished and finely appointed apartments will contribute largely towards their physical comfort and mental contentment.

Electric light, gas, and electrical refrigeration are included in the rentals, which range from $175 to $200 per month.

Live on Chicago's Gold Coast
Goethe Shore
Kitchenette Apartments
$85 to $145 Monthly

The Goethe Shore is set in the heart of Chicago's Gold Coast, in that narrow strip bordering Lake Shore-dr., between Lincoln Park and the Michigan-av bridge.

World Famous Location

Diagonally across a vacant lot or two lies the world famous Potter Palmer mansion—within a stone's throw a little to the south is the Edith Rockefeller McCormick residence—catercorner across the street is the world renowned Drake Hotel.

Lake Michigan lies at the foot of Goethe-st., almost at the feet of the guests of the Goethe Shore.

Just far enough away to isolate our guests from its traffic noises is Chicago's most pretentious boulevard—Lake Shore-dr. The Wrigley building and The Tribune Tower are within easy walking distance. 35c cab fare to loop.

No other residential district in the world, not even the magnificent Park-av. section of New York City, can compare with the wonderful possibilities of 61 E. Goethe-st.

Prices Extraordinarily Low

Now, for probably the first time in Chicago's history, it will be possible for the citizen of moderate means to live on the Gold Coast, within walking distance of his desk in Chicago's Loop.

Until the Goethe Shore opened its doors, the family not prepared to pay a monthly rental of from $400 to $1,000, could not live in this marvelous location.

Goethe Shore Apartments are offered at a monthly rental ranging from $85 to $145 a month—surely amazing value for furnished apartments of the better class—when one thinks of his neighbors as the business and social leaders of America—all within the sacred confines of this Gold Coast neighborhood.

Ten Minutes' Walk to Business

There is a growing demand for residence close to our business center. The business man of today desires to return as nearly as possible to the conditions of his boyhood, when he walked to work.

Chicago's streets are probably more crowded with automobile traffic than those of any other city in the world. This congestion on our boulevards with its consequent delay to the business man's trip from his home to his office has made it necessary for him to move in closer to business.

No Apartments Furnished Like These

Smartly furnished in the newest mode, complete in every detail including linen, silver, glassware, china, electrical appliances, bric-a-bric, and all that goes to make up the comfortable, fashionable, and homey abode.

Waiting List Occupancy Soon

The Goethe Shore offers for popular demand Gold Coast Apartments almost within a stone's throw of Chicago's most pretentious hostelry—The Drake—at prices you would expect to pay in outlying neighborhoods.

It is a foregone conclusion that we will have a waiting list occupancy almost with the opening of our doors.

HOUSES—SOUTH SIDE.

Five R. Bricks

I am offering for your inspection seventeen new five room brick buildings which represent the best in building construction at any price. These five rooms are composed of a large living room, two large bedrooms with closets off of each, with connecting bath; a small dining room beautifully arranged to become a part of the living room when not in use as a dining room; a kitchen so efficiently designed with modern one-piece apron sink and combination spray faucets and cabinets built in around the walls, with flour bins, sugar bins and all modern appliances to make housework a pleasure instead of a drudge. The bathroom is equipped with the best grade of built-in enamaled plumbing set on hexagon tile floor and equipped with best grade of steel medicine case and mirror.

In addition to these five rooms there is another room known as the sleeping porch. This room, containing approximately 100 sq. ft. of floor space, could readily be used, if plastered, as an all-year-round bedroom. Then, off of the kitchen is an enclosed private porch, all glazed in and made serviceable for summer cooking. A small attic above the entire building is serviceable as a storage room. And, best of all, under the entire house is a concrete basement as large in area as the entire five rooms above, wherein is installed a laundry with two-part laundry tray, swinging hot and cold faucets, hot water boiler heated with gas, and furnace room with the best type of furnace that is known, a vegetable cellar built in solid concrete in which the temperature will vary only slightly.

The entire outside walls of these buildings are resting on 4 feet of solid concrete, which in turn rests on a concrete footing two feet wide and one foot thick. The middle part of building is supported by steel eye beams which in turn are supported by steel lally columns resting on concrete footings.

As usual, my perpetual guarantee against defects in workmanship and material applies to these buildings the same as all buildings that I ever have built. This guarantee protects the buildings against depreciation. That is why I am always willing to repurchase any one of the 1,500 buildings that I have built at exactly the price at which I sold them in exchange for any other building that I may have for sale.

You may have noticed my ads in which I offered five room buildings at prices ranging from $8,250 to $15,000. The same workmen, the same high grade material, and the same guarantee applies to these five room buildings, which really are six room buildings, which I am selling at the lowest price that I have ever been able to offer buildings of this number of rooms.

The price is $6,950 on terms of $750 cash and $60 per month, including all interest. I will accept a deposit of $10 on any one of these houses, which $10 will be refunded by me at the end of a week if I decide that the applicant might be an undesirable purchaser. Or I will refund the deposit any time upon your request without comment.

These buildings are located on S. Racine-av. between 91st and 92d-sts., 4 blocks from the steam railroad suburban service, giving 88 trains to and from the loop per day on a 12 cent fare and less. Vincennes-av. car line is within two blocks. Ashland-av. car line has just been extended to 95th-st.; Racine-av. car line now runs to 87th-st. Schools and churches are nearby.

Today I will have no salesmen at these buildings to urge you to buy, but my representatives will be there to answer your questions and to accept a deposit of $10, providing you care to have a building reserved for you for one week.

Here has been developed a community of spacious homesites so planned as to utilize every advantage of natural beauty and protected by rigid restrictions which permit only homes of suitable architecture. Here have been built many new residences whose substantial quality and artistic design fully describe the character of this beautiful new development.

BRAESIDE is truely an IDEAL COMMUNITY. Completely improved with concrete paving, walks, sewers, water, gas, electricity, ornamental street lights, and extensive landscaping of parkways. BRAESIDE is READY for immediate home building. Unlike most communities of its class, transportation is not a problem at BRAESIDE. With depots of both the Northwestern and North Shore lines right at the property, exceptionally good transportation is afforded the commuter. Sheridan and Green Bay-rds. adjoining, provide excellent travel for the motorist. Homesites in BRAESIDE are all generous in size and are moderately priced, lower, in fact, than many locations on the North Shore equally desirable. If you appreciate all the advantages that such a community as BRAESIDE has to offer, and if you are interested in buying or building a home where the environment, location, and all that you require of a fine residence is IDEAL, you will accept our invitation to inspect BRAESIDE today. Drive Green Bay-rd. to County Line-rd. Local office open.

185 acres of rolling land of which 45 acres is covered with large healthy oak trees. Located two miles off the Dixie highway on a road that will be a concrete highway next spring. $450 per acre.

150 acres adjoining the above and located on another highway has 50 acres wooded with the same kind of trees. In addition it has a natural lake covering about 10 acres. Only a small dam would be necessary to enlarge this beautiful lake. $500 per acre.

Both tracts are high and rolling and after an inspection of this property you will agree with us that a more beautiful and natural golf club site would be hard to find. How to Own a Fine Car at Moderate Cost

Without any greater automobile investment than you are accustomed to it is possible for you to enjoy the supreme benefits of motoring—to own and drive a Lincoln.

Many Lincoln Owners—who, as a rule are able to change cars as frequently as they desire—purchase new Lincoln cars from time to time; this puts us in a position to offer a limited number of motorists in this community excellent opportunity to obtain, at extremely moderate cost, the distinction and satisfaction that go with Lincoln ownership.

Due to the permanence of Lincoln design, time does not make a Lincoln out of date; the cars that we offer you are entirely modern in every measure of the word. They are the cars that you see and admire in every day use. Their performance and appearance scarcely suggest prior service. They carry exactly the same guarantee as when first sold.

Your satisfaction as the new owner of a Lincoln car—a car that is conceded to be the accepted leader, will be far greater than if you invest a similar amount in a car that cannot even be measured by the same standards. The smooth, powerful, silent motor and the ease with which the car travels the roughest roads is a revelation to any one driving a Lincoln for the first time.

In purchasing one of these Lincoln cars you do not pay the cost of extra equipment, tax or depreciation—as this has all been absorbed. This enables us to quote prices that are surprisingly low. We will also accept your present car as part payment, extending convenient terms for payment of the balance.

In building the Lincoln the Ford Motor Company has definitely committed itself to the policy of keeping this car supreme. All materials are the best that an advanced metallurgical staff can specify; manufacturing throughout the Lincoln plant is held to the strictest precision standards known to modern engineering science. Actually, the Lincoln is built more precisely, from a mechanical standpoint, than a fine watch. It is built to endure.

The Lincolns referred to are, for all practical purposes, as perfect today as when shipped from the factory. They are ready to give their new owners the full benefits of Lincoln performance and enduring economy. We unconditionally guarantee these cars for 90 days and will provide free service for four months.

We would welcome an opportunity to discuss Lincoln ownership with you. Let us tell you in greater detail about Lincoln superiority and especially about the remarkable value our Lincoln policy makes possible.

SCOTCH DRYS IN DRIVE TO MAKE ENGLAND 'DESERT'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EDINBURGH, Sept. 25.—The prohibition factions now concentrating their attentions upon Scotland are carrying on their fight with a dream of making all England dry eventually.

They have chosen Scotland simply because they believe the wet resistance will be weakest there. Scotland, particularly the rural districts, is a country of discipline, in many instances almost patriarchal. While the clergy has not taken active part in fostering the prohibition movement to any great extent, initiative has been assumed by the "elders," prominent townsmen of power and influence, who exert extreme moral discipline over their communities, and political discipline as well.

Large Cities Wet.

Glasgow and Edinburgh are much more difficult for the drys to approach. In the manufacturing centers the power of the "elders" has been broken by continual contact on the part of the people with the outside world. Glasgow's metal workers, ship builders and stevedores do not go to kirk three times a Sunday. Some Sundays they take in football games or cricket games, with liquid refreshment before and after.

Fourteen wards of Glasgow City will be contested this autumn by the drys, but there is prospect of little change in the disposition of the townsmen towards the prohibition issue. Wet and dry elections also will be held in Dundee, Aberdeen, Kilmarnock, Ayr, Selkirk, Stirling, Coatsbridge, Hawick, and Galashiels.

Drys Strong In Rural Sections.

In those more remote communities the prohibitionists are expected to develop stiff offensives, since the agricultural class from which the vote will be drawn is strictly a parish affair, well organized by temperance societies built around various country church organizations, and all under the influence of the "elders."

Prohibition in Scotland is a sister issue with "limitation." Where votes will be taken the object may be either utter aridity, that is to say bone-dryness, or it may be a further restriction of the number of licensed public houses permitted in the neighborhood.

Harry Lauder on Prohibition.

Every true Scot is taking sides for or against prohibition. When THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE correspondent asked Harry Lauder whether he was "wet or dry," Sir Harry spread his bandy legs farther apart, braced himself, leaned heavily on his crooked stick and answered in his famous brogue:

"Ye can just say I'm a temperate mon. Temperate with my food, temperate with my drink, temperate with my words. I am no teetotaler, but you can say I don't mind having teetotalers in my audience—so long as they pay the proper regulation price for seats. I don't even mind having a prohibitionist or two in my American audiences. I think they add tone to the show."

Once when an evident wet in the audience took exception to Lauder's remark about the wets, and cried out: "We want no prohibitionists here," a voice from the gallery shouted down.

"Sir Harry is a comedian. Do you ye no ken prohibeeshun is a joke, too?"

American Methods Used.

The Scotch drys are making full use of American advertising methods and propaganda systems in their campaign, but they have decided to do without direct help from American prohibitionists. No American dry speakers have been invited to address meetings in Scotland this year, and as little reference as possible is made by the Scotch anti-liquor workers to American prohibition conditions.

The wets are the ones who talk about that.

Chicago Moose Lodge to Take In 1,500 Oct. 3

A class of 1,500 candidates for membership is to be initiated into Greater Chicago lodge No. 3, Loyal Order of Moose, on Sunday, Oct. 3, it was announced yesterday. The initiation ceremonies, to be held at the Hotel Sherman, are to be in honor of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, for years a leading figure in the organization.

The class is to be known as the Mooseheart day class. Mayor Dever and former Mayor Thompson are expected to speak, and Dr. William E. Buehler will preside. Plans for erection in the loop of a $3,000,000 Moose temple are to be discussed following the initiation ceremonies.

NEW ATLANTIC CABLE CALLED GREAT ADVANCE

The laying of the new Permalloy loaded cable from England to New York by the Western Union Telegraph company is the most important event in the history of international communication since human speech was transmitted from Arlington to Paris in 1915, according to Thomas Moran, division cable manager of the telegraph company.

He said the addition of the Permalloy to a subsea cable, embodying one of the scientific principles which has made long distance telephony possible, marks the first great improvement in deep sea cables since Cyrus Field first connected the continents by wire in 1858.

"In the race between radio and the cable for supremacy in trans-Atlantic communication, this new cable," asserted Moran, "puts the older but far from obsolete method of transmitting messages across the sea several laps ahead.

"The Western Union's new loaded cable can transmit legible signals at least five times as rapidly as any deep sea cable previously laid of the same length, while its overhead charges are little if any greater than those of a pair of trans-Atlantic wireless stations."

PLAN CHICAGO SPECIAL TRIP TO SESQUI SHOW

Three special trains will carry 500 Chicago visitors to the Philadelphia Sesquicentennial, Oct. 9, if the plans of A. R. Brunker materialize.

Every effort is being put forth by Mr. Brunker and a committee appointed by Mayor Dever to sign up the 500 to make the trip. A special round-trip rate of $44 has been set.

Mayor Dever has sent personal letters to the 237 members of the Chicago centennial committee asking them to obtain ideas for the world's fair here in 1933. Nearly all of them will go, it was reported yesterday.

Mayor W. Freeland Kendrick of Philadelphia, has promised a special welcome.

Headquarters of the Sesqui committee have been established in Mayor Dever's outer office where interested persons may receive information. F. W. Fischer, secretary of the committee, is in charge.

Live in Streeterville

Douglas Brougham Lived the Leisurely Life Befitting a Gentleman

Douglas Brougham, in the flapperless nineties, lived north of the river, away from the hectic clatter of traffic. He tarried over a savory breakfast, then drove or, if he chose, walked leisurely to his office, and as leisurely returned.

Streeterville today is the home of those who prefer to make a rite of breakfast; its central location makes this possible.

180 East Delaware adds convenience of living to this convenience of location.

LOCATION—

In the heart of a most elite residential section only one-half block east of Chicago's principal thoroughfare. 180 E. Delaware is within walking distance of the great metropolitan shopping, business, and theater centers, select private schools, and renowned churches. In its immediate neighborhood are the Drake and Lake Shore Drive hotels, as well as the homes of Chicago's social leaders. The Casino club is directly across the street.

BUILDING—

Its exclusive character, intrinsic beauty of design and execution, and convenience are the outstanding attributes of this new group of luxuriously conceived apartment homes. The building incorporates the ultimate in tested and approved appointments of unquestioned good taste. On the ground floor will be an exquisitely furnished lounge, an Old English tea room with excellent cuisine, and a commissary.

APARTMENTS—

They will be unfurnished—three, four, and five rooms, convertible, if desired, into six and eight. The apartments are arranged to give infinite comfort and efficiency. The walls will be canvased and paneled. Marble mantels and period design lighting fixtures will grace the living rooms. Crystal lighting fixtures and maids' call in the dining rooms. Chambers will have full length mirrors and large closets. In the bathrooms—colored tile wainscoting, showers, and shampoo sprays, Venetian mirrored medicine cabinets, and linen closets. The kitchens will be equipped with mechanical refrigeration, all white cooking ranges, and enamel steel cabinets.

SERVICE—

Maid service will be optional. High speed elevators of micro precision, operated by efficient attendants, will whisk you in a few seconds to your floor. A vacuum heating system will regulate precisely the temperature and humidity throughout your apartment. Rental will include mechanical refrigeration, electric light, gas, laundries, and driers.

Prospective tenants, of course, are being chosen with discrimination.

180 East Delaware offers the essentials of hotel service at a cost far lower than is possible in hotels. 3, 4, and 5 room apartments, convertible, if desired, into 6 or 8 rooms: $165 a month upward.

The multiple advantages of location and facility afforded by these apartments have already given rise to a spirited demand for choice reservations. We counsel prompt action.

A telephone call, Central 5239, will receive the immediate and personal attention of the management.

Signs $500,000 in Leases at an Advertising Cost of 6/10 of 1% through Tribune Want Ads

EARLY in March of this year, Samuel Cole, capitalist and real estate operator, was confronted with the problem of finding tenants for a twelve story building of high grade apartments in Streeterville. The building was nearing completion and an enormous deficit of $21,000 a month stared him in the face, should he fail to rent it. There were eighty apartments to be filled, varying in size from 3 to 5 rooms, and in rental from $165 to $325. There was a tea room on the ground floor to be rented.

On June 6th, as the building neared completion, Mr. Cole started his campaign. It consisted of ten 225 line Want Ads run consecutively on Sunday, with occasional ads of the same length during the week. His campaign to rent the store was run concurrently on Sundays, from June 11th to August 15th, when the $66,000 tenant was signed up. At the present time, and his campaign is still running,—Mr. Cole has rented forty-five of the apartments and the tea room, for periods of from one to ten years, the total amount of the leases signed being in excess of one-half a million dollars. More than 1,200 prospects have been attracted by the 3,625 lines of space.. The advertising cost of signing these leases has amounted to but 6-10ths of 1%.

A specimen of the copy which made this campaign so successful is reproduced on this page. It will be seen that the copy combines complete and descriptive detail with an unusual amount of historical interest, flashing back to what Streeterville was in the "leisurely nineties."

In season and out, The Chicago Tribune has proven its ability to fill apartments, from the modest-priced ones in outlying neighborhoods to the most expensive. Now at the beginning of the fall rental season, owners, builders, renting agents and realtors in general can and should take full advantage of The Tribune's wonderful power to attract the right sort of tenants. Better get started now on a carefully written and well-thought-out campaign of Want Ads in The Tribune. Don't wait for your competitor to start. Do it first! Be ahead of the procession and get your pick of the tenants. "Superior 0100"—ask a Tribune man to call.

The Apartment Campaign

As a result of the whole campaign run between March 21st and August 15th a total of 45 apartment leases, to the value of $455,400, were signed. Besides the test ad there were 10 consecutive Sunday ads, averaging 225 lines in length, and 8 daily ads of the same size. The 3,625 lines of space cost $2,815.95:

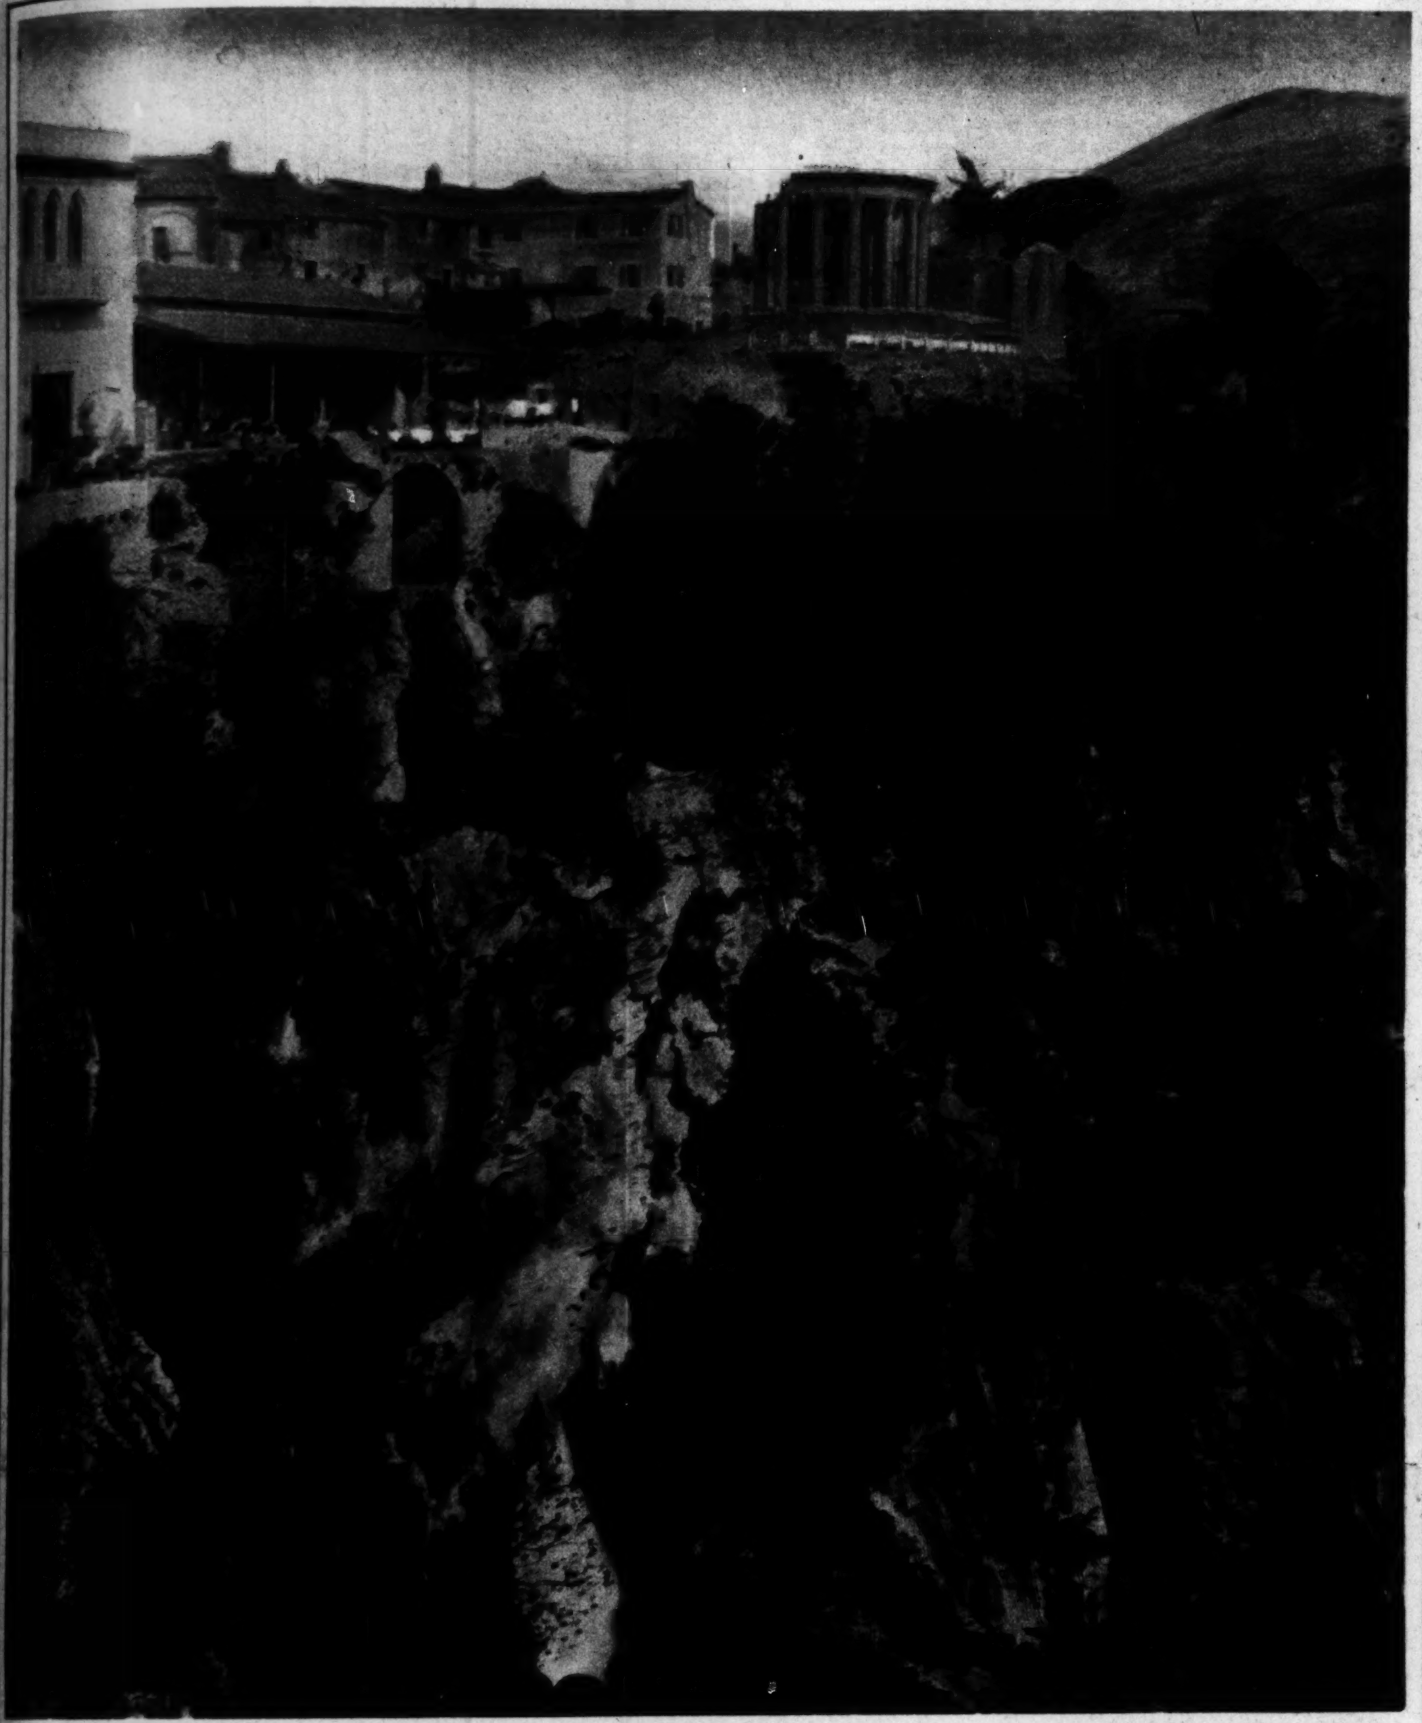
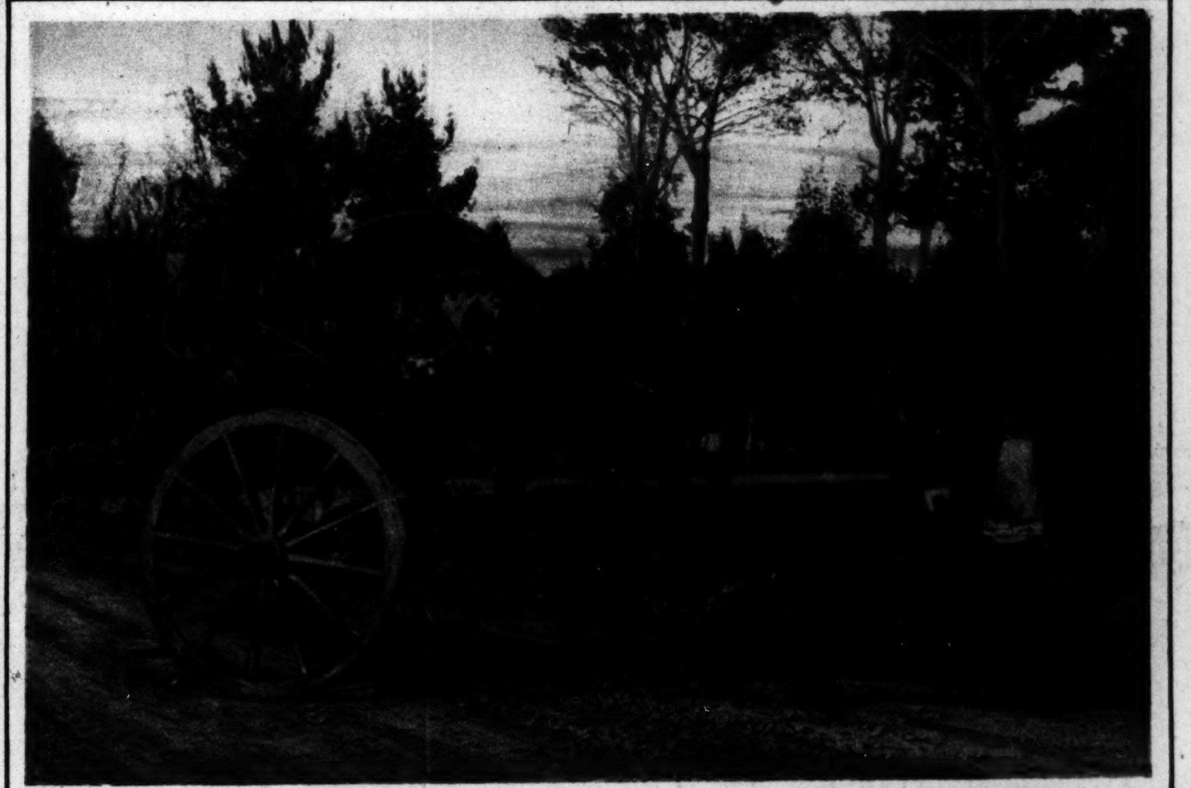
Picturesque Rome in Color-Photos



THE FIRST TEMPLE OF THE VESTAL VIRGINS—It stands near Hadrian's villa at Tivoli, near Rome.

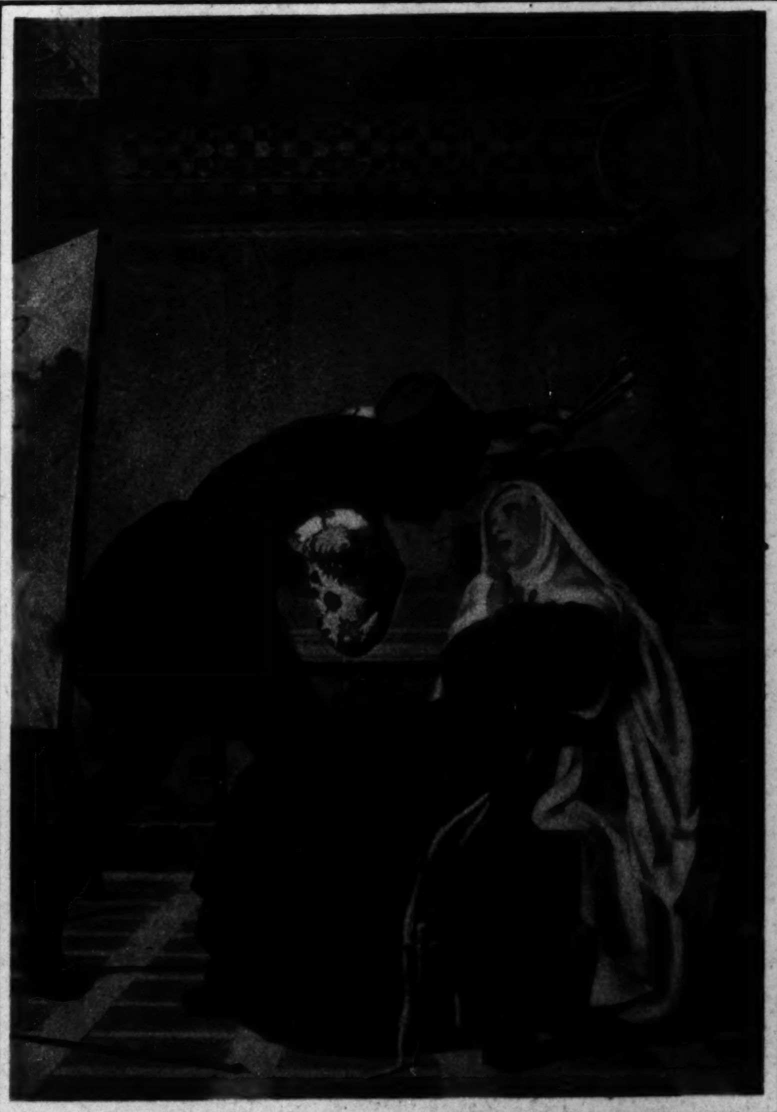
TASSO OAK AT SUNSET—The tree was given the name because Tasso, the famous Italian poet, during his last days, is said to have loved to sit and muse beneath its branches as he looked out over the beautiful panorama of Rome.



ALL ROADS LEAD TO ROME—And on most of them the wine cart is a familiar sight.

TRINITA DEI MONTI—A splendid view of the stairs leading up to the famous temple. The church belongs to the adjacent convent of the Dames du Sacre Coeur. The two towers were restored by Louis XVIII. in 1816.

A SCENE IN THE VATICAN GARDEN at the Villa Leo X.



"FILIPPINO LIPPI AND SISTER BUTI"—This painting by Castagnola represents the famous artist-nobleman painting the nun, Sister Buti, with whom he fell madly in love. When she refused to be untrue to her vows, Lippi became a monk, after which he created most of his famous works. Rome is famous for its possession of priceless art treasures such as this.

THE TRIBUNE'S FOREIGN NEWS SERVICE has supplied the material for this fine rotogravure color-page. The photographs reproduced here were gathered by our representatives in Rome. The selections are excellent.

Sally buys treasure in Paris

They were on their wedding trip—Sally and Phil—and having the grandest time imaginable. We met them wandering among the fascinating shops of the Rue St. Honore.

"What French frivolity have you got in that package?" we asked after the greetings were over.

"Why, it's— " began Sally.

"Wait, Sally," and turning to us Phil continued, "what do you think this girl's done? All morning I've been trying to buy her a present. I tried earrings, brooches, beads, laces, lingerie, perfume and everything else this sacred city holds. Not a thing would she take until she got to a drug store, and then she made me go in and buy her four cakes of Ivory Soap!"

"Wouldn't you think he'd have guessed, after I'd been out of Ivory for three days?" asked Sally, smiling. "Besides, four cakes of Ivory over here cost nearly as much as a string of pearls, and we've just got to economize!"

What constitutes a "beauty soap"?

The answer is simple

Homeward!

"Oh, Phil, darling, won't it be too wonderful? It's been marvelous, this trip together—Paris, Switzerland, London. But home—our home—there, beyond the horizon— "

"Be it ever so hum-bul— " teased Phil.

"All right, you may laugh," said Sally, "but there's nobody who'll be gladder of a nice snuggly warm house and an Ivory bath in your own tub, and a cookie jar on the pantry shelf!"

"Sweetheart, I'll purr like a cat. I've been practising ever since we came aboard."

The first step towards having a healthy complexion (and one of the most important of all measures to keep it beautiful) is daily thorough cleansing of the skin.

As the best dermatologists will tell you, such thorough cleansing is next to impossible without soap and water.

The great majority of women have long since learned that when a pure soap, like Ivory, has safely and thoroughly cleansed their skin, this soap has gone the farthest limit any soap can go toward beautifying their complexions.

Unfortunately, however, there are still many women who hope for "beauty soaps" which will produce magic results.

It would be very easy for us to take advantage of this hope. We could mix with the pure ingredients that go into Ivory some medicine or coloring matter, and some strong perfume, wrap the final product in an expensive paper, and charge you fifty cents or a dollar for it. You would then have an expensive "beauty soap."

But you would no longer have Ivory Soap, for Ivory Soap is free from all these extraneous materials—it is pure! It is as fine and complete a soap as money can buy.

FLAKES

Ivory Flakes meets this important safety test:

Before you trust your costly fine fabrics to any soap in any form, a doubt naturally comes up in your mind.

"Is this soap really safe?"

Ask yourself: "Would I be willing to use this soap on my face?"

A soap which is too strong for your face is naturally too strong for your delicate and costly garments.

Ivory Flakes is simply Ivory Soap in flake form. Of course it fully meets this important safety test. For Ivory Soap, pure, mild, gentle, white—has protected the faces and hands of millions of women since 1879.

Ivory Flakes offers you a real margin of safety for cleansing the very finest garments you own. Many women wash all their clothes and dishes with Ivory or Ivory Flakes, thus saving their hands and preventing redness and roughness.

A TREASURE OF CHICAGOLAND—The "fortress-like Wartburg," Dubuque school of theology supported by the Iowa synod of the Evangelical Lutheran church, designed by Dwight Heald Perkins of Chicago. Says James O'Donnell Bennett, in the account of one of his Tribune pilgrimages: "You will like to recall how the basis of his design is the immortal Wartburg near Eisenach, which Luther called 'my Patmos,' and where he translated the New Testament—and threw his inkpot at His Intrusiveness the Devil."

"Please don't feel hurt"

"BUT somehow or other, I simply must tell you.

"I know this is something that most people might not talk about. Yet I feel it is my duty to tell you."

"Well, what is it?" her friend demanded.

The other was about to whisper something to her. But then she drew back.

"It may seem foolish," she said, "but I just can't bring myself to say it. You must know it yourself!"

You, yourself, rarely know when you have halitosis (unpleasant breath). That's the insidious thing about it. And even your closest friends won't tell you.

Sometimes, of course, halitosis comes from some deep-seated organic disorder that requires professional advice. But usually—and fortunately—halitosis is only a local condition that yields to the regular use of Listerine as a mouth wash and gargle. It puts you on the safe and polite side. Moreover, in using Listerine to combat halitosis, you are quite sure to avoid sore throat and those more serious illnesses that start with throat infections.

Listerine halts food fermentation in the mouth and leaves the breath sweet, fresh and clean. Not by substituting some other odor but by really removing the old one. The Listerine odor itself quickly disappears.

This safe and long-trusted antiseptic has dozens of different uses; note the little circular that comes with every bottle. Your druggist sells Listerine in the original brown package only—never in bulk. There are four sizes: 14 ounce, 7 ounce, 3 ounce and 1¼ ounce. Buy the large size for economy.—Lambert Pharmacal Company, Saint Louis, U. S. A.

The HALITOSIS use LISTERINE

Well—it worked!

For quite a while we challenged people to try Listerine Tooth Paste. Sales now show that when they try it they stick to it!

To this morning's "roto."

She's always prepared when company comes

VISITORS never worry her—no matter how unexpectedly they drop in. She welcomes them with a smile and is always at ease. For, back in the pantry, she has a Hostess Package of "Canada Dry." You've no idea what a friend in need that is.

Have you ever been forced to "send out" suddenly for refreshments when good friends call? Why not save yourself this embarrassment?

Just order a convenient Hostess Package of "Canada Dry" from a nearby dealer and you'll be prepared for even the most particular guest.

But be sure to get "Canada Dry." There is no other ginger ale like it. None so refreshing! None so delicious or distinguished!

The minute you break the golden seal of the beautiful bottle and pour a bit of "Canada Dry" slowly down the side of the thin-edge glass, as a connoisseur would pour a fine old wine, you will know that here, at last, is real ginger ale.

Hold it to the light! See how clear it is! How it gleams and sparkles! The life and vitality of it! The pale, "dry" champagne-like color!

And then taste it! Here is a revelation in ginger ale quality—a delicate, alluring "dry" flavor that intrigues your taste—a flavor unlike that of any other ginger ale you have ever tasted!

Truly it has been said that until you try "Canada Dry" you have no idea how good ginger ale ought to be. You will never forget the wonderful flavor.

Ovington's makes its bow to Chicago

With Gifts from all over the World

ON the Boulevard, just north of Lake Street, stands a new shop. In truth, it would be more accurate to say a new kind of shop.

For Ovington's is like no other shop in town. Within its portals are ten thousand things, as varied as can be, but all sharing one great bond in common—the pleasant faculty of being an excellent gift.

It is to gifts, then, that this new shop addresses itself. All of its energies are bent to the task of securing for you a choice of gifts, so wide and so diverse, that you may easily choose a gift with the twin honors of good taste and good value.

OVER the seven seas and the six continents the gifts gathered here, have traveled. Our envoys search ceaselessly and diligently, at home and in strange lands abroad, selecting this, rejecting that, gathering the unique and the rare—garnering the newest and best.

We ransack the great capitals, we search in towns so small that they are not even on the map, and we bring the fruits of this world-wide search to Chicago for your delectation.

EVEN as you step within the door of this new smart shop, its beauty and its wealth of color will amaze you. Silver shimmers in a dance of light. Crystal shines in a hundred forms. Here are rare place plates with jewel-like borders—massive candelabra and tiny trays, lovely mirrors and simple breakfast sets—and a host of things that defy recounting. For this first floor of Ovington's is a veritable House of Representatives giving an intriguing taste of what you will find in greater abundance on the four floors above.

OVINGTON'S

Michigan Boulevard north of Lake Street

Telephone State 4100

And what a range this gift shop covers! It runs the gamut of gifts. Five floors in all—ten thousand things from which to choose. By all means a shop you must visit and visit very soon.

PERHAPS as early as tomorrow one of the familiar, white, square-shaped envelopes may start your quest for a wedding gift. Perhaps it will be a birthday or an anniversary that sends you forth. Wrestle not in solitude with the task. Bring it straightaway to Ovington's.

Your quest will end swiftly. An ingenious display of tables on our very first floor may hold the answer. For here are gifts, hundreds of them, marshaled by price to guide the purse that is not bottomless.

One table is made up of charming things at five dollars. Another at ten dollars. Still another at twenty-five and there are many other tables at prices in between.

But even if the shopping list demands no gift, you are just as welcome. Come and browse about to your heart's content. And after you have explored and re-explored this new and lovely shop, we hope you will find it pleasant to come and come again.

NEW YORK-PARIS PLANE CRASHES IN FLAMES—Starting a non-stop flight across the Atlantic last Tuesday, Capt. Rene Fonck's giant Sikorsky machine plunged over an embankment at the end of the runway and was destroyed. The French ace and his American companion, Lieut. Lawrence W. Curtin, leaped and escaped, but two aids were trapped and perished. This picture, first of the disaster to reach Chicago, was flashed from New York by phone.

FLOOD HORRORS SWELL TOLL OF GALE—An inundated region near St. Petersburg, on the west coast, visualizing the sweep of the tidal wave that accompanied the Florida hurricane. At the right may be seen three fugitives on an improvised raft in the midst of deluge and debris.

IN THE PATH OF THE HURRICANE—A flooded avenue in St. Petersburg, with raging waters stretching to the trees on the distant horizon. The palms in the foreground have been twisted by the fury of the storm.

A Custom Car for Captains of Commerce

THE President is the first custom car ever exclusively created for the service of the American business executive and christened in his honor.

It is not alone the finest Big-Six Sedan that Studebaker has ever built, but one of the world's finest cars irrespective of cost!

Its custom body, swung low on a wheelbase of 127 inches, is lacquered in ebony with a belt of thistle green and a stripe of Siskiyou yellow, or in Croaton green with an ebony belt delicately striped in ivory. Its interior is luxuriously upholstered in broadcloth or Chase mohair with broadlace trim—and its equipment includes disc wheels, four-wheel brakes and a ventilating system (exclusively Studebaker) which insures fresh air without drafts or moisture.

The President is powered with the same Big Six engine which was recently driven across the continent under extremely adverse weather conditions in 86 hours and 20 minutes—smashing the best previous transcontinental automobile record by more than 16 hours. This quiet Studebaker L-head motor has long been noted for its smooth flow of power and freedom from vibration—which can only be insured by Studebaker's big crankshaft, fully machined and dynamically balanced.

Never before have so much beauty and power and economy been embodied in an automobile—with the silvered figure of Atalanta on its radiator as the symbol of its achievement! We want you to see this latest and greatest example of Studebaker's One-Profit facilities. Will you call on The President or shall The President call on you?

Douglass of Massachusetts, below, is outmaneuvering serious illness with the same device in his race for re-election.

KEEP the six small mouth glands young and active and your gums will always be firm, your strong white teeth safe from decay.

It is the fluids from these mouth glands which protect the whole mouth, keep it young and sound.

But the mouth glands slow up long before they should! And so Pebeco Tooth Paste was perfected to waken and invigorate them as well as to polish the teeth beautifully.

Its very taste and fresh after-feeling tell you your mouth glands are getting the help they need. You are gay and confident, you smile freely—because you know your mouth is sweet and clean, your teeth good to look at!

Why the important Mouth Glands slow up—

The numbers above show where the three mouth glands are on each side.

With easily swallowed, soft foods, they slow up! To restore their vigor, use Pebeco daily. Its important salt keeps them working, your whole mouth gloriously young and healthy!

What new beauty, the perfect shaping of the nails and cuticle lends to the whole hand!

Perfect Ovals . . Lovely Half Moons with this dainty liquid

The Complete Manicure

Wash your hands and file the nails. With Cutex Cuticle Remover, remove the rough dead cuticle, bleach the nail tips and shape the cuticle. Smooth Nail White under the nail tips to whiten. Then brush Cutex Liquid Polish smoothly over each nail.

HALF the charm of beautiful hands depends on properly shaping your cuticle. Only by rounding it into perfect ovals can you give each nail—and with it the whole hand—its slim, aristocratic length.

The cuticle is always growing tight to the skin, then splitting into uglifying little roughnesses at the nail base. Soap and water won't remove this old skin that clings so stubbornly to the nail. Neither will softening and pushing back.

And so Northam Warren spent years perfecting a dainty antiseptic that quickly and safely removes the dead cuticle.

It is Cutex—an essential of the manicure! You simply apply this dainty liquid around each nail base and wipe away the old dead skin. The rims now almost shape themselves!

Marthe Regnier, talented and beautiful French actress, and a modiste of note as well, says: "Since I discovered Cutex, it is no trouble at all to shape the cuticle in lovely ovals—revealing the Half Moons that are the distinguishing mark of beauty in well kept hands."

Cutex Manicure Sets containing everything for the manicure are 35c to $5.00. Separate preparations 35c. Or see special offer.

THE younger members of the set that unfurls the social standards for the world to follow, have expressed their allegiance to Two delicate Creams for the care of their skin.

"Swiftly and surely they work to keep the skin exquisite," says Miss Barbara Strebeigh. "That is why their use has become a habit with the girls of the younger set."

"Dances and sports conspire to ruin the skin," observes Miss Marjorie Oelrichs, "and would—but for Pond's Two Creams. So Pond's is the method I follow."

Miss Elinor Patterson declares: "For the skin which is doubly taxed by society and professional life, Pond's Two Creams are perfect, sure in fulfillment."

ELOISE TOLD ME HER SECRET

It Wrought a Wonderful Change

I didn't seem to be as popular, somehow, as Eloise and Helen were. "Some day I'll tell you why, my dear," Eloise whispered to me, for she could see I was . . . well, miserable.

Then one day when we were alone she told me. For a minute I felt hurt. But I glimpsed that joyous sparkling smile of hers and I knew she told the truth. My teeth were simply horrid!

Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream will make your teeth glisten gloriously. It will whiten them and bring out all their natural beauty. But even more important . . . it will help keep your teeth and gums healthy.

Colgate's penetrates every place where it is possible for germs and food particles to collect. It loosens these impurities at once. Then it washes them away, leaving your teeth and gums absolutely clean. Germs can't lurk in the warm, dark interior of your mouth when you use Colgate's regularly. Colgate's literally goes right into their hiding places and removes those causes of tooth decay.

Colgate's contains no grit; no harsh chemicals. It can't scratch or bleach your teeth. It polishes and whitens them naturally. That's why more people in Chicago use Colgate's than they do any other dental cream.

And you'll like the taste . . . priced right, too.

"The children thought I had put fresh orange juice in it."

"I really thought I had fresh fruit jelly instead of Fruit Gelatin."

SO come the comments from delighted, enthusiastic women from all over the country, declaring that here at last is "a gelatin with the real fruit taste."

From fresh fruit alone come these wonderful flavors. Royal Raspberry, Strawberry, Cherry—from the ripe juices of the fruits themselves their flavor is made. The cool refreshing taste of Royal Orange and Lemon comes only from the oil of the fresh citrus fruit.

No synthetic nor artificial flavoring. No trace of "gluey" smell or taste. (Pure gelatin has neither!)

You can trust the purity of Royal Fruit Flavored Gelatin just as you have always trusted that of Royal Baking Powder. Ask for it by name at your grocer's. The red package the same color as the Royal Baking Powder can.

It is for healthy, rollicking youngsters like these that we make "Better shoes for less money"

"School's out!" That's the signal! The restraint is off! The stampede of a herd of restless feet is on! The pent-up energy of a roomful of eager boys and girls is let loose! Out-of-doors they burst—

"Pell-mell! Nary a care! Never a thought of the shoes they wear!"

SCHOOL days are the real "tough-on-shoes" days. The way the average boy or girl goes through a pair of shoes is a constant source of worry to mothers . . . and a challenge to shoemaking ingenuity.

Endicott-Johnson shoes accept that challenge!

In making them we have considered every possible factor in the manufacturing, buying and wearing of shoes. We have analyzed household budgets. Studied children's activities. Tested shoes—on hundreds of boys and girls. Improved shoemaking methods. Developed new leather-tanning processes. Put our 17,000 skilled employees on a working basis that insures their direct interest in the shoes they make. . . . All in the determination to make shoes that wear better and cost less—and yet lose nothing in looks or comfort. And we have succeeded!

Endicott-Johnson shoes are offered to you on the basis of really outstanding value for the money you pay for them. Fine, strong leather; correct, comfortable lasts; high-grade, honest workmanship; smart style. . . . You simply can't find all these qualities in such generous measure in any other line of shoes of similar price.

Scores of styles—for men and women as well as for boys and girls. Fifty thousand stores carry Endicott-Johnson shoes. Our trade-mark is on the sole. Boys' and girls' shoes $3, $4, $5. Smaller sizes proportionately less.

Write for "The World at Play," an interesting free booklet for boys and girls—and parents too. And, if you don't know where you can buy Endicott-Johnson shoes, ask us; we'll tell you, gladly.

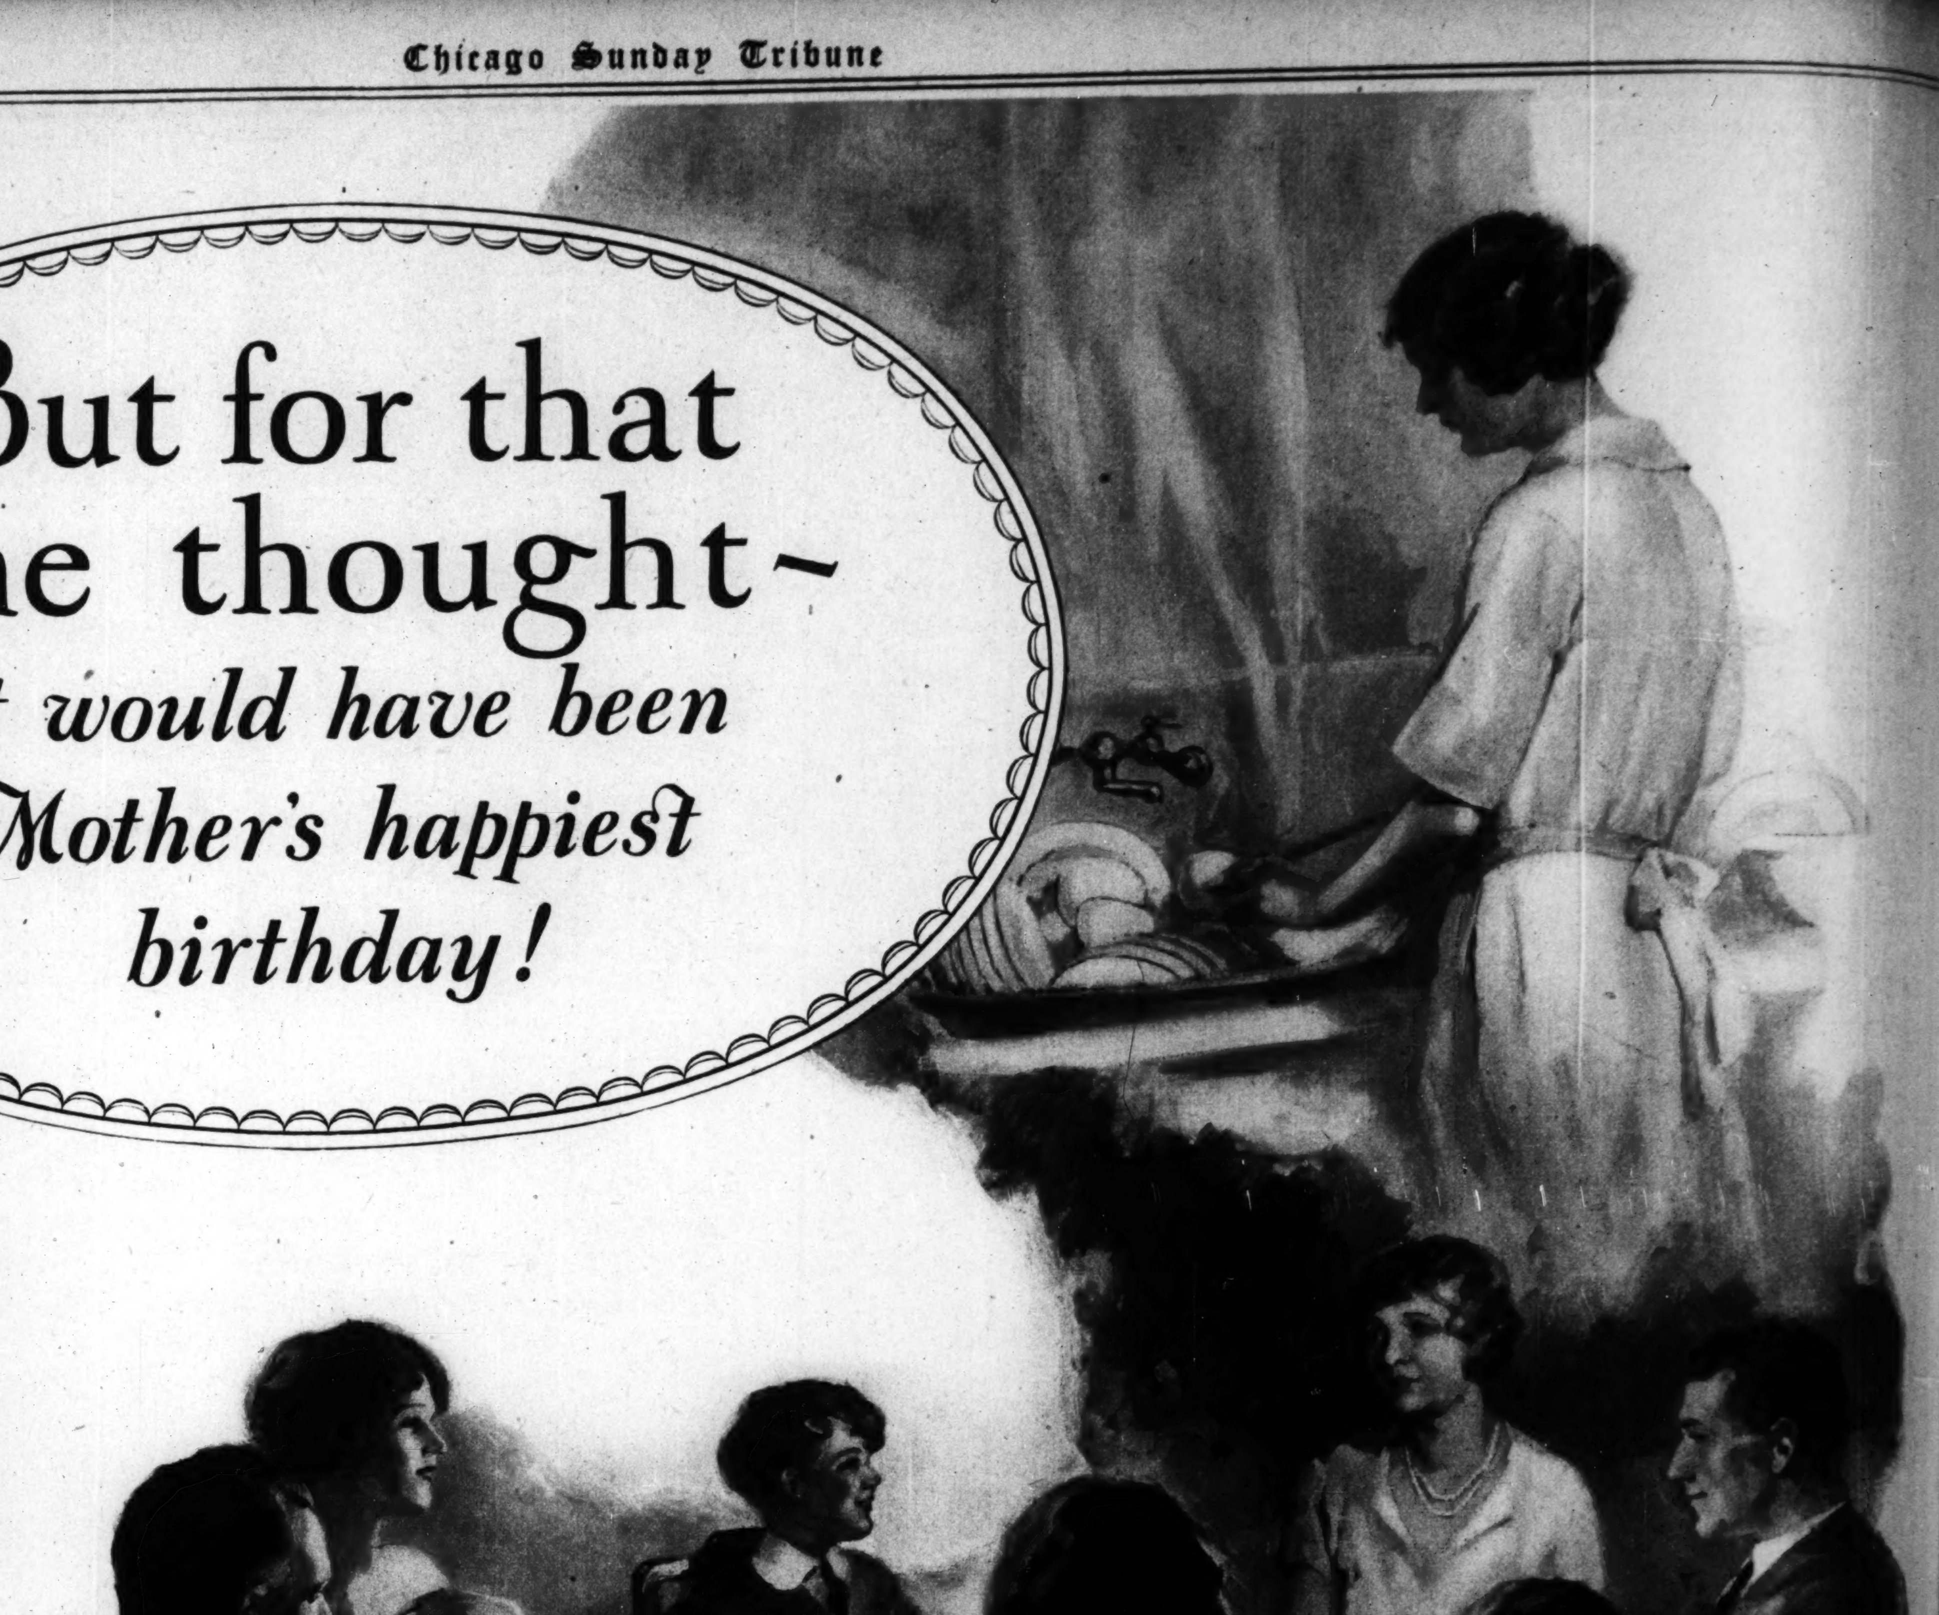
But for that one thought—it would have been Mother's happiest birthday!



SEVEN in all—and how much fun they had had—placing just sixteen candles on the cake for mother, who was just Sweet Sixteen to them all. They each planned all sorts of surprises, and Mother was joyful—ready for anything they would do—for she knew they were doing it for her happiness.

But the thought of dishwashing was in Mother's mind from the very start of the party like most mothers. She wanted so much to go right in and have a real party, but she knew that big pile of dishes had to be washed early. She would be too tired later, and there would be an early breakfast for so many. So she willingly slaved over the kitchen sink and soapy dishpan, drowning her jubilant spirits, knowing full well that when she had finished, the best part of the party would be over.

Mother, above all, deserved that extra 45 minutes, when most needed by them all. But she had always been responsible for washing dishes. She considered it part of her life.

How unjust that mothers should be saddled with the menial job of dishwashing. It's needless too, for science has perfected a wonderful invention—the Conover Electric Dishwasher. It washes, rinses, sterilizes and dries the dishes in twelve minutes.

Who Is to Blame if Mother Slaves at the Dishpan Now?

Now she just pushes a button and the famous Conover Electric Dishwasher automatically washes, rinses, sterilizes and dries the entire day's dirty dishes in twelve minutes and they will be handled more carefully than if washed by human hands.

It glides on rubber rollers as easily as a tea cart from table to kitchen. Saves miles of steps and hours of time. Strong and sturdy. Beautifully finished. Takes up little space. And so novel that a child will enjoy operating it.

We want you to see the Conover Electric Dishwasher in action—we want to see the surprised smile come to Mother's face as she watches a whole day's dishes go into the machine and in LESS THAN TWELVE MINUTES see them emerge sparklingly clean and dry—without touching her hands to dish water. If you are too busy, ask Mother to find the nearest dealer, or mail the coupon for FREE booklet and demonstration at her convenience—no obligation whatsoever.

The Magic Man

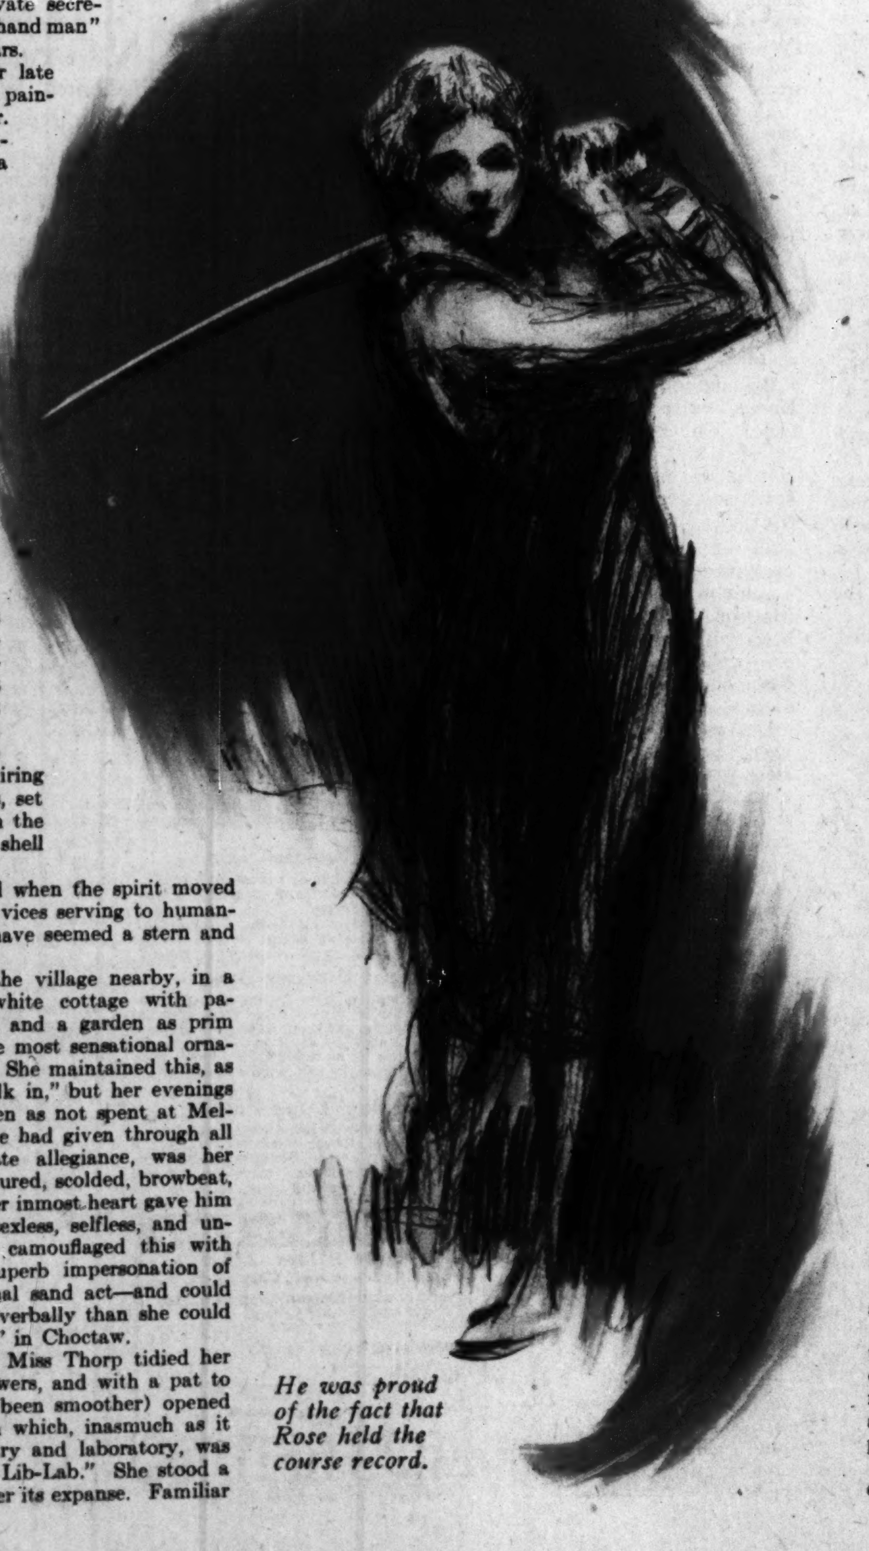
"Only one man knew that I had finally succeeded."



He was proud of the fact that Rose held the course record.

INSTALLMENT I.

In the Wizard's Workshop.

THE autumn sun was pouring a wash of gold over the great stone pile which was at once the home and the workshop of the "Wizard of Melton Park," as the famous Roselius was bromidically referred to by the headline writers.

A fitting setting for the master chemist whose name in the world of scientific experiment was a household word. "The Roselius Method of Extracting Helium," "The New Element Roselium and Its Place in the Atomic Scale"—text books were blazoned with his achievements. He was to electro-chemistry what Luther Burbank was to agriculture—a daring explorer in unblazed paths. The Cagliostro of color, whose twentieth century alchemy had regiven to the world the ancient "Tyrian purple" that had dyed the silken sails of the triremes of Roman emperors crimsoning the Mediterranean. The modern Midas whose touch turned worthless coal tar to gold.

Half towered and moated Tudor castle, half up to date country house, the building sat, a massive serenity, on a knoll leafed by huge trees. Lebanon cedars, Japanese cryptomeria and a few ginko, those strange giant cousins of the maidenhair fern, lone survivors of the glacial age in Manchuria, that had been brought to America, tiny saplings, by some fancier in the China trade, on some old clipper, more than a hundred years ago. The estate, one of the most spacious and beautiful of Long Island, ran down to the water's edge, where a stone pier pricked the leisurely current. About it were outhouses screened by rows of box and yew as stately as any in an English shire, greenhouses that gave hints of half hidden tropic blooms—a lake as blue as Nemi, meandering pebbled paths and rockeries.

With its tennis and handball courts, nine hole golf course, bathing pool, and all the accessories of smart country life, it was a happy hunting ground for the super-sophisticated younger lot, of whom Rose Roselius, the chemist's only daughter, was a conspicuous member.

From the upper windows of the house on such a clear day as today one might even see the fanged skyline of New York, yet in its peace and quiet have been a thousand miles away. From its wide front lawn rose the whir-r-r-r of a grass cutter—an electric chariot which careened in an ever narrowing circle—pierced by the malevolent squawk of a gallant-tailed peacock preening on a marble bench from Taormina.

In its own wing of the building, looking upon a paved court, the office staff was functioning with its usual swiftness under the direction of Miss Thorp, by designation Roselius' private secretary and in fact his "right hand man" for more than twenty years.

Miss Thorp was in her late forties, neutral tinted and painfully proof against slander. She was august and angular, and in repose had a deceptive and brooding quiet, suggestive of etheric forces hanging in suspense, like a battleship in harbor or the calm that is supposed to precede an earthquake.

She affected gray, and her smoke-gray hair, to which nature had given a kindly wave, was drawn back with uncompromising neatness and wound in a high knot like a hornet's nest. To fancy it marcelled would have been a desecration; to imagine it bobbed almost an obscenity. She wore no ornaments, unless a small wrist watch of gunmetal might be so denominated, and her long thin fingers were ringless. Her large inquiring eyes, clear and courageous, set wide apart, looked through the heavy lenses of tortoise shell spectacles.

She smoked cigarets, and when the spirit moved her she swore, these softer vices serving to humanize what might otherwise have seemed a stern and inflexible exterior.

She lived, officially, in the village nearby, in a small uncompromisingly white cottage with pagoda-blue window shutters and a garden as prim and prism-ish as she, whose most sensational ornament was a century plant. She maintained this, as she said, as "a place to sulk in," but her evenings and her nights were as often as not spent at Melton. Roselius, to whom she had given through all these years such passionate allegiance, was her single admiration. She lectured, scolded, browbeat, and managed him, but in her inmost heart gave him a hero worship that was sexless, selfless, and unremitting. She habitually camouflaged this with satire—thereby giving a superb impersonation of the ostrich in his apocryphal sand act—and could no more have expressed it verbally than she could have said "buttered beans" in Choctaw.

In her own little cubicle Miss Thorp tidied her desk swiftly, locked its drawers, and with a pat to her hair (which had never been smoother) opened a door into the great room which, inasmuch as it was a combination of library and laboratory, was known to the staff as the "Lib-Lab." She stood a moment, her eyes roving over its expanse. Familiar as was its every line and feature, she never looked at it thus without a thrill.

It was a vaulted room of noble proportions, furnished with the richness of a Florentine palace and the taste of an artist. It was two stories in height, with a wide balustraded gallery around three sides, reached by a stairway broken at a right angle half way up. In the center of the gallery, into which opened a low Gothic door with quaint panels decorated with grotesque panels, glimmered the gilded reeds of a pipe organ.

Work was Roselius' emotional safety valve, but music, like jewels and detective stories, was a lesser passion with him, and sometimes—for the most part at night, when the laboratories were not functioning—he turned to it. At such times what he played, whether a fugue in a haunting minor or an outrageous riot of syncopation, was an unfailing index of his mood.

The room was wainscoted in dark oak, carved in Gothic lozenges, and heavy rafters barred its ceiling into squares that were the blue of lapis-lazuli. It had an enormous fireplace, a replica of one in Warwick castle, whose pilasters showed in low relief Apollo and the nine Muses, and whose mantel held two porcelains of Chinese flambe and a tankard made by Benvenuto Cellini. Over it was a canvas of Giorgione and on the side walls were tapestries rare and old.

At one end was a large casement window groined and mullioned, with square leaded panes, whose upper part was inset with medallioned escutcheons and through which one glimpsed trees and statuary lifting from a formal, yew-guarded garden. On either side of the window hung long straight damask curtains of Genoese blue, and before it was a desk strewn with papers covered with figures, metallic tubes, samples of textures, and phials containing liquids of various colors—a riot of ordered disorder. At one end, cheek by jowl, huddled Conrad's posthumous novel and Papini's "Life of Christ."

On the walls bracketed shelves held books bound in leather, gold-tooled, in tints of fawn and brown and moss-green, among which stood out now and then one of rose-red or tawny yellow. Here was a long Renaissance table of dark walnut holding a few bronzes, ornaments of green jade, and an illuminated missal case of the fifteenth century, and there a davenport over which was flung a Japanese priest robe of tender tinted brocade.

On one side, under the gallery, stood an electric furnace whose thick glass door threw a reddish glare on the floor rugs, in which were woven the traceries of desert sands and the songs of long dead camel drivers. Before it stood a squat iron tripod holding a spirit lamp over which sat a battered crucible in which a black viscous substance was bubbling. In the side opposite doors opened at intervals into smaller workrooms fitted with curious instruments, with sinks, taps, and containers of colored glass, casseroles, and magnums, racks of test tubes and bars of dyed silks—all the paraphernalia of the experimental chemist. The windows were softly curtained against the sunlight and the place was dimly lighted, except for flame points beneath bubbling retorts, which here and there made spots of intenser glow.

IN all its suggestion of beauty and color and mystery the place, except for its modern electric luster and its wall telephone, might have been the study of Joseph Balsamo the Alchemist.

As Miss Thorp stood seemingly glaring at all of this with aversion, but in actuality steeping her soul in its atmosphere, a side door opened and a young man came into the room. He wore a long white overgarment, atrociously stained rubber gloves and smoked glasses, and carried a beaker filled with a chemical mixture which gave forth a violent hissing. He nodded to her, disappeared in one of the workrooms and presently returned empty handed.

"Mr. Bruce," she said, with an accent of strong disapproval repressed with violence, "are you still at it? You know perfectly well you haven't had your clothes off for forty-eight hours."

He took off his goggles and showed a pair of apologetic, boyish eyes.

"It's not quite that bad, you know," he said.

"It's not far from it. Why must you make yourself a worm for the governor to tread on?"

He turned out his hands in genuine perplexity. "But how can I quit till he does?"

"Well, you ought to," she answered, with exasperation. "Then maybe he would. He'll kill himself working the way he does. Besides, he's got other things to do. I'll stop him!"

She stalked to the door through which he had come and raised her voice. "Governor!"

There was no reply.

"Governor!"

Still no answer, but from somewhere beyond there came the crash of breaking glass and an angry roar.

"Governor!" There was outrage in her tone now, and grim finality. It was the tone of one about to go to the mat for a principle.

It sufficed. There burst from the workroom a huge, dogged and infuriated figure in a battered purple smock splashed with red acid, dirty paper cap and cuffs and a green eye shield, and with a Viking-blonde beard thrust straight out before him.

"Damn it," he bellowed, "what do you mean by disturbing me? How dare you interrupt? Haven't you learned anything in all these years?"

"It's a holiday and it's 1 o'clock."

"What the foul fiend if it is?"

"All right, Mr. Bruce," she said. "Tell your staff there'll be no half holiday after all. Let 'em slave; they're paid for it! Tell 'em Mr. Roselius says so."

"He'll tell them nothing of the sort!" Roselius said violently. "Confound it, Thorpie, why didn't you say it was a holiday?" He turned on the assistant. "Stop the work on the tri-sulphite, and shut off the furnace. Tell everybody to quit—Thorpie's orders! I'm a damned old Simon Legree, Bruce."

He flung off the disfiguring smock, cap and eye-shade and revealed a rugged head like that of a David by Rodin, set squarely on massive shoulders, and waving grayish hair. Between his brows were gashes as deep as duel wounds and his eager, searching eyes, yellow-tinged like an eagle's, now gleamed with an impish humor and an incorrigible deviltry.

He pounded up the stair—his dressing room opened on the gallery—but stopped to throw her a scowl. "O, I forgot part of the ceremony. Well, Cerberus, any last instructions?"

"Only to remind you that you have Sir Horace Demetriardi's party coming at three."

"Have you guessed what they're coming for, Thorpie?" he demanded, putting his head on one side, with a kind of droll cunning. "Have you looked 'em up? Eh?"

"No," she said honestly. "I hadn't thought of it."

He threw up his great head with a laugh. "Thorpie," he said, "I wouldn't wonder if Sir Horace had found out a little secret of mine."

"Well," she retorted, "if the cat's out of the bag, you can tell everybody and brag about it. That's something."

He made a face at her and slammed the door.

"Life's just one damn meal after another," growled Roselius. "Serve it here, Wrenn, and don't go to sleep over it. Miss Rose will be in any minute."

The room was on the ground floor, small and sunny and tiled, floor and walls, with butterfly tiles that gave it a golden glimmer. It held only a small wicker table and a few chintz covered chairs. The bow window was wide and had a broad leather cushioned window seat.

"I beg pardon, sir?" A look of pained reproach was spread like a glaze over the butler's features. "I understood you wished to lunch in the dining room. You said so, sir, at breakfast, if you remember, sir."

"I said no such thing!" fumed Roselius. "Don't stand there contradicting me!"

An oleaginous thin-shanked footman who had followed the butler stood on the threshhold. Wrenn spoke to him with melancholy resignation.

"Petersen, Mr. Roselius has decided to lunch here. You may bring the things."

"I didn't say I'd decided to. I told you I would!" barked Roselius, but the butler, having achieved the perfect retort, had retired with the honors of the encounter.

"It beats me," said the rotund footman, sotto voce, as they proceeded to the buttery, "how you can answer the master like that! When you know you'd lie down an' let wild 'osses gallop over you if he told you to."

"Petersen," returned his superior, "you discourage me. You've got no insight into character, like I have. Now get on with those plates and look sharp."

WHILE they laid the table, Roselius strode up and down glowering, his hands in his two-quart pockets. He wore a loose flowing purple tie, a silk housecoat with velvet collar, and Romeo slippers of red morocco. Love of bright colors was one of his eccentricities; it furnished the exotic touch that is oriental, that is so often the gift of a strain, somewhere, of Jewish blood.

One whole side of the little room was filled by glass double doors that were now flung open outward and through which his gaze followed the sloping line of the shaven turf to where fluttered a small white flag, an impost of the short, nine holed links that spraddled through the shrubbery. His eyes lightened.

He was thinking how Rose loved the game. Though he scoffed at it as a pastime of morons, he was proud of the fact that she held the course record at the country club, eighty-two with a midiron, as a card that had been pinned to the clubhouse board for nearly a round year testified. The yellow room she called the "tenth hole," for here, at the end of the afternoon round in cold weather, waited the blazing driftwood fire, and in torrid the frosty pitcher of iced orangeade. She was longer than usual today in doing her stunt, but presently he should see her swinging in, her canvas bag slung over her shoulder, with a stride that betokened healthy hunger, her hair flecked with Brunhilde gold like the bronzed leaf of old altar candles, her daylight skin pink as a lotus, and eyes deep and darkest blue—the selfsame eyes that had looked at him long before she had been born. Ilda's eyes!

He sat down on the window seat, his huge shoulders hunched, his knees wide apart, and his hand came from his pocket holding a string of curiously carven jade beads. It was a short Chinese Buddhist rosary, whose beads stood not for prayers or penances, but for the sins and passions flesh is heir to. He carried it always with him and had a habit of taking it out and "telling" it whenever he was thinking deeply or was perplexed by some problem. Now the tiny spherules ran swiftly and noiselessly through his big, spatulate fingers.

He had had that little room tiled with yellow tiles because there had been a room just like it in the threadbare pension in Vienna in those old student days when he had met Ilda, who had loved and at last had married him—the place where he had used to come with his fingers blackened with acids and his eyes red from the rays of the laboratory, to forget the daily toil with the alembics and filters in talk with her of the great things he should one day do. It was her solace that had soothed him, her starry faith that had been back of his earliest successes, that had fired him to fight his way up toward those heights where dwelt freedom and renown.

"We'll be dog-poor at first, in New York, you and I, Ilda," he had said when they parted. "And I know what poverty means there—dirt and cold and sausages. But it won't be sausages always. I promise you that!"

"It'll be home, Karl," she answered. "Wherever we are together, that will be home!"

So a year later she had come, second class, and they had ridden uptown on the clanging open street car, hand in hand in the hot July weather, while she exclaimed at the towering buildings and the seething crowds, to the cheap apartment on the east side that he had furnished, with its rented piano on which she was to give music lessons to eke out his tragic salary as teacher of chemistry in Cooper Union—until the baby came to demand its toll of time.

In those years ambition had gnawed at him like a fierce dog on a bone, blistered him like a caustic. He had labored without rest.

"Karl, don't work tonight. You read too much. Let us go to the play."

"But I am so busy, darling! My experiments——"

"Karl, Karl! Not today? It's a holiday. Let's go to the park and smell the flowers, the way we used to in the Kaiserplatz."

"I must study, Ilda. There's much to learn!"

AND then, without warning, a day when he had neither studied nor worked, when the world stood still. When he knew that never again would he sit beside her at the play, never again could they smell the flowers together!

He had fought the specter grief and the tiger despair in the bloody sweat of toil, and had salved his loss with the glory of achievement, the pride of knowledge, the warmth and wine of success. But what would all these things have been to him without that sweet blossom of her body, his Rose, whom he was waiting for now? Such a short while ago her clean, wondering child ideas of the world about her had been just beginning to force themselves up, like March snowdrops, white and virginal, from the fallow soil.

And now here she was, all at once, past twenty! He was smitten suddenly with a sense of the appalling speed of the years.

His thought broke. Out of the corner of his eye he had caught the wave of a sweatered arm in the distance. He put the rosary in his pocket.

Rose came in with a face glowing from the rasp of a towel and sat down opposite him with a sigh of content.

"I'm grub-struck," she said. "I let out a wail this morning for chicken hash and stuffed green peppers! I hope that'll suit you, too."

"Who'd you play with?" he asked.

"I went around with Mimi Ambruster. She wouldn't stay for luncheon. She's lunching at the country club with Ronnie Chandos. She's just broken her engagement—the second this season—and Ronnie has the inside track now."

"Mimi's all right," he commented. "She'll end by jumping into marriage like a kitten into a basket, and spend the rest of her life, just like her mother, giving parties. How's your game?"

"Did it in thirty-four again. Pretty scrumptious for me. You really ought to take golf up."

"O, sludge!" he scoffed. "I've got work to do."

"Yes," she said, wrinkling her nose, "I've sometimes suspected that. But Thorpie's perfectly right. You work too darned hard."

Over the crisp endive she asked, "How about that confidential assistant? Have you got in touch with any one yet?"

"Not yet."

"Won't any of the lot you've got now do?"

"Bah! They can do splendidly what the books tell them. What some one has done before. They're a good parcel of youngsters, but they lack imagination. They see no visions and dream no dreams. What I need is some one who doesn't balk at the impossible. Who has sense enough to believe in miracles, in a universe where everything he sees is a miracle anyway."

She reached a hand and patted his arm.

"If I had only been the boy you wanted, instead of just a girl! O, yes, you did want one! Men always do. But don't you think, for people who hadn't any say in the matter, we did pretty well? We're very good pals, aren't we? I'm sure you'd have been my pick."

"By a strange coincidence," he said, "I was just thinking the same thing of you."

As Wrenn made his accomplished withdrawal—after pouring the black coffee and holding the match for the corpulent capadura — Roselius' gaze rested on Rose with a great tenderness. How inevitable were the processes, great and small, of that nature of which he was such a passionate student, which enwrapped all life! Man, caught somehow in the cogs of the great machine —built who knew how, running by who knew what impulse—reacting to forces he cannot understand: energies of destruction and of upbuilding—lightning, death, hatred—sunlight, life, and love. And the vast organism moving soundlessly, resistlessly, from age to age, cunning, resourceful, yet without rationale or interpretation. Here was Rose, waiting the moment when the most incalculable of these great forces, irresistible as the drag of the moon drawn tide, would seize upon her, to bear her—whither? For she was a woman grown, come to mating time, when she must learn love, the most fragile and other-worldly thing. When and how would that come to her?

Rose's elbows were on the table, her chin—that was firm as a rock, albeit its contumacy was contradicted by a disarming dimple—cupped in her palms, and her eyes, steady and clear as the high light in a crystal, looked out across the green shaded grass.

"Rah-rah"—the name was a relic of nursery days which had clung—"which are the deadest in earnest kind of proposals? I don't count the puppy ones that every girl has so many of when she's seventeen, or the 'arranged' ones. I mean the serious kind that one has to—to mull over. Are they the ones that wind a poor girl around with beautiful, bewildering words? Or the ones that come biff-bang right to the point?"

Roselius' head had come up with a jerk. The question seemed to have hitched itself uncannily on to his thought.

"The devil!" he said. "Proposals? One looming on the horizon?"

She smiled. "I shouldn't wonder!"

His eyes wandered to his cigar, and he flicked off the ash with a heavy finger.

"One this time that you feel you must—think over?"

She nodded. "You see, Rah-rah, I'm twenty and that's getting on."

"Rubbish! You're a babe in arms."

"No, I'm not. I'm not even in the flapper class any more. Of course, I've had proposals. Every girl has. But I don't know everything, the way girls seem to nowadays."

He dropped a hand over hers on the table. He loved her youthful contempt of the youthful sophistication affected in the junior sets—young men parading insolent mannerisms and brusque repartee, talking speciously of things Russian, of Mendel and the later economists; girls with thin black eyebrows, over-red cupid-bow mouths, lacquered mops of boyish bobbed hair, and an air of weary disdain of all created things, girls barren of reticences, contemptuous of modesty, who made a point of casual oscularity and lip-sticking in public, wore daring clothes daringly, displayed gartered knees, and talked with equal openness of sex and sables, moods and monkey glands. Rose, thank God, was not of that kind!

He cleared his throat. "Well, suppose you give me the constituents of the compound. Is he good looking?"

"Uh-huh."

"Family, and all that?"

"Positively blue-blood. Not that that would matter."

"Of course not. I'm only testing for alkaline now. Money?"

"No—at least none to speak of."

He pulled his beard and grunted. "Little brother of the rich?"

"No, his people used to be very wealthy."

"What does he do?"

She hesitated. "I don't think he does anything—yet. You see, it isn't so very long ago that the money was lost, and he hasn't found himself."

He gave her a sidelong glance, with his lip thrust out wickedly, like a troll.

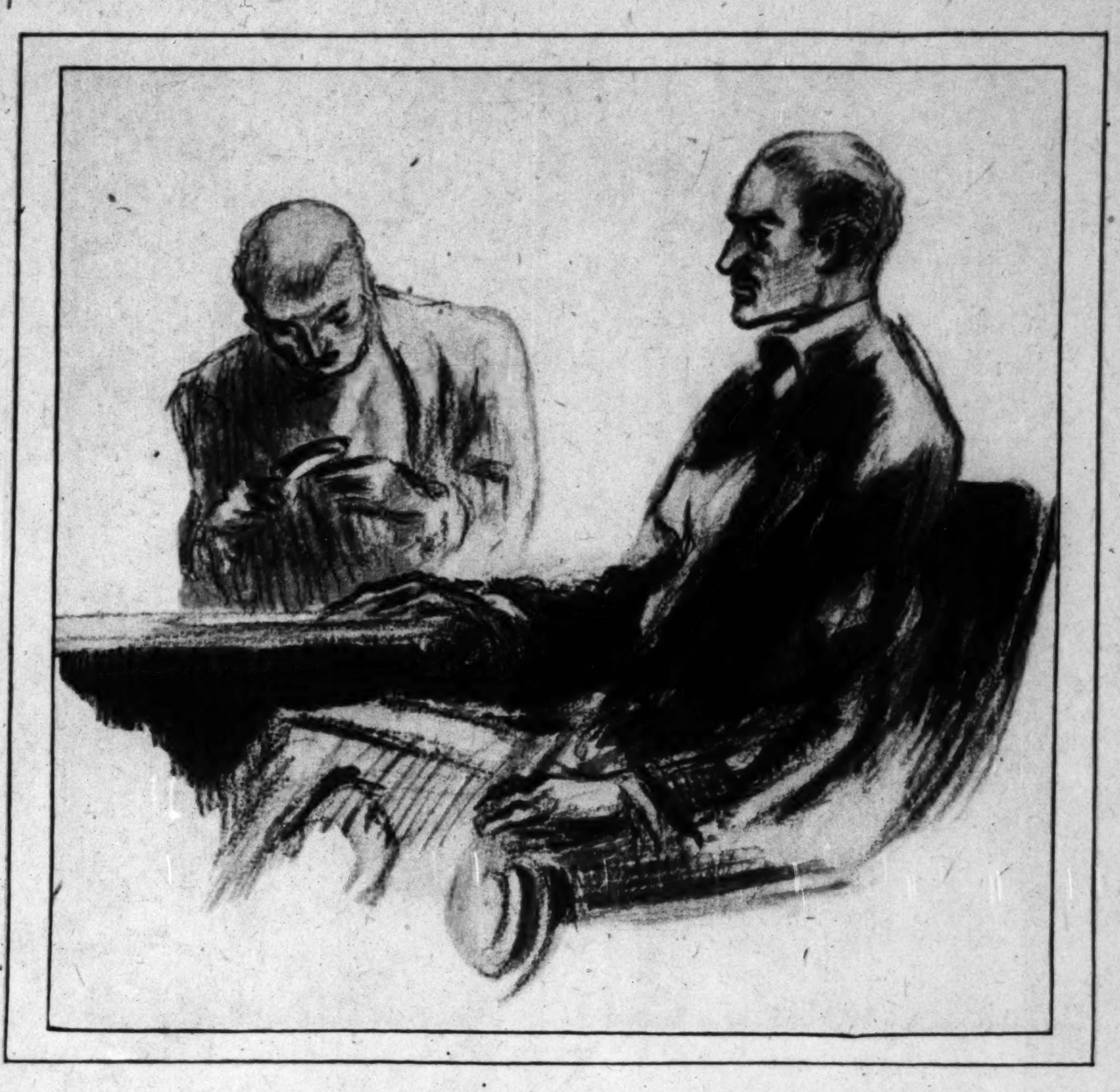
"I—was always afraid I was working for some sheik orchid crusher!" he grumbled. "Smart clubs and a devil with the girls. Plays polo, no doubt."

She laughed, delightedly. "I believe you've guessed!"

"No I'm merely sketching the type. And you're wondering how he's going to say it? Well, if he's the right one, it oughtn't to matter much. That's the only part that interests me. It's a big thing, you know."

She looked at him, a little wistfully. "I know it. It's so big it's scary. It was the biggest thing in the world to you and mother, when it came, wasn't it, Rah-rah?"

He nodded. "It was the universe," he said huskily.



And his huge interests stood to be made worthless in an hour.

He got up and, going close to the window, stood looking out, his back to her. Mitchell Schuyler—that was the man. Roselius knew him, as he knew fifty young men who came to Melton Park, men whose families bore names linked to the neighborhood through long residence. Time had recently been when to name him at club or dinner table was to throw an undeniable glamour over the conversation. It suggested to the most casual observer of "smart life" all the refinements of enormous wealth and a social position that had been impregnable in New York during four generations, connoting yachting, Newport, the newest supper club, the well known heavy featured brown stone house in Madison avenue, and the huge showplace on Long Island that went for a ribald song—after old Schuyler shot himself—to that new copper Croesus of the stupendous house parties. The crash that had impelled the fourth Forsythe Schuyler to take the quickest way out of it all had swept away the family fortune and left the son practically penniless, but that meant nothing to Roselius. Money spelled neither character nor happiness to him. He was thinking only of Rose. The one single thing that could make life intolerable to him would be a heart hurt of hers beyond the healing!

WHEN he turned again to her the glaze of humor and badinage had slipped from the mobile face, the droll glint in the yellow-tinged eyes had deepened to a somber glow.

"Love!" he said. "The thing that has ruled this old earth in some form or other since first life crawled out of the sea-ooze. What is it? Nobody knows. We can't guess how or where it's born, or where it comes from, or where it goes—if it ever does go. We don't know any more about it than we know about electricity. Only that one minute it wasn't there and the next minute it is. And yet love is the strongest thing in the world. To some it never comes at all. To most it never comes but once. But when it comes—when two people truly love, they belong together as truly as the molecule of oxygen and the molecule of hydrogen. Beside love the other passions, even hatred, are packthread. It has overthrown king's dynasties and set up beggars on their thrones. It has inspired every great poem and romance that was ever written. But for it there would be deserts where now there are gardens, and jungles where now there are cities. Without it man is a cynic and woman a derelict."

He paused a moment, smiling at her where she sat, her fingers laced together.

"'Many waters cannot quench love,'" he quoted, "'neither can the floods drown it!' It was an Oriental Jew nameb David who wrote that song, more than three thousand years ago, but he might have written it today."

Rose went to him and put her hands on his shoulders.

"Rah-rah," she said, in a hushed voice, "I don't know whether what I feel coming my way is the real thing or not. I rather guess it isn't. But I know if he talks to me anything like that, I'm a gone gosling!"

He smoothed the burnished ripples of her hair.

"If he does," he answered——"O, hell! Wrenn, what is it now?"

The butler advanced his ceremonial three steps into the room.

"Sir Horace Demetriardi, with Mr. Van Hogue and—and a Japanese gentleman, to see you, by appointment, sir. I have shown them into the green drawing room."

Roselius groaned like a vicious she-camel under the knout.

"That's it!" he snarled. "That's the way it goes half the day, doing things I don't want to do and seeing people I don't want to see! This is a holiday. What did you let 'em in for, Wrenn? Why didn't you ask me if I still wanted to see 'em?"

Wrenn made no reply. His gaze, that ordinarily (metaphorically speaking) would have shrugged its shoulders, had fallen to his master's feet. A look of horror was in his eyes.

"Well," snapped Roselius, "what the devil are you goggling at?"

Wrenn gulped. "Your—your boots, sir."

"Boots? Do you think I'm a cowpuncher? I never wear boots."

"I should say your shoes, sir. Let me fetch you them, sir."

His master surveyed his slippers, that were the hue of the scarlet tanager. "What's the matter with these?"

"If I might suggest, sir, they seem hardly appropriate to receive callers, sir."

Roselius looked at Rose with the prankish, contrary look she knew so well, questioning, mischievous, provocative.

"They're simply lovely, Rah-rah!"

"Ha!" he snorted ferociously. "That's all you know about it, Wrenn! Boots, by God!"

He opened the door and stalked down the corridor.

THE room in which the callers sat was hung in parrot green, its curtains and loose covers of chints in terre verte patterned in fruit baskets. Its painted wrought iron consoles were garlanded in coral lilies and anemones. A pleasant sunny room with windows facing three ways.

Roselius came in briskly, his loose red slippers clopping up and down, his voluminous waistcoat open, his tie flapping under his big, resolute chin, hand extended, with a smile.

"Sir Horace"—he had picked him correctly. "Saw your name in the passenger list in the paper. Hope you had a good voyage."

Sir Horace presented the others—Jonkeer Marten Van Hogue, tall even for a Hollander, with close-clipped shoebrush mustache and white hair en brosse, and Nakagawa, small, elegant and precise, with the suave half-smile of his race fixed on his lips, spare black beard groomed to a careful point, and narrow, secret-keeping eyes. And presently they were in scoop-seated chairs about a marqueterie table and the air was a perfumed haze from cigars.

"Mr. Roselius," said Demetriardi, "You possibly know the particular interests we three have the honor to represent. If our confidential information is correct, it seems likely that you will have guessed our purpose in asking this interview."

He had spoken almost lightly, but Sir Horace was not too much at his ease. The report that had sent him on his hasty voyage had come first, by heaven knew what devious route, to Van Hogue, who had cabled him, and Nakagawa, the New York end of the Nagasaki house, had been the obvious third of the trinity.

In the pause he made, Demetriardi's eyes slanted toward his host, but Roselius, head tilted back, was blowing smoke rings at the ceiling.

"It has reached us," Sir Horace continued, "that you have recently been engaged in researches that may cross the paths of our activities. In fact, we are assured that you have produced that thing so ardently sought, the synthetic pearl. The pearl trade is our field. We have come to ask if the report is true."

Roselius stopped blowing smoke rings.

"Yes," he said, "it's true."

He shot out the words like little javelins, with a sudden air that was comically reminiscent of the derisive "Ya-a-a!" of the boy with the apples in his pocket who has attained the safe side of the fence in advance of the outraged orchardist.

His auditors stirred. Sir Horace started the merest trifle. Van Hogue's hands clinched and the mask of non-feeling on the smooth Japanese face stretched and crinkled.

"I can make 'em," added Roselius in a voice that was a rumbling purr of self-satisfaction. "Of course, it's been only for my own pleasure—we scientists must have our hobbies, you know. With some men it's orchids; others go tarpon fishing. I play a game with electrons. Here was a study of molecular adjustment and light refraction—what the dealer calls luster. The base of the pearl is a simple matter; any analytical chemist can make you that to a T. But the outer envelope—that's the rub! What gives the skin of your true oriental pearl its marvelous irridescence? What's the humble bivalve's secret? Mere excretion of slime! No. It's more than that."

He rose and crossed the room to an Italian cabinet, jerked out a drawer and rummaged in its odds and ends.

"Here are some I made," he said, taking out a soiled yellow envelope. "Want to see 'em?"

"If you please," said Demetriardi. He was holding himself hard, his black eyes boring like gimlets into the smudged container. Roselius pinched open its end and shook a half dozen glistening pellets on to the table.

Sir Horace drew an audible breath—there was infinite relief in it—and the expressionless smile came back on the face of the Japanese. Van Hogue picked one up and squinted at it in his broad palm. "Very good," he said. "I should say it compares with the best imitation."

Roselius spread out his hands, a deprecating gesture. "Disappointing, of course. They lack the true patina. What I was working for was a luster like this."

He produced from his waistcoat pocket a small metal box, unscrewed its top and took out a wad of cotton. He unfolded this and set on the table a single pearl as large as a child's marble "alley," a splendid, perfect sphere, with a creamy translucence that imprisoned a glamour of color as faint as the aurora of a remembered dream.

Sir Horace leaned forward and bent over it.

"Ah, yes," he said. "How different, after all, the real thing is! That's as fine as any I've seen. Looks like a Godolphin. If it isn't indiscreet, might I ask what it stood you in?"

"I'm curious to have an unbiased estimate," returned Roselius.

Sir Horace took from his breast pocket a magnifying glass, clamped it into his eye and examined the pearl narrowly. He picked it up, weighed it in his hand, and touched it to his teeth.

"Not the smallest flaw," he said. "As near perfect as a pearl can be. If you paid three thousand pounds for it you had it thrown at you."

"It could be duplicated," said Roselius, "for about three and one-half cents."

Sir Horace's jaw dropped and Van Hogue smothered an exclamation. "You mean you made this—this?"

Roselius nodded.

"Quite recently. Only one man knew that I had finally succeeded—a confidential assistant. I distrusted him. It was drink that was to blame. Glad this happened, d'ye see—your coming, I mean—for now I know I wasn't unjust to the poor devil. He peached."

Demetriardi had gone quite white. He bent over the pearl again, fixing his glass with shaking fingers. When he spoke, his voice was hoarse.

"The X-ray—it shows nothing?"

"No."

"Is no test conclusive?"

"Yes," said Roselius. "One test and only one will demonstrate absolutely whether a pearl is a true sea pearl or my synthetic and manufactured one. The true pearl melts at forty degrees lower temperature. Unfortunately, the test would be costly if the pearl happened to be a true one."

Sir Horace handed his glass to Van Hogue and sat down. Almost, in that moment, he lost self-control in the wave of impotent rage that swept him. His huge interests, millions on millions of investments! And these stood to be made worthless in an hour by this tawny bearded dancing dervish of a man, this incredible savant-clown, with the Latin Quarter necktie and the atrocious red slippers!

But the blind anger ebbed. He became suddenly very cool. His mind was working again swiftly — cunningly. It meant only one thing — they must buy out or be lost.

Before the ardor of that kiss her last scruples had fled.

The Story of Honour McMinn, Whose Drab Existence in the City Was Brought to a Sudden End by a Determined and Humorous Aunt

THE major advantage of a north exposure is that the half pint bottle of cream, renewed every other morning, enjoys its lease of usefulness, cooling upon the window sill, well into May. After that, a minimum of refrigeration is imperative for the kitchenette behind the gingham curtain. This carefully calculated amount is based, mainly, on what Ice is willing to carry up five flights of stairs. Early in her New York career Miss McMinn learned that, while the spirit of Ice could brook this exercise for fifteen cents per climb, it flagged, and flatly declined to soar, for ten cents. The summer months, therefore, were sorrowfully budgeted to include an additional fifteen cents every other day.

This may seem frugal finance to an age accustomed to calculate in nothing short of billions. It is true, however, that Honour McMinn, one of the six millions who teem in greater Manhattan, did her share of teeming by the aid of these and other careful devices, lopping off fifteen cents here, or thirteen there, and so bringing the total outgo of her metropolitan venture safely within its monthly income. By safely, Miss McMinn meant more than her New York bank required her to keep in reserve. She had made a vow with that inner self, of whose existence no one else in the world was aware, to lay by, as well, a fixed sum each month, for emergencies.

By emergencies she meant, among other things, the event which she felt reasonably sure might find itself in the public print almost any day under some such heading as, "Hit and Run Motorist Leaves Woman Thirty-eight Unconscious."

When she first became a tenant of the Van der Donck mansion she saw the heading as "Woman Twenty-eight." Her inner self stuck to "Twenty-eight" long after her candid outer eye suggested a change.

These vital statistics did not, however, affect the nest egg which she continued to lay by; and which she budgeted, along with insurance, life and accident, at the beginning of each fiscal year.

Emergencies included, also, railroad fare for the sudden trip to Agatha which she might, in the course of nature, expect to make. Confusion will be avoided here if it be understood that Agatha does not appear on any map of the United States. There are several possible Agathas, in at least six or eight western states, any one of which may serve as the prototype of Honour McMinn's home town. Whatever far western Agatha, even beyond the remote purlieus of Buffalo or Cincinnati, may leap to the metropolitan mind, that will serve as the point toward which Honour McMinn's expectations continued to hark back.

It was in Agatha, on a sunny June morning, as she and her Aunt Delight walked home from commencement together, that a remarkable conversation took place. It was the fifth commencement from which they had walked home since the day when they had not walked home from her own. She was twenty-two, on that earlier day, and had walked home with the new English professor. He was a blonde, newly come from a great eastern university. Honour had taken Romanticism with him. Romanticism was a course. Courses may be taken without their spirit suffusing the spirit of the taker. Prof. Bartlett's course, however, in the case of Honour McMinn, was more than a course in name only. Something beyond tales of wonder and terror, or Germanic influences, passed across his desk to the spirit of Honour McMinn, the exceptionally promising senior in seat thirty-two, row seven.

As they walked home together from commencement, he was as pale as she was rosy. He lingered at her door. Eloquence looked from his eyes into hers. And yet he dropped her hand and went away. Honour McMinn went upstairs, threw herself down on her neat bed, regardless of the harm to her white commencement dress, and wept, bitterly.

The fact was that Prof. Bartlett was hideously poor. He was one of those brilliant and undernourished young men to whom the college president refers at each commencement when he states to an approving public that "eighteen per cent of the graduates of the present senior class have either wholly or in part supported themselves throughout their collegiate course."

These young men, as he does not go on to state, are then so depleted in pocket that a source of income is a shrieking necessity. The ones who understand kilowatts or atomic weights can usually sink rather fast to low browed affluence in industry. For an exceptional young man, full of language and of facts about literature, an idealistic professorship usually offers. Such a professorship, at the small, privately endowed college of Agatha, served Prof. Bartlett's turn. To Agatha, therefore, with some debts remaining from his undergraduate struggle, and with two venerable and now dependent parents, he thankfully turned.

He was sure of two thousand dollars a year. It looked like a fortune. It did, in fact, serve to keep going himself and his dependents in a degree of security which they had not known for many years. There was no question, however, of a family of four. Marriage, for Prof. Bartlett, was a remote dream.

The dream might rosily, nay, agonizingly, invite. But he was a gentleman. He dropped her pulsing fingers, and Honour McMinn fled upstairs to weep.

Five commencements later her Aunt Delight said, as they walked home together, "Honour, why don't you strike out for yourself? There's nothing for a girl in Agatha."

Honour looked at her aunt, a wild hope in her eyes. At this particular commencement Prof. Bartlett had been so busy with the academic procession that he had not even looked her way. She had spent the five years since her own commencement teaching mathematics in the Agatha High school. Occasional boys from her undergraduate era drifted momentarily back into town, looked her up, took her to the current movie, and floated out again to sea, beyond her horizon. Boys do not settle down in Agatha. Occasionally Prof. Bartlett, who was nothing if not settled, took her to an evening lecture, or to one of the rare concerts given by artists willing or compelled to subject themselves to one night stands in the sticks. The alumnae of her sorority got together at monthly intervals. It all passed for what might be called a life. Honour McMinn had known from the beginning that it was a slow but inexorable submergence.

Prof. Bartlett was obliged, by this time, to employ a woman to care for his house and look after his old people. His services to the college had in the last five years been recognized by an increase of four hundred dollars in his salary, and an advance in rank. It was considered a meteoric rise, and he was the youngest associate professor in the faculty. But one step remained to a full professorship, bringing a minimum of three thousand a year. The slip, however, between this brimming cup and Prof. Bartlett's lip was the requirement, rigid in Agatha, that a full professor must possess a Ph.D. That meant two years of graduate work somewhere. It was not the policy of Agatha college to finance any such junketings on the part of its staff. The minimum of three thousand a year might beckon, but the chasm between Prof. Bartlett and its roseate invitation was both deep and wide.

As her niece looked at her with large eyes, Aunt Delight continued: "I'm hale and hearty, I've got my friends, and I've money enough. It looks to me like you ought to light out of this town while you're young enough to get some good of it."

"Of course," she went on, after they were inside the house, "if that school board had any sense you and Prof. Bartlett could get married. But as soon as you got married they'd fire you. So there you are."

Honour turned very red.

"Prof. Bartlett has never said one word about getting married," she said, bravely. Her aunt snorted.

"He don't need to say. It's written all over him whenever you come in sight. But you can't wait around in Agatha forever. If I was you, I'd strike out. I could always send for you if there was any need."

It was this last suggestion that made Honour McMinn keep ready in her checking account the amount of her fare out to Agatha. Aunt Delight continued, however, to be hale and hearty. By the time Miss McMinn's inner self agreed that the headline should read "Woman Thirty-eight" instead of "Woman Twenty-eight," Aunt Delight was still more free from ills of the flesh than most women twenty years her junior. Her weekly letters gave a pleasant picture of daily life. She went to the Ladies' Aid, she sided with the minister in the church fight, she served two years on the town council, she was treasurer of the Woman's club, she gave a tea for the new president's wife, she entertained the bridge club. She helped take care of Professor Bartlett's mother in her last painful illness. She went three times a week, now, and read to the father, blind and bedridden and pitifully alone.

"Professor Bartlett," she wrote, "is that thin, he looks like you could pull him through a knothole. He certainly does set a store by your letters."

This letter, like all of Aunt Delight's letters, slipped under Miss McMinn's door just as she took the coffee from her two burner gas plate and the cream bottle from her window sill. A blue and white Chinese cloth was on the breakfast table by her fifth story window. There was an electric toaster by the sugar bowl, giving out pleasant odors of browning whole wheat bread. A dish of well cooked prunes added calories and vitamines to the sum total of her balanced breakfast.

Miss McMinn got the morning paper and the letter, sat down again, took a preparatory sip of coffee, and read.

A becoming flush suffused her face at the news about Prof. Bartlett. Miss McMinn's face was not uncomely. Located in seat thirty-two, row seven, and viewed from a professor's desk, it may have possessed its charm. Even on the New York streets, at thirty-eight, it was a face at which a harassed and hurrying soul sometimes looked twice. In that throng of anxious, blasé, or merely excited or self-centered faces, it remained a face expressive of good humor, kindliness, and health. It had never been a face that would launch a thousand ships, or for which men had been moved to commit crimes. Yet, such as it was, it was that metropolitan rarity, a face capable of blushing a becoming blush.

SHE reread Aunt Delight's letter, and, with her second cup of coffee, was ready for the morning paper. The smile, and the color evoked by the allusion to Prof. Bartlett, lingered as she scanned the news.

She was attentive to the columns about foreign finance, important scientific discoveries, and plans for the further expansion of Greater Manhattan. She read with care notes on drama and music. She scrutinized each page for any possible mention of the home town. Only once in ten years had Agatha leaped to front page significance, by the capture, in the Bon Ton Merchandising emporium, of a much sought eastern bandit, detected by the floor walker in the act of passing a counterfeit twenty dollar bill. Despite the meagerness of her crumbs from the home table, her search never failed. When it was complete she spent the time remaining to her before office hours upon two features of absorbing interest. She mastered the recorded comings and goings of New York's smartest smart ones during the last twenty-four hours. Fully primed concerning society, she then gave her last three minutes to beauty hints.

No beauty hint for ten years had escaped her. She knew about, and, indeed, owned, a large number of bland, astringent, and cleansing creams, and the technique of rubbing in vs. patting on. She knew how prima donnas and European nobility averted the sagging of facial muscles and just what exercises and protruding of the chin might be expected to keep the line of the neck firm and youthful. She bought, regularly, the soaps of which prominent women gladly wrote, out of their desire that sister women might share their personal secret of charm.

On this morning the insidious chemistry of Aunt Delight's allusion fermented throughout all phases of the morning ritual. By the time her mind apprehended that ice should still be rubbed over the face after it had been vigorously dashed with hot water, and that New York society expected to open its social season, as always, with the first night of grand opera, a decision had resulted as the precipitation of these contributing forces. Outwardly the same neat, quiet, pleasantly sensible figure that always descended her five flights of stairs, she emerged into the nine o'clock crispness of the late October morning inwardly a new woman. Not since that day, over ten years before, when she had turned her back on Agatha had Honour McMinn so defied all those prudent inhibitions which were hers by hereditary right and environmental practice. Her inner self had, without argument or discussion, boiled to the surface.

She walked rapidly along by the iron picket fence around her little park, enjoying the flutter of autumn leaf and color of the bright coated, favored children playing within its boundaries. She went half a square out of her way to pass number eighty, whose tight lipped windows and boarded doorway she gazed with pleasurable excitement. Number eighty's brown stone front and marble steps belonged to the Willy Westons, those interesting children of the gold spoon intelligentsia who lived in this old quarter and made themselves a center of intellectual friction. The morning paper had told her that the Willy Westons, whose domestic fortunes had seemed to be somewhat on the rocks, had become reconciled. She was returning, this week, from Paris, and he from Alaska. Both would occupy their box in the golden horseshoe next Monday night.

Even as Miss McMinn walked briskly by, workmen were arriving to take down the boards from the doorway, and unseal the tight lipped windows. She looked upon their activities with a brightly conspiring eye. Thanks to her breakfast chemistry, she felt herself to be a part of these goings on. The Willy Westons, occupying their box on next Monday night, might be unaware of it, but she knew that in a good seven dollar seat, in range of their reconciled figures, would sit an appropriately gowned and coiffured New York woman, thirty-eight, but certainly not unconscious. Her ears would be attuned to the harmonies of the stage, and her eyes would possess a keenness which no detail of domestic harmony could escape.

Her Saturday morning duties in the business office of the All-American Woolen Trades Journal were performed in her customary desiccated manner. She sent out bills for overdue subscriptions, and advertisements of a new All-American line of plaids, originating on the backs of American born sheep, and progressing by successive patriotic stages to the hands of All-American wholesalers and retailers. She made out pay checks, gave good but unwelcome advice to the bleached stenographer, and reached one o'clock without varying from her usual reliable and intelligent behavior.

At one she became a drop in the Niagara of human beings that poured out of her downtown skyscraper. There are drops that drop and drops that effervesce. Miss McMinn buoyantly bounded on the surface of her Niagara, permitting other drops to sink into their appropriate subways, while she headed toward those quiet cross streets along upper Fifth avenue where beauty may be had by all who speak the password. In her neat brown handbag she could hear the password, uttered by the voice of money, talking, as always, with golden persuasiveness. She had drawn out on the way to the office a sum so eloquent that Beauty, she was confident, would lie submissive in her hand before the afternoon was over.

She lunched expensively at Etienne's and feasted her eye as well as her digestion upon the food provided by his smart clientele and famous cuisine. Then with the golden voice still warbling within her handbag she set out upon her quest of Beauty.

The voice warbled in other hands by sundown, hands expert in effecting such exchange. It was an afternoon of happiness and full reward. Not in vain for ten years had Honour McMinn, breakfasting by her fifth story window, studied the riddle of What to Wear and How to Wear It. The same intelligence that had made her face vivid in seat thirty-two, row seven, had incubated long ago the ideas provided by style shows, Beauty Hints, and shop windows. The adequate and not unpleasing exterior visible to the world for this long decade burst its cocoon on this fateful Saturday, and Honour McMinn's inner self knew as she gave her address to one courteous saleswoman after another that Beauty of the sort appropriate to thirty-eight would be hers when the opening strains of "Aïda" fell upon her ears and the ears of the Willy Westons in their box in the golden horseshoe.

THE brown handbag lay flat upon her bureau that night. Not a whisper came from it, save the lonely whisper of her seven dollar ticket for the opening night. Miss McMinn had even walked home because there was not in its depths the necessary dime for bus fare along the avenue. Happiness sustained her feet along the way, however, and carried them up her five flights of stairs. Happiness flavored the soft boiled egg on which she dined, and lent a champagne quality to the cup of hot milk with which she washed down her evening buttered toast. As she dined, happiness stood about her in boxes. True to their given word, the courteous saleswomen had sent everything special. Until nine o'clock breathless boys kept staggering up the five flights, each boy leaving a box, mysteriously whispering of happiness, present and to come.

By midnight happiness had enveloped her. She had seen herself in everything. Her ankles, clad in pale gold silk, were slender. Her foot, in its brown suede shoe, with its glittering buckle, was a neat foot, suddenly glorified. Silk lay next her whole body. Its outer sheath was quiet in color and subtle in line. Her cloak was soberly magnificent.

"No one," she told herself, proudly, "will look at me twice."

What she meant was that, in the first night crowd, decked in its finest, she would not be an alien. She looked at her image and approved without reserve. The brocaded velvet evening cloak was better than metal cloth, less conspicuous, infinitely more to the manner born.

"It's wonderful," she said to herself, happily, in bed, lights out, creams emollient and astringent rubbed on and off again.

"It's wonderful, just for once, to have one grand splurge!"

The wonder of it winged her pen the next morning. For ten years it had been her habit to send her Aunt Delight a weekly chronicle of metropolitan events. Honour McMinn was rectitude itself, made mortal and employed, valuably, in the business office of the All-American Woolen Trade Journal. She would not willingly have deceived a sparrow. Although, on second thought, a sparrow being a sophisticated kind of bird, perhaps it would be better to say that Honour McMinn would not willingly have deceived a human soul, least of all her Aunt Delight in Agatha. Yet there had been, from the beginning, a certain something in her weekly letters that demands yet is difficult of explanation. Reading them, Aunt Delight must have known that they were written by her niece's window in the beautiful old Van der Donck mansion. Like so many of the fine old New York houses, this one had been made over into apartments. The Van der Doncks, about whose name clung so much of the aroma of New York history and romance, had passed long ago from this quiet and charming square, which their mansion had graced for a full half century. The surf of skyscrapers rose high about it. The Van der Donck mansion, with its fine old fellows, stood around their sunny block like palms about an island of peace, about which foamed the storm ridden fury of the great ocean of progress. Honour McMinn's letters must have given a sense of the square, its trees and grass and flowers, its happy children attended by their trim nursemaids, its well chaperoned small dogs, promenading in the sun, its interesting clubs, and what she regarded as its smart intelligentsia. The Willy Westons, for example, and their group of painters, musicians, novelists and players, must have gone in and out of their imposing doorway before Aunt Delight's very eyes.

The Van der Donck mansion must have visualized itself to her, with the fine old mahogany handrail of its stairs, the parquetry of its floor, its high ceilinged great rooms, its deep fireplaces and carved woods. These things Aunt Delight undoubtedly gleaned from Honour McMinn's letters. They were delightful letters, full of color, life, and charm.

WHAT Aunt Delight could not have gleaned, at least without especial psychic facilities for gleaning was the fact that the window by which the letters often admitted that her niece was sitting as she wrote faced not upon the shining little park, all green with trees and bright with flowers, nor upon the famous Number Eighty, up and down whose marble steps flitted the Willy Westons, but upon the L, the delicatessen, the Ladies and Gents' Fine Tailoring shop, the news stand, and that drab group of smoke grimed tenements that hung upon the fringes of this famous old island of peace and dignity. The window, in fact, by which the letters were written was a back window. Sitting by it Miss McMinn faced her second window, the one that secured her room that thing common in Agatha, but hard to secure in New York, a cross draft. This second window had looked for ten years into the blank wall of a fifteen story apartment house. Of this apartment house Aunt Delight could have learned nothing from the letters, nor of the fact that the cross draft was merely a draft that might have been were the windows open. The showers of soot from the apartment chimneys that entered her niece's room when the cross draft functioned were not, by anything the letters ever said, made visible to the eye of Aunt Delight.

The world of the letters was a rosier world than the one which spread itself before the physical eye of Honour McMinn at her window. The only explanation of this is that the letters were written by her inner self, and that so far as it was concerned all that they failed to depict was nonexistent.

What they did depict, however, was fascinating. First nights of new plays, dinners at which authors spoke, receptions for famous painters, the costumes of Mrs. Willy Weston, on this and that great occasion, all these wove themselves into a glowing fabric of Honour McMinn's life in the great city. Where her actual trips to free art exhibitions left off, and the exclusive private views commenced, where her occasional modest gallery seat ceased and her regular appearance at first nights began, who shall say? How much was unintended deceit, and how much the masterly writing of great fiction? Enough, for the present narrative, that on the morning after her dress parade Honour McMinn's pen flew on inspired wings. The actual had invaded her life sufficiently to make her discussion of the week's new play and the approach of grand opera glow with unusual verisimilitude. The boxes standing about her inspired a truthful description of just how she would look in her seven dollar seat.

"My seat," she said, "is close to the box of the Willy Westons, my neighbors just across the square. They will both be back in time for the gala occasion."

Why should the letter go on to explain the well known truth that a neighbor in New York and a neighbor in Agatha differed in neighborliness as one star differeth from another in glory? Would it be Honour McMinn's fault if Aunt Delight went ahead and imagined interchanges of crab apple jelly, or neighborly walking side by side in the park in the evening? Decidedly, she could not be her aunt's keeper in the understanding of the English language.

The week went by, devoted to her usual routines, down at what Aunt Delight always referred to as My Niece's Magazine. The discrepancy there, again, rests on Aunt Delight's own shoulders. Some early letter had, of course, said it was the All-American Wool Trade Magazine, and that Honour was in the business office. It was no fault of her niece if Aunt Delight thereupon identified her with New York's literary elect, and had even, in the decade, built up the belief that because of her connection with this New York magazine her niece got two free tickets to everything in town.

On Saturday afternoon she had a water wave, which accentuated the pleasant tendency of her hair to curl. On Saturday night she slept in a hair net, to give the thing a good set. The next morning a knock at her door disturbed the pouring of her morning coffee.

A Western Union boy handed to the cold fingers of Honour McMinn his yellow envelope. She signed, and heard him running down the first of the five flights before she closed her door. As she tore open the envelope, she knew that the long awaited emergency had arrived. She read the fateful message.

"Aunt Delight gravely injured motor accident urge come at once. Grantland Bartlett."

Ten words.

She was prepared for the telegram, in a way. Even the splendid extravagance of yesterday had not destroyed the nest egg laid by for this moment. Yet who is ever quite prepared for the ten important words when Fate actually speaks them?

Her first thought after she finished blushing over the implied intimacy of the word Grantland was, "I can give my ticket to that bleached stenographer. She'll look ridiculous in that seat."

SUCH was her efficiency that two o'clock the next afternoon saw her, with all packing done, complete arrangements made at the offices of the All-American Woolen Trade Journal for an indefinite absence, her first night seat given to the bleached stenographer, her ticket to Agatha stowed in her brown hand bag, and herself in her Pullman speeding westward. At the hour when the opening strains of "Aïda" reached the ears of the Willy Westons, Honor McMinn was climbing soberly into upper ten, withdrawing her neat ankle from the top of the stepladder, and thinking as she did so that in all probability she would never see it again in a pale gold silk stocking.

She had put Happiness into her trunk after some debate. Would Agatha ever offer her any opportunity for the velvet dress and the brocade evening coat? Then she remembered that Aunt Delight would love it. How badly were people hurt when gravely injured?

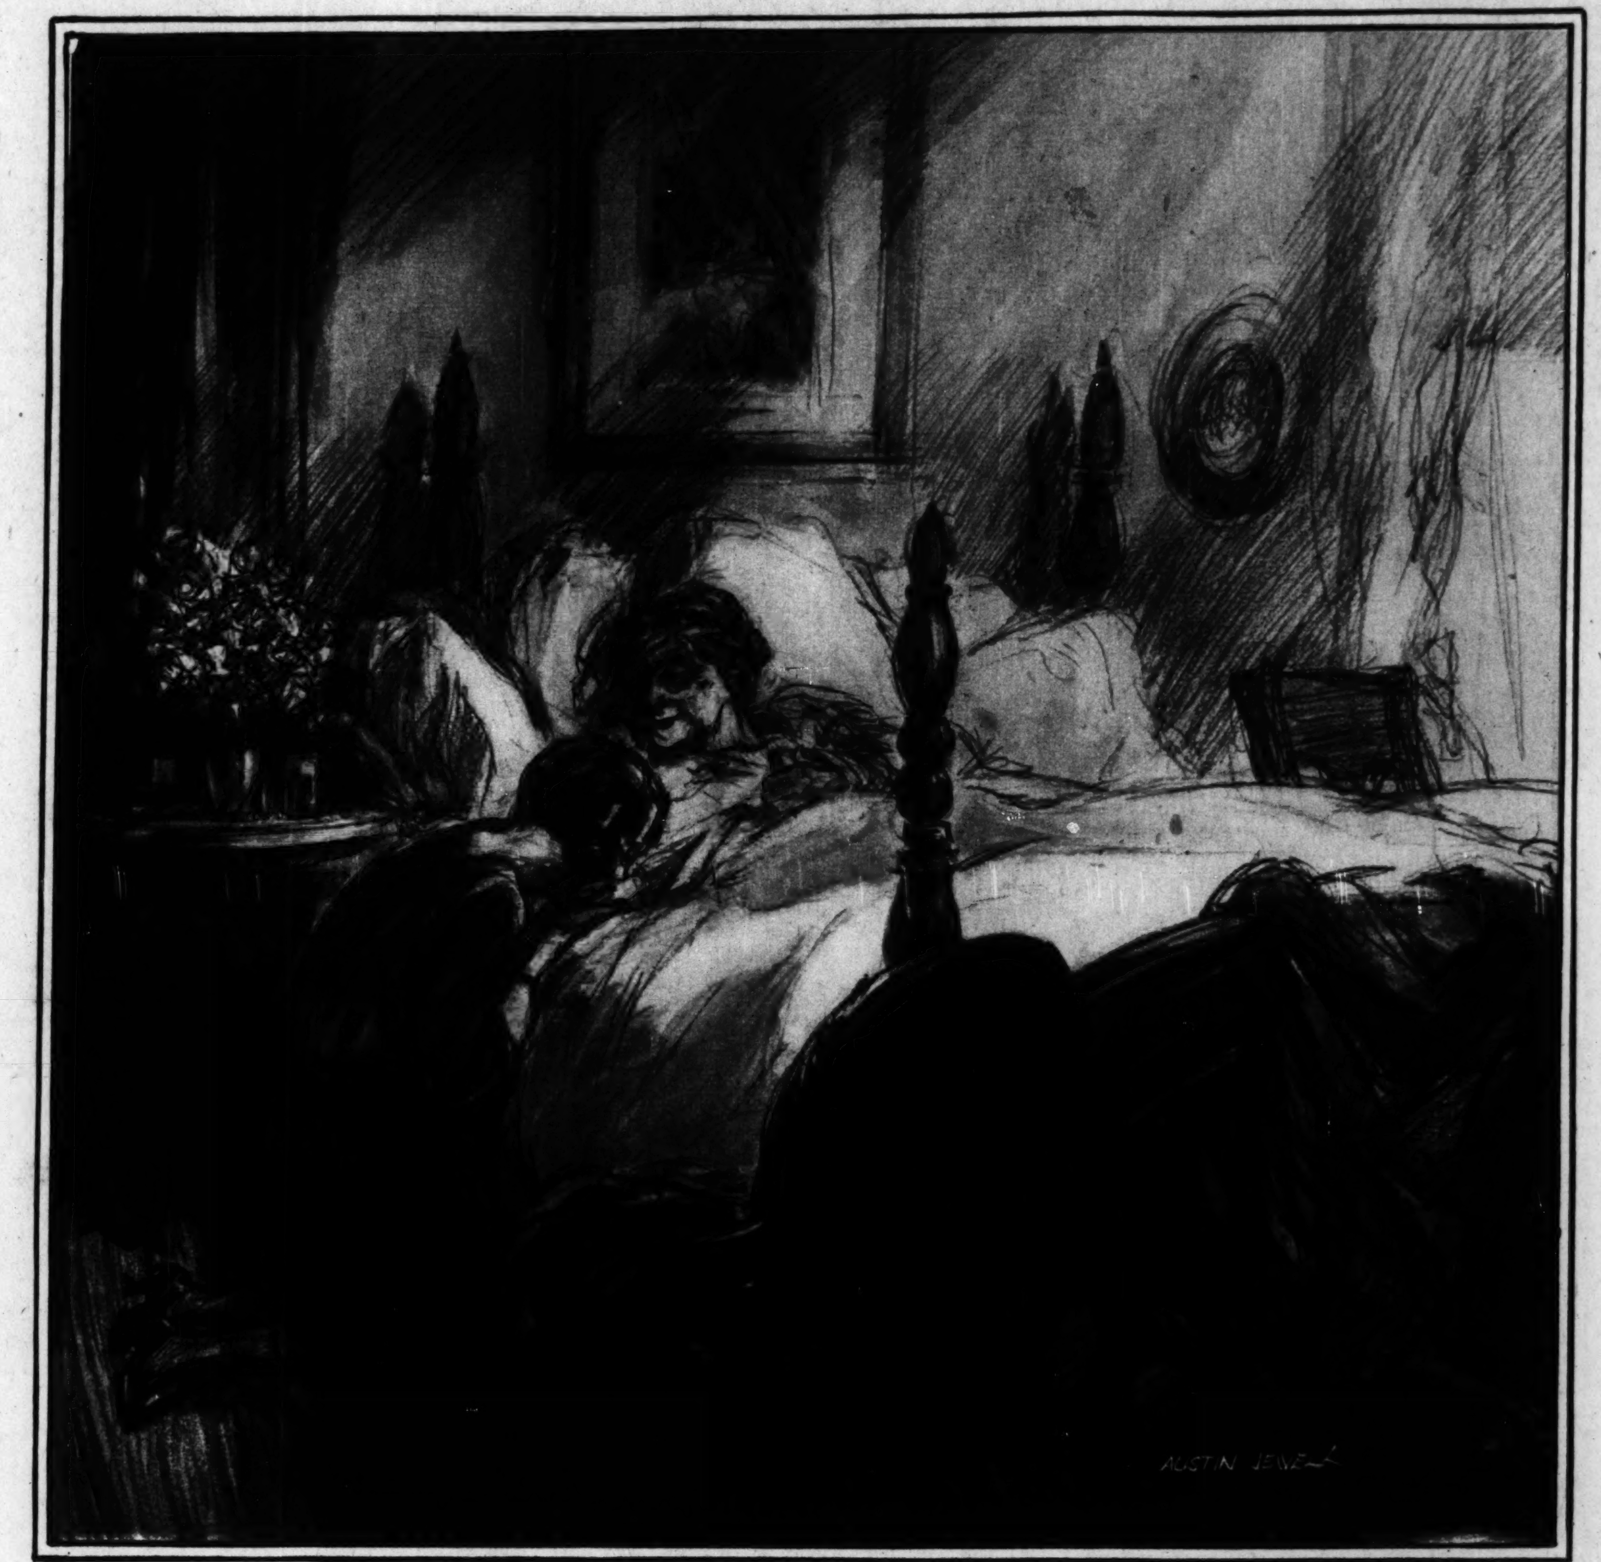
Gravely, she reflected, as she lay in upper ten, was a characteristic word. No one but Grantland Bartlett would have used it in a telegram. Grantland! As she found herself thinking it, her cheeks burned, becomingly, in the darkness of her berth.

A day and a night beyond Chicago lay Agatha.

It was Grantland Bartlett's face that she saw waiting for her in the early morning sunshine outside the new station. For all the excitement of seeing that the station was new, she saw all too clearly that he was too thin, too pale, and that his neat suit had seen more than one season. His smile, as his outstretched hand helped her down from the platform of the Overland, was as she remembered it, as she sat in seat thirty-two, row seven.

"Aunt Delight?" she asked him.

"Making a remarkable recovery! An indomitable, an amazing woman."



She was all Honour could have wished as her niece wept out her happy story.

He was getting her into a little car as he described the accident. Aunt Delight had skidded, as she rounded the corner by the postoffice. Her car collided with a telegraph pole. She had gone through the windshield. Her first words, on regaining consciousness, had been, "Send for Honour!"

After all, her injuries had been less grave than was at first feared. There was a broken wrist, a badly sprained ankle, some lacerations about the head, that bled profusely but turned out to be fairly superficial. There was shock and weakness. And almost every hour of the day there was the wish that Honour would come.

HE left her at the familiar doorstep, and she heard his little car making extraordinary reports of progress as it disappeared up the street. Up in the serene expanses of her old four poster she found Aunt Delight, looking like a rosy Turk in her head bandages.

"Turn around and let me see your back," she commanded as her niece entered. "Is that where they have the fullness, now, in New York? You never said if you cut your hair or not. My opinion is it's going out."

Honour kissed her venerable relative.

"Darling!" she said, her voice a little tremulous, and her eyes wet. Suddenly it seemed to her that she had been away a long time, that Agatha was a sweet, green, shady town, and that Aunt Delight's quiet bedroom was heaven.

"Tell me, really, how you are."

"I'm all right," said Aunt Delight in a surprisingly hearty voice. "First time I'd tried to drive the thing alone. I took a car full of neighbors out to Professor Bartlett's father's funeral. He was eighty-nine, and hadn't seen a thing for five years, poor soul! Fortunately, I'd got everybody home. Nobody hurt but me. And I'd insured it for all kinds of accidents. I'm glad your skirts are short. No use in getting old before your time. Nobody does these days. I'm young, myself, as I ever was."

The one eye not obscured by bandages verified by its brightness all that she had said.

"I've got Professor Bartlett's housekeeper, now. He don't have much need of her, except for meals, and he's coming over here for dinners."

Honour McMinn, sitting by her injured aunt's bedside, blushed a becoming blush. A picture had formed itself before her eyes of herself at Aunt Delight's old piecrust table, facing Grantland Bartlett. There would, she foresaw, be many dinners before the venerable invalid sat with them. As she looked solicitously into her aunt's one visible eye, she knew that the accident had been deplorable. She realized again the pang that she had felt as she tore open the telegram. She knew afresh that she owed years of devotion to her aunt. And yet there bounded in her veins an irrelevant joy that she had brought along in her trunk the pale gold stockings, the brocaded velvet wrap, and the quiet but undeniably good afternoon dress of that rosy shade of gray that made her eyes so blue. The dress had been a mere incident in her career on that memorable Saturday afternoon, two weeks ago.

"As soon as your trunk comes," said Aunt Delight, "I want you should show me all your New York clothes. I'm having the Ladies' Aid on Tuesday. You'll have to put them all on. We're studying Women of the Harems, but since I'm sick, and they're meeting in my bedroom and all, I guess it'll be all right."

By these insidious and indescribable degrees did the net of deception close more tightly about Honour McMinn. As hour succeeded hour, and day followed day, it became more impossible to give the drab facts of her New York existence in their realistic drabness. Her traveling suit, carefully bought at a time of bargains, was of an undeniably becoming cut. Her hat had just the non-provincial something about it. Tuesday afternoon buried realism forever under a glowing lava stream of legend. Her first night outfit was described by twenty hearthstones in Agatha that evening, by twenty dutiful wives, to whom life in the far west, with a good husband and three rosy little ones, appeared suddenly anything but the perfect fulfillment of a woman's longings.

Not only was she guest of honor at the next Fraternity luncheon, but she was booked for a speech before the Literary Twelve, and for a series of talks on Tendencies in Modern Drama and Art, before Professor Bartlett's seniors.

"Your letters," he told her over their third dinner table together, "have been an inspiration. Your wonderful aunt shared them with me. And my classes profited. There was something so warm and vital in the pictures you conveyed, that no amount of reading of reviews could give. My boys and girls owe you much more than they owe me."

Honour McMinn, seeing his eager face across the piecrust table, did not know what to say. In the end, she gave the series of talks, as he asked.

She wore the rosy afternoon gown to each of them. The young creatures sat about her, entranced. She was not, in their eyes, Honour McMinn, old maid niece of Mrs. Witherspoon. She was that fascinating modern, a bachelor woman, with ten years behind her of life in the inner literary circles of New York, a woman of sophistication, grace and charm, modishly attired, a woman from whose lips dropped jewels of mystery and romance.

"She paid eighty-five dollars a month for one room," the whisper went around. And her talk on modernist sculpture sank deep into their young minds.

Aunt Delight's recovery, despite her good cheer and excellent appetite, was slow. Long after the broken wrist was out of its splint, the sprained knee kept her in bed. Something proved to be the matter with her back, as well. It caught her when she tried to rise. Undue exertion, also, brought on headaches. There were, the doctor said, undoubted contusions that could not be lightly taken in one of her age.

It was, indeed, the end of a rainy March before Aunt Delight did more than, perhaps, walk about her room each day. She never dined below stairs. For four months Honour reigned as arbiter on style and literature in Agatha. For four months, she and Professor Bartlett faced each other at pleasant dinners upon the piecrust table. Then, on the evening after the March faculty tea, at which she had been special guest, and the new president's wife had shown her marked attention, she faced him, charming in her bois de rose gown, and realized that his manner was distrait. He did not look at her, as usual. He was pale. He had eaten little of the housekeeper's excellent dinner. They rose from the table, after an almost silent meal. Foreboding gripped her. This was how he had looked, long ago, on that dreadful commencement day.

Yet, when she made as if to go up to the invalid's room, he checked her.

"I must tell you something," he said.

He began, once more, with what her letters had done for him.

"Out here, in this little place," he told her, towering above her as she sat in the big chair by the fire, "I felt so isolated. There was no one to prod me, excite me, shame me, into effort. The little college library was so poor in scholarship! I was deadened with a mass of teaching. When I was not in the classroom, I was in some airless committee room, listening to men of no imagination debate some detail of no importance to exhaustion. Poverty was a ball and chain. And I had—I had anxieties."

In the pause, she could see his bleak years as he had lived them.

"Your life was so vivid, so varied, so big, significant. You poured it all out to us with such fullness! You poured life into me. I began to write. I started some critical studies in the drama, toward my thesis."

He stopped again, this time for a long while. Honour scarcely breathed.

"Well, I got something done and sent it off. I had a letter today offering me a two year fellowship if I'd come on. It will pay more than my salary here. And I dared to hope perhaps you might come with me."

Later, when she did at last go up to the invalid's room, Aunt Delight gave her one perceiving glance.

"Well!" she said. "Don't tell me he's done it at last!"

She was all Honour could have wished as her niece wept out her happy story.

"I guess," she said as they parted for the night, "I'll try to come downstairs tomorrow."

They were married on commencement day. Once her improvement really set in, Aunt Delight explained, its progress was something miraculous. By June you would not have known she had been hurt. Even the sprained knee caused no trouble, and the back never caught her at all.

"MASQUERADE"

By Struthers Burt

The delightful story of an American actress in Paris who was what her kinfolks hoped she was, even if the French couldn't believe it.

"Talk about me being old!" she said as she drove the bride and bridegroom to the station. "I'm only sixty-nine. Nothing but a girl. I've a good mind to come east in November and take you to the opera. I owe it to you, seeing I cheated you out of it last year."

Her rosy face beamed its last upon them from the platform. Certain strategies had succeeded just as she had planned them. Better. Not only did Grantland Bartlett have his fellowship, but the All-American Wool Trade Magazine had telegraphed its wish for Mrs. Bartlett's services. Even in New York, efficiency is no drug on the market. Her young folks were to be happy. And they were to be, relatively, quite rich. Aunt Delight beamed as she waved after them.

"Do you know what will mean more to me than any opera?" Grantland Bartlett asked his wife as the train rolled out of the station. "To look out of your window at the little park and the front steps of the Willy Westons."

Looking at him, she knew that the hour of her retribution had struck. How was she to tell him? Day by day she grew wan over this question. As each click of the wheels brought her nearer to New York, her panic and her despair increased. How could she have failed to foresee this? How could she confess? How show herself the sham she had been? She met his happiness with a sick heart. Each day she thought, "Today."

Then, as the hours went, she thought: "No! Tomorrow!"

By the time there were but a few hours between her and New York she had decided that the way to tell him was to take him up the five flights to the little back room, show him the window, the delicatessen, the tailor shop, the tenements, the L, picture her thrifty, commonplace daily life, strip the glamour from it all, and cast herself upon his pity.

THEY took a cab straight for the Van der Donck mansion. He wished for it as the climax of his happiness. She sat with a cold hand in his as they threaded the busy avenues eastward. Once she turned to him.

"Will you love me always?" she asked. "No matter what happens?"

Wondering at her intensity, he promised. The cab turned in at the familiar street.

"At the corner," she directed, and let him help her descend.

"Perhaps he'll never want to hold my hand again," she said to herself as he helped her from the taxi.

She waited while her husband paid the fare. And as she waited she was conscious of a change that penetrated even the blindness of her misery. The square lay beside her, sweet in the evening light. The Van der Donck mansion was gone. A huge sign reared itself instead, reading: Lightning Wrecking Company. Behind the sign a vast sound of falling bricks and rending framework gave token of those night and day activities to which New Yorkers are habituated. She read the further legend on the sign and knew as her husband turned to her that the Van der Donck mansion, forever vanished, would be replaced in fifteen months by a twenty story apartment hotel with electric refrigeration and all other distinctive marks of modern home life.

Grantland Bartlett looked as she was looking, at the sign. Then the two looked at each other.

"Gone!" he said.

"Gone!" she whispered. How should she tell him now? He saw her pallor.

"Never mind, you darling!" he laughed. "You've given it all to me with your eyes. I know it better than if I had seen it myself. And here's the dear little square. I used to walk in it with you in my dreams and take heart and live my life like a man. What if the room is gone! We can walk in the square together."

Even as he drew her hand into the curve of his arm a cataract of bricks came down the chute.

"Maybe that's the last of your room," he laughed.

Curiously enough, a half pint cream bottle careened empty and unbroken along the sidewalk at her feet. She looked at it.

"The last of it!" she said. "It's just a dream room now."

She smiled at him. Even her devouring conscience was appeased. Why invade with drab realities the sanctities of his beloved dream? Why take away a glowing vision? Why give him a woman less desirable than he had won?

"Let's walk in the park," she said. Grantland Bartlett looked first up, then down the street. Only in that quiet island in that multitudinous town could a deserted block have been found at that hour.

"Not before I kiss you," he said boldly. Before the ardor of that kiss her last scruples fled. The drab and solitary years vanished. The unseen plays, the imagined gayeties were forgotten.

"How wonderful it's going to be," she half whispered, "really to see everything——"

"With me?" he filled in the pause.

"You were with me always," she confessed. "I haven't ever told you. But that was a part of my dream."

KING'S MATE

By Rosita Forbes

INSTALLMENT VI.

"What West Wynne Won——"

ROSEMARY'S heart missed a beat. For a second she was conscious of intense cold, of sound approaching and receding, of pain gripping her in a vise. Then her common sense returned and, with it, the dominant energy of the west. "What is it? What do you mean?" she demanded, and literally shook Zarifa into coherence.

"I have it from the Spaniard's servant, so I know it is true. The Kaid rides down to the valley by the further path, on the other side of the river, and el Martengo lies in wait for him with his rifle. He will kill him like a dog, and who will know that it is not a spy, or one of the enemy's snipers?" Zarifa rolled on the floor in her grief, tearing at her hair, but Rosemary's brain worked quickly. She knew exactly what she must do. Ignoring the wild figure at her feet, she began tearing off her skirt.

"Get my riding boots," she said, kicking the prostrate Zarifa. At first her fingers were numb at the tips and she could button neither breeches nor coat, but it was only a couple of minutes after the Riffi woman's revelation that she was in the court, ramming on her hat as she went. A startled Ahmed blundered to his feet.

"Get my horse," she told him. "Quick, the Kaid is in danger; I must get to el Menebbhe."

She pushed him in the direction of the stable and, seizing Zarifa by the wrist, literally dragged her out of the gate. "I must find Heinz," she said aloud. "He will help. Be quiet, you idiot! Don't you want to help the Kaid?"

She addressed the woman, whose barracan trailed in the dust so that she stumbled over it as she tried to keep pace with her mistress.

Rosemary, who never prayed, was repeating, "God, let him be there. Don't let him be out, God! Give me at least a chance—a sporting chance! That's all I ask." But whether she was appealing to a Christian deity, or to Allah, the all merciful and all compassionate, she did not know.

She beat against Heinz's door, tearing at the wood with her nails, her breath coming in sobs after the strain of the climb, but as soon as the door opened she was calm.

"Donnerwetter!" exclaimed the little German. "Was ist it?" His English jumbled in his amazement.

Rosemary caught his arm, shook it, as she poured out Zarifa's story.

"Gott in heaven!" ejaculated Heinz, forgetting the inadequacies of the shirt, which he had been trying to pull across his chest.

Rosemary repeated the story. Would he never understand!

"The swine! The scum!" muttered Heinz, but he resisted all the girl's efforts to pull him to the door.

"Quick," she gasped. "How can you hesitate? Every moment makes it worse."

"Wait," he said, and she recognized the authority that belonged to all these men, who pitted their lives and their brains against the elemental forces around them. Picking up his pistol and a very disreputable coat, Heinz called to his servant, "Saddle the horses, get your rifle." Then, to a boy, "Run as fast as you can to el Menebbhe. Tell him I must have some men. He must give me his two policemen and mount them. Go! Run! I follow!" With a few more orders to the servant, he started for the hillside.

Rosemary would have followed, but he stopped her.

"Wait here with Zarifa," he said. "I'll deal with Menebbhe. I can manage him best alone." Then, seeing the agony which distorted her face, he added, "I won't fail. Send the horses down to me; my men will come with them."

Apparently unhurried, he trotted down the path, but that jog of his covered the ground at an astonishing pace. While he ran he thought coherently and to the point. They would have no time to get around the top of the dam, but there was a ford lower down. They must cross it before the dam burst. He knew the general plan, but not the exact timing. Two things occurred to him. If the flood cut them off Westwyn was done for. There would be no way to get a message across that torrent. On the other hand, they might get caught in it themselves. The ford would not be easy to find and the moon rose late. He swore violently. They'd damn well got to get across in time!

Menebbhe met him on the threshold.

"Allah keep us, what has happened?" In few words, and with admirable lucidity, Heinz told him. The old man's face congested. "Wallahi! that man shall die!" he said. "I swear it by the head of my son."

But he wasted no further time. With a glance at the sun, he opined that they might just make the crossing. "You must ride fast," he said. "Don't spare the horses. Let Abdullah guide you. He knows the way like an eagle its nest. Allah hasten your steps!"

He hurried his retainers into their saddles, promising them rewards, spiritual and earthly, if they arrived in time, but the men needed no spur. The Kaid was the object of their superstitious reverence and his life was in danger.

"We have a chance," thought Heinz. "Martengo will wait as near the plain as possible to make it look the more like a stray bullet from the enemy."

"Don't let the Spaniard return alive," were Menebbhe's last words as he pushed his best rifle into Heinz's hands.

As the party spurred out of the headman's yard they met a youth leading the German's hastily saddled pony. Behind him were several figures muffled in stained djellabas, and it was not till they were a mile from the village that Heinz realized Rosemary was among them. Wrapped in a borrowed mantle, the dark camel's hair hood over her face, she was astride her own horse, cool and determined, now that the strain of waiting was over. The few minutes in Heinz's house had been eternity. She had helped bit a horse, remembered to strap on the pistol holsters, dragged a djellaba from its hook by the German's bed, and cut short Zarifa's involved lamentations. In a few words she had explained matters to the hastily summoned guard and, when Ahmed brought her mare, she swung into the saddle, oblivious of protest and surprise.

Heinz did not stop their headlong downward pace. "You must go back," he said, his eyes between his pony's ears. "This is madness! The track's impossible. It'll take us all we know to get over it ourselves. If we have to look out for you we'll never make it."

He had a vision of the flood sweeping rocks and trees in its rush. Perhaps the whole lot of them would go down in it.

"You can't come," he repeated. "If you want to help your husband, go back now. Don't hinder us."

"Hinder!" exclaimed Rosemary. "All my life I've ridden. Do you think I can't stand a few hours of this? You're mad if you imagine you can send me back. I'm coming if I have to go on my feet. I'm a lighter weight than any of you, and I'll see you all out!" She hardly knew what she said, but her intentions were quite clear.

Heinz argued no further. Reflectively, he measured the strength of his band. No, he could not spare two men to take the girl back, and he could not make her go, except by force. The little German was silent. He never wasted energy unnecessarily. That was the secret of his force.

The river bed was in a deep gully and the path, which was little more than a goat track, dropped by spirals into thickets of oleanders and trailing thorns. The mountain ponies picked their way like cats among the rocks, but at times ill fitting native saddlery slipped over their withers and necessitated agonized halts for readjustment.

WHEN, for the third time, Heinz found himself draped around the neck of his beast, he slipped off, flung the rein over the animal's head, and plodded down on foot. The Riffs followed suit. Only Rosemary clung to the saddle, because by this time she was too cramped to move. Her thighs and the muscles behind her ankles were stiff with the incessant strain of leaning back, as her mare jerked downward, with mulelike solidity of her forelegs. Their progress was silent except for the cascades of loosened stones. Each man had an eye on the sun, which dropped relentlessly behind the western range.

Heinz alone realized a greater danger than darkness. As they clattered around the last bends into the ravine his ears were alert to catch the roar of waters released. The short African twilight fell over them. The bushes were ghostly gray and the boulders fantastic as crouching animals. Though it was cool, sweat broke out on Heinz's forehead. They must get through before it was dark, and now they were below flood level, shut in between the cliffs. In an hour, in a few minutes, heaven alone knew when, this path would be gone, the whole place lost in a hurtling mass of water. He measured the overgrown banks looming cavernous in the twilight and wondered how far up the torrent would reach.

With a smothered exclamation he flung himself back into the saddle. "Come along. We must get on a bit." Clinging with knee and calf, he literally lifted his ratlike pony over the holes. They bucketed down the last slope and slipped rather than stepped into the stream bed. Heinz was unusually excited. Now they were in for it, he thought! The stream was already swollen and the ponies were girth deep before they were half way across. The boulders, worn smooth and slippery, impeded them.

"Keep close behind me," ordered Heinz. "The ford's narrow. I've got to pick the best place."

At moments the animals lost their footing. The current caught one and swung it around, but its rider flung himself off and staggered, half swimming, back to the shallows.

Strung to that pitch of tension where time is marked by heartbeats hammering on an anvil of bruised senses, Rosemary clung to the mare. Often she was nearly swept from the saddle, but her mare was gallant. With a heave of strong withers, she breasted the stream, pitting herself boldly against it, nostrils wide. In this fashion, swimming till her hoofs struck the submerged bank, she struggled across and up, shaking herself like a dog as she reached dry ground. One by one, drenched and buffeted, the Riffs struggled across and Heinz urged them up the cliff. He had set his mind on a certain line of bushes. Surely the flood would not mount beyond that. They must get up there somehow. The Riffs padded silently, dragging their ponies after them. Rosemary hung loose in the saddle, righting herself automatically against the mare's blunders. Darkness caught them while they were still far short of the safety line.

HEINZ, least imaginative of men, felt his ears were stretched on wires for the first rumble up the valley. Instead, he heard the breath of Rosemary's mare whistling through bellowed lungs.

"Your beast's blown," he said. "You'll have to get off."

He lifted her, spent, from the saddle, and two of the Riffs half pulled, half carried her on. The forced movement stimulated the girl.

"I'm getting my second wind," she told Heinz as they clambered through straggling shrubs which made a line along the hillside.

She never understood the German's passionate "Gott be thanked!" He mopped his shaven head with a sleeve. "Now we shall soon come to the path." They were safe, beyond reach of the destruction imminent below, but he hurried them on.

The mountaineers were arguing. Would the Kaid have passed or not? The climb, in almost pitch darkness, had seemed eternal.

It was decided that the party should divide. Two Riffs would go back toward the dam. "Keep to the high level," ordered Heinz, "and watch out." With gusty, guttural sighs and a shivering "Allah keep us!" the men dragged their soaked djellabas round them and headed into the south wind. The rest turned north.

Once on the path the going was easier, but, if Westwyn was ahead, speed, and only speed, could save him. The horses were buckling in. They stumbled at every step.

"We'd do better afoot," muttered Heinz.

"There are houses near," returned a Riff.

"Iusha-Allah, we can get mules there, and if Allah is generous, news of the Kaid." The German raised a last amble out of his beast and then light glimmered at them from squares of mud wall sheltered by a protecting buttress. It was not necessary to thunder on the closed doors. Dogs gave warning of their approach, and a muffled figure awaited them, his rifle ready.

To Rosemary, uncomprehending, the exchange of question, explanation, and comment was interminable. She made a move to go on, but her mare was rooted where she stood, head hanging, flanks heaving.

"Be still!" said Heinz. "The Kaid's not far ahead, and there is a short cut."

It took some minutes, though not as many as Rosemary imagined, to make the villager understand the urgency of the situation. Once he grasped it, he wasted no more time than was necessary to shout in Shilluh to some one within the yard. A voice answered in the same dialect. Then the mountaineer started, goatlike, straight over the rocks which bounded the path.

The Telehdi Riffs followed him, and Heinz waited only to urge Rosemary, "Stay here, for God's sake. Your husband is only half an hour ahead. We'll catch him this way—it's a certainty, but you're finished. You can't manage it."

The girl gestured assent and watched the dark figures laboring up what appeared to be a sheer wall. Would they be in time? She could not bear the suspense. Ignoring the hospitable gestures of the women welling out of the house, she started uncertainly up the rocks. Voices called to her, but she was deaf to their insistence. Heinz and the others were far above her, but the stars were coming out, candles on a sky of velvet.

Blindly, she stumbled in the wake of the Telehdi men. Her breath came in gasps and each one hurt her side. Her knees were without feeling. They sagged at odd angles as she forced her feet, laboriously, from step to step. She must reach some high point, from which she would have a view! The thought of all she must tell Westwyn, and the terrible fear of that blind shutter—"too late"—which bars so many prayed for second chances, drove her up the hill, but she had no idea of the way. Fortunately, before she was out of sight of the mud quadrangle, her strength gave out and, stumbling over a root, she found it impossible to rise. There the village women found her and, with a blend of pity and amazement, brought her back to the house.

Heinz panted stubbornly after the Riffs, but he was a long way behind when they topped the shoulder. The guide turned and called impatiently. There was a swift colloquy among the mountaineers. Finally the local man went on, running with incredible agility down the sheer hillside, leaping from rock to rock, his sandals flapping from his heels. Far away they heard him shout, and the sound galvanized them into fresh endeavor.

A Riff caught Heinz by the arm and, in a bunch, they crashed downward, oblivious of anything that lay in their route.

"Look out!" yelled a tribesman, and pulled up short. In their blind rush they had almost overshot the path. The Riff remained motionless, pointing ahead. Heinz blinked sweat out of his eyes, rubbed them with the back of his hand, and saw a solitary rider silhouetted against the next bend. Beside him stood the guide who had outstripped them.

The German was conscious of immense stillness.

> FROM THE DONALD OGDEN STEWART SERIES, "THE OTHER DAY," BEGINNING NEXT SUNDAY.

Everything in his body was relaxing. Gott! how tired he was! Amidst the flatness that is the aftermath of relief he plodded on to speak to Westwyn. The Englishman had grasped the bare facts of Martengo's plot from the villager, who had appeared suddenly above him, like a great bat flapping among the boulders.

"But how did you get here?" he asked, bewildered, and then, taking in Heinz's appearance, "Good Lord, man, you're done in!"

Dismounting hurriedly, he grasped the German's hand, for the Riffs were involved in simultaneous and dramatic explanation. Their exploit was magnified by success, but their eloquence could not beat Heinz's appearance. A branch had torn a jagged rent in his forehead; an unexpected snag ripped open the leather above one knee. He was sodden, his boots still squelching, and his plump cheeks sagged into grooves caked with mud.

Westwyn pumped his arm up and down. "You're a damn good chap. Lord, what a ride! That ford's rotten even in daylight."

"It was the thought of the dam that worried me," confessed the German naïvely. "I had a picture of it coming down on top of us. But you must get on. I don't know what time it is."

"We've a bit to spare," said Westwyn. "This fellow knows a continuation of his short cut. You'd better ride my horse back. I'm going on foot," he nodded upward, with a smile, "over the top. What a sell for Martengo! We'll be able to look down on him and have a pot shot for luck."

A murmur came from the Riffs. They proposed to look after the Spaniard themselves.

"Right," agreed Westwyn, "but don't let him escape."

The Telehdi men assured him that there would be no chance of that, and as they met each other's eyes they knew their plan was settled. It would be a great game!

The guide plucked at Westwyn's sleeve. "We must go high up, Sidi, to get around that dog!"

"I'm coming." He turned again to Heinz. "I don't know what to say, man. It was a jolly fine show. I owe you my chance to be in at the death!"

"No," retorted Heinz, shying at emotion. "You owe it to your wife."

"What?"

"She got the story from Zarifa. She pulled me out, roused the village, and insisted on coming with us." He stopped, caught in the blaze of light, grim eyes.

"She came across the river?" asked Westwyn in a voice so hard repressed that it sounded uninterested.

"The whole way! She's waiting at the house back there."

The Englishman stood still. He wanted to shout, to race back along the path, but all he said was, "I must get on. Take her back tomorrow by the top road above the dam—you'll look after her tonight, won't you? Tell her"—he hesitated—"tell her I'll join her at Telehdi in three days. It's a promise, man, we're going to put this through." He strode up the rock as if it were a ladder to Olympus.

"Queer cuss," reflected Heinz, proud of his English!

The shuffling of the tribesmen's feet recalled him. He mounted heavily, and a Riff padded up to his stirrup. The others turned down the path, walking slowly and talking in lowered voices.

"What are they after?" asked Heinz.

"The Spaniard," replied his companion. "I hope they bring him in tomorrow. I'd like to see his meeting with Menebbhe."

But the tribesmen had no intention of gratifying his wish. They knew a game twice as good. When the moon rose they scattered on the hillside, stalking their prey with the cunning of the mountain lion. Martengo was well hidden from any one on the path below, but he had not troubled to shield his rear. The Riffs gathered like hawks above him and his first intimation of their presence was the smack of a bullet on a stone alongside. Hastily he wriggled into cover. He'd cut it too fine, he reflected—the enemy had pushed their snipers into the hills. Another bullet spat up the sand unpleasantly near his elbow. He was at a disadvantage, for he could see nothing above him but the low hanging disc of the moon. With a curse he rolled into what he prayed would prove cover, but the Riffs were spread over a wide triangle and they were enjoying themselves very much. There was no one to tell them not to waste ammunition, and they had no intention of killing their enemy as yet! From rock to rock they drove him, their bullets purposefully wide. It was great sport. Picked marksmen as they were, with the light behind them, they harried their quarry over the path and down on to the barren slope below, laughing when his bullets went wild.

"His courage fails him," they said. "He would not shoot like that on a range!"

They crept forward peering down at their prey. Martengo was outlined, a dark splash on the tawny stones, and it was an easy matter to ring him with bullets.

"The dog wriggles! See—his nerve is gone!"

The Spaniard found small purchase on the slope, and as he strove to dig in toes and elbow a sudden roar came down the ravine. At first it was deadened by distance. A bullet flattened a foot from his head, and as he jerked away from it he saw the valley. A white mass was hurtling down it.

"Dios!" he shrieked, leaping to his feet.

Like wild animals, maddened by caging, the flood raced between the cliffs, swirling trees and rocks into its maw, raging against its barriers, foam whirling far above the path. The Riffs had ceased their game.

They scampered back up the hill, but one turned to finish off the Spaniard. He pulled the trigger carelessly, his eyes on the torrent, and the bullet struck Martengo in the leg. Deafened by the tumult of waters, blinded by the first spray, he lost his footing. The next instant he was a straw flung from wave to wave in the flood, dashed senseless against a rock and sucked under as the river bore down.

"Wallahi, he has gone to his countrymen," remarked a Riff, peering over the top of a spray drenched ledge.

"There will not be many left to receive him," returned another, tucking up his djellaba preparatory to the homeward tramp.

ROSEMARY heard the thunder of the flood as she lay on a soiled mattress in the guide's house. The women had given her coffee and pulled off her damp boots and breeches. She had submitted, spent beyond power of movement, almost beyond power of feeling. When Heinz returned she was rolled in a none too clean barracan, her hair pushed back from her forehead, her eyes like cinders in a bloodless face. She might have been a statue of anxiety, so still was she, so fixed the dreadful expectation in her gaze.

"It's all right," he said, "the Kaid's safe."

"You saw him yourself?" asked Rosemary, her lips scarcely moving.

"Yes, I spoke to him and told him it was all your doing. He sent you a message." The German embellished Westwyn's words, and he had to repeat them continuously before the girl was satisfied.

"You're sure he's safe?"

Patiently Heinz developed his story. All was going miraculously well. What was left of the enemy tomorrow—no, today, would have to be picked up on blotting paper!

All the time he was listening for the explosion at the dam. When it came he was sitting in the doorway, rolling native tobacco, a djellaba clumsily covering his lack of clothes, which were drying by the fire.

"There is our ally!" he exclaimed, and with unwonted swiftness stumbled to his feet. "Gott, it is tremendous! Come here and look."

Rosemary dragged herself across to him and together they watched the white legions charging down to the plain. The moonlight made it fantastic, an irresistible host splitting the earth in its passage. "I think the last trick is to Abd-el Krim," said the German with a return to his normal placidity.

Telehdi welcomed Rosemary as it might have done a chief returned from battle. Menebbhe actually rode out to meet her, consoling himself for such an unprecedented act by the reflection that from Heinz he would get first news of their adventures. It was unnecessary to ask for any other news. Triumphant runners, sometimes mere boys with a wisp of sheepskin round their shoulders, brought tales of an overwhelming victory. The whole of the Spanish stores had been swept away in the flood. A platoon, a battalion, had gone down in it. Soon it would be exaggerated into a regiment! The main army had been taken by surprise. The roar of the flood was in their ears, wholesale destruction before their eyes. The mountains, which had always been hostile, were bursting open for their destruction. Superstitious fear deprived them of a chance to rally. The guns were forgotten until it was too late. Westwyn's riflemen, having killed to their hearts' content, charged through the hills to cut off the enemy's retreat. The tale of captured rifles, of unnumbered prisoners, grew with every message!

"We shall drive them into Ceuta. That, too, we could take if we wished!" gasped the last excited newsbearer.

All this was poured out to Rosemary as she approached the village, but her interest was centered on one figure.

"Is there news of the Kaid?" she asked. The ululations of the women beat against her consciousness, reminding her of her wedding night. She thought of the absurdly large pajamas and smiled. Zarifa ran out to kiss her hands, even her boots, but her mistress was too absorbed to notice her.

"It is the end of the war," said Menebbhe. "The French will make peace, as they have always wanted to do."

Rosemary made suitable reply, but all she wanted was to be alone, to be able at last to think. Night crept round them before the last visitor left and while Zarifa was still fussing among the coffee cups.

"Bisimillah, you must be tired, you poor one. Have you slept at all?" She would have multiplied her services in the hope of satisfying curiosity, but Rosemary sent her away. She must be alone. She must think. But instead she slept for thirteen hours and woke to a village still clamorous with victory.

The sultan had left for Ait el Kamara, and the Kaid would join him there. No, they would go straight to Ajdir, which was being evacuated. Rumor after rumor swept through Telehdi, with contradiction hard on their path. For forty-eight hours Rosemary heard tales which became more and more incredible as the village receded from its position of authority. Even Menebbhe had departed with the last of the ministers.

The girl felt she was forgotten, but a certain fatalism possessed her. Westwyn had promised to join her at Telehdi and she must wait for him. So, with a patience surprising even to herself, she wandered from roof to gate, always expectant but never, curiously enough, discouraged. Time had ceased to mean anything at all.

Westwyn arrived at last in an almost empty village. He came at the hour when every housewife was occupied with the evening meal; so, riding quickly, he passed unnoticed. Pete, who had disobeyed all orders and followed the flood course to see a bit of the fun, parted from him at the door.

"It was a great show," said Westwyn. "The Riffs came up to the scratch, all right."

"Um," grunted Pete, "your stunt. I wonder how long they'll keep that in their heads."

On impulse the men shook hands.

"We'll pull off others," promised Westwyn, "but I think it's game and set here!"

He found Rosemary in the long, dimly lit room where he had once made love to her, and he stopped, reluctant, on the threshold. The girl was on her feet in an instant.

"I thought you would never come!"

"I came as soon as I could. I oughtn't to be here now. My place is at Ait el Kamara."

"You mustn't go there—not yet."

"Not till I've thanked you." Westwyn's eyes took in every detail of the girl's appearance. Her pallor was transparent, as if lit by a flame behind.

"What can I say?" He stumbled over his words. "I was never much good at thanks, and you saved my life. Rosemary, it was grand! How you could stick such a ride, I can't imagine!" He had both her hands now and was kissing them. "All my life I'll remember it. Do you realize what you've done?"

Obviously, he was trying to express an appreciation which deprived him of speech, but the girl, listening eagerly, found no more than gratitude in his tones.

"It's all nonsense!" she broke in. "I did nothing but follow Heinz, and even if I had saved your life, what about your duel with Martengo? I owed you something, didn't I?"

She tried to keep her voice light. She mustn't let things get out of her control. This time she would make no mistake.

"You certainly pay your debts in full," said the man, "but I think there's a bit over this time."

His eyes held hers and she met them bravely. "You gave me this Riffian victory, the thing I've put three years' work into. Martengo might have dished it. In any case he'd have prevented my seeing it." He smiled down at her. "All my life I'll want to repay you."

"You can do it now," said Rosemary. She remembered that frantic climb up the cliff and her prayer for the second chance, denied to so many. She'd got it now, but she found it needed courage to take it.

"What can I do?" asked Westwyn. "The half of my kingdom and the whole of myself are at your service." But he said it lightly, swinging away from her and seating himself on the arm of a chair. "Whew! we made good time coming up here."

Rosemary's heart was beating somewhere in her throat. She felt cold, and her fingers clenched stiffly on the signet ring with its motto. "What West Wynne won, let West Wynne holde." Had she won anything yet? Could she hold it?

WITH a great effort she spoke. "Do you remember that night—it seems so long ago—when you kissed me and I was a fool?" Words would not come. She searched for the direct, cool phrases she had planned.

"My dear, don't worry about that. So much has happened since," said Westwyn gently, but his eyes were narrowed and alert.

"So much for you, but not for me. War doesn't mean an awful lot to women, you know." The girl said it rather charmingly, with the ghost of a smile. "It's love which matters to us."

"I offered you love and you turned it down," retorted Westwyn, immobile, but Rosemary felt that he held her and that he would never let her go again.

"Because I wanted it so much! I was afraid of it for that reason. I suppose every woman is afraid at the last moment."

She waited, gazing helplessly at Westwyn, conscious that he was smiling at her, of the warmth and strength behind that smile, and of the faintest tinge of mockery.

"You brute!" she said. "Did you really mean it? Must I ask you to love me? I do, I do!" Swift laughter spurted between them, and the next moment she was in his arms.

"Beloved," he began, and stopped to kiss her eyelids and the faint mark on her temple. "I always thought I was a pretty poor hand at proposing, but you're worse!"

"How could you make me do it?"

"I wanted to see if you'd have the pluck!"

Remorsefully, he picked up her left hand and kissed it as he held her close against his shoulder. "It was rather rotten of me, but I'll have all the years to make up to you for it! We'll get out of this as quickly as possible and then"—he looked at her with boyish excitement.

"And then?"

"Well, for one thing, I'll never let you out of my sight again!"

Pete, having knocked three times at the door to announce a superlatively important messenger from Abd-el Krim, glanced cautiously round it. "I thought so," he muttered.

"The best men get caught by it in time," and he went gloomily across the yard to announce that the Kaid was very busy.

"A matter of importance," he added. "I guess he'll be some time."

TEMPTING MENUS FOR THE WEEK by Jane Eddington

Increasing Menu Fuel Units

AS OCTOBER nears, and heat comes on in the radiators, we have to fire up a bit digestively or metabolically. About now, perhaps, we begin wisely to work a few more starchy foods into our menus. Or perhaps we eat more sugar on our fruits—if sugar is safe for us—remembering, however, that this food is very like a kindling which makes a fierce and quick heat. Fierce and quick heat has its place, but for regular and continued body heating we need something of a different sort.

The slowest burning of all food fuels are the fats—butter, cream, and the fat part of meat, and the oils we use for our salad dressings—and they are great standbys for the between meal periods.

The cornucopia month of September has by now poured out its abundant fruits, while October will see some of the most fleeting yet in store. At this season there is still a wide choice in these most cooling and thirst quenching of foods, and for no reason should we stint ourselves in using them. As the month begins we may cherish anticipations of novelties to come, especially in the way of wild fruits. The persimmon needs a touch of frost and with frost comes the opening of the chestnut burrs.

Even if we have no dietetic wisdom, nature gives us some sharp reminders of the need of more substantial fare as the chillier days and nights approach. The common food seeds or grains, unmanufactured or manufactured, commonly give us only sixteen hundred calories per pound, while walnuts and pecans and butternuts, with their starch and fat and good protein content, climb well around three thousand calories for the same weight.

The good standby calories come mainly from the foods which do not upset the appetite if taken in quantity. These are our breads, and crackers, and rice dessert with the morning cereals, and macaroni as a vegetable or as a central dish for our meals. We can eat bread with every course at a dinner, but if we have a tendency to obesity it is highly risky to do so.

A Warm Kitchen
When the Mornings are Chilly

The early morning "living room" in most homes is the kitchen, and how to heat it quickly on cold mornings of spring, fall and winter has always been a problem. But not so now, for the A-B Unified Gas Range has made it possible for the thousands of gas-serviced homes to enjoy the comfort and convenience of quick heat with no more trouble than striking a match.

Unlike the ordinary coal or wood heater, the Unified Range sterilizes the air and ventilates the kitchen while it heats. No smoke, no dirt, no foul odors. No fuel to carry; no fires to kindle. Heat may be instantly regulated or shut off as desired.

No better constructed or finer appearing gas range made. Has improved heat centering cooking burners, broiler and baking ovens, with Wilder metal guaranteed rust-proof linings, and the celebrated A-B Oven Heat Control so highly prized by every house-wife. Made in sizes to suit any kitchen and three styles of finish—standard, semi-white and the beautiful all-white-porcelain enamel. Priced within the means of any purse.

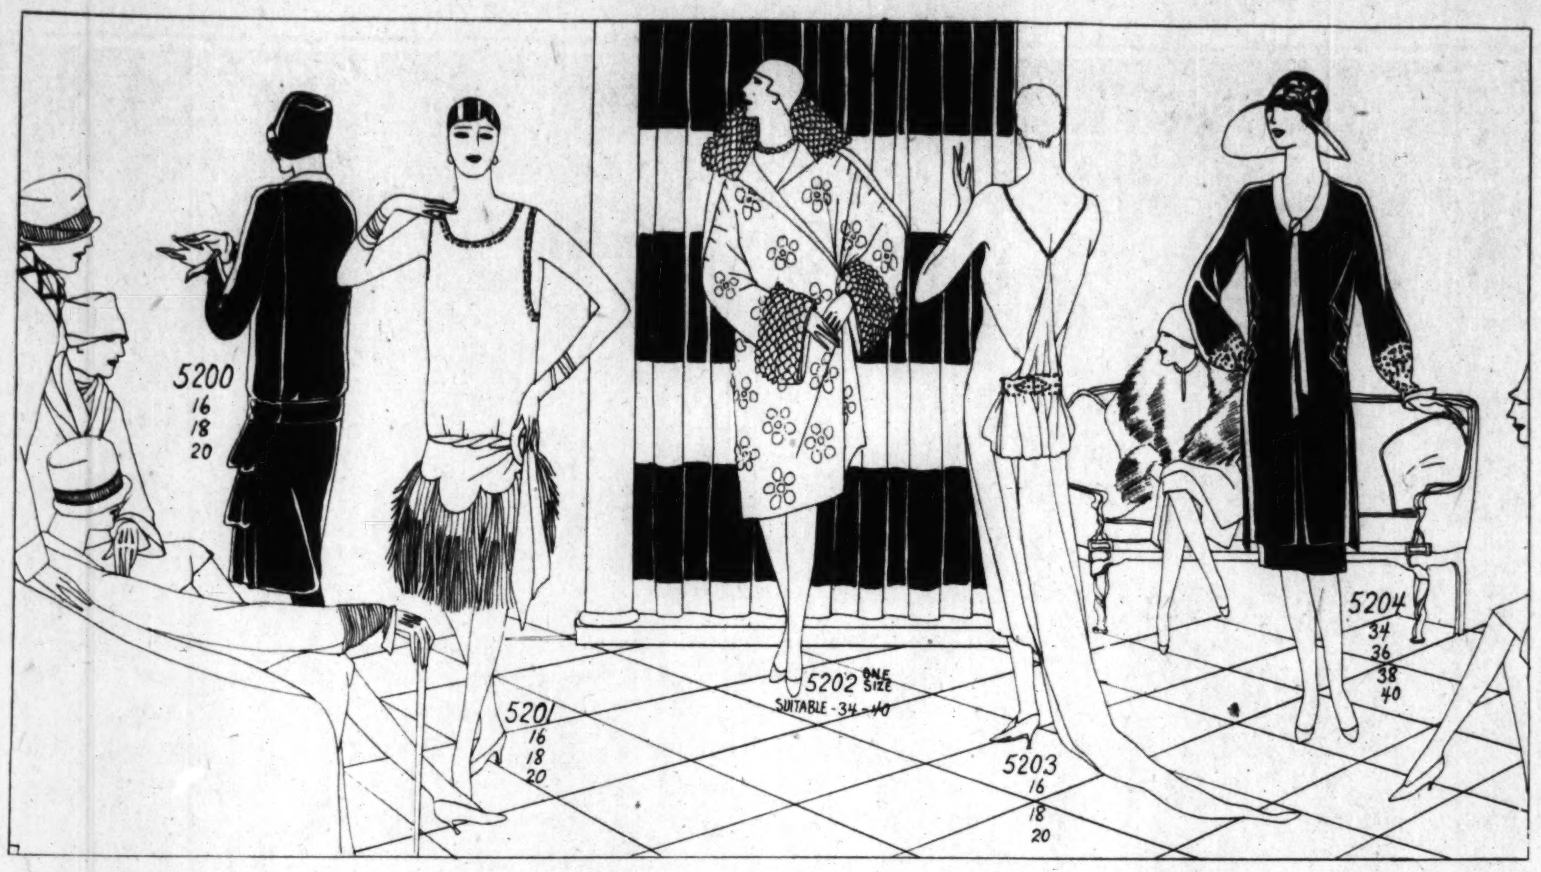
HERE'S SOME MODEL DRESSING FOR THE AUTUMN

by Corinne Lowe



No danger of running on a flat tier this autumn, but there IS danger of not getting the proper mileage out of some of our tiers. An example of the short distances this detail may go is furnished in a brand new model of cherry red velvet, cut surplice and with inset belt of self-material, pictured at the extreme left. In this case the tiers, cut in one with the frock, run only at the side.

Next, the popularity of fringe is attested in a flounce of ostrich flues shading from pale peach into beaver brown applied to a crystal-trimmed evening gown of pale peach chiffon.

That evening coats are cutting an ample figure is proved by this late model of coral velvet with its quilted design and its finish of petaled collar and cuffs, sketched in the center.

Two new goals of evening fashion—sea green and a bustle effect—are gained by this stunning example of sea-green velvet trimmed with rhinestones seen on the figure second from the right. Black chiffon is the medium of the last model—a tunic frock slashed in front, contrasted with melon-pink georgette and given side fullness by piped seams in diamond effect at the sides. Pearl, silver and white crystal are used for the sleeve embroidery.

NEW YORK. — (Special Correspondence.) — Again it is September! Again the lorgnette squad has been called out. Again one touch of Fashion makes the whole world manne-quin. Yes, the Paris fashions for autumn are now in our midst and New York is given over to their reception. To music slow and languorous, to music swift and tonic, the mannequins display these new creations, and even if you do not care for the fashions you'll admit it is good theater.

Personally, I can tolerate these new autumn modes exceedingly well. Admitted, that they are but a fugue on some familiar theme! All very well, but the variations are so sprightly and so colorful that it takes a fashion-deaf woman not to be pleased with this autumn opus.

First, there is the matter of hue. Giving black —together with its habitual associate, black and white—all its proper meed of recognition, we must acknowledge that never was there so much color lying around loose. Some of these tones are somewhat somber—so you may say. There, for instance, are the indigo and eggplant blues now so widely requisitioned. There also are the dark greens and all the deep garnet tones.

Yet, even in conceding this fact, we are bound to realize that the autumn of 1926 is no more given over to these rich and somber tones than is a stained glass window. Each one of them, indeed, is offset by some more brilliant and lighter tone. Thus, in contrast to the dark greens, we find a beautiful sea tint which is used fervently by the Parisian couturiers, especially for evening gowns. Similarly, blue is vindicated from its murky purplish cast by the presence of many more cheerful tones—especially the blue that resembles that of Yale. Nor are we committed to any red policy which says this primal shade should always be Bordeaux. Brilliant scarlets are used, and one of the hues to which fashionable Paris has given endorsement is the new rouge de Chine, a Chinese red tinged with yellow.

Dismissing color, let us proceed to ornamentation. The first thought that comes into my head at this point is fringe. By this I do not mean that every new model is as apt to wear fringe as was a mid-Victorian parlor; but the extent to which this detail is used and the variety of media through which it is presented make one of the most spectacular themes of the new mode.

For example, there is a new Chanel model which is covered all over with fringe that is composed of black beads interspersed with rhinestones. If you can't say "O," and "Ah," when you see this frock there is no need for you to go looking at Niagara Falls. Here's a cascade of beads that is a wonder.

Another new type of fringe—well, we went to brilliant, sun-lit Hawaii where the women wear a whisk broom for a dress to locate this mode. For this pioneer in the field is made of colored straw.

Then, of course, there are the good old conservative standpatters in the fringe camp. Ostrich flues are one of the most popular developments and we see no end of just plain silk fringes. It goes without saying that on many occasions these trimmings bow to the reign of the tier and are applied in the form of successive flounces. However, some evolve a more independent destiny.

Witness to this fact is supplied by our second model from the left. Here is a frock much in the new evening mood. Although its contours are nothing to write home about, it makes up for an habitual simplicity by its color—a lovely peach tint carried out in chiffon velvet—and by the flounce of ostrich flue, shading from the tint of the frock into a rich beaver brown. A further detail worthy of mention is the girdle, twisted in front and crushed at the back, which is drawn through a crystal buckle echoing the crystal beads that outline armholes and neck line.

When we mentioned velvet we started something. If any kind of velvet is not being employed this year it's because the designers don't know where it lives. All kinds and conditions of this regal material are being used and their function extends from sports clothes to the most sumptuous of evening creations.

Among the velvets most frequently emphasized by Paris are the faconne types. Now, faconne, as I understand it, may consist either of velvet figures on a silk ground or of an all velvet weave. Be that as it may, it's fac-onne, not only with the dance, but with the afternoon, as well.

But to come back to more formal and more accustomed interpretations of the velvet vogue, let us look now at our fourth sketch. Here is a velvet evening gown in that same sea green to which I have referred as being so enthusiastically sponsored by Paris. Lovely would be this model for the tall, slim woman with reddish gold hair—the real Gwendolen Harleth type among us. And even if you wish to transpose the color you are bound to take some interest in the long, stately line.

We give a back view of this model with malice aforethought, for we wish to draw your attention to the bustle-like drapery that anchors the fish train. Some accent like this is frequently placed at the top of the train. As to whether such accent be acute—this is up to the individual designer. It may be mentioned, however, that it is frequently a circumspect one. For example, Louise-Boulanger is fond of using a butterfly bow.

A band of brilliants establishes the position of the rear waist line and more brilliants are used for the shoulder straps and the finish of the neck line. As will be seen, the creed of the front is surplice.

Has the black chiffon gown which took such an active part in our summer night life retired from its active career? Far from it. Lelong is especially forensic in promulgating the doctrine that black lace don't have to do any hibernating. Time and again he shows his faith in these media in the creation of gowns especially adapted to those beyond the first bloom of youth.

Nor, indeed, has the black chiffon daytime gown surrendered its summer authority. Our last sketch is intended exclusively to prove this point, for it is a tunic model that may be construed in black chiffon or black crêpe. The side fullness is achieved by diamond shaped seams piped in self-material that are placed under the arms and lend to the bodice the fashionable fitted effect.

Melon pink georgette forms the collar and its streamers, and the lower part of the sleeve with its distinctive cuff provide a background of this same pink georgette for heavy embroidery of pearl, silver and white crystal.

In the realm of evening coats it seems that we have progressed beyond those penurious wraps of yesteryear. Deep arm holes and dropped shoulder lines, bloused backs and tiers of fringe—all these mark a new era in evening coats. So far, few capes are seen, nor is there frequent attempt at introducing this note as a detail of the coats.

Typical of our present spirit in evening wraps is the central model—a deep rose velvet quilted in an allover pattern which is broken only by a straight band of unfigured velvet drawn down the sleeve from shoulder to cuff. These cuffs, together with the collar, are made up of numerous tiny petals of self-material. The wrap is lined with silver cloth.

If you want an explanation of the modern housewife's appreciation of Mazola as "the finest salad oil the world affords, regardless of price," merely try Mazola in French Dressing. Here is an expert chef's recipe for it—easy to follow—made in two minutes:

8 tablespoons Mazola 1 teaspoon Sugar
½ teaspoon Salt ⅛ teaspoon Paprika
3 tablespoons Lemon Juice or Vinegar

Mix dry ingredients. Add Mazola and lemon juice or vinegar and beat until creamy. This dressing may be made in larger quantities and kept in a bottle and shaken as used.

This is the regulation recipe for French Dressing but the proportions of oil and acid may be reversed to make it a little more tart for those desiring a sharper dressing. A little Chili Sauce or Catsup also gives added piquancy.

As you eat this delicious French Dressing on your favorite salad notice how s-m-o-o-t-h and rich it makes your salad taste.

Notice, too, the entire absence of that heavy, oily taste—so often associated with imported oils.

And at the end of the month, notice how little your grocer's bill for salad oil has been.

Once you try Mazola in salads you will realize it is itself as good and wholesome to eat as the corn from which it comes.

And this knowledge will make you eager to use Mazola for frying instead of animal fats—and for shortening instead of expensive butter.

As you eat this delicious French Dressing on your favorite salad notice how s-m-o-o-t-h and rich it makes your salad taste.

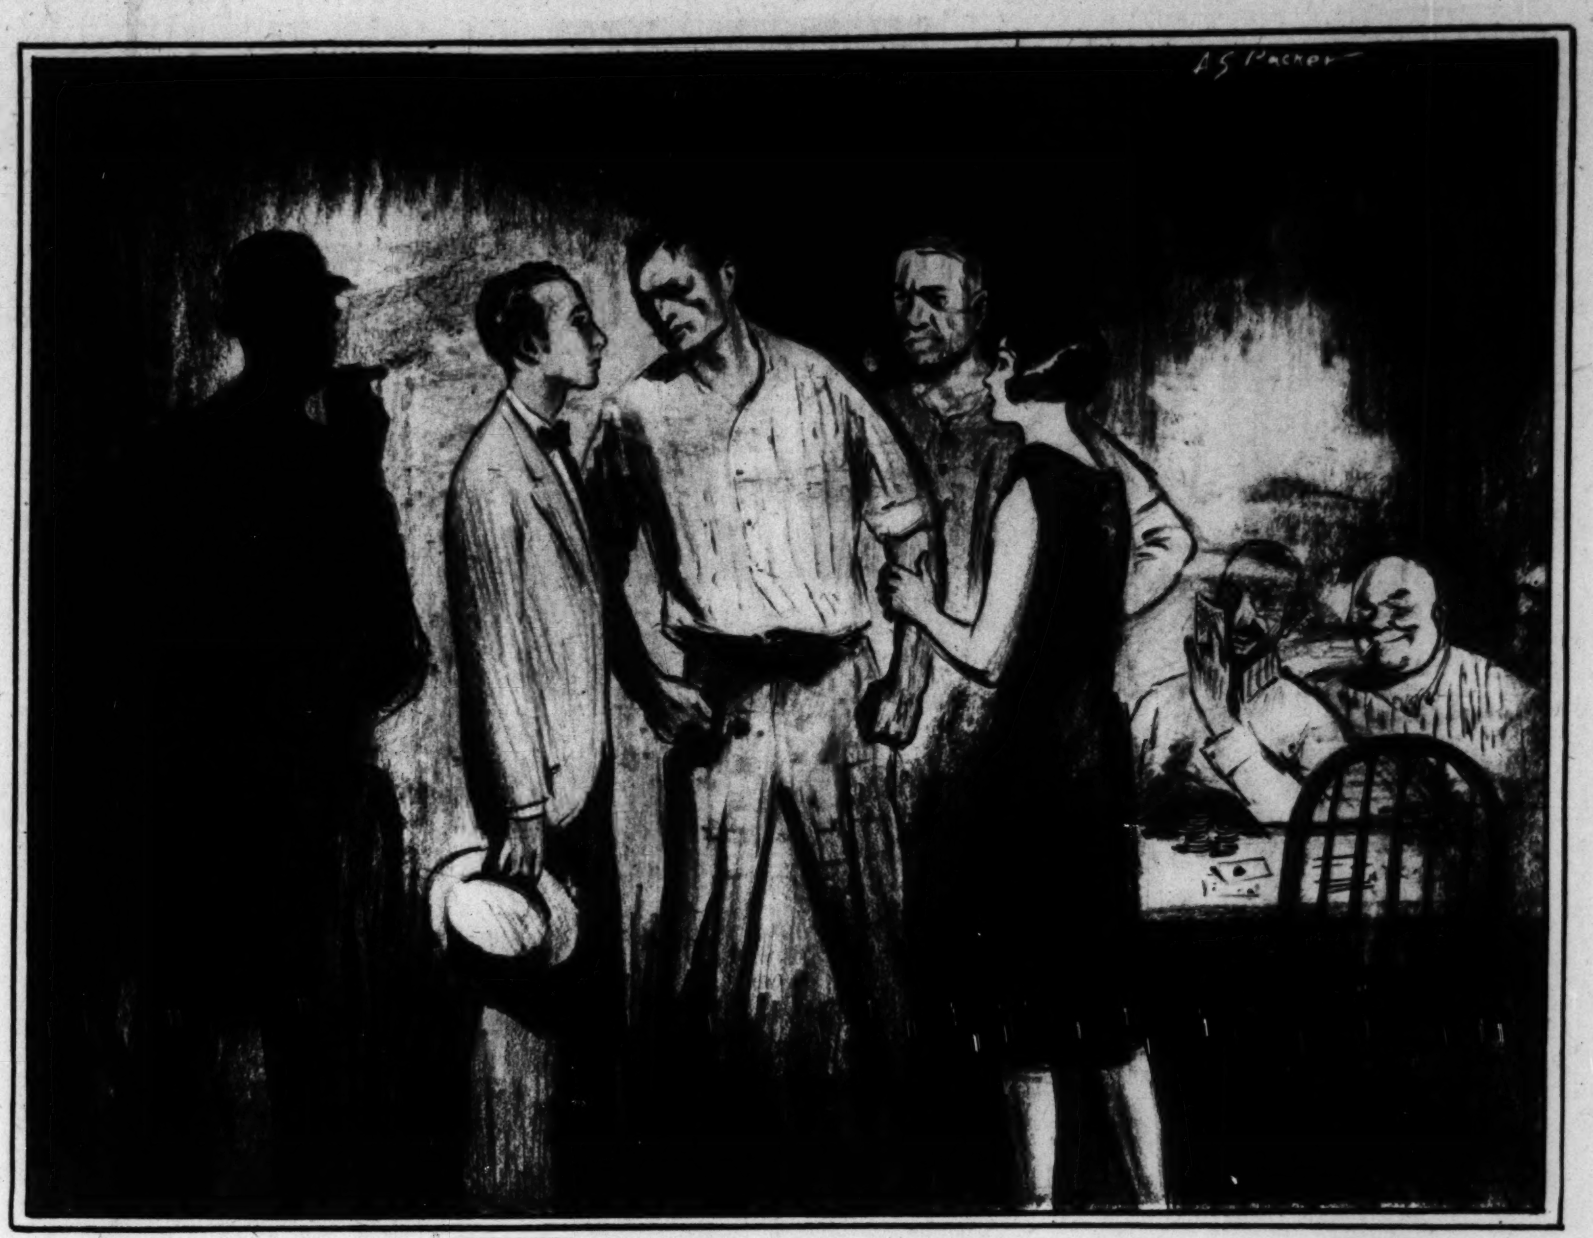
HANDS OFF PUGSY'S GIRL

by Augusta Leinard

ILLUSTRATED BY A. S. PACKER



"But I believe Kathleen loves me," John mildly protested.

KATHLEEN CONLEY was a bewitching little person, yet she was left as completely alone by the men of her acquaintance as though she combined the ugliness of a toad with the disposition of a snake. Many observed her and licked their lips as at the sight of a luscious peach, but none dared brave the terrors of Pugsy Maguire's mighty fist by seeking her company.

It all began on Kathleen's sixteenth birthday—a sweltering July night. Saturday night was generally poker night at the Conley flat, for Pop Conley had two hobbies—poker and prize fights. On this particular Saturday night Kathleen stopped to speak to her father as she passed through the Conley living room where the usual group of rough, boisterous men were jingling the Conley poker chips. A mere wisp she was, with her red hair glinting against the pale yellow of her organdy dress, a brown ribbon that matched her eyes encircling her waist.

Pugsy Maguire, the youngest of her father's cronies, gazed at her for a few minutes. Then, without warning, he sprang up and lifted her high above his head as though she were a baby.

"Here's my future wife, everybody," he loudly proclaimed. "Hands off Pugsy's girl!"

Kathleen had been greatly thrilled, for Pugsy was a well known pugilist. As for Pop Conley, nothing could have pleased him better. For one thing, he worshiped Pugsy's physical prowess; for another, the young fighter was the favorite nephew of a man high up in the police department—and Pop was a policeman.

The girl did not find it so thrilling, however, when a few nights later her self-constituted fiancé swaggered into an ice cream parlor where she was enjoying a delectable sundae and yanked her startled escort to his feet, shaking him as he would a rat.

"Wh-a-a-at——" began the shakee.

"Hands off Pugsy's girl!" And with this dire warning the pugilist flung the sprawling youth into a corner and dragged Kathleen out of the store—dragged her because red hair and a saucy unlifted chin do not go with a doormat temperament.

The young Hercules lifted her forcibly into his car, grinning good naturedly at her angry tirade.

"What do you mean, Pugsy Maguire!" she sputtered. "You let me right out of here!"

"Nix. I can't have the future Mrs. Maguire running around promiscuous like with these little whiffets."

"Who said I was the future Mrs. Maguire?"

"Me and your pop. And by the time you're a little older," patting her hand, "you'll ditto it. So you better tell those guys 'Hands off Pugsy's girl.'"

"I will not!" she retorted. But as she settled down in the comfortable seat of the chummy roadster she was secretly delighting in her captor's strength, and her protests, though loud, had the hollow sound of a child's pounding upon a tin dish pan.

Miss Conley soon learned that Pugsy meant what he said, for there was a regular epidemic of blackened eyes and swollen lips among her admirers. After a while "Hands off Pugsy's girl" became a law.

"Pugsy thinks he owns me," she complained to her father.

Pop Conley took an unsympathetic draw on his pipe.

"You're a fool, Kittie," he told her. "He's a man, not one of them lizards that crawl around nowadays. Man enough to make a law and enforce it. 'Hands off Pugsy's girl!'" And Pop's chuckle had anything but a pacifying effect on Daughter Kathleen.

"I'll show him," she flared. "You just watch."

Accordingly, when a new salesman at the book store where she was employed asked if he might take her home, the girl sweetly assented. The fact that he was even bigger than Pugsy gave her hope.

The young man who drove up to the dingy red flat building was spruce and smiling, but the young man who left it was as battered as a movie villain in a closeup. After a weak defense he fled, with the words "Hands off Pugsy's girl!" clanging in his ears.

The next day not only his hands but his eyes were kept off "Pugsy's girl."

His attitude disgusted Kathleen.

"Pop's right," she thought; "they are lizards." Her scornful gaze fell upon a slender chap in a black mohair suit and a rich black cravat properly tied against an immaculate white shirt. His manner was meek as he waited for service. As Kathleen advanced upon him she was in danger of losing her reputation for courteous salesmanship.

"What is it?" she inquired curtly.

The young man turned with a flush.

"Browning's poems, please."

With an I-might-have-known-it air, Kathleen marched to the book shelves. Gingerly she brought the volume.

"We don't sell this stuff very often," she apologized, blowing off the dust.

"I see you dislike Browning," was his quick response. "That's probably because you don't know him."

The fact that his gray eyes looking down into hers mirrored all the finer things which she had unconsciously craved in her sordid, motherless home attracted the girl even while it irritated her.

"I suppose you're a poet, too?" she inflected.

"That's my ambition," gravely, "although my meal ticket is writing advertising copy. Don't you ever read poetry?"

"Never!" she declared emphatically.

SHE was conscious, as her deft hands wrapped up Browning, that her customer was regarding her intently.

"Poetry has its uses," he said presently. "For instance, in last month's Universal I had a lyric called 'A Fisherman's Paradise,' which, I was told, sent one tired business man a-flying to his favorite stream with his favorite rod. Isn't that worth while?"

His gentle response brought a wave of shamed color to the girl's cheeks, but she made no reply.

"I'm coming back," he told her as he took the book, "I'm coming back to talk more poetry."

She smiled grimly as the battered salesman passed her with averted face. "You'd better not," she muttered.

But she was haunted by that suggestion of fineness which distinguished the young poet, and later she looked up the poem in the Universal. John Harkness—she remembered seeing the name in magazines that she had skimmed through at odd moments. Somehow it harmonized with his thoughtful eyes and gentle manner. She found herself wondering if he really meant to come back.

He returned on Saturday at noon, waiting patiently until she was at leisure.

"We close at one sharp," she said, frowning first at him and then at the clock. "What are we here for today? Another book of poetry?"

"No," quietly. "Browning, my flivver, and I are taking a jaunt into the country. So I thought if you had Saturday afternoon free——"

Kathleen's frown deepened. Didn't she have all her Saturdays free, thanks to Pugsy? Then, as she considered her grave young inviter, her frown melted into a smile. Suddenly she was glad that she had worn her pale green voile frock with its nondescript sleeves.

"I did have a date with the prince of Wales," she drawled, "but he's gone a-hunting." At this they both laughed, and Kathleen flew for her hat.

The flivver proved to be just that, but John Harkness made no apologies. Thinking of a certain gleaming red sedan, "Pugsy's girl" was not at ease until they were spinning down country roads.

Passing Fort Sheridan the silent driver volunteered a remark.

"I trained here in 1917."

"O, my goodness! Were you old enough to be in the war?"

"I was 21."

THE conversation thus begun did not die down. Kathleen learned that John Harkness had lost his mother six months before; that the two had been comrades. Between the lines she read that he was grievously lonesome.

"Mother was a wonder," he said. "She had the power of holding life up to you like a gorgeous tapestry and showing you its beauty and color. She declared that she wouldn't take all a miser's gold for her power to feel a sunset."

To Kathleen this was strange reasoning. She pondered it as Harkness unpacked a lunch kit near a little brook gurgling its way through a tangle of trees and shrubbery.

Later she leaned against the trunk of an elm and watched him trying earnestly to "put Browning over."

"That old cove looks like a mess with his white whiskers," she observed, studying the frontispiece in the volume which Harkness had been reading, "but his ideas aren't half bad."

"You'll like Browning better," quietly, "when you get to know him."

"And how are we going to get so well acquainted?"

"We're going to take him with us, you and I, on our Saturday jaunts."

"O, we are? You two poets would be terribly bored with such a lowbrow, and I'm afraid White Whiskers——"

"Please don't," begged Harkness. "You will go again, won't you?"

Meeting his wistful eyes, Kathleen felt a puckery feeling in her throat. She might risk it. But she would have to keep her new acquaintance a secret.

All the way home she was nervous, and two blocks from the Conley flat she asked John to stop.

"I've got to go in this grocery," she said. "Don't wait. I can walk from here."

"But I'd rather take you home."

"No, no; don't bother." And she hurried into the store with his determined "Well, anyway, I'm going to call for you next Saturday" following her.

She dressed carefully on the following Saturday. When her new friend appeared she did not look displeased.

"What are we here for today?" was her pert greeting.

"You."

"And I suppose White Whiskers awaits us in the carriage?"

"No," with his rare smile. "This time it's King Arthur and Lancelot and Galahad."

"Zounds! We're going to have quite a party."

She told herself it was wrong to put "that nice boy" in such danger, but her eyes sparkled as the flivver skimmed down black satin roads flanked with green velvet meadows interspersed here and there with a flowering orchard or a few cows grouped like a rural painting.

The only blight on an otherwise perfect afternoon was Kathleen's behavior at its conclusion. As they neared the grocery corner she grew restless.

"I'll get out at the grocery, please."

"But I hate to let you go," protested John. "Can't I see you tomorrow?"

"Heavens, no! On Sunday the woman who keeps house for Pop and me becomes a lady of leisure, and I become the woman who keeps house."

"But you surely don't work all day Sunday."

"I surely don't," she bantered. "Maybe Sunday belongs to some one else." Then at his hurt look, "But Saturday is mine—and yours, too, if you want it."

"Then you'll belong to me on Saturdays," averred John.

"Yes—on Saturdays." She gave him a charming smile over her shoulder as she fled into the store.

And very much those Saturdays came to mean to Kathleen. Her association with John Harkness was like a tangy sea breeze, sterilizing and invigorating her mind. She learned that poetry—some of it—isn't merely a lot of words, and that a sunset isn't just a daub of color.

But on Sundays, watching Pugsy pilot his big red car through the surging waves of traffic, she would thrill with a sense of his physical greatness. She pictured John Harkness fleeing just as the book salesman had done. "If he did, I'd despise him," came the thought, followed by an insane desire to bring them together. But, recalling what had befallen her other admirers, she always ended up by feeling much ashamed.

When the girl informed John Harkness that with the close of August her half holidays would cease she did so with secret misgivings, knowing she had deliberately stolen into his heart with all the delicious coquetry of her Irish nature.

"That means just one more Saturday after this," she demurely lamented.

"But it doesn't mean the end of our meetings." It was not a question—it was an affirmation.

"No? It does hurt my mind like a toothache to think of it," she confessed.

"Don't think of it then. Why can't we spend our Saturdays together—always?" softly.

"O, my goodness!" murmured Kathleen, evading the appealing gray eyes, which left no doubt as to his meaning. He was a dear, but more like a boy than a man. Why, if Pugsy ever laid hands on him——

"If you're proposing," she decided, "I'll have to decline with thanks."

John stared, hurt and bewildered. "But I don't see—I've read love in your eyes," he persisted.

"You mean you've read it into my eyes."

As John started homeward there was a sternness about his lips which was new to Kathleen, who was having a bad attack of "conscience." She was planning an armistice when the angry sound of a motor horn caused her to look around apprehensively. On the opposite side of the street in the line of machines waiting for the traffic signal was Pugsy, glaring at her.

To Kathleen there was only one thing to do. Quickly she grasped her companion's arm. "O, John! That red car!" she cried, "you must lose it!"

And lose it he did, after a series of twists and turns. Once or twice he glanced at the girl, who had lost her air of flippancy. On a deserted side street he came to a halt.

"Is that man the reason why you leave me on street corners?" he asked gently.

"Yes."

"He isn't," with a gulp, "your husband?"

As she shook her head the young man, relieved, drew her to him, Miss Kathleen showing no disposition to get away.

"But he says he will be. He's Pugsy Maguire, the prize fighter. Of course, you've heard of him. No? Well, you see, it's like this." And she gave a detailed account of Pugsy's law and how he enforced it. "So the only way to win me," she finished, "would be by defeating Pugsy."

John laughed ruefully. "I've never been in a prize fight. I've never even seen one. In the war," he confessed, "I never got used to physical violence. I was in a state of mental protest even in the thick of the fighting."

"I could never love a coward."

"O, honey, be reasonable," he begged. "I'm willing to see your father and state my case."

"Pop would turn you down. He worships Pugsy's pugilistic punch. Anyway, you would still have Pugsy to deal with, and," with emphatic admiration, "Pugsy can fight."

"We all have to fight," John returned quietly. "But it isn't always fistic battles that win in the ring of life."

"Sometimes it is," contradicted Kathleen stubbornly.

She was disappointed when he drove on, without further parley, letting her out at the usual corner.

WITH mixed sensations Kathleen proceeded homeward. She felt that the episode was ended, and thought contemptuously that he might have shown some spirit.

"Well, that's that," she muttered, walking right into Pugsy, waiting gloweringly at the entrance to the Conley flat.

"Who'n'ell was the gink in the Tin Lizzie, Kittie?" he demanded immediately, grasping her arm.

"Don't swear, Pugsy," the girl admonished. "It isn't nice, and, anyway, there's nothing to swear about now."

And she was sure there wasn't. During the week she reflected that jauntless Saturdays were going to be dull at first, and Saturday, when it arrived, lived up to her prognostications. She got permission to leave before one.

In the Conley flat she found the Saturday poker game just starting. Pugsy was there, coatless and collarless; Bendelli, a weazened old trainer addicted to chewing tobacco and blue flannel shirts; Pop Conley, and several others.

With a brief greeting the girl went to her room, from which she later emerged dressed in her best.

"What's the idea, Kittie?" questioned her father.

"Anybody's liable to get company," she generalized.

Pugsy laughed boisterously. "Put on yer coats, boys. Kittie's expecting a girl friend."

"Supposing he isn't a girl?" she retorted.

The effect on Pugsy was terrifying. He absolutely bristled.

"Is it that sheik in the Tin Lizzie? Damned unhealthy for him around here."

"Now, Pugsy," began Kathleen, but she stopped in a panic at the ringing of the bell.

An instant later she admitted into the atmosphere of tense expectancy a modest young man in a new gray suit and a white silk shirt.

"O, my goodness! John!" she murmured.

"They told me at the store where you lived," he explained simply.

APPREHENSIVELY, Kathleen introduced her visitor, observing her father take a contemptuous draw on his pipe and Pugsy nudge Bendelli, who chortled audibly.

John Harkness did not appear to notice. "I'm glad to meet you, sir," he said politely to Pop Conley, "because I want to marry your daughter."

"O, you do." Pop Conley gave Pugsy a broad wink. "Well, who are you?"

"I'm writer of advertising copy. I'm also a poet."

At the last words Pop removed his pipe and spat expressively. As for Pugsy—he roared with laughter.

"Did you get that, boys? A poet!" Then he arose and glowered over the young man.

"And now I'll tell you who I am. I'm Pugsy Maguire. Years ago I made a law 'Hands Off Pugsy's Girl.' And it ain't ever been repealed."

"But I believe Kathleen loves me," John mildly protested, "and if she does I'm going to marry her."

"You're what!" With an oath Pugsy lunged forward, but was blocked by Kathleen, who put her hand on his arm placatingly.

"Go, John," she begged.

"Go nothin'!" shouted Pugsy. "He don't get away till I'm through with him. Get out in the alley, you whiffet! I want to smash you, not Conley's furniture!"

"If you'll lead the way—" began John quietly.

Pugsy did more than that. Pushing Kathleen aside, he roughly propelled his victim through the kitchen.

The remaining men exchanged significant glances; then, with one accord, they sprang up and followed. As for Pugsy's girl: First, she gave a terrified gasp; second, a gleam of admiration lighted her snappy brown eyes; third, she exclaimed, "O, my goodness!" and rushed after the men.

We should really like to say that the despised poet turned out to be a Bennie Leonard and demolished his opponent. But such was not the case, for Pugsy landed his famous punches where and how he pleased, knocking John down again and again. John wouldn't stay down, though. With a battleship glint in his gray eyes, he made dogged efforts at retaliation, although distaste was plainly written on his high bred face.

"Now will you keep your hands off Pugsy's girl, you whiffet!" growled Pugsy after each crushing wallop, only to be answered by a shake of the head as "the whiffet" struggled to his feet. The fiasco ended when John, battered and bleeding, made an unsuccessful effort to rise and, with a little wry smile, fell back unconscious.

"Come here, Kittie," yelled Pop Conley, "here's the man who can fight your battles for you."

The words galvanized Kathleen into action.

"Which one do you mean?" she asked pointedly as she approached, "the man who has the moral courage to fight a fellow twice his size or the man——" Her eyes blazed as she went close to Pugsy, pounding his massive chest with two small fists. "O, you brute!" she sobbed. "You big ugly brute!"

"Aw, Kittie——" entreated Pugsy.

But she did not hear him. She had knelt beside the unconscious man, and was wiping the blood from his face. Then she pressed her lips tenderly to the swollen ones of the vanquished.

They all knew, even before she told them, that Pugsy's girl would soon be Mrs. John Harkness.

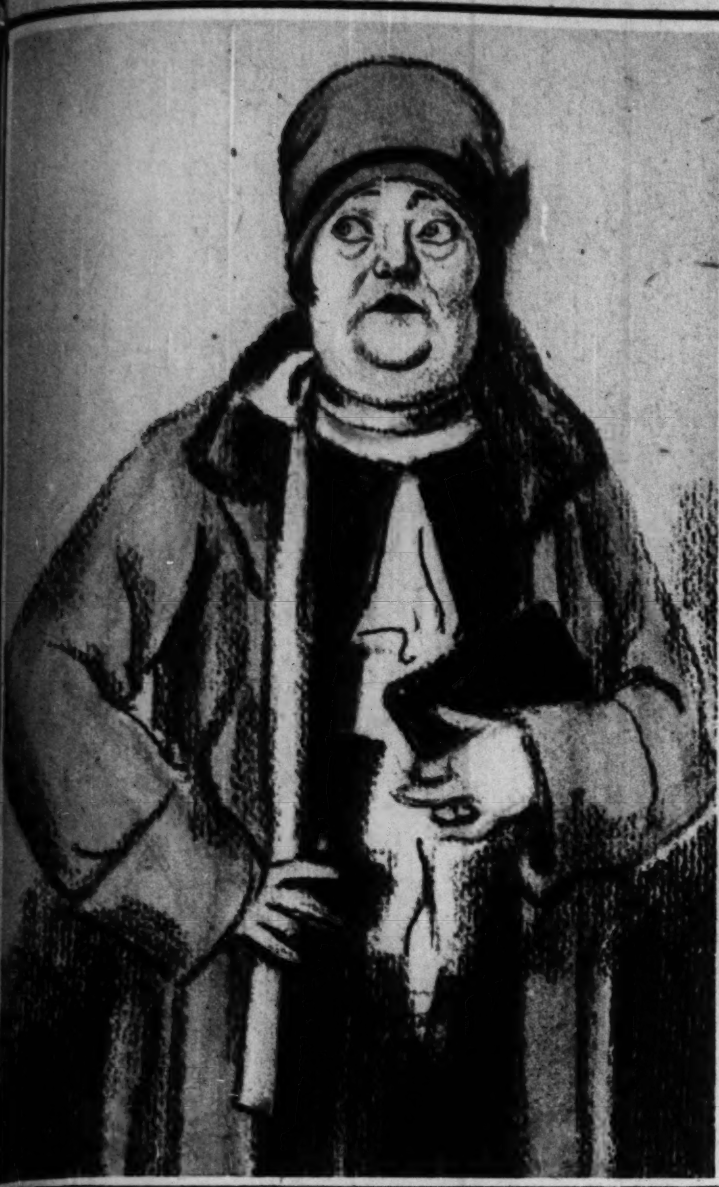
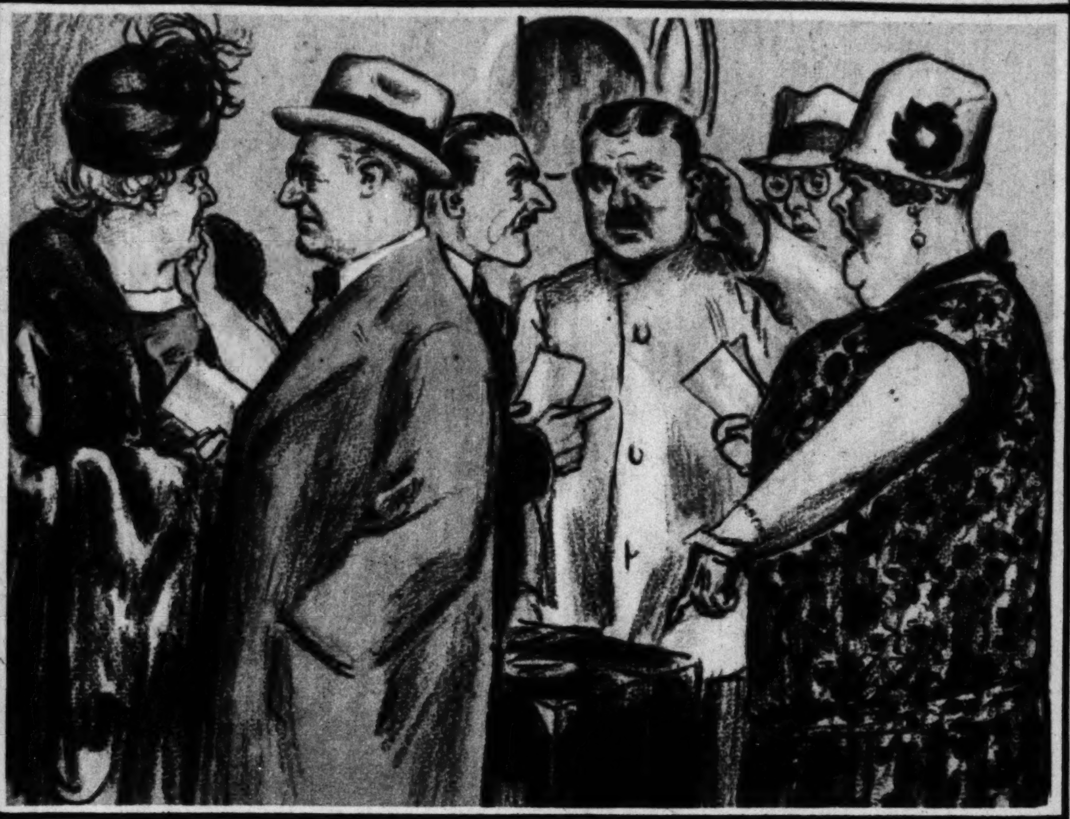
The Midnight Sailing

By W. E. Hill

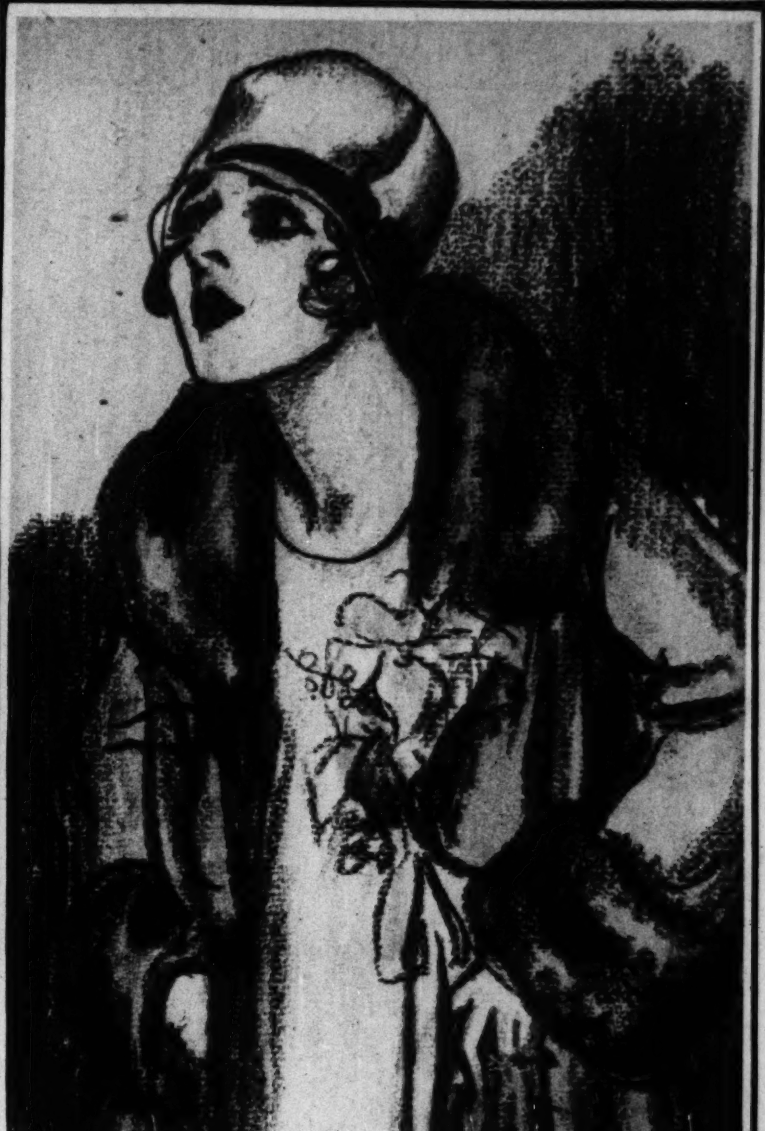
(Copyright: 1926: by The Chicago Tribune.)



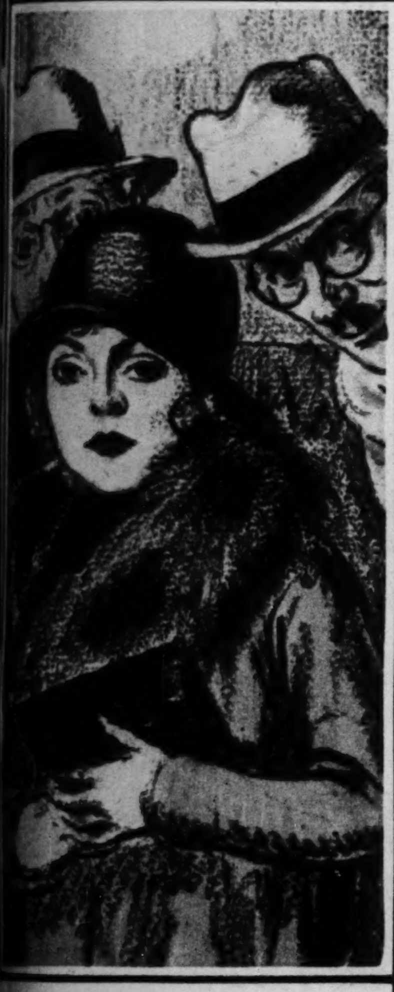
The lady who is going to Paris to get her third divorce is very exclusive, very. She's looking around to see who, if any, are the nice people.



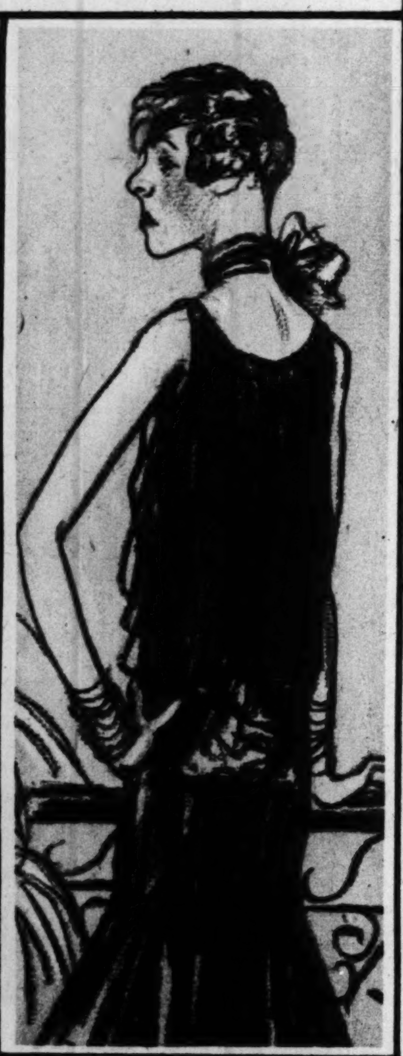
Just a little misunderstanding over a stateroom on B deck, but the purser, of course, will know just what to do. Won't the boys in the steamship office feel terribly when they know what they've gone and done! Imagine, they've sold the stateroom to three different parties, all very uncongenial, as even George the steward can see. Mme. Lillyan of the Lillyan shop, Plainfield, N. J., is waxing stentorian over the removal of luggage not her own.



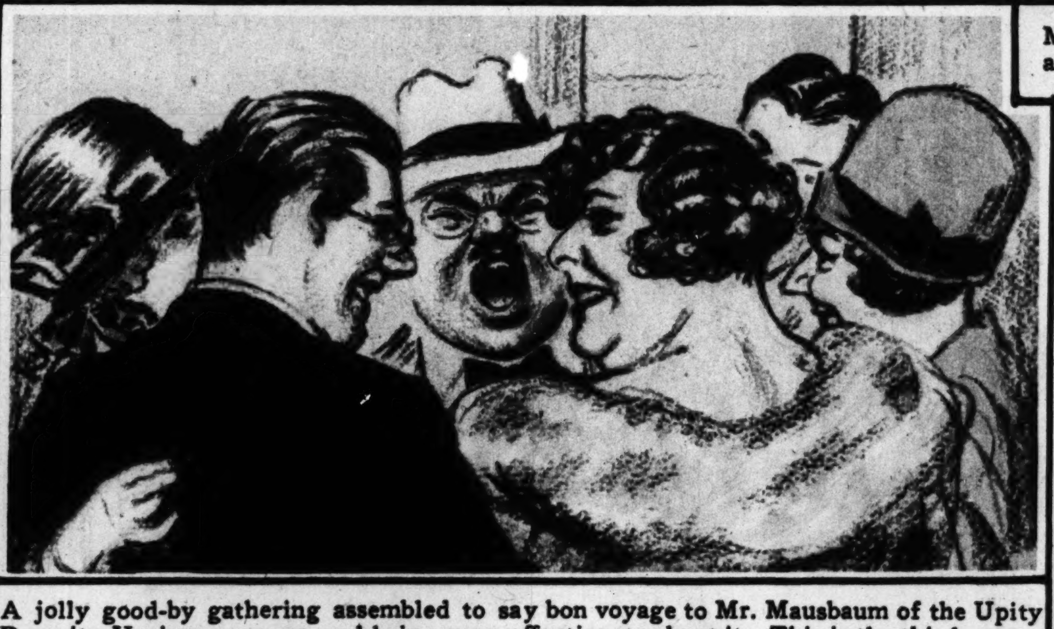
Movie star getting all set to knock an unwary reporter hot and cold by turns with just the right amount of sex appeal.



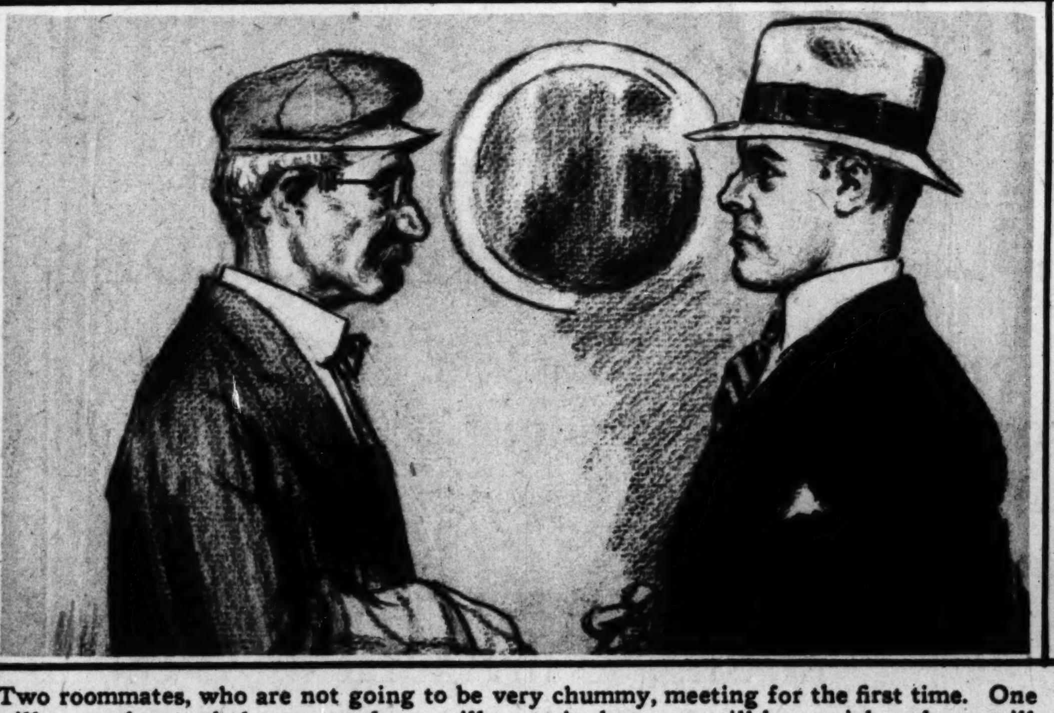
This happy little group is busy looking over the boat from top to keel. Came to say good-by to a friend, but they don't care if they never find him. They are peeking into staterooms and lavatories and linen closets and having a swell time!



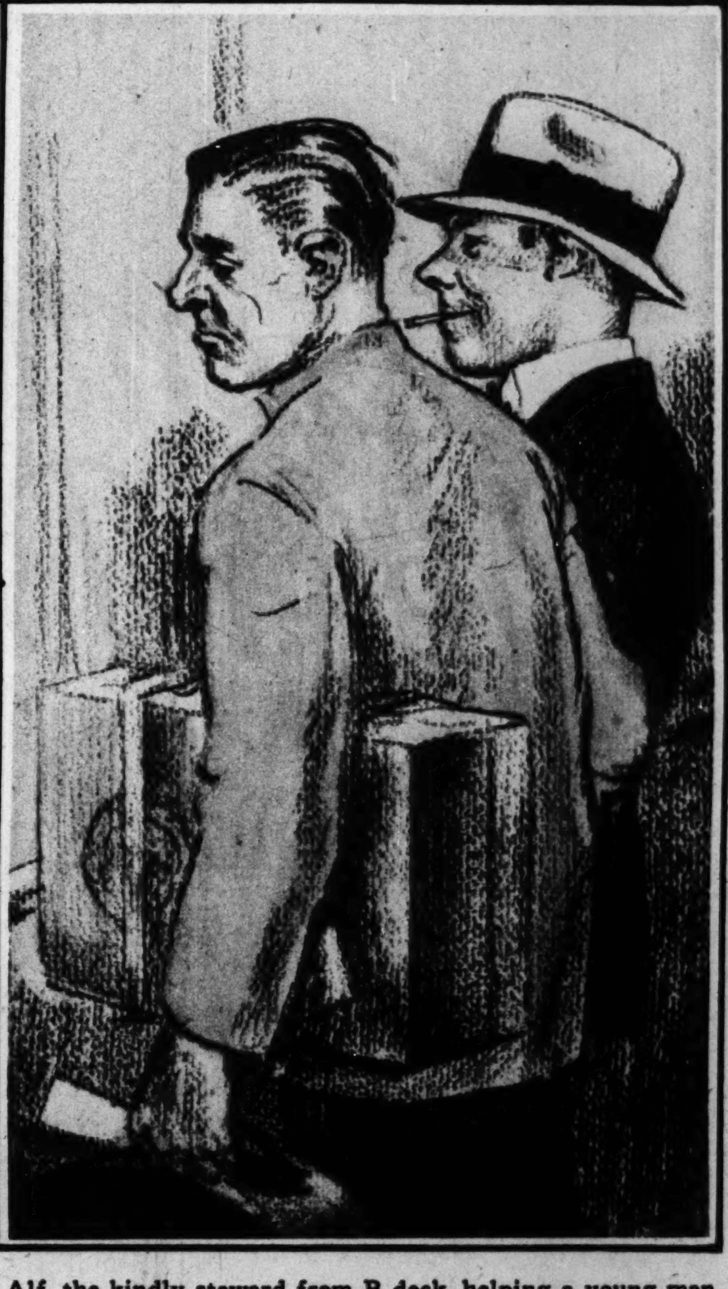
Just a sweet, fast working young thing from the midst of the middle west, planning to meet all the nice looking young men on board by noon tomorrow.



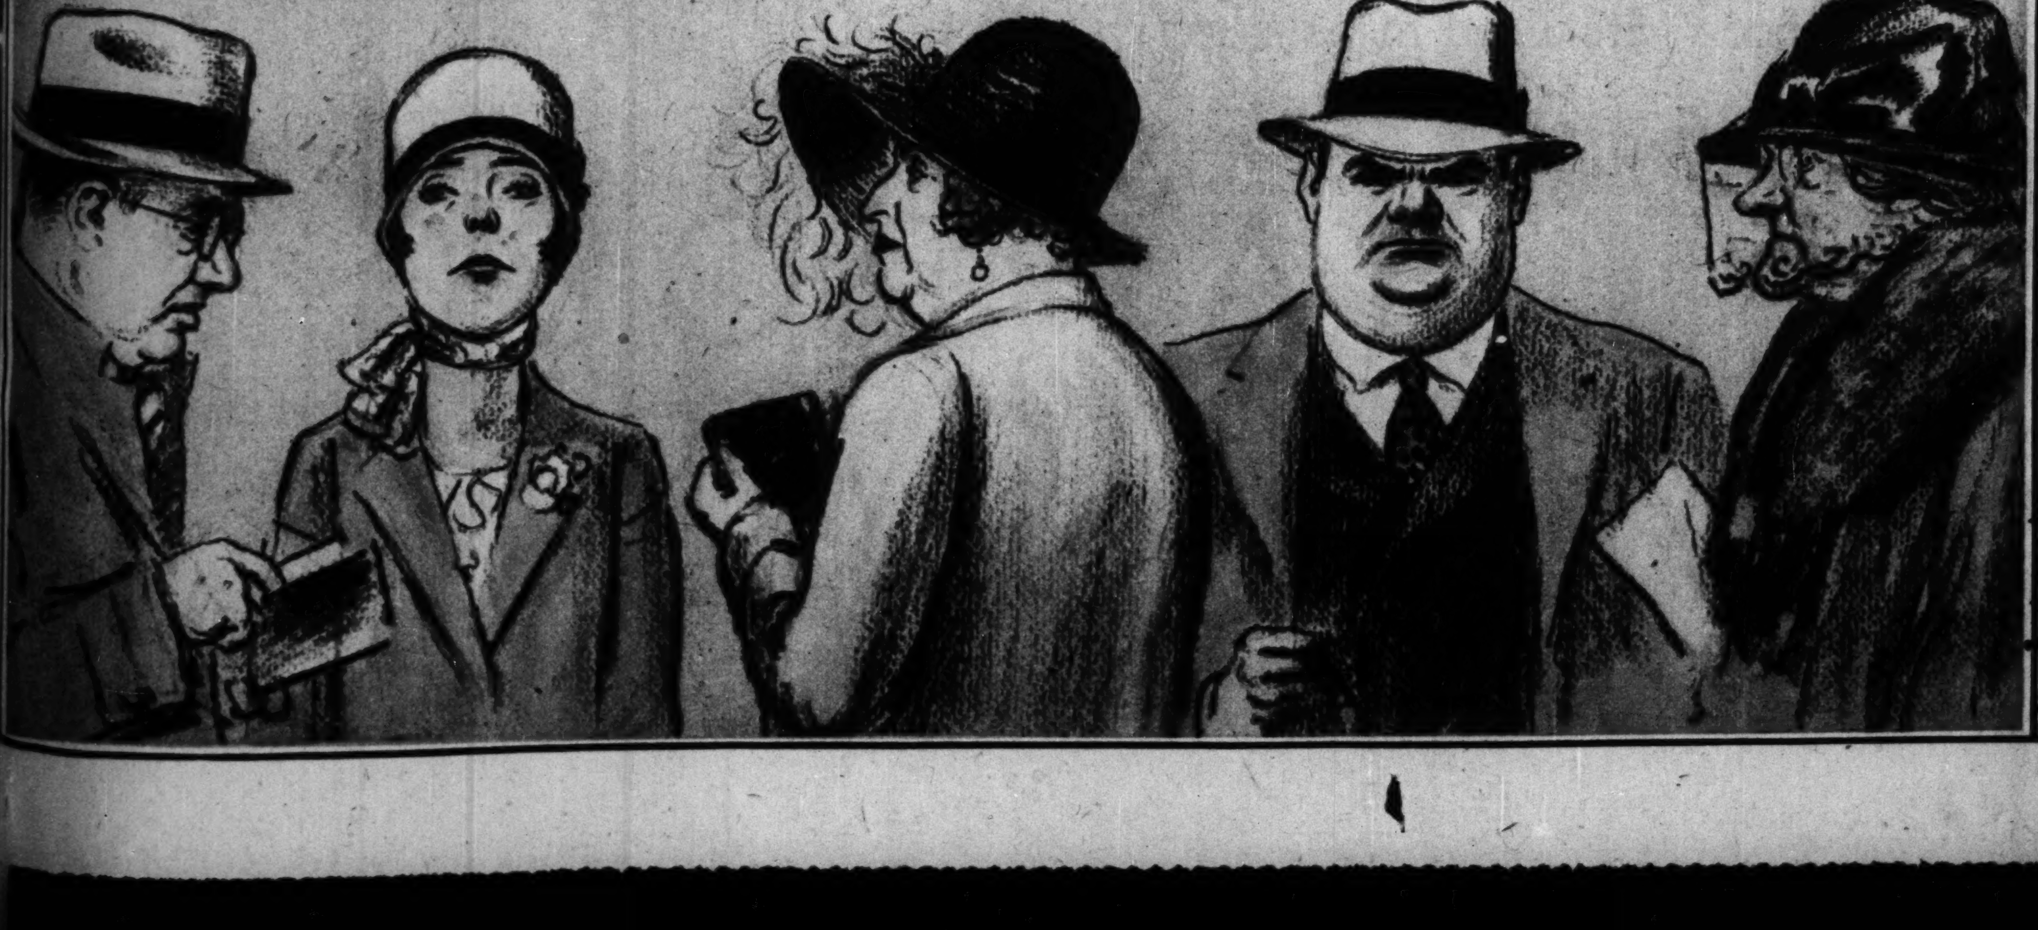
A jolly good-by gathering assembled to say bon voyage to Mr. Mausbaum of the Upity Downity Hosiery concern, and being very affectionate about it. This is the third encore of "Tonight's My Night with Baby."



Two roommates, who are not going to be very chummy, meeting for the first time. One will want the porthole open and one will want it shut; one will be seasick and one will not, and so the days will pass.



Alf, the kindly steward from B deck, helping a young man from a good-by party down the stairway.



Five perfectly good reasons why the purser should remain under cover for the time being. From left to right we have Mr. Goosens, who doesn't trust his roommate's face and wants to swap with some one; Miss Gracie Bangs of Bangor, Me., who wants to sing at the ship's concert, and is waiting to tell the purser about it; Mrs. Klee, who wants, O, so badly, to sit at the captain's table; Mr. Ricky, who desires immediate access to the bar, and last of all Miss Mersey, who had a tip from a friend that if she went to the purser immediately she could shift from an inside stateroom on C deck to a de luxe suite on the boat deck without extra disbursement.

COME ON UNCA WALT. I WANT TO TELL YOU A STORY.
THERE WAS A MAN THAT LIVED IN A CANYON AN' HE HAD A MULE THAT ATE LOTS OF HAY. EVERY DAY HE ATE A PILE AS BIG AS OUR HOUSE.
AN' THE MULE GOT SO BIG THE MAN COULDN'T CLIMB ON HIM UNLESS HE HAD A LADDER.
AN' THE MULE HAD A BROTHER THAT WAS BIG TOO AN' THE MAN HITCHED 'EM UP TOGETHER.
BUT HE COULDN'T HITCH 'EM UP TOGETHER IN THE CANYON 'CAUSE THE CANYON WASN'T BIG ENOUGH.
WHEN THE MAN GOT 'EM HITCHED UP HE DIDN'T HAVE ANY WAGON BIG ENOUGH TO TO HITCH 'EM ONTO SO HE UNHITCHED 'EM AGAIN.
AN' ONCE THE MULE ROLLED OVER AND ALMOST SQUUSHED THE MAN BUT HE RAN A HUNDRED MILES AN' GOT OUT OF THE WAY AN' DIDN'T GET SQUUSHED.
AN' THEN IT RAINED AN' THE WATER GOT SO DEEP THAT THE MAN HAD TO HAVE A BOAT BUT HE DIDN'T HAVE A BOAT SO HE GOT ON THE MULE AN' DIDN'T GET DROWNED.
THEN THE MULE GOT THIRSTY AN' DRANK UP ALL THE WATER AN' THE MAN CLIMBED DOWN AGAIN.
AN' THE MAN ATE A LOT O' POTATOES AN' BREAD AN' HE GOT BIG ENOUGH FOR THE MULE AN' HE COULD STEP OVER THE CANYON AN' EVERYTHING.
AN' THEN HE SAID IT ISN'T ANY FUN TO BE BIG - MY COFFEE POT ISN'T BIG ENOUGH ANY MORE SO HE GOT LITTLE AGAIN.
AW GO LONG WITH YOU! YOU'VE BEEN ASSOCIATING WITH SQUINT SO LONG YOU'VE JUST GOT TO TELL WHOPPERS.
